FOREWORD

Here in this Calyx is a record of the past college year—of Athletics, of Activities, of Classes, and of the multitudinous things which go to make up that intangible something called Washington and Lee Spirit. If this book recalls memories of campus life, and shows to some extent the love and devotion which we feel for Alma Mater, it will have more than fulfilled its purpose—that of being truly

Washington and Lee's Unique Riches

Washington and Lee was founded as Augusta Academy in 1749. It was the concrete expression of that devotion to religion and learning which characterized the Christian settlers of the Valley of Virginia. Two months before the Declaration of Independence, the trustees by a unanimous vote changed its name to Liberty Hall. In 1782, it was formally incorporated as an independent Institution under a self-perpetuating board of trustees. In 1798, after long research and deliberation, George Washington adopted the Institution, richly endowed it, formally authorized it to bear his name, and dedicated it to the Christian civilization of the "Republic of the West."

After the wreck of the Civil War, it was completely reorganized by the administrative genius of Robert E. Lee who modernized and doubled its undergraduate departments, established University Schools of Law, of Engineering, of Journalism, and of Commerce, to rebuild and advance the civilization of the South, fixed its traditions of courtesy, honor, and broadminded patriotism, converted it into a Twentieth-Century Nursery of Leadership (fifty years ahead of the age), and then, suddenly called to his reward, bequeathed to its keeping his sacred dust and his incomparable name. Washington had endowed the Institution with his money; General Lee enriched it forever by giving it himself. In its ennobling memories and traditions, no Institution in America can compare with Washington and Lee. Thus its location, its history, its independence, and its great founders, seem forever to set the Institution apart from narrow limitations, low aims, and sordid labors, to serve the things of the spirit, and lift the future leaders of the nation toward the consecration, public spirit, and public service of Washington and Lee.

HER EQUALLY UNIQUE POVERTY

It seems incredible that such an Institution, with such a history and such a possible national service, should be crippled by unrelenting and unrelieved lack of financial capital. This had been partially due to the desolation and poverty of the South since General Lee's reorganization of the Institution, but mainly, perhaps, to the fact that its unique position in the South as a recipient of no taxation funds or church revenues, and dependent entirely upon private philanthropy, is almost entirely unknown.

In the whole realm of productive philanthropy and the advancement of Christian civilization there is no such present opportunity for fruitful financial investment as this unique Southern Nursery of Leadership, situated midway between the North and the South.

HER INSPIRING HOME TASK

In such a situation, and with such an All-Southern and national field of influence, the home task of Washington and Lee is to be totally different from our crowded, local, partisan institutions. It is to cultivate an All-Southern, national, broad-minded and uplifting Campus atmosphere; to so guide, train and develop its home standards and home life that the moral atmosphere of its Campus, the customs and traditions of its students activities, and the love and loyalty and honor and courtesy of all connected with it, may forever remain worthy of the name and character of its immortal founders.

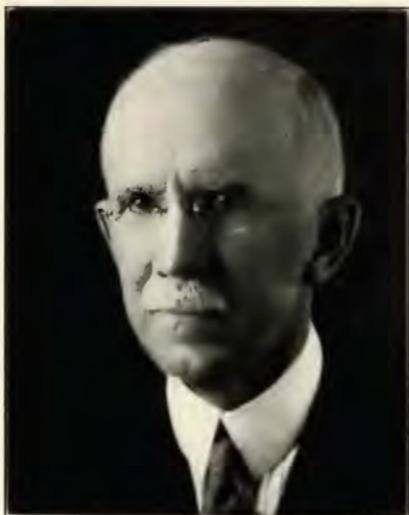

HER ALL-SOUTHERN TASK FOR THE FUTURE

The outside task of Washington and Lee is threefold:

(1) To recruit its Student Body from the finest material of the whole South and, to a lesser degree, from the nation, thus extending its breadth and moulding influence to every part of our Republic, and lifting American civilization above local narrowness, local jealousies, and sectional hatreds.

(2) To convert the whole, undivided South to an acceptance of Washington and Lee as its one historic All-Southern Nursery of Leadership, belonging equally to every Southern State, to every religious denomination, and to every American wherever located who desires to honor the memory, perpetuate the ideals, and carry on the life work of such transcendent civic leaders as Washington and Lee.

(3) To accumulate as rapidly as possible the millions of additional equipment and endowment necessary to carry on General Lee's life work and to perpetuate his ideals; to admit to its training, prospective leaders from every quarter, whom it is now rejecting for lack of equipment, and to become as Washington dreamed and Lee planned, an ALL-SOUTHERN NURSERY OF CHRISTIAN LEADERSHIP for the South, for the nation, and for our Western civilization.

Dean of the University

The Limitation of Enrollment at Washington and Lee

Owing to the fact that the number of applicants for admission to the University during the past few years has been greater than could be adequately taken care of with the present equipment and teaching force, it has been found necessary to limit the number of new students accepted in the College and School of Commerce until such time as the funds of the Institution will justify further expansion. Notwithstanding the limitation of the number of Freshmen admitted, the total enrollment has increased from 737 to 855 within five years, on account of the increased percentage of Upperclassmen who return to College. The increase in the percentage of students returning to College is due in part to the efforts to keep the University up to higher scholastic standards; in part to the increasing opportunities open to College graduates; and in part to the advanced Collegiate requirements for admission to professional schools. Applicants for admission to the School of Law of Washington and Lee University, and other standard law schools, must have successfully completed at least two years of Collegiate work.

WILLIAM HAYWOOD MORELAND, LL.B.

Dean

The School of Law

The Law School is completing the first year of its operation under the strictest rules governing entrance that are found in any Southern law school.

It is the considered judgment of the American Bar Association that no person shall be admitted to the practice of law, unless he has first been graduated from a law school having a three-year course for its degree and which requires of the student, before admission, that he shall have completed at least two years of College academic work; and the association has appealed to the law schools of the country to reach and maintain this high standard. No school responded more quickly or more whole-heartedly than did the School of Law of Washington and Lee University. The result has been as was expected. The number of the students has been very materially reduced; but those who do enter, are better prepared, better taught while they are here, and better equipped for practice when they are graduated. Washington and Lee Law School feels that it is doing its part toward raising the level of that profession to which its members are devoting their lives, and they have the satisfaction of knowing that their efforts have received recognition from the highest authority—the American Bar Association rating this law school, "A."

JAMES LEWIS HOWE, Ph.D., M.D.
Dean

The School of Applied Science

The School of Applied Science of Washington and Lee University was founded as a School of Engineering by General Robert E. Lee in 1866, and the first Professor of Engineering was Colonel William Allan who had been chief ordnance officer in the second corps of the army of Northern Virginia. He was succeeded by General G. W. Custis Lee who followed his father as President of the University. Degrees of B.S. are given in Engineering, Chemistry, and Electrical Engineering. The Department of Civil Engineering occupies Reid Hall which was erected for the Departments of Engineering and Physics in 1904. The Chemical Department has already partly moved into the new Chemical Building just completed, the lower floor of which is given over to Electrical Engineering.

GLOVER DUNN HANCOCK, PH.D.

Dean

The School of Commerce and Business Administration

Washington and Lee established in 1906 the first University School of Commerce in the South. This was the outgrowth of an endowment raised as a memorial to William Lyne Wilson. The School of Commerce and Administration now includes the Departments of Economics, Commerce, Business Administration, Accounting, Political Science, and Sociology, the courses offered leading to a degree of Bachelor of Science in Commerce. The school undertakes to give an education through the instrumentality of courses in Business and Public Administration, and thus to train for leadership in business and public life. One year of general College work is required for admission, and specialization groups are limited to the Junior and Senior years.

The School of Commerce and Administration now occupies the larger part of Newcomb Hall and, in addition, a smaller building equipped for instruction in Accounting and Statistics. The student enrollment this session is 236, of whom 46 are Seniors applying for the degree of Bachelor of Science in Commerce, in June, 1925.

Again the Eastern Shore of Virginia and Washington and Lee are proud to own "Shorty", maker of friends and conceiver of ideals. He came here four years ago from Randolph-Macon, last year receiving his Bachelor of Arts degree and at the same same time continuing his studies in the Law School.

Possessed of an ability to master any subject he undertakes, with a brilliancy equaled by few, he will meet with success on the highway of life. Whatever obstacles he may encounter will fall before his persistent efforts.

The individual personality which belongs to "Shorty," mark him the true gentleman to all who meet him. He is composed of the elements which tend toward the making of a great man. If you believe in success, watch "Shorty."

"Buck" sauntered over from Staunton some four years ago with academic and legal ambitions which are now culminating in a just reward for his earnest endeavors. With a cheery smile, a quip, and a word for everybody, he has indelibly stamped his ever-colorful personality on each and every mind in his Student Body. We, who have dipped beneath the surface, admire his sterling worth, his admirable traits and genial fellowship, and regret sincerely his departure.

But a profession other than pressing the offsprings of Finchley awaits him. He goes forth, fully prepared for a sensational career, and with the best wishes of a host of friends who feel reasonably assured that he will never stop below the topmost pinnacle. Luck to you, "Buck!"

SAM BUCHOLTZ
Jacksonville, Florida

Z. B. T.; Troubadours, '23, '24.

The above is a likeness of Sam Bucholtz of Jacksonville, scholastic shark and violin virtuoso. Throughout his legal career in Tucker Hall, he has maintained a consistent degree of pre-eminence in his law exams, and an enviable standard of preparedness in his class-room work.

His musical propensities found expression in the Troubadour Orchestra, and his skill in drawing a bow has produced for him a well founded reputation as a potential Kreisler. His quiet, unassuming yet sincere manner, has made for him the friendship of the leading men on the Campus.

Good nature, persistence, ability, and loyalty are the outstanding attributes of this future leader of the Jacksonville Bar. We predict a high degree of success for this extraordinary barrister as he steps into the legal limelight.

"Colonel" George T. Clark comes by his title honestly, for who has a better claim to wear a handle of that character than a true son of "the State of fast horses and beautiful women?"

Stimulated by a desire to become well versed in the realm of knowledge made famous by Coke and Blackstone, "Colonel" laid siege to Tucker Hall, and after three years of unceasing and varied attacks has succeeded in reducing the walls of defense in such a manner as should cause the legal lights of the day to squirm uncomfortably.

As he leaves us, we cannot fail to remark that the Campus loses a great asset and that Kentucky is receiving a citizen well able to bear his burden of the affairs of state.

Undeniably one of the best known and most universally popular men on the entire Campus, with a conspicuously successful record of participation in all branches of College activity behind him, Wirt goes forth from the historic portals of Tucker Hall to take up the practice of law in his native bailiwick of West Virginia; which advent, we have no doubt, will be attended by no small degree of success.

As a result of his leadership on the Campus, he was elected into Omicron Delta Kappa last year, is a member of Phi Alpha Delta legal fraternity and of numerous other social and honorary societies. His host of friends in the University send with him on his departure their sincerest wishes for his continued success in his chosen profession.

It is indeed with difficulty that we try to condense a career so eventful as "Herb's." His many Campus activities range from debating to tennis to publication work to making staunch friends; and we hardly know where to start in enumerating his achievements.

"Herb" hung out his shingle in Lexington as a member of the Bar long before he received his coveted sheepskin, and he is already well known in local courts as a capable attorney. It is, therefore, useless to make any predictions as to his future success, since his past record speaks for itself.

As "Herb" goes out into the legal world, he bears with him the sincere good wishes of his many associates at Washington and Lee.

After having taken his academic work elsewhere, "Hink" entered the School of Law in the Fall of 1922, and this June is to be numbered among those who will go forth with the greatly-coveted LL.B. With a quiet air of cordiality, his thorough sincerity, and his unusual faculty for making friends, he has been throughout his stay in Washington and Lee an outstanding man on the Campus in every respect.

"Hink" plans to locate in his home State, probably in Roswell, to continue his law in actual practice. He will always be remembered by his classmates and friends here as a real Washington and Lee man and one who may be expected to continue the success which has attended his College career.

After resting for a year in the Academic School, "Houch" decided to spend three years within the portals of Tucker Hall. The first year was devoted almost entirely to a study of Domestic Relations, and the second and third years to the application of those principles.

While "Houch" has been a successful student at Washington and Lee, he has not lost sight of the many other advantages to be gained on the Campus. His many friends will attest to the fact that another example of the good fellowship of Washington and Lee and the true spirit of the South will leave with "Houch."

We can confidently predict success in his chosen profession, and certainly he leaves with enough of the old fight to put him through.

LEO SUTHERLAND HOWARD

"Chucky" is the addendum placed on Leo's regular name by his friends; an epithet truly applicable in more than one sense. It carries with it the breath of congeniality and cheerfulness, and bespeaks bigness of character as well as physical size. Willing to take the knocks, and capable of enjoying to the fullest its pleasures, Leo has derived from his experience a bright philosophy all his own.

Three years of steady application has brought to Leo its reward in the shape of the coveted "dip" with which he is going to bring the world to his door. Rich in a large coterie of friends, possessed of perseverance and the will to do, we expect a lot of "Chucky," and have no thought of being disappointed.

After spending two years preparing for law at V. P. I., "Dizzy" came to us in the Fall of 1922 and entered Tucker Hall. During his stay on our Campus, "Dizzy" has been actively engaged in numerous extra-curricula activities. Foremost, perhaps, is his work on publications, where his faithful and conscientious labor has always been outstanding.

Never let it be said that our "Dizzy" failed to dazzle the "Dollies," for a box car could scarcely carry his collection of female hearts; some broken and others badly damaged.

"Dizzy" is a man of fervent spirit, and creates an ever-increasing friendship with every meeting. He carries with him best wishes for his future success from his host of friends on the Campus.

EDWIN GRAVES HUNDLEY

The familiar subject here is "Dog," the name he generally goes by to the members of the Student Body, but personally we have never been able to find any justification for such a cognomen. "Dog" came to us from the Mountaineer State, West Virginia, and his good judgment asserted itself from the first, by his coming to Washington and Lee. After two years of the Academic School, he heard the call of the Bar, and entered the Law School.

His rare personality is characteristic only of "Dog," and his smile for everyone has made for him a host of friends on the Washington and Lee Campus. With such a personality and combined ability to make friends, he cannot help but make good in whatever he may undertake in the future.

Blessed with the faculty of making staunch friends, possessing a keen intellect and sharp wit, as well as a masterful command of language which has helped to make him one of the most journalistically-gifted men that has ever stepped upon the Washington and Lee Campus, "Lou" leaves a host of close associates who wish him a phenomenal success in his chosen profession.

From the red-clay hills of "Gawga" and a prepping year at "Tech," "Billy" came to our Academic School, and then, in search of vastly different learning, entered Tucker Hall. His four years have been crammed full of law, friends (real friends) and honors, for not only was he elected Junior Manager of Football, but also President of the Intermediate Law Class, thus being recognized for his efficiency and popularity.

Although addicted to periodicals not generally found in the library, "Billy" has found time to absorb both law and equity, which, combined with a genial and magnetic personality will pave an easy path for a deserved Eldorado and a coveted place among Washington and Lee's most distinguished Alumni.

"D. Being naturally good natured and industrious, Dorsey has made many friends in the Law School and on the Campus, and has easily passed the various courses pursuant to the study of the law.

We all expect to see Dorsey emulate the example of his fellow townsman and Washington and Lee man—John W. Davis—in a rapid rise in the legal and political world. Luck to you, "Mitch."

WILLIAM EDWARD MOORE

"Eddie" dropped in on us from Basic, Virginia, with a thirst for a knowledge of the Law. Since he has been here, that thirst has been quenched, because "Eddie's" favorite hangout is Tucker Hall.

During his stay on the Campus, "Eddie" has become a part of the University itself—everyone knows him and he knows everyone. There can be no doubt as to his interest in all things pertaining to Washington and Lee, for he has displayed this attribute on innumerable occasions. His genial personality has fitted him for every situation.

To be respected, admired and popular are assets to any political aspirant, and so a great career is predicted for "Eddie." If the Campus can be used as a testing laboratory, he will some day occupy the White House.

"Johnny" leaves Washington and Lee an outstanding figure in every field of Campus activity—scholastic, athletic, journalistic, dramatic, social, and executive.

As President of the Student Body he has demonstrated unusual executive ability and filled most admirably this highest position of trust and honor. His social conquests and popularity are attested by his election to every social club on the Campus and the Presidency of the Cotillion Club.

"Cap" came to Washington and Lee in 1916, staying through his Sophomore year in the Academic School. After being out for four years he returned and entered the Law School with an enviable record already established.

In him we find that rare combination—unusual scholastic ability, practical common sense which refuses to be swayed by passion or prejudice, and a good fellowship that is as lasting as it is genuine.

With his thorough knowledge of the law, a real ability along business lines, and his high principles, there is no necessity for a prophecy in regard to his future success.

The wanderlust caused "Fil" to leave Washington and Lee after his first year, and he attended George Washington University. But realization was not too late in coming, and he returned to our Campus for a stay of three years in the Law School.

Whether "Fil" takes up the practice of law in Suffolk or elsewhere, success is his, if we may base our judgment on his record here, for those qualities which lead to success in any field are his.

We place him in the category of an all-round man, a true gentleman, and a friend who can be counted upon under the most trying circumstances. His many associates regret to see him leave, and all join in wishing him untold success as a barrister.

Perry hails from the dear old Southland. Having acquired his academic knowledge at Louisiana State University, he showed that rare judgment exhibited by many of America's greatest lawyers and came to Washington and Lee for his LL.B.

Perry has gone over the top for the glory of Washington and Lee many times in track meets, with his pole-vaulting, and has won for himself that coveted position of captain of the team. It is with the same spirit that he has conquered the Law School, and we are sure of seeing him reach the peak in the legal profession.

We are all behind you, Perry, and wherever you go, never forget that the Class of '25 is pulling for you to reach that desired summit.

JOHN SENTMAN STRAHORN, JR.
Annapolis, Maryland

$\Sigma \Delta K$; Secretary Graham-Lee Literary Society, '22, President, '23; Secretary-Treasurer Law Class, '23; Debating Council, '24.

When John came to us from St. John's College, there was no need for him to try to make himself known, for already everyone was asking, "Where is the boy who got a B.A. degree from St. John's at seventeen years of age?" At the age of nineteen, John passed the Maryland State Bar, and now at twenty he is getting an LL.B. from Tucker Hall.

John has always been a leader among his fellow students; he has been an officer in his literary society, his legal fraternity, and his class. In the class room, the old, familiar "unprepared" was never heard to come from him.

The world will find a beaten path to his door, and the Class of '25 leads off by pointing its finger with pride to John.

MARVIN IRBY WALTON

Danville, Virginia

$\Sigma \Delta K$: Secretary-Treasurer Student Body, '25; Albert Sidney Crew, '23, Coxswain and Manager, '24; Troubadours, '23, '24, Vice-President, '25.

Marvin Irby, generally known as "Bo" or "Kid," after colorful careers at Fishburne Military Academy and the University of Virginia, displayed that rare judgment that has characterized his conduct throughout the four years we have known him, and migrated to Washington and Lee.

It is absolutely futile to attempt to outline his activities here, but we think it fitting to say that his latest accomplishment is that of passing the Virginia Bar examination. We are fully confident that "Kid" will be one of the bright lights of the Virginia Bar, and that he will be a credit to Washington and Lee in his chosen profession.

To wish him all the success in the world is the privilege and pleasure of the Class of '25.

George's enviable record at Washington and Lee is the result of a combination of his many outstanding qualities, including diligence, ability, perseverance, and the capacity for making fast friends. He leaves his Alma Mater this year with the assurance that in every field of endeavor his associates utter, "Well done, George."

From the varied services that he has rendered Washington and Lee, one would suppose that, "Let George do it" was invented to apply to our own hero. Basketball, baseball, class football, a high scholastic record, and his Collegiate career (culminating the Presidency of Finals), indicate what an all-round man leaves the Institution this spring to herald the name of Washington and Lee wherever he goes.

K A; Troubadours, '24.

John has divided the time allotted for his University training between Davidson, and Washington and Lee, his first two years being spent at the former Institution. (In passing, we wonder if the proximity of Hollins had anything to do with the change.)

John, though he has never lost his warm feeling for Davidson, soon became a true Washington and Lee man, adapting himself to College life as he found it here, interesting himself in the traditions of the school, and supporting the University to the "n-th" degree in all phases.

He may know that, in addition to the assistance of his A.B. degree in his future endeavors he has the best wishes of the host of friends made during his all-too-short stay at Washington and Lee.

When this quiet, unassuming youth landed in Lexington in the Fall of 1921, no one would have picked him as a future Campus leader, but that was before they knew Darby. He possesses in abundance that quality to do well whatever he undertakes. His management of this year's Basketball team has been more than successful. His sunny disposition has enabled him to make friends readily. Underneath his easygoing way are found the sterling traits of character and the steady purpose that will make his successes worth while. Darby leaves his Alma Mater a man among men, respected, honored, and beloved.

MACKALL RUST BRUIN, JR.

K Φ K; Football Squad, '24, '25; Wrestling Squad, '22, '23; Vice-President Senior Academic Class.

Behold the Romeo of his class! Otherwise known as "Joe." He has been a man of unparalleled versatility in Washington and Lee's Collegiate life. On the gridiron, he was a "Fighting General"; in the classroom, he was a shark; and lastly, in his associations with the fair sex, he was monarch of all he surveyed, because, in Biblical terms, "Joe" hast persuaded a fair young damsel to be Mrs. Bruin. We are indeed fortunate to have this "youngster" in our class, because he is a man of true worth, of honesty of purpose, and of excellent aspirations. "Joe" appreciates his "responsibilities," hence his success is inevitable, and to such a type of manhood does Washington and Lee owe much of her time-honored traditionalism.

OLLINGER CRENSHAW
Atlanta, Georgia

History Scholarship, '24; Tennis Team, '25.

Entering Washington and Lee in the Fall of 1922, Ollinger has proven his ability as a student by finishing his course in three years. On the Campus, he has been recognized as a student of brilliant intellect and high character. Not only has he been able to acquire the History Scholarship along with other scholastic honors, but has also proven himself to be one of the best tennis players at Washington and Lee, and his tall and slender form wielding that mighty racket reminds us of the famous "Bill Tilden."

To know this student and gentleman has been a privilege to all the students of Washington and Lee, for he is a worthy friend and comrade. May Atlanta send more sons like him.

At McCallie, "Rody" learned the value of uninterrupted concentration, and with that asset established intellectual records at Washington and Lee that few have broken. He was undaunted by the strictness of the University curriculum and has maintained an enviable standing in all his classes. The completion of a four-year course of study in three is ample evidence of his untiring devotion to mental achievements. However, he has not permitted ambitions for scholastic honors to deprive him of participation in other activities, and his successes have been equally as prominent in many other fields. Lastly, and by far the best, he has offered to many a friendship which will always be remembered with pleasure. May his future be moulded with the same ideals which have dominated the corner-stone of his career.

BRUCE DRAPER

Alligators are characteristically slow, but above is pictured one "Gator" who very quickly recognized the true worth of Washington and Lee. Evidently, information of the "Plastic Age" had reached Florida.

About four months afterwards, there came the sudden realization that College is not what you read about. Frivolity and procrastination were all cast into the fire, and the registrar's records will easily prove that you can't keep a good man down.

He returns to Florida, and whether or not he is to be an orange-grower, alligator farmer, or a keeper of tourists' resorts, we shall in the future see Bruce in the Who's Who of Florida, as his qualities of steadfastness, ability, and natural likableness will place him there.

ROBERT ADAM FULWILER, JR.

As John Milton did so aptly remark, "Four years in Sun and Shower, he did verily wise crack," so hath the subject in hand. He comes from Staunton, but so did Woodrow Wilson, although "Bob" is a staunch Republican. There is no word in any cross-word puzzle that can describe him.

Outwardly, "Bob" appears tremendously silly, while many think him screamingly funny—and a few believe him slightly insane. But merely glance at his record, and there can be no doubt of his brilliance. Anyone who can carry away the Latin and Mathematics Scholarships has an intellect far above the average. With all his foolishness and brilliance, we yet must love him. Cynic that he is, he hates people.

When Bruce steps down from the platform with his well earned degree, Washington and Lee gives to the world one more good cause for its reputation as a place where real men are trained. Bruce came to the Campus from the nation's capital, and he returns well fitted for whatever he undertakes.

During the past four years, Bruce has found time from his study to take part in outside activities and has made for himself many lifelong friends through his genial and sincere personality. Through hard work and stick-to-it-iveness he has become one of the most dependable cross-country runners that Washington and Lee has boasted in many years, and with such work and perseverance applied to his life's endeavor, true success will be his.

Back in September, 1921, there came to Washington and Lee, from Richmond, none other than our friend "Ken." Having conquered the difficulties of John Marshall, "Ken," like Alexander, longed for other worlds to subdue. It was then that he came to our Campus, and has shown us that he is a hard and diligent worker. He has found time to make his influence felt in many Campus activities, and is sure to be missed next year by all, including the "Earl."

As a star with the ladies, "Ken" is of a well known magnitude, and we join with his many fair friends in wishing him a large share of success. "Tis with sorrow that we must say, "au revoir," and good luck.

No one would accuse "Goody" of being a big man—not even a certain young lady who attended Sullins College last year. Yet here is a living proof that you can never tell by one's size.

Entering Washington and Lee in the Fall of 1921, he set to work in that quiet way of his to make a success of his College career. Four years—class work, athletics, Campus activities—the ultimate goal, a degree. We who know him and have traveled the high-road with him are sure that such qualities and the great stamina shown by him in College will make his future work a success even more marked than his Collegiate accomplishments.

"Tom" came to Washington and Lee in January of 1921, after having spent the first semester at Cornell. He did not have to adapt himself to conditions here on the Campus, for it may be truly said of him that he is a natural-born Washington and Lee man; a true gentleman and a loyal friend.

"Tom" intends to study law at Michigan after leaving here. Our best wish for him is that he may there uphold the traditions and ideals of Washington and Lee with the same zealous care with which he has upheld them here. We are sure that his genial fellowship and pleasing personality will win for him a host of friends at Michigan and in later years. May your success always be measured by your friends, "Tom."

WILLIAM PRESTON HARPER
Dry Fork, Virginia

Washington Literary Society, Secretary-Treasurer, '24.

"Pres" came to us from Dry Fork, Virginia, having attended the Danville High School. Then being desirous of studying medicine, he decided to take a Pre-Medical course at Washington and Lee. "Pres" is blessed with a most pleasant disposition, and it was not long before he had a host of friends on the Campus, all of whom are sorry to see him leave.

In his studies we find him among those with the "B" grade, which proves that he is a good student. In addition to doing justice to his work, "Pres" has taken an active interest in the revival of the Washington Literary Society.

Next year, "Pres" will attend the University of Virginia Medical School, where we know that he will make a record of which his Alma Mater will be proud.

From the land of fast horses and beautiful women, there came some four years ago, a native son of the blue-grass regions. After graduating from the Columbia Military Academy, he entered Washington and Lee to pursue further that will-o'-the-wisp known as knowledge. That he has been successful in his endeavor, is evidenced by the fact that in June he will become the proud possessor of the much-coveted "sheepskin."

During his College career, "Johnny" has participated in numerous activities, and has made many lifelong friends who wish him all possible success in his chosen life's work. Of a jovial, friendly disposition, John leaves a host of friends on the Washington and Lee Campus. Of him it can well be said, "Gone but not forgotten."

Kentucky is the all-proverbial land of fine horses, beautiful women, and excellent ginger ale. Although "Nick" does not come under any of those terms, he is characteristically a product of that State. After attempting Maryville College and the University of Kentucky, he discovered that Virginia is the educational center par excellence, and Washington and Lee the best in the best State. Consequently, he has had but two years with us, yet in these two years we have learned to appreciate his exceedingly fine qualities. It is understood that he intends inventing a machine whereby he can be in Washington within an hour, no matter where he happens to be.

It is needless to say, of course, that we are expecting for him success unparalleled. Kentucky, send us more like him!

Curtis's home is in Smithfield, but he has always seemed to be quite at home in Lexington, since he has many friends among the townspeople as well as students. Curtis is quiet and unassuming, indeed, but those who know him well, find that though he talks very little, he has much to say. On account of especially brilliant and extensive work in the Department of Education, Curtis was chosen student assistant in that department. During his Senior year, he was elected President of the Chapter of Kappa Phi Kappa, and in addition has made a splendid record in the Chemistry Department. He expects to teach after leaving school, and we wish and predict for him success.

Pittsburgh was noted for one thing—steel. Now it is noted for two things—steel and “Johnny.”

Within three and one half years, “Turk” has acquired a degree and has been elected to Phi Beta Kappa. Holding such a brilliant class record has not kept “Turk” from being an ardent Y. M. C. A. worker, a member of the Troubadours and various other Campus organizations. He is a musician of no mean ability, contributing nightly with his violin to the pleasures of the New Theatre.

It has been a privilege to know “Turk,” because all his interests are directed toward a purer and freer development of what is noble in life. And we feel sure in our prophecy that whatever profession he may choose, we shall count him a leader.

Contrary to the general belief, “Frank” is not the lad who poses for the Kuppenheimer advertisements. He arrived back in '21 and proceeded to stroll easily along toward an A.B. degree. He is a living proof that a man, besides annexing the coveted sheepskin in four years, can engage in College life and activities, and still have time left to shave and play billiards. Undoubtedly one of the better billiard shots, “Frank” will be missed by his contemporaries who foregather at the winter resorts.

“Frank’s” word is as good as his bond, and while the exact market value of his bond is hard to determine, his word is never questioned. From the qualities that he has shown in College, we believe “Frank” will find the winds of life favorable.

However, his friends were sincerely glad to welcome him back in the Fall of '22, and this time his stay was for three years, in which he has acquired an A.B. degree, and two or three Track Monograms.

We are not sure as to whether "Pete" will settle in Charleston or elsewhere, but we are sure that one who has the ability to make friends as he has, is assured of success wherever he may decide to make his home.

FRANK WHITNER MARTIN
Greenville, South Carolina

Frank emphatically disclaims any relationship to Joe Martin of movie fame. Not that there is anything stuck up about Frank. We hate to pull that trite crack about "still waters run deep," but it applies so well here that we just could not get around it.

While he has selfishly denied himself to the fair sex of this part of the country, it would not be safe to make any such statement as to his actions down in Greenville; and if there's a bull session down at "Uncle Bud's" that doesn't include Frank, it means he is out of town. Frank threatens the business world of Greenville, and if sincerity and earnestness count for anything, he should attain all the success we wish him.

"Matt" needs no introduction, especially to the men who have attended Washington and Lee during the last few years. Since his arrival, he has been distinguished by his most efficient service to the University, filling with distinction the Presidency of the Y. M. C. "Matt's" beautiful baritone voice has afforded us no end of pleasure and has earned for him the title of "Campus mocking bird."

After a brief academic training at Davidson, "Pete" was duly impressed by the many fine schools in Virginia, and selected Hollins and Washington and Lee for higher education. Although residing in Lexington, he spends two days a week attending a special course near Roanoke.

We have to admit that the other five days are also put to advantage. His class standing and the many close friendships formed are sufficient evidence of that.

Leaving here to enter business, we hope to hear reports of "Pete's" success, not only in a financial way but in many other fields where his pleasing personality will be certain to gain him recognition.

THOMAS SPURGEON MOORE

"Tommy" came to us this year, leaving behind him the sunny smiles of fair co-eds at Bryson College, Tennessee. Our great regret is that he was not with us longer.

He has proven his ability as a student by conscientious labor. He has that priceless quality of getting great pleasure out of both work and play, without allowing either to interfere with the other.

Whatever may be his plans, his fate, and his future, it is a foregone conclusion that his singleness of purpose and his perpetual good humor will always insure for him success along the highways and byways he may choose to travel.

"Mel" came to us from the swamp-infested territory of Louisiana in the Fall of 1921, with a remarkable and amiable disposition. Since then, he has been a consistent "B" student, and his endeavors as a member of the Albert Sidney Crew have proven his worth as an athlete. So when one must leave the more beaten paths of everyday chemistry and wander to the vague intricacies of this great, mystic realm, he questions the "Duke," from whom he may be assured of a correct solution.

Accurate work, an analytical mind, and a keen sense of humor will carry "Herb" far in his future life work—medicine.

Roach, being from Columbus, Ohio, naturally went a year to Ohio State, and then changed to somewhere else. Washington and Lee, always unlucky in love, succeeded in drawing this card. Roach has all the attributes of a genius; he's absent-minded, plays the mandolin, writes free verse, and is a burner of the midnight oil. He is more than a genius, however, he's a gentleman, a scholar, and a judge of good humor. Roach is a natural-born orator and debater, having been one of the mainstays on the Varsity Debating team since his arrival at Washington and Lee. If fortune should at first refuse him success in life, he'll be bound, sooner or later, to argue her out of it and achieve his goal.

Here we have an all-round man—Joe Clay Roberts. He's here primarily, we suppose, to get an education; and he gets that with a Phi Beta Kappa key. But one must have diversion—all work and no play would make even Joe a dull boy, so he went out for the various social activities. As an actor and director, he is incomparable and, recognizing this, the Troubadours elected him to their presidency. On the dance floor, he was noted for his proficiency and popularity, and was selected to lead the Interfraternity Dance.

Joe has started the study of law with the same success that has marked his academic work. A proficient student, a genial friend, a natural gentleman, and a Campus leader, characterize him in our estimation.

"Si" arrived in our midst from the mountain city of the State of foaming, frothing beer and the sinuous pretzel. He has made himself right at home, and the worst anyone ever said of him is that he is a Republican. Socially or scholastically, "Si" tosses a fearful line and gets away with it, for his genial disposition seems to take as well with the professors and the fair sex as it does with his fellow students.

He is not unacquainted with work, and does his full share of that, but when play comes along, "Si" is a connoisseur of means for enjoying himself. Turned loose on the world of business next year, his firmest friends cannot wish him more success than we confidently predict.

In his three years here, his work has been of such high order that his name has appeared on every Honor Roll.

He, however, does not allow work to interfere with pleasure. It has indeed been a great privilege to have enjoyed the society and friendship of one of Washington and Lee's greater sons.

Another one of Old Virginia's sons entered Washington and Lee in the Fall of '21. His innate modesty during his College career has probably prevented Rudolph from taking a greater part in College activities, but the true spirit of the school has never been lacking.

While a Freshman, he won the Scholarship in German. In his Junior year, the Faculty recognized his ability as a student by giving him the Instructorship in German. In all his work he has certainly proven himself a diligent and a brilliant student.

It is with the greatest of regret that we give up Rudolph. Yet we know that the world outside will gain by his influence, and Washington and Lee will be honored by having him as one of her graduates.

Verily, Young Lochinvar hath come out of the Southland, and to the Southland he now returneth. And there is a weeping and a wailing, and a gnashing of teeth among the wower folk, for he goeth, never to return.

And there lieth amidst the colorful assortment of Finchley ties in his bag no less than fifteen photographs of pulchritudinous damsels, for he hath fought the great battle of Doremus, and valiantly hath he conquered.

And alack! Sweet Briar shall know him no more, neither Roanoke nor Lynchburg, and the Corner misseth his smiling countenance. No longer shall the evening breeze waft his ringing battle cry of "all right, Lowry!" to the faint-hearted and discouraged.

But this has not been done by sacrificing the many other benefits of College life found outside the textbook. Along with his faculty of persistent study, "Spec," with his smiling countenance and all-round good fellowship, has made a host of endeared friends on the Washington and Lee Campus. He has signified his intention of pursuing the study of law at Columbia, but we earnestly hope that he will return to his Alma Mater, instead. Although John matriculated at Tulane University for his Bachelor of Arts degree, he came to Washington and Lee this fall to put on the finishing touches to his College career.

John has one of the most pleasing personalities it has ever been our good fortune to meet. Since his first day on our Campus, his unconsciousness of self, his altruistic interest in others, and his charming manners have endeared him to everyone with whom he has come in contact.

This same personality, coupled with his keenness of perception and practicality of mind, should carry him far into his chosen profession—the bond business. John has grasped quickly the spirit of our Campus, and will make for Washington and Lee a true and loyal representative.

If you are ever feeling blue or lonesome, just look up "Bob," and he will help you knock out the gloom with a well placed "wise crack." His irrepressible good humor has won for him a host of friends and admirers. "Bob" came down from the Keystone State in the Fall of 1922, after spending two years at Dickinson College. Since that time, he has made an enviable record here as a scholar, and an all-round man on the Campus. His attainments and talents are too numerous to mention, and include everything from accordian-playing to being a literary genius and professional humorist. "Bob" intends to begin law next year, and we are sure that success awaits him as a barrister.

This Sewaneean came down from the wooded mountain after one year at the University of the South, and entered Washington and Lee the following September. The continuance and conclusion of his academic pursuits here have been profitable to himself and most assuredly to those who have come to know him intimately.

"Scoop" became immediately interested in Campus activities, and has contributed much to the Ring-tum Phi. Fortunately, his humor is two-edged, for he readily appreciates a joke on himself. His good nature and quiet stability along with his other qualities have assured him a place in our regard, and we will retain him in our memory after he has returned to the wilds of Mississippi to administrate his estate.

From the land of Henry Ford comes our boy, George. Although not exactly from Detroit, he is really a remarkably good "car." He came to Washington and Lee in the Fall of 1921, and immediately began to show his ability as a star student, although he never seemed to spend much time studying. Finding six or seven "tickets" a term such a light burden, he began to look around for other adventures to occupy his time.

As an athlete, he has exhibited his prowess as a member of the Harry Lee Boat Club.

It has never occurred to his friends to wish him well, because his success has always been a thing assured. We delight in the fact that we have had the privilege of knowing a true Washington and Lee gentleman.

"Reading maketh a full man," quoth the sapient Bacon; and if this canon be reliable, either the subject of this sketch is in imminent peril of reaching the state of satiety, or his capacity of assimilation is inexhaustible, for if John hasn't read it, the chances are mighty strong against it ever having been written.

In fact, John Wisdom is the Washington and Lee student of literature par excellence. He has the extraordinary distinction of having in three years taken every English course in the College curriculum. And in this, his chosen field, the brilliant certitude of his grasp is rivaled only by the phenomenal versatility of his reach. Drama, poetry, fiction, short-story—it makes no difference to this fount of "Wisdom."

We are assured of his place next year among the "Intelligenza" of Harvard.

After sojourning for two years in the academic shades of Southwestern University, Gibson felt the lure of the time-tested traditionalism and the eternal romanticism of Washington and Lee, and determined to avail himself of the opportunity of quaffing deep drafts of its limpid and crystalline waters.

In addition to having acquitted himself with credit and honor in the intellectual arena, Gibson has wrought well on the forum and in publication work. And finest of all, in the character of Gibson Witherspoon we have seen epitomized and personified those ideals of honor, manliness and gentility which have always been the supreme glory of Washington and Lee. Can more be said of any man?

HERMAN JAMES WOMELDORF
Lexington, Virginia

Another Lexingtonian passes on to the Rolls of Honor, leaving behind him a record of constant and earnest scholarship, of devotion to the ideals of Washington and Lee and, best of all, a truly most likable personality.

We cannot help but feel that he has more or less cheated us in living away from the Campus, several miles down "the valley," while attending the University.

Herman expects to enter some definite field of positive Christian work. Devotion to one's ideals, to one's noblest thoughts, brings about the greatest human good. And we feel assured that his zeal for the deeper things in life, coupled with his most genial good will, undoubtedly will carry him on to notable success.

Consistent work and true gentlemanly characteristics have brought their rewards to "Bill" Woolfolk, whose four years at Washington and Lee have brought him many honors and a great number of friends. It was eminently fitting that his classmates should honor him with the valedictorianship in his Senior year, because his record is one of achievement. "Bill" has won scholarships galore, including those in chemistry and physics as well as the H. Mann Page Scholarship.

"Bill" will enter the Medical School at Pennsylvania next year, and all wish him continued success.

Four years have passed since Paul B., as he is known to the Washington and Lee Campus, made his debut here. Paul came to us after a sojourn at Millersburg Military Institute in Kentucky where he completed his preparatory work.

Especially noteworthy is his work in the Department of Biology where he has distinguished himself as an outstanding student of the subject, winning the scholarship there his second year.

When Paul leaves Washington and Lee, to make his way among the uncertain destinies of this world, he will succeed, and in a manner which few have ability to do.

ARTHUR LEE YOUNG

The Old Palmetto State sent to our Campus the dashing Beau Brummel, pictured above, to break the hearts of many fair visitors at our dances. No dance is complete at Washington and Lee unless "Cy" is among those present. While making many friends among the fair sex, he is still held in high esteem by his College mates.

"Cy" intends to extend his activities from the social and academic to law, and we feel sure that success in this line will be as great as it has been for the past four years. As he goes into this new field, the sincere good wishes of his friends go with him. May Tucker Hall welcome him within its portals next year. "Good luck, but not farewell."

Quiet and unassuming, he has, by perseverance and hard work, made a most enviable record for himself during his four years here. It is seldom that his grades drop below an "A," which is unusual for an engineering student. He entered Washington and Lee with advanced standing in the Fall of 1923, and has been busy ever since, acquiring that famed culture talked of everywhere but found only beneath Virginia skies.

He has been a dependable substitute on the football team, and the greatest characteristic of his work there is his fighting spirit.

"Cowboy" will be remembered by his many friends on account of his earnestness of purpose and the thoroughness that characterizes every undertaking—qualities that cannot fail to bring a full measure of success.

"Jim" is one of those intrepid mortals who for four years has sounded the hidden terrors of the uncharted seas of engineering. For him, the mystic veils and the elusive ampere hold no secrets.

For two years, our "Jim" attempted to combine football and laboratory, and lab won. Since then he has confined his athletic prowess to crew, and with marked success. Three years on the Harry Lee Crew, and the captaincy for two of them, show his ability to manipulate an oar.

We, who know him, feel sure that when he rows in the great race of life, his fineness of character, his perseverance, and his unquestioned ability will all combine to aid him in reaching his ultimate goal.

FRANK PHILIP FISCHER

Frank's enviable career is the result of a combination hard to defeat—work and ability. Although he cannot be said to possess that elusive something that makes Phi Beta Kappas of some of us, grades above the average for four years prove that he is a fine student.

He has also taken part in many outside activities. He has participated in athletics as a member of the Albert Sidney Crew, and will leave a large breach when he departs this year.

Whatever may be the stability of the things that Frank may erect as an engineer for the world in the future, it is certain that the columns of friendship which he has built during his stay here will remain standing for all time.

GEORGE WILLIAM HALSTEAD, JR.

George is a native son of the Old Dominion, having passed his early days in the vicinity of Norfolk. After completing his preparatory education, he decided to worship at one of the two Shrines of Knowledge which Lexington boasts. Unfortunately, he chose the wrong one, but he soon discovered his error, and decided not only to enter Washington and Lee the next year but also to make Lexington his home.

George early gave evidence of being a willing worker, and that his industry has been successful is eloquently attested by his certificate in mathematics. We feel no hesitancy in predicting that his geniality, his unfailing optimism, and the perseverance and determination with which he attacks a knotty problem, will carry him far in his chosen profession.

You are now presented to "Ted" who has been accused of being a scientist. Most of his time has been devoted to courses in chemistry and geology. In the former study, he has reached the heights of Chemistry 252, which is the top; and in the latter, his word on the Rhynchotrema Capax, etc., is law; therefore, his position as Instructor in the Geology Department for two years is only a deserved honor.

"In the spring, a young man's fancy—" so you see work is not his only thought. Often rumor has come our way of a girl in the case, but it is impossible to decide which one.

When he leaves the Campus, he carries every good wish of his many friends at Washington and Lee.

To try to enumerate the good qualities of Allen Rushton would be only to elaborate on his proved abilities.

Allen came to us from Birmingham, and that city's loss was Washington and Lee's gain. In his usual quiet, unassuming manner, he has made a host of friends on our Campus, and in addition to his excellent scholastic efforts, he has found time to participate in track, where he has been one of Coach Fletcher's mainstays.

'T is true that "still waters run deep," and so with Allen. Although not given to superfluous conversation, those who know him, find a staunch friend, a diligent worker, and a character and personality which predict the top in his chosen field. His many friends wish him future success and continued prosperity.

In the class room, Roy's work has been of the very highest quality, and he is a shark without being a bookworm. On the Campus, also, he has taken a prominent place in every student activity and was a regular participant in all social affairs. He was chosen by his classmates in his Senior year to represent them on the Executive Committee, which is an honor in itself.

Washington and Lee may proudly point to the handsome youth portrayed above as the fine flower of the best of Virginia's educational institutions. John Marshall High School laid the foundation of his scholastic training; Fishburne contributed his military bearing; Richmond University added a modicum of cavalier culture; and then, Clyde wisely selected Washington and Lee for the perfecting of his educational equipment. Washington and Lee has returned the implied compliment by appointing him to one of the most important and genuinely constructive tasks of the Campus, that of holding a seat upon the Executive Committee of the Student Body.

If Clyde continues in all his activities to display the vim and enthusiasm with which he has conducted himself, we can predict for him success in every future undertaking.

"Buddy," as he is known by his friends (and they are legion), is easily one of the most popular men on the Campus. He is one who makes a most favorable impression upon first acquaintance, even more so, afterwards. We venture to say that there is no one better known at Washington and Lee than "Buddy." His reputation as a star first baseman on the Varsity has spread far and wide, and opposing teams have learned to respect highly his unusual fielding and hitting ability.

As an athlete, consistent student, true and loyal friend, and hail fellow well met, we count ourselves truly fortunate in knowing Aylmer. Our earnest wish is that Texas may send us many more of his caliber.

HERBERT M. BAKER

After spending a year at Kentucky State, and a second at the University of Michigan, "Santa" came to Washington and Lee in 1922, and thus at last found what he had long hoped for in schools.

During his three years at Newcomb Hall, he has been a diligent student. His aptness in preparations, however, has always left him ample time to indulge in all of the local pastimes; and the exceptionally great interest which he has manifested in athletics has often led him to accompany the "Fighting Generals" on their longest trips.

The qualities of unselfishness and good nature have won for him an ever-increasing host of friends on the Campus, and his strong determination and self-reliance can only foretell future prosperity.

Bristol, Connecticut, claims the honor of being the home of the subject of this sketch. There, "Louie" prepared for College while making himself into one of the few four-letter men turned out by his school. At Washington and Lee he has confined his efforts to football, and his two hundred pounds make him a good man in the line.

While "Louie" is not one to regard books in the light of his best friends, still he has a seriousness of purpose and a realization of responsibility that speak well for his success in after life. One of his best qualities is his ability to make friends, and that quality causes him to leave Washington and Lee with a host of them on the Campus.

Possessing a dignity that bespoke of future Statesmanship, "Newt" early impressed the Campus that he was no "mere mortal." Evidently, he has traveled from one end of these United States to the other, for he knows everyone from the "Simms of Seattle" to the "Warrens of Virginia."

Charm and manners have ever been objects of veneration, and it is through these qualities, Newton is best known to his fellow students. He has a subtle wit; and with this added to his other characteristics, it has made him well liked and admired by all who know him. Although he intends to enter the business world, we again recommend Statesmanship. But whatever the field of his activity, we know that his life will be a success.

Occasionally, someone with much nerve will call him, "Steve Brodie." The origin of this name has been kept a deep, dark secret; therefore, do not expect to learn of it here.

Those who have been associated with "Tim," will know that he has done his share in upholding the many honored traditions of Washington and Lee; a fact which means that he is a gentleman and a true friend. Moreover, he has proved to be a hard worker in studies, student activities, and even in the discharge of social duties.

At the parting of the ways, in June, he will carry with him the best wishes and the full confidence of his classmates and friends for the successful fulfillment of his life work.

In the Fall of 1921, McDowell County, West Virginia, sent us Alfred Aldo Charles; and this spring, he stands upon the threshold of his career, having supplemented his exceptionally good nature with an academic training; two assets which are bound to reap for this Alumnus the fruits of success.

Since coming to the Campus, his cheerful and likable disposition together with an unstinted ambition have won for him the friendship of many and the admiration of all. He leaves us to return to his native county, where for the present he expects to take up the profession of teaching; a capacity for which his worthy qualities so admirably fit him. Aldo has been an exceptional student and we wish him much success in his future endeavors.

Charleston has the distinction of firing the shot that precipitated the Civil War. She has another, which (while not quite so evident) may, nevertheless, some day be a source of pride to her—to have been the home of William Hale Cluverius.

"Clu" possesses the touch of Midas, his ability to make money out of almost nothing being the wonder of all who know him. His success has never been the gift of Lady Fortune, but is due entirely to grit and perseverance.

Carrying with him into the business world such qualities, it remains but a matter of time until success will be his.

This curly-haired gift to women, after he had completed his sentence at Sewanee Military Academy, awakened to a new life on the Washington and Lee Campus. His nature, though dormant during his prep school confinement, had not been extinguished, and it matured remarkably under the tutelage of his elders.

Lexington soon was too small to confine "Stuff" to its limits, but unlike many of us, he did not acquiesce in this handicap. He became a transportation enthusiast and a familiar figure in the neighboring centers of femininity.

"Stuff" is among the number of University savants, for besides being a good student and a true friend to many, he is always active and well informed in regard to the subtle proceedings of inner circles about the Campus.

He has been a valuable asset to every art staff, and on several occasions has rescued the Troubadours by arranging scenery for their productions.

"Jenn" is our celebrity from the "Great Northwest." He left Minnesota to extend his sphere of influence in the South, and started his brilliant career at Augusta Military Academy. At Washington and Lee his successes have been even greater.

"E. G.," after extensive prep work at Marion Military and Naval Institute, Marion, Alabama, entered Washington and Lee, and has proved his worth as a conscientious student of more than usual ability by securing the coveted A.B. in three years. He seems to possess the rare gift of being able really and truly to concentrate, in this College age of rapidity, frivolity, and indifference.

During his stay with us, "Jenn" has been prominently connected with social activities. As President of the Cotillion Club, he led the Thanksgiving Cotillion and the Easter German.

Although possessing a rather quiet disposition, he has left a distinctive impress on this Campus, in the form of a radiant and happy disposition.

During his four years on the Campus, "Jenn" has been one of the best liked men in school and he leaves a host of friends.

Some are born with success, some have it thrust upon them, and others acquire it, but we can truthfully say that "E. G." has a combination of all three. We congratulate him and are waiting for future laurels.

Some men make names for themselves by hard work, some are given names through fortunate circumstances, while others acquire names because of a combination of characteristics that makes these men outstanding in themselves.

Harry Dawson falls in the last-mentioned of the above classes. In spite of the fact that he has been a regular for four years in both baseball and football, a member of the Glee Club and Troubadours, and the Vice-President of Finals, a recital of these achievements is sufficient to describe him.

Harry has a frank and democratic friendliness and a remarkable disposition that makes him easy to know and hard to forget. It will be difficult to fill the place he leaves.

Eulogies are good, but why wait until a man dies to write good things about him? Above is a picture of a gentleman in every sense of the word. He is a true friend, and everyone who has come in contact with him will vouch for this with one accord.

"Ed," or "E. W.," as he is called, decided to enter the School of Commerce in the Fall of '21, in order to better prepare himself for entrance upon a business career. He has been a good student, and consequently has been most successful in all his work. Our powers of character-delineation were sadly inadequate when we attempted to characterize this Campus light. However, with this preliminary mental hazard to overcome, we'll try to set forth a few pertinent facts.

"Ack" came to us in 1921, and ever since he has gained and held the admiration and respect of all who know him. He is possessed of an exceptional intellect which carries with it a nonchalant ease in passing courses, and a quiet, unassuming dignity. He has acquitted himself admirably in his various lines of endeavor, and we are indeed glad that he will again be with us next year in the Law School. "Dick" hails from the big City of Brooklyn. He started his College work at Brooklyn Polytechnical Institute, but just couldn't resist the call of the wild, and so two years ago made his debut on our Campus. We need only look at "Dick" to realize that we are being introduced to one of the best-natured men on the Washington and Lee Campus. A friend to everyone, and a confidential adviser to all who know him, describes him perfectly. "Dick" is an earnest worker, and conscientiously performs every assigned task.

To all who know him, his pleasant, sunny smile will linger long in their memories; and to him go the best wishes of his fellow classmates for the success that will inevitably be his.

JAMES LEROY GOODRICH

Leroy needs no formal introduction to most of us as he has spent four happy years on the Washington and Lee Campus which have been as enjoyable to his associates as they have been to himself.

Although not an athlete himself, Leroy has been a true and staunch supporter of the Blue and White on every occasion. The gymnasium and Wilson Field will always recall to our minds this loyal rooter, whose vociferous manifestations of loyalty have been of the highest standards.

Possessed of a sunny disposition, an easy-going way which attracts friends, and sterling traits of character, we feel sure that Leroy will be as successful with the battles of life as he has been here, and we wish him health, wealth, and happiness.

"Red" is not prone to talk very much, but he converses enough to let us know that he has a lot of good hard sense mixed with an appreciative touch of humor. He has taken his troubles manfully and his good fortunes gracefully. Loyal and generous to an extreme, he cannot avoid a successful future. Counting his friends by scores, and his admirers by legions, he will not disappoint them.

Words are inadequate to describe a character like "Charlie." They can only hint at his extreme unselfishness, and willingness to do for others. Soon after he came to Washington and Lee, he was known as a quiet, unassuming gentleman, and as such his friends will remember him. In addition to that, he seems filled with initiative, and is always doing something worth while.

"Charlie" missed most of his Sophomore year on account of illness, but this did not "stump" him the least. He attended the University of Virginia and the University of California Summer Schools, and insistently demanded his degree in the allotted four years. California must be the land of adventure, for many and weird are the tales he tells about the Land of Gold.

In 1921, "Chick" (hailing from St. Joseph, Missouri) entered Washington and Lee. Anyone selecting a school so far distant must have had a real purpose in view, and this quality, "Chick" has shown. Although not a bookworm, he has worked hard and taken advantage of the opportunities that have confronted him during his four College years.

His notable athletic record of high-school days has been upheld by his work on the basketball floor, and were it not for a lame shoulder, he probably would have made a name for himself in the other fields of sport.

The banking business should be benefited by the entrance into it of one who is as conscientious and diligent as "Chick" has shown himself to be.

If it were possible to find one who has worked harder than Henry we would inquire at once if our subject were really and truly alive. As a half and a quarter miler he has few equals in this section of the country and is one of Coach Fletcher's mainstays. As Treasurer of the Junior Class and student "par excellence" he ranks as one of the leaders of his class.

With a dash of wit, a flash of brilliance, and a determination to succeed, we feel assured of the final outcome.

"What's to be is bound to be." With these words, Louis following in the footsteps of his Brother Harry, chose Washington and Lee for his Alma Mater. Previously an athlete of whom Roanoke College boasted, he centered his attention upon the difficult Commerce tickets. In the class room, an apt student; in the dance floor, the idol of every prom-trotter; he is to his friends, a big-hearted, good-natured fellow whose optimism and quick wit find a ready welcome.

As he goes out into the business world, his many associates look forward to seeing his illustrious name in the Hall of Fame. For to one who always looks on the bright side of life, can the world deny success?

Above, gentle reader, you get a photograph of brilliance personified, Mr. Joseph McWhorter Holt. He has been termed the outstanding student of the Commerce School, and he merits that distinction. Not being satisfied with graduating in the "A" class alone, he has the honor of doing that in three years. "Joe" holds the Commerce Scholarship of the University this year.

However, he finds time to do many things in addition to studying. His popularity among his classmates brought to him election to the Executive Committee, a position which he has filled most capably.

If his career during the past three years can be taken as a sample of the future, Washington and Lee will be proud to number "Joe" among its most prominent Alumni.

A "Georgia Cracker" by birth, a New Yorker by migration, and a Virginian by preference, Lane completed the triangle by getting his College training at Washington and Lee. Undoubtedly the best distance-runner the South has seen in many years, Lane has been the first to cross the tape in every cross-country meet in which Washington and Lee has entered for the past two and a half years. In 1923, he broke the record of every cross-country course on which he ran.

Lane has also been a conscientious student and is well fitted for the Law which he plans to study at Michigan next year. Affable, genial and unassuming, we only hope that Lane's friends in his later life are as numerous as those of his College days.

"And I don't mean maybe or perhaps" are the words that have made "Tommie" a noted member of the "Bovine Club," which nightly discusses the world problems, whether any of the members are acquainted with the subject or not.

After freezing for some four years at the Choate School, Tom decided that Washington and Lee would be the place for him to finish his education. His athletic career was started as a swimmer on the Freshman team, but later he devoted all of his energy and ability to wrestling, and finally developed into the best defensive man on the team.

He expects to enter the hardware business, and we know that his dynamic personality will win him a place in the front row in a very short time.

The world gives its unanimous respect to the man who gains a position of dignity in the eyes of others by work and ability. Hummer's enviable career at Washington and Lee is the result of this combination—so hard to defeat. Grades above the average prove that he is a fine student; two years of efficient service on the staff of the Ring-tum Phi establish his name in that field of Campus activity; but when Captain "Dick" Smith unhesitatingly makes the name of Marvin Hummer a byword, and his efficiency a model for all student managers, we are sure that the title of "Manager-Extraordinary" should be included in Walter Camp's All-American pick.

"Say when," "Good enough," those words have all kinds of meanings, and they cover "Al" like a blanket. When he arrived in Lexington, Washington and Lee received a son to whom it will always point with pride, because it is certain that he will carry out into the business world his beaming and unequalled personality which has made him loved by all who knew him during his stay here. Though small in stature, he makes up in other qualities, and is "good enough" to stand among the best. If the truth must be told, "Al" has received no small amount of education at Hollins. We are not critical, but probably jealous. All we can say is—carry on, "Al," and you are certain to succeed in your every endeavor.

The University of South Carolina claimed him for one year, but our hero's ambition knew no bounds, and so he came to Washington and Lee in 1923, and his conquering march has not yet closed! Everybody knows "Jenks," and we can truly say that he occupies an enviable place in our Campus life. His unflinching good humor and cheerful disposition have made for him many loyal friends.

When he is graduated we will miss the familiar figure that can always be seen strolling down the College lanes during the terpsichorean frivolities with a lady upon his arm. A prodigy at nineteen, "Lefty" has proved himself not only a brilliant student but also a very able journalist, having rendered distinctive service on the Press Club and all of the Campus publications.

He has pursued the study of Commerce with characteristic ability and persistency, and with a genuine interest that forecasts a successful career in his profession.

John, after receiving his preparatory training at the well-known Duval High School in Jacksonville, entered Washington and Lee in the Fall of 1921. We have in John an ideal Campus leader. This statement is well demonstrated by the list of honors and achievements which appear after his name.

Besides social activities, John has diverted much time and attention to Track, having made the Varsity team for four successive years.

John is popular with his classmates, which is shown by the fact that he is president of his class and also leader of the annual Senior Ball.

Walter, after a four years' growth of wings in Washington Irving High School, came to Washington and Lee in 1921, and proceeded with the developing process for four more years, easily emerging this year as a full-fledged business man.

It is the opinion of all who know him that "Levi" could have been a great asset to the forensic world at Washington and Lee if he had only chosen to do so. His best subject is "West Virginia, the State Beautiful"; and when he waxes eloquent, the listener does well to remove all valuable furniture to a safe point. In social life, also, he is a well-known figure, and rare indeed is the dance that does not find him in Old Doremus. We all wish him success.

In "Bo" McMillan, diminutive namesake of the "Bo" of Center College gridiron fame, we have a student-athlete. "Bo" soon gained a place on the "Fighting Generals," and has been a mainstay on both the Football and Baseball teams for three years. His steady nerve, cool head, and magnificent fighting spirit make him almost indispensable to the team, while his sensational gains against Florida rank him as one of the best "backs" in the South. Depreciable in every respect, his departure will be a loss to his many friends that will be keenly felt.

The subject of this sketch requires no introduction to the Washington and Lee Campus, for not to know "Billy" is to argue yourself unknown. His ready wit and his winning smile have endeared him to a host of friends. So accustomed have we become to seeing him every September, that we can scarcely realize that he is to graduate this June, and leave us. In fact (ever optimistic), we are still hoping that he will decide to follow his father's profession, and return next session to enter upon the study of Law. Since that time, he has been busily engaged in learning Law, a little Academics, and a lot about red clay. Although there are still a number of men on the Campus whom Tom knows only by the name of "hi, gentlemen!" those who have become his bosom friends, stick to him like a Scotchman to his debtors. Some are born with intellect, others are born with ability, but few are born with both; and yet Brown has each of these qualities. Thus, it is as easy for him to parse a Greek verb as it is to make a "left-hand" turn on the dance floor.

"Babe" Mohler is one of those fellows that Washington and Lee wouldn't be the same without. A veritable lion in the social affairs on the Campus, an all-round good fellow, and a good student, he is going to be missed by all.

Perhaps the most scintillating part of his College career is his splendid record in the Commerce School. During the time he has been here, he has participated in all the pleasures which the friendships and activities of College life can yield, and at the same time has excelled in his studies. The business world must make room for another leader of men, for Brown belongs to that type, and he leaves us to take that position.

To know "Babe" is to like him. His pleasing personality has made for him many friends, and his determination and adaptation have made an enviable record in the Commerce School.

Superior and exalting though his ability to make friends and good grades may be, it is as a man that he affects us. "Babe" possesses those sterling qualities that make for success, and we feel sure in our prophecy that whatever his career may be, we can count upon him as a leader.

Possessed of a powerful personality and an ambition for dramatic as well as scholastic success, Stewart came to Washington and Lee four years ago. He leaves, having achieved both of the desired aims.

It is in the Troubadours that Stewart is mainly going to be missed, in addition to the loss of his smiling countenance on the Campus. It was in this dramatic organization that he was prominent in the footlights, and his shoes will be hard to fill.

But we haven't even mentioned social activities. Here our sympathy is extended to the feminine sex, for his absence from Old Doremus will leave a conspicuous void, and one of God's gifts to women will be elsewhere. We all wish you luck, Stewart!

MERRILL EDDY WILSON

St. Augustine, Florida

Swimming Team, '22, '23; "Ring-tum Phi" Staff, '25.

And now we come to our friend, Eddy. He hails from Florida (Saint Augustine, to be exact), and is proud of it. You will find him numbered among the diligent students in the School of Commerce, and he expects to utilize in selling real estate the knowledge he has acquired here.

Besides pursuing his studies, Eddy has had time to make a host of friends. Accommodating, cheerful, ready to argue, and possessing a friendly personality, these qualities have caused him to be well liked. When it comes to having ways with the women, Eddy is a man among men.

We have been glad to have him with us, and as he goes out into the world, his classmates and his friends join in wishing him every success.

Mother

You gave the best years of your life
 With joy for me,
 And robbed yourself, with loving heart,
 Unstintingly.

For me with willing hands you toiled
 From day to day;
 For me you prayed when headstrong youth
 Would have its way.

Your gentle arms, my cradle once,
 Are weary now;
 And time has set the seal of care
 Upon your brow.

And though no other eyes than mine
 Their meaning trace,
 I read my history in the lines
 Of your dear face.

And 'mid His gems, Who showers gifts
 As shining sands,
 I count your days as pearls that fall
 From His kind hands.

RESUME

The question, "Resolved, That the Constitution of the United States should be so amended as to require a two-thirds vote of the Supreme Court in declaring an act of Congress unconstitutional," seemed to occupy the limelight in the subjects selected for debates at Washington and Lee this winter. This subject was first debated by the generals against Trinity College at Durham, N. C., under the Oxford plan of debate. This same subject was again used when Syracuse came to Lexington and revenged their defeat of last year by a two-to-one decision over our debaters.

Still remaining on our schedule is a return meet with Trinity College, now Duke University, and the annual Triangular Debate held between Johns Hopkins University, University of North Carolina, and Washington and Lee. The subject to be debated by these universities this year is some phase of the child labor problem; and the date, while not definitely settled, has been unofficially announced as April 30th. This triangular debate has always been looked upon by the respective universities as one of their most important annual forensic contests, and it is conceded that Washington and Lee will use such veterans as Gould, Lowry, Masinter, Roach, and Hamilton, to compete against these universities to determine the debating supremacy of the South.

The Glee Club

The Glee Club is just another proof of the importance of the Troubadours on the Campus. Although organized as a unit of the body, the Glee Club has its own organization, and its trips are independent of those taken by the Troubadours. Perhaps there is no unit of the dramatic organization where competition is as keen as in the Glee Club.

Lack of time prevented the realization of all but two of the five trips planned for the Glee Club this year. Their first trip was made to Sweet Briar on November 22d, where they were enthusiastically received. Here Joe Clay Roberts sang himself into the hearts of the members of the Student Body. The dramatic club, "Paint and Patches," was the hostess to a dinner just preceding the concert and to an informal dance afterwards.

The second concert was given at Southern Seminary on December 5th. Leathem and Roberts were the favorites.

THE PROGRAM

1. Selection	ORCHESTRA
2. Allah's Holiday and Only Girl	GLEE CLUB
3. Solo: A New Kind of Girl	J. C. ROBERTS

10. Finale	GLEE CLUB AND ORCHESTRA

The Southern Collegians

The Southern Collegians, organized as a unit of the Troubadours in December, 1923, has since risen to a height of prominence and favoritism seldom attained and enjoyed by a Collegiate orchestra playing in the amateur class.

Within the past year the Collegians have had a phenomenal rise in the world of jazz music. On the Campus they are the favorite syncopation-producers at the numerous informals and fraternity dansants. Their reputation throughout the States of Virginia and West Virginia is of such wide extent that they are always in great demand wherever there is a desire for an orchestra of high merit. Their trips to near-by towns and prep schools have been numerous during the past session and they have played their way into the hearts of dance-lovers.

But their reputation is not limited to the immediate vicinity, for they have attained such a national reputation as to influence the signing of a contract for the coming summer with the Cunard Steamship Company for the passage to Europe, playing on the ships of the company. While in Europe they will fill a two-weeks' engagement at Keiley's Cabaret, one of the largest and most exclusive of French-American cafes in Paris, returning to America the latter part of the summer.

In spite of their popularity, the Southern Collegians have not yet reached the zenith of their fame. They are destined to enjoy a national reputation that is worthy of the high quality of their music and of the pride of the University they represent.

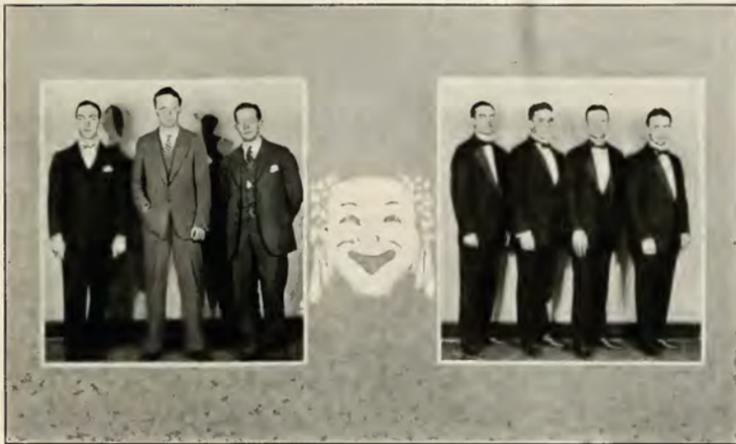

“Seven Keys to Baldpate”

The Troubadours presented George M. Cohan's melodramatic farce, the “Seven Keys to Baldpate,” in two acts with a prologue and epilogue, for their Thanksgiving Show at the New Theater on November 29th. The show was presented during the Thanksgiving dances to a large audience.

The members of the cast handled their parts with skill and displayed technique in their interpretations. There were four female and eleven male characters, many of whom were new to the art, but all of whom portrayed veteran skill. W. W. Donnally, Jr., in the leading male role of William Hollowell Magree, the author of whose wager of five thousand dollars led him through many exciting experiences. C. W. Meadows again justified his previous histrionic laurels in the difficult role of the leading female character, Mary Norton. George Harsh, Jr., as Mrs. Quimby and J. M. Boyd as Lou Max, deserve special mention because of their splendid interpretations. C. F. Stuart skillfully handled the difficult role of Peter, the Hermit.

The production was staged under the direction of Joe Clay Roberts, assisted by S. P. Walker and J. T. Martin. The settings were under the supervision of Jairus Collins, Jr.

An Historical Sketch

The Troubadours was founded in the fall quarter of 1919 by three men keenly interested in College dramatics. Through the efforts of these men, Dr. J. L. Howe, Ted Schultz, and V. E. Kemp, a Constitution was drawn up, officers elected, and the organization started on its way. It was organized purely for the students, and consisted of the combined Dramatic Club, Glee Club, Mandolin Club and the Orchestra.

Preparations were at once made for the presentation of the premier performance and, two months after its founding, The Troubadours made its debut with a semi-vaudeville entertainment which was well received. Its rapid growth and popularity can easily be seen by its widespread reputation, not only on the Campus of Washington and Lee, but throughout the South.

Since its organization six years ago, The Troubadours have presented two shows a year—a play during Thanksgiving and a musical comedy during Easter. It has been the custom of The Troubadours to send the Easter Show on the road for a week's trip into North Carolina and West Virginia. However, the show this year was not presented outside of Lexington, due to the unavoidable financial reverses of last year. This, however, has been cleared up and The Troubadours have plans for a trip next year, the itinerary of which will include three States.

"ADAM AND EVA"

by

GUY BOLTON AND GEORGE MIDDLETON

With the three-act comedy, "Adam and Eva," The Troubadours scored a decided success at the New Theater, April 14th. Every member of the cast handled his part with excellent skill, making it difficult to pick any individual star. As amateurs the members of the cast showed unusual ability, the interpretation of the parts at times bordering on those traits attributed only to professionals.

George Harsh, Jr., who took the leading male role of James King, wealthy father of a large family whose extravagance was very irritating to him, displayed unusual technique in his interpretation of the part. T. H. Fausett in the difficult role of Horace Pilgrim, V. A. Holloman as Adam Smith, and F. C. Adams as Eva, were all above the average in their stage poise and acting.

The two stage settings were especially created for The Troubadours by the H. P. Knight Scenic Studios of New York. This is the first production in which The Troubadours had especially painted scenery and it added much to the final effect of the play.

The Troubadours have been the recipients of unstinted congratulations and praise for the success of the play. Rich material was found among the new men who showed much ability in the art of acting.

Athletics, 1924-25

Athletics at Washington and Lee experienced a most successful year in 1924-'25 in practically all branches of sports. The record of the football team was particularly outstanding, and this was in spite of the fact that the schedule played was one of the hardest undertaken in recent years. The success of the team led to an even harder schedule being carded for next year, and the White and Blue stock is soaring. In the minor sports, wrestling was outstanding, and a highly successful season added to the prestige of the White and Blue matmen. The defeat of the Army was especially gratifying in view of the fact that they had not previously lost a match.

The completion of the stadium so as to make it possible for athletic contests to be staged there was something long hoped for by those most interested in athletics at Washington and Lee. All of the home football games were played there as well as nearly all of those of baseball. While the structure is not as yet carried to its ultimate stage, it is capable of seating 3,000 people and makes more big home games possible. As there is demand, and as the funds are available, it will be enlarged, and it is expected to become one of the most modern of its kind. There are now two baseball fields, making possible the staging of Varsity and Freshman contests at the same time. As yet, track needs have not been cared for in the new stadium, but a well-drained cinder track is in process of construction, and will add materially to the athletic equipment.

All of the old coaches were in charge of their respective squads again this year, with the exception of basketball, where "Eddie" Cameron had charge. Jimmy DeHart was at the helm in football, Forest Fletcher in track, and Dick Smith in baseball. Coaches Brett and Twombly again had charge of the minor sports, and "Eddie" Parks Davis piloted the Freshman football team. All of the coaches turned out teams of which every Washington and Lee man may rightfully be proud, and it only serves to emphasize what can be done by a large and efficient coaching staff.

The Southern Conference rules have now become an integral part of the Washington and Lee athletic system, and its rigid requirements are recognized as a great factor in causing the rightful recognition of southern athletics in other circles. This year Washington and Lee acted as hosts for the first time for a Southern Conference contest, when the annual cross-country meet was held here. It is hoped that with added facilities more such meets will be held here.

The second annual All-Virginia High and Prep School Basketball Tournament was again carried out successfully in the Doremus gymnasium, and is now recognized as being an established thing and not merely a visionary ideal. While the success of last year's tournament might have been merely momentary, the one this year conclusively showed that it is here to stay. Nineteen schools were here on March 5th, 6th, and 7th, from all parts of the State, and the interest that they themselves showed, proves that there is a demand for the tournament from outside quarters as well as locally. Many appropriate prizes and trophies were given, and undoubtedly many boys were introduced to Washington and Lee and stimulated to enter College, besides the fulfillment of the other purpose of the tournament—that of stimulating schoolboy basketball.

The bright record of athletics this year and the schedules for the coming year, along with the carrying out of a definite forward building policy, causes every supporter of the White and Blue to take a renewed interest, and to rightfully feel that Washington and Lee athletics are steadily improving.

Resume of 1924 Season

Although the Fighting Generals of Washington and Lee faced one of the hardest schedules in their history when practice was begun on September 8th on Wilson Field, the record turned in stands as one of the most brilliant in recent years. Six victories out of ten games played was the record of the Big Blue team, four of these coming from Southern Conference teams—Maryland, Kentucky, Virginia, and North Carolina State. Roanoke College and Citadel were also in the defeated list, while Florida, West Virginia, and Wake Forest made the Big Blue team take the smaller end of the score. A scoreless contest was played with V. P. I. At the end of the season the Generals were placed third among the twenty-two Southern Conference teams.

Head Coach Jimmy DeHart, who was in charge for the third consecutive year, assisted by Dick Smith, Manager of Athletics, was fortunate in having ten monogram men back with which to start the season. With these men for a nucleus and with the usual number of Scrubs and Freshmen from the former season, a capable outfit was welded together. The problem of Coach DeHart was to fill the vacancies left by the graduation of a guard, the center, and two halfbacks.

"Eddie" Cameron, Captain of the 1923 Generals, and "Tex" Tilson, who captained this year's aggregation, deserve special mention for their work. Playing his last year for the White and Blue, Cameron ended his football career in a blaze of glory by scoring 96 points during the season, being only surpassed by Brenkert of Rutgers who scored 100. The two men were tied in the number of touchdowns, each having 16. "Tex" Tilson turned in a season of brilliant work at tackle and was fittingly rewarded by Walter Camp by being given honorable mention in his annual All-American selection.

Two championships were won by the 1924 Generals. One was the leadership of the South Atlantic division, and the other the championship of the "Big Four" of Virginia. Both titles were won decisively.

Opening the season against Roanoke College on September 27th, the Generals severely drubbed the Maroons by a 34-0 score. Eddie Cameron's sensational line-plunging proved to be a feature of the game, and he made 4 of the 5 touchdowns. Several spectacular passes were completed by Palmer and Wilson. This was the first game to be played in the new Wilson Field Stadium. Kay Thomas kicked four goals after touchdown.

Maryland was crushed the next Saturday in Washington, D. C., by the score of 19-7. From the outset of the game the Generals clearly showed superiority. Palmer gained 97 yards around the Old Liners' flanks, and Eddie Cameron added 68 to his team's total. Maryland made their lone score when one of Rauber's punts was blocked and recovered behind the goal line. Hawkins, Thomas, and Budnick were the stars on the defense in this game, while Wilson and Palmer kept up their fine passing combination.

On October 11th, the Generals had an off day and the Wake Forest Demon Deacons won on Wilson Field by a 10-8 count. The Big Blue team started off with a rush, scoring a touchdown in the first few minutes of play. Pegano, the star of the Deacons, later picked up a fumbled punt and ran 35 yards for a marker. Rackley sewed up the game with a 50-yard drop-kick. Washington and Lee's remaining 2 points came when Kay Thomas tackled a Wake Forest man behind his own goal line.

The second conference victory was won the following week when the University of Kentucky took the short end of a 10-7 count. In this game, Henry Wilson intercepted a pass and ran 40 yards for a touchdown, while Dawson gave his team the necessary 3 points for victory with a beautiful 30-yard drop-kick. Kentucky scored on recovering a blocked punt. Captain "Tex Tilson", Daves, Stemmons, and Thomas played the best on the defense, and Henry Wilson shone on the offense.

In Lynchburg, on October 25th, the Generals were held to a scoreless tie by the V. P. I. Gobblers. Don Rutherford, V. P. I. star failed in his five attempts at field goals, while Dawson's lone attempt also met disaster. Duke Perry was in the limelight with some wonderful punting while "Bo" McMillan was a mainstay of the team on the defense and proved a thorn in the Techmen's side. Maynard Holt was a tower of strength in the line.

The ancient rival, the University of Virginia, was the next victim of the Generals by a 20-7 score. Virginia scored a touchdown in the first few minutes of play, but after that were unable to get through the White and Blue line. A pass, Wilson to McMillan, scored again in the third quarter. In this game, "Bo" proved to be the outstanding figure.

The Citadel was next met, and the South Carolinians succumbed 32-7, Eddie Cameron making 4 of the 5 touchdowns against the visitors. Citadel scored in the fourth quarter on a forward pass against the Scrubs who were then playing. Tilson, Budnick, and Rauber were in the limelight for the White and Blue.

The Generals held the powerful West Virginia Mountaineers to a lone touchdown in their annual clash in Charleston, W. Va., before a crowd of 13,000. The game was played in a sea of mud. The Mountaineers were held scoreless for 58 minutes, but a fresh quarterback then carried the ball over after a blocked punt. The entire line of the Generals played sterling ball, as they stopped the hard-plunging backs of West Virginia time after time. Rauber's punting was a feature of the game.

On Thanksgiving Day the Big Blue team had an easy time with the North Carolina State Wolfpack, winning from them by the overwhelming score of 34-0. Eddie Cameron scored 3 of the Generals' 5 touchdowns. The feature of the game was probably the passing game displayed by the wearers of the White and Blue. Stemmons, Daves, Hawkins, and Holt played well in the line, while Wilson, McMillan, and Cameron were best on offense.

In the last game of the year, a post-season clash with the University of Florida on December 6th in Jacksonville, the Generals lost their first Conference game in two years when they went down in glorious defeat by the score of 16-6. Newton, captain and star halfback of the 'Gators, proved to be the nemesis of the White and Blue, his punting averaging 58 yards. Cameron crashed through the 'Gator line in the second period for Washington and Lee's only tally. Sultry weather probably played a big part in the defeat of the Generals.

1924 Generals

W. E. TILSON
Captain, Tackle

Prep School: Greenbrier Military School.
Weight, 176; Height, 5 ft. 11½ in.; Age, 22.

Tilson's work this year was better than ever before, which in the light of his past brilliant performances leaves nothing to be desired. He is a tackle par excellence, a man impervious to injury, a fighter who never stops as long as he can fight and see, and he has never taken time out for an injury. He has consistently been rated as one of the best linemen in the South, and this year was given mention in Walter Camp's selection. His return next year will greatly strengthen the team.

J. K. THOMAS
Captain-elect, End

Prep School: Charleston (W. Va.) High School.
Weight, 160; Height, 5 ft. 10½ in.; Age, 23.

Although a little light for a terminal position, Thomas' fighting spirit more than makes up for his lack of weight. He is extremely fast, a sure tackler, and rare indeed are the plays that gain around his end of the line. One of his specialties is getting down under punts, and the safety man who can elude him must be a side-stepping artist. His consistent work was a feature of every game and won him his well-deserved captaincy for next year.

E. M. CAMERON
Fullback

Prep School: Culver Military Academy.
Weight, 176; Height, 5 ft. 11½ in.; Age, 22.

This year marked the close of the football career of Eddie Cameron; a career that placed him foremost among the football players of the South and classed him as one of the greatest backfield men ever turned out at Washington and Lee. This year, exceeded by only one man in the United States in the matter of points scored, Eddie is a line-plunger to be rarely excelled. At the most critical times, when a yard or so was needed, he could always be relied upon. His stellar performance made his All-Southern honors doubly deserved.

M. I. BUDNICK
Guard

Prep School: Fishburne Military School.
Weight, 190; Height, 5 ft. 9 in.; Age, 20.

Budnick, playing his second year on the Varsity, put up a steady dependable game at guard. Although in a line position, he made himself into a specialist in the art of breaking up passes and thereby materially aided in the Generals' defense. One of his best games was played in Washington against the University of Maryland. He should reach the apex of his development next fall.

R. I. DAVES
End

Prep School: Morgan (Tenn.) School.
Weight, 170; Height, 6 ft.; Age, 23.

Daves is a man who always plays a dependable game, and this year, his second on the Varsity, proved it by the unbroken row of good games that he played. He is a highly-developed smasher of interference, fast, and a deadly tackler. His fighting spirit and his imperviousness to injury make him additionally valuable, and next year he should prove to be a tower of strength on the line.

A. R. HAWKINS
Center

Prep School: Petersburg (Va.) High School.
Weight, 165; Height, 6 ft.; Age, 20.

The one thing more than anything else that makes "Red's" worth stand out conspicuously in the line is his never-ending fight. Always lighter than his opposing player, he never fails to put up a good account of himself, and his steady performance featured every game. He gained his position by hard work, and by virtue of the same quality, kept it. He is eligible for another year of football, and his return would add much to the team.

H. F. McMILLAN
Fullback

Prep School: McCallie (Tenn.) School.
Weight, 155; Height, 5 ft. 8 in.; Age, 20.

This diminutive back, for his third year on the Varsity, proved his worth time and again last year. Although light, he is hard to stop through the line and was at his best in an open field. At receiving passes, "Bo" has few equals, and time and again chalked up long gains for the White and Blue on the receiving end. As a defensive man, he was equally valuable and proved to be one of the best tacklers on the team. He will be missed next year.

J. T. McVAY
Quarterback

Prep School: Huntington (W. Va.) High School.
Weight, 155; Height, 5 ft. 8 in.; Age, 22.

"Johnny's" experience and excellent football knowledge make him a quarter who seems to sense the right thing to do at the right time. Every minute he was in the game he was trying to inspire and lead the team on, sometimes over seemingly hopeless barriers. He was a hard man to stop around ends, and also plunged the line well for a back of his weight. His loss will be keenly felt next fall.

H. M. WILSON

Quarterback

Prep School: Owenboro (Ky.) High School.
Weight, 155; Height, 5 ft. 8½ in.; Age, 20.

Henry was shifted from half to quarter this year and his work was outstanding throughout the entire season. He was one of the mainstays of the team, and his steadiness and coolness made him invaluable in places where his decisions meant either defeat or victory. He carried the ball well, threw passes with unflinching accuracy, was a good defensive man, and demonstrated his generalship satisfactorily in every encounter. His best game was in his home State against Kentucky where he scored the touch-down which meant victory for the White and Blue. He will return next year.

C. E. VAN HORN

Center and End

Prep School: Allegheny (Pittsburgh, Pa.) High School.
Weight, 170; Height, 6 ft. 2 in.; Age, 23.

"Van," of yearling fame last year, was out of the game a month at the start of the season because of a broken jaw. Upon his return he was shifted from center to end and until the close of the season alternated between the two positions. He was one of the fastest men on the team, and got under punts well. His best game was against V. P. I., by virtue of which the coach of that team placed him on his South-Atlantic selection at center.

R. M. HOLT

Guard

Prep School: Culver Military Academy.
Weight, 185; Height, 5 ft. 11 in.; Age, 19.

Maynard, in his first year of Varsity competition, made himself into a guard of the first order. He was reliable, not easily hurt, and was in the midst of every play near his territory. He was a hard man for opposing guards and tackles to handle, and his specialty was in breaking through the line and smearing plays. All through the South he was universally mentioned as one of the outstanding linemen of the season. He played a consistent game throughout the fall.

H. A. DAWSON

Halfback

Prep School: Western (Washington, D. C.) High School.
Weight, 175; Height, 5 ft. 10 in.; Age, 22.

Harry Dawson is a back who has worked hard for his Varsity monogram. A line-plunger of no mean ability, and a good defensive man, yet it is in his drop-kicking that his strength lies. When the margin of victory depends on a few points, it is then that Harry gets his chance, and he has always given the best account of himself. He rose to the occasion against Kentucky, and his beautiful 30-yard boot won the game for the White and Blue.

L. J. RAUBER

Halfback

Prep School: Central (Washington, D. C.) High School.

Weight, 170; Height, 5 ft. 10 in.; Age, 20.

"Ty," with his consistent punting, was one of the main cogs in the White and Blue defensive machine. As captain of the yearlings last year, he proved beyond a doubt his right to wear the Varsity uniform. His specialty was in backing up the line, although he was adept at catching passes and could buck the line when occasion demanded. His punting was the feature of the West Virginia game, although the field was covered with mud. He will return next year.

W. W. PALMER

Halfback

Prep School: San Antonio (Texas) Academy.

Weight, 155; Height, 5 ft. 8 in.; Age, 20.

"Mike," a broken field running artist, was the terror of opposing ends. A little light to plunge the line, he more than made up for it with his sweeping end runs. Palmer was on the receiving end of the Wilson-Palmer passing combination, and accounted for many yards in that fashion. He was extremely hard to tackle in the open field, and clearly demonstrated this against Maryland in Washington, when he gained 97 yards around their flanks. This is his first year on the Varsity.

W. V. PERRY

Fullback

Prep School: Castle Heights (Tenn.) Military Academy.

Weight, 170; Height, 6 ft. 2 in.; Age, 21.

"Duke," a substitute last year, broke into the limelight early this year with some wonderful punting against V. P. I. when Rauber had to leave the game. His long spirals probably had much to do with keeping that contest a scoreless tie. Not only could "Duke" punt, but he was a powerful driving back. He is eligible for next year's team.

L. S. STEMMONS

Tackle

Prep School: Dallas (Texas) High School.

Weight, 190; Height, 6 ft.; Age, 20.

Stemmons this year showed to advantage the experience he received last fall, and played a hard and steady game the entire season. His consistent defensive work put him in the midst of every play, and his ability to break through the opponent's line aided the White and Blue materially. His best games were against Kentucky and Carolina State, where time and again he stopped opposing backs. He will add much to the team next year.

The 1925 Season

Lake
Captain

With a record of eight victories and only five defeats, the 1925 season cannot be called other than successful. Another former captain and student coach was secured in the person of Eddie Cameron, brilliant all-round athlete, who stepped into the place filled last year by K. E. Hines. With three letter-men as a nucleus, he succeeded in building up a capable White and Blue aggregation.

The season opened with one of the most thrilling and undoubtedly one of the hardest-fought games ever played on the home floor, when Wake Forest was returned the victors by a 25-23 count. It was a nip-and-tuck affair from start to finish, and the victory for the Demon Deacons was only decided at the last moment. The visitors presented a smooth floor outfit, and won by virtue of consistent work.

Lynchburg College was the first victim of the Generals, going down by the score of 36-20 on the home floor. The next game was a well-deserved victory over the Techmen of V. P. I. The Gobblers could not cope with the Generals' strong offense, and the final count was 26-18. The University of Kentucky won a hectic battle at Lexington, Ky., with both teams off form. The Generals missed many easy shots ordinarily converted into points, and not a man on the team could get started. Returning to Charleston, W. Va., they seemed to recover from their slump, and West Virginia University was defeated, 37-32. The outstanding feature of the game was the performance of Captain Lake who, playing for the first time for Washington and Lee in his home town, made 23 of his team's total. Then came two defeats in a row, one being administered at Lexington by the North Carolina University outfit, and the other at the hands of Virginia at Charlottesville. Pulling themselves out of the threatened slump, the Generals showed a complete reversal of form in their next five games, and made every start a victory. On February 12th, Hampden-Sidney was the victim of a 42-6 onslaught, and a few days later V. P. I. was forced to take the short end of another game, their second defeat of the season, to the score of 27-20. The game was played at Blacksburg.

Roanoke and Davidson were found to offer no serious opposition, the games resulting in victories for the White and Blue, 46-21 and 33-18, respectively. Leaving for the Southern Conference Tournament at Atlanta, the Generals paused long enough to defeat the strong N. C. U. team on their home floor, one of the real upsets of the season, as Carolina was recognized as a favorite for the Southern title. Supporters of the White and Blue were in high hopes of a great showing in the tournament, more especially because of the win over Carolina, but their expectations were shattered when the Generals went down in their first tournament encounter before Tulane, 27-20.

Prospects loom bright for next year, with five lettermen back, and some likely candidates from the Freshman quint. Three of this year's team are wearing the coveted trident for the first time, and with experience behind them should shape into a strong, smooth-working quintet, capable of serious opposition on any floor.

The All-Virginia High and Preparatory School Basketball Tournament

The second All-State High and Prep School Tournament, last year in its experimental stages, was made more of an institution than ever this year. Last year it was rather a visionary thing, and success was doubtful, but the reception accorded this year's tournament held March 5th, 6th, and 7th, removed all doubts about it being only a temporary event.

This year, there were eighteen teams entered in the contest and, as before, they were quartered in the various fraternity houses where they were entertained. At the close of the tourney a buffet supper was given to the entrants in the University Dining Hall, at which time the several awards were made and the personnel of the All-State team announced. The awards made were much the same as last year, with a regulation-size silver basketball being given to the winners along with miniature gold basketballs for the team and coach, while the runners-up received a half-size silver basketball and miniature silver balls. Loving cups were given to the best all-round player, the high score man in a single game, and the best foul shooter. Members of the first All-State team received gold medals.

In the semifinals, Staunton Military Academy found a strong foe in Augusta Military Academy, winning out by the score of 21-16. The game was closer than the score would indicate, and was hard and cleanly fought throughout. It was the first meeting of the two schools in any branch of sport in four years, and the spirit of rivalry ran high. The victory gave S. M. A. the championship of the prep school division and the right to meet the winners in the high school class. Jefferson High School of Roanoke won the championship of the high school class by defeating the Bristol High outfit by a count of 42-17. The smooth passing of the winners proved too much for the Virginia team, although it was an interesting battle all the way.

The last game of the tournament was an exhibition of the finest brand of basketball. It was in doubt until the last whistle, and both teams fought desperately, the one to hold its slight lead, the other to break it down. Although both teams were out to win, sportsmanship of the highest type was displayed by each. The superior stamina of the cadets proved to be the deciding factor, and the game ended with them on the long end of a 24-17 score. Each team had a large delegation of supporters to see the championship decided, and a feature of the contest was the loyal encouragement and backing of each group.

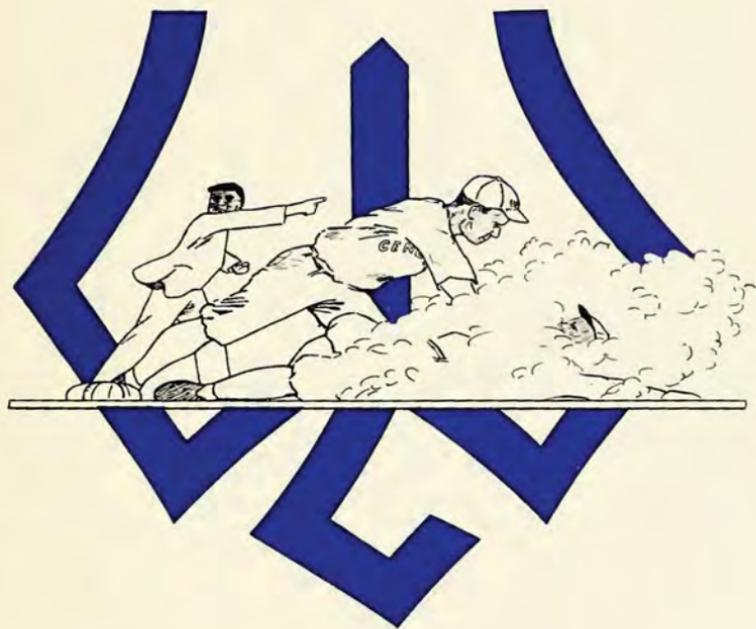

The high schools taking part were: John Marshall, South Boston, Roanoke, Bristol, Staunton, Suffolk, Lexington, Danville, and Altavista. The prep schools were: Staunton Military Academy, Randolph-Macon Academy (Front Royal), Randolph-Macon Academy (Bedford), Fishbourne Military School, Chatham Training School, Benedictine, Massanutten Military Academy, Christ Church School, and Augusta Military Academy.

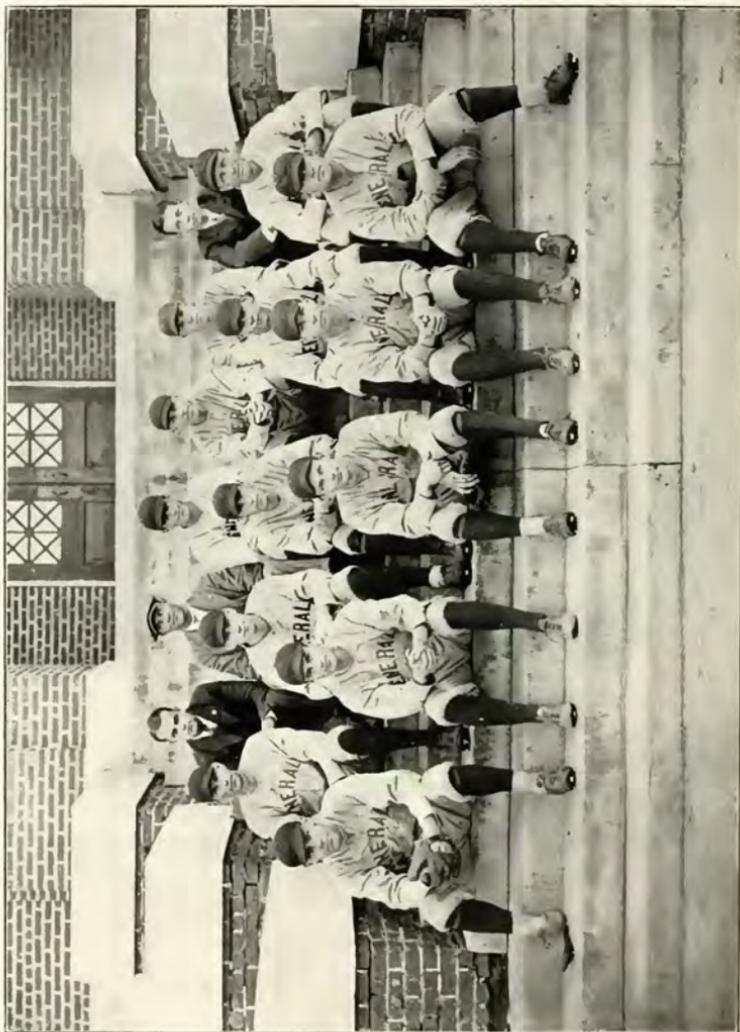

The tournament was held under the auspices of the Athletic Association, and was sponsored by the Monogram Club. It was under the direct supervision of Graduate Manager of Athletics, R. A. Smith, and to him and his assistants, as well as to the Student Body for its whole-hearted support, must the credit for its success be given.

The 1924 Season

Switzer
Captain

Although the 1924 Washington and Lee Baseball team started the year with an abundance of letter-men, early signs of a successful season proved to be somewhat misleading. There was one place in the infield left vacant by the loss of "Monk" Mattox at shortstop, and the catcher's berth was also open. The pitching staff suffered the heaviest loss, and it was the problem of Coach Dick Smith, in charge of the squad for the second year, to fill these places.

The greatest weakness seemed to be with the bat. The men hit the ball hard, but were unable to connect for clean hits, and had difficulty in hitting in the pinches. Lindberg's work was the outstanding feature of the season, both at bat and on the mound. He pitched a steady, brainy game and, contrary to the common case, was one of the leading hitters on the nine. His work was rewarded with the captaincy for 1925. "Buddy" Ayler at the initial sack also played stellar ball throughout the season. He fielded brilliantly and was a consistent hitter. Not the least of his good qualities was his fighting spirit. Tommy Seehorn at the hot corner, playing his first year of Varsity Baseball, proved to be the leading hitter on the team, and played a good game in the field. Many of his hits were of the extra base variety.

McMillan
Catcher

The season started off with a row of defeats, caused mainly by the inability of the men to hit cleanly. Cornell ushered in the sport on April 3d with a 5-2 victory. The game was featured by the beautiful pitching of Milligan for the visitors and that of Lindberg and Perry for the home team.

Another contest played with them on the following day resulted in a slugging match, with the Generals coming out on the short end of a 10-11 score. Seehorn contributed a triple in the way of batting, while Dawson hit the first home run of the season. Richmond University again proved a Nemesis and took the Generals' measure by the count of 7-4. The entire Washington and Lee team was off form. However, Dawson and Captain Switzer played good ball. The next game was a hard-fought battle to Virginia, 3-0. It was a pitchers' battle between Lindberg and Maphis, with the latter losing out because of bunched hits. The two features of the game, according to the Richmond-Times Dispatch, were the fielding of Gwaltney and Dawson. Lehigh then took a close battle by the score of 2-1. Johns Hopkins proved to be the first victims of the year, going down to defeat by the score of 18-4. The entire team played stellar ball, and hit well. The next contest was with North Carolina University, and was featured by home runs and the fielding of the Carolinians. Five circuit clouts were garnered in the course of the fray, and of them Seehorn and Dawson tallied for Washington and Lee. Lindberg pitched a pretty game with the exception of the first and seventh innings, and the final score was in favor of the Tar Heels, 9-5. Another Carolina institution then took the measure of the Generals when N. C. State took a poorly-played contest by the count of 12-2. The weakness of the Generals with the stick was apparent.

Perry
Pitcher

Following this, the Blue and White started on their annual Northern trip, and the same jinx that had pursued them throughout the season followed them. In the first game with the University of Maryland, the Old Liners hit the ball hard and won the verdict, 13-2. The Generals were held scoreless until the ninth inning, when Schridder, pitching for Maryland, weakened to the extent of two runs. Woolwine, Perry, and Hickam all faced the Marylanders, but the offerings of all three were met with success. The next game was a nip-and-tuck, tenning affair with Catholic University in Washington, D. C. Both sides hit the pill hard, but again bunched hits proved too much for the Blue and White and the final score read in favor of their opponents, 10-9.

In the following game, the Generals showed decided improvement, and with superb pitching by Lindberg and timely hitting, emerged victorious over the Navy, 7-2. Switzer fielded brilliantly and McMillan caught a good game. In their fourth game of the trip, the jinx returned and Yale won at New Haven in a loosely-played game, 10-3. Errors by the Blue and White battery accounted for six of the runs of the Old Eli nine. In the last game on the road, Lindberg was in rare form and Fordham went down in defeat, 6-3. A 4-run lead in the first inning, piled up by the Blue and White nine, proved too much for the Northerners. Seehorn materially aided in the scoring when he tripled with the bases full.

In the last game of the season, Washington and Lee again showed a complete reversal of form and took a well-earned victory from Virginia on Wilson Field by the score of 4-2. It was a close and interesting battle throughout and at no time was it sewed up for either side. Lindberg pitched masterful ball, and one of the features of the contest was a beautiful double steal, engineered by McMillan and Switzer.

Closing the season by winning third place in the Northern Division of the Southern Conference Meet held at Charlottesville, May 10th, the Washington and Lee Track team succeeded in establishing one of its finest records in recent years. It was a fitting climax to a season in which four victories were scored in dual meets and no defeats experienced. There were no outstanding stars on the team, but it was a well balanced aggregation and showed itself to be one of the strongest teams in the South. Much credit for the successful season must go to Coach Fletcher. Taking the remains of a mediocre Varsity of last year with its one star absent, and developing it as he did is nothing short of a marvel. It should be noted that over half of the personnel of this year's team won their monograms for the first time.

Long before the opening of the season, Coach Fletcher had his charges conditioning themselves for the grind of the schedule. A longer period of training than usual was indulged in, and the opening meet of the season found them in the proverbial pink of condition.

The University of Richmond provided the first opposition for the 1924 Generals on April 12th in a dual meet held in Richmond. Although the meet was interesting throughout, the results were never in doubt, and the Generals scored an easy victory, 78-48.

Among those making first places for Washington and Lee were Howard in the two-mile, Davis in the 120-yard high hurdles, Simmons in the 220 low hurdles, McCartney in the broad jump, Lewis in the shot-put and discus, and Harrell in the javelin throw. Biddle and Norman tied for first in the high jump, and Norman and McCartney also ended in a deadlock for first honors in the pole vault. Richmond scored 38 points to the Generals' 34 in the running events, but the field events proved to be the deciding factor of the meet, with Washington and Lee piling up a total of 44 points to Richmond's 10.

One of the features of the meet was the performance of Harrell. He had been serving in the capacity of Junior Manager of Track and had taken an unusual interest in the javelin throw. While helping the Varsity men in their practice by throwing the javelin back to them, he became unusually proficient. Soon he was able to hurl it farther than they, and he decided to pay his own expenses and enter the Richmond meet. Needless to say, his expenses were paid to all other meets, and he proved a consistent star.

Norman
Captain-elect

Howard

Hill

Lewis

The next opponents of the Generals were met at Raleigh, N. C., when the N. C. State team was defeated by the count of 72-54. In this meet, the tables were turned and the running events decided the day for Washington and Lee. North Carolina's points were equally divided between the two classes, while the Generals scored 27 points in the field events and 45 in the runs. Davis won first place in both the high and low hurdles, while others winning first places were Jenkins, Hill, Howard, and Harrell. In this meet, Harrell set a new record for the javelin throw.

On April 28th, the first home meet of the season was held with Davidson College giving the opposition. The Generals experienced with the North Carolinians, and the meet ended with Washington and Lee on the long end of a 104-22 score. Every first place of the meet was won by the Blue and White, as were a majority of seconds. Among those winning first places for the first time were Summerson, Llewellyn, Rushton, Gannaway, and Biddle. Harrell set another new record in the javelin throw when he hurled it 171½ feet. Lewis also set a new record in the discus throw with 115 feet 5¾ inches.

Simmons

The V. P. I. Gobblers were the next opponents at Blacksburg on May 3d. This was the closest meet of the season and was hotly contested throughout, with the Generals emerging the victors, 67-59. Points scored in runs were the same for each team, but the field events again proved favorable for the Blue and White. Davis again won two first places, and one each was won by Howard, Norman, Lewis, and Harrell. Davis set a new record for the 220 low hurdles, but on account of a high wind it was not allowed.

Davis

The last meet of the season, that of the Northern Division of the Southern Conference, found the Generals in third place. Washington and Lee placed the second largest number of men in the final events, but was nosed out for second place by a slight margin. The track was muddy and the time for all the events was slow. Lewis won first place in the broad jump, while Davis won two seconds, and Howard was nosed out for a first in the two-mile run.

With most of the men returning next year with this year's experience behind them and with the added material from the Freshmen, prospects look exceedingly bright for the Blue and White in 1925.

RESUME

This year marked the last appearance of Captain Howard, one of the best cross-country men the South has seen developed in recent years in Collegiate circles. To offset his loss, however, about half of this year's team won their monograms for the first time and will be eligible for several more seasons. With four or five of them returning next year, there will be a strong nucleus for the team.

The first meet this year was on October 31st, against Duke University here with the Blue and White harriers leading the field by a 42-18 score. Howard and Gordon finished first, in order. On November 8th, a dual meet was held on the home course, with V. P. I. offering the opposition. After some thrilling finishes, the Tech men were returned the victors, 28-29. As usual, Howard finished first. The big home attraction was the Southern Conference Meet held here on November 15th, with V. P. I., Georgia Tech, Virginia, and Washington and Lee having teams entered. V. P. I. won the meet with the low total of 23 points, while the Generals finished second with 45 points. The race was run over a water-soaked course, and the time was much higher than it ordinarily would have been. In spite of this handicap, however, Captain Howard finished first, and the victory stamped him as the foremost cross-country runner in the South.

RESUME

The Freshman Cross-Country team this year did not have a schedule such as that of last season, as only one meet was carded. Some very good material was uncovered, but conflicts in schedules prevented a further testing of it than was given. In the only meet of the season, that against the Virginia Freshmen, the Little Generals scored a decisive victory over their rivals and showed clearly that some of them will make a decided fight for Varsity berths next year.

RESUME

The Generals enjoyed a successful season on the mat, although the longest and hardest schedule ever attempted in wrestling was carried out. This is more noteworthy in view of the fact that four of the seven men were wrestling on the Varsity for their first time. Nine meets were scheduled, and five of them were converted into victories. One of the defeats, that from V. P. I., was by only 1 point.

The season opened with a defeat at the hands of the Navy at Annapolis, with Captain Holt, scoring a fall, being the only General to amass any points. On February 5th, Virginia's team was defeated in Lexington, 20-11. The work of Biddle, Tilson, and Holt was especially brilliant. West Virginia next took two in a row, one in Lexington and the other at Morgantown, by the counts of 16-9 and 22-5. Walters and Tilson were in the limelight at the home meet, while Captain Holt found no serious opposition in either.

Next came two victories, over Duke University and North Carolina University. V. P. I. then won by a 1-point margin, 13-12. The season closed in a blaze of glory on the Northern trip, when Franklin and Marshall was defeated, 18-9, and the Army went down, 12-9. It was the only meet lost by the Army during the year, and the victory stamped the Blue and White matmen as wrestlers of the first order.

Captain Holt did not lose a match throughout the season and is easily one of the best Intercollegiate matmen in his class. Tilson developed remarkably, winning seven of his starts, and was rewarded with the captaincy for 1926. Next year, with an abundance of material back, there should be an even better showing made on the mat by the Blue and White.

RESUME

Boxing at Washington and Lee has taken a decided step forward in the last few years, and this year was no exception to the rule. Under the guidance of Coach Brett, the team enjoyed a very successful season, and next year expects to undertake an even harder schedule than that faced at the start of this year, although it held more matches than was the usual custom. The mat season this year could not be called a success from the standpoint of victories won, as only one and a tie decision came from the six starts made by the Blue and White mitmen, but any consideration of the record must be made with the fact in mind that some of the best teams in the country were met, and that a creditable showing was always made.

The team labored under handicaps most of the year because of injuries or unfortunate circumstances that combined to keep some of the best men from competition. Lewis, 135-pounder and captain of the team, failed to return to school, and Rand was elected to fill the vacancy, only to suffer injuries necessitating his withdrawal from the sport. Lancaster, a monogram man, had to give up competition because of ill health, while Ginsburg also withdrew on account of parental wishes. Both men had been consistent fighters and were considered strong cogs in the Blue and White fighting machine. In view of these facts, Coach Brett is to be commended highly on the showing made by the team. With all but one of them new to the ring game, they furnished stiff opposition to older and more experienced boxers. Their showing against Pennsylvania and Yale is especially noteworthy.

The work of "Eddie" Felsenthal, three years captain of the team, was of the highest order in every meet, and he won all his starts on the Northern trip. Wilkinson, captain elect, also showed great promise and should develop into a dangerous fighter next season. Prospects for next year are brighter than ever before. With every man returning to school, and with this season's experience behind them, a formidable team should be developed.

Resume

Tennis season opened last year with only one monogram man, A. A. Payne, in school, and prospects for a winning team seemed anything but bright. While the schedule faced was not considered particularly difficult, still it was imperative to get some kind of an organization together; and with the idea of moulding the best team possible with the material at hand, Coach Williams set to work.

There was a small group of men remaining from the squad of the previous year, and with these as a nucleus the Varsity squad was formed. Some of the new men were found to possess exceptional ability, and when the Varsity was finally selected two of them were a part of its personnel.

The first match of the year was held on the home courts with Colgate offering the opposition. The inexperience of the home team was clearly shown in its first Intercollegiate competition, and the Northern team was returned the victors by the score of 5-1. A period of intensive training was then indulged in, and when Hampden-Sidney next invaded the territory of the Blue and White they were forced to take the short end of a 5-0 score. The superiority of the Generals' courtmen was easily demonstrated, and no serious opposition was encountered.

The weather man intervened in the next match, and the scheduled meet at V. P. I. had to be called off on account of rain. When the time-honored rival in all branches of sport, Virginia, was met, the Old Dominion netmen showed their greater experience and won a clean-cut victory, 5-2. In the last encounter of the season, that against the Roanoke Country Club, the home team had to be contented with a tied score, 3-3, in a meet that was well played throughout.

Every indication points to a much better year in tennis for the Blue and White this year, due to the fact that not a man was lost by graduation, and with experience behind them, a formidable team should be on the courts for Washington and Lee. The schedule undertaken this season far surpasses anything attempted in the past and demonstrates that the 1925 court Generals are expecting a banner year.

RESUME

Circumstances conspired against the Swimming team this year, and the season closed without a formal meet having been held. Two were scheduled, one with Virginia and one with Georgia Tech, but both were canceled at the last moment. More interest in swimming is being taken by surrounding schools, and next year no difficulty is expected in scheduling a number of meets.

To take the place of the meets, a Water Carnival was held and the men given an opportunity to compete against the school records. Three were broken. Letcher lowered the 50-yard backstroke from 36 to 29 seconds; Gorenflo, the 50-yard breaststroke from 35½ to 33; and Gage, the 220 free style from 3 minutes 1 second to 2 minutes 57½ seconds. A strong nucleus will return for next year's team.

RESUME

Freshman swimming this year did not meet with its usual success, as only one of the four starts was converted into a victory. This may have been caused by a slight lapse in interest in the sport as a Freshman activity, and perhaps because a longer schedule was not carded.

The first meet was against Staunton Military Academy, and the close of competition found the cadets defeated, 35-36. Then came two defeats in a row, one being administered by Fishburne Military School and the other by Randolph-Macon Academy. After a meet that was as close as humanly possible, the Augusta Military Academy cadets were returned the victors by a 35-36 score in the last contest of the season. Some very good material was developed from the Frosh squad and a stronger Varsity should result next year.

Mother

There is just one,
 And only one,
 Whose love shall fail me never.
 Just one who lives
 From sun to sun,
 With constant fond endeavor.
 There is just one,
 And only one,
 On earth there is no other.
 In heaven a noble work was done
 When God gave man a
 MOTHER.

Washington and Lee Alumni, Incorporated

JUDGE E. C. CAFFREY, President

E. L. GRAHAM, Treasurer

VERBON E. KEMP, Secretary

Upon the resignation of the popular and able "Doc" Holbrook as alumni secretary last year, the alumni secretaryship was made a part of the work of the University Field Secretary. This arrangement brought the University and the Alumni, Incorporated, into much closer relationship than heretofore. It has proven harmonious and effective.

Politics brought about the first activity of the alumni under the new arrangement. The majority of alumni were keenly interested in the nomination by the Democratic National Convention of the Honorable John W. Davis, '92, for the Presidency of the United States. A Davis-Alumni Club was formed with branches in every city where there were sufficient alumni. Monte J. Goble, '91, of Cincinnati, Ohio, was particularly active in this organization; as were Governor W. A. MacCorkle of Charleston, West Virginia; J. W. Garrow, '99, Houston, Texas; A. L. Dabney, '92, Memphis, Tennessee; Rees Turpin, '92, Kansas City; and numerous others. Eight hundred and seven dollars were contributed by alumni members for publicity purposes and twenty-five thousand circular letters issued. A Davis Alumni Reunion was held at Clarksburg, West Virginia, during the notification exercises, with twenty-three classmates of Mr. Davis attending.

A committee of Lexington alumni recommended the publication of an alumni news magazine and, if possible, the compilation of an alumni catalogue during the year 1924-25. The first issue of the magazine came out in October and was enthusiastically received. It has been issued bi-monthly during the College year. Its continued success seems assured.

The publication of the Alumni Directory has been a much more arduous task. However, the initial work done by Eddie Parks Davis and "Doc" Holbrook during the past five years, and the accuracy of the alumni records kept by E. S. Mattingly, registrar, were a valued aid. The directory, with a history of student activity and alumni war service, was ready for distribution at Commencement.

During the year, numerous local alumni associations have been organized under the leadership of J. M. Barker, Jr., Bristol, Tennessee; F. P. Hamilton, W. A. Bell and H. M. Blain of New Orleans; J. S. Edmondson of Memphis; W. McC. Martin of St. Louis; R. P. Hobson of Louisville, Kentucky; E. H. Seal of Washington, D. C.; George E. Haw of Richmond; J. R. Caskie and F. W. McWane of Lynchburg; C. S. McNulty of Roanoke; and Stuart Chevalier of New York City.

WASHINGTON AND LEE ALUMNI, INCORPORATED

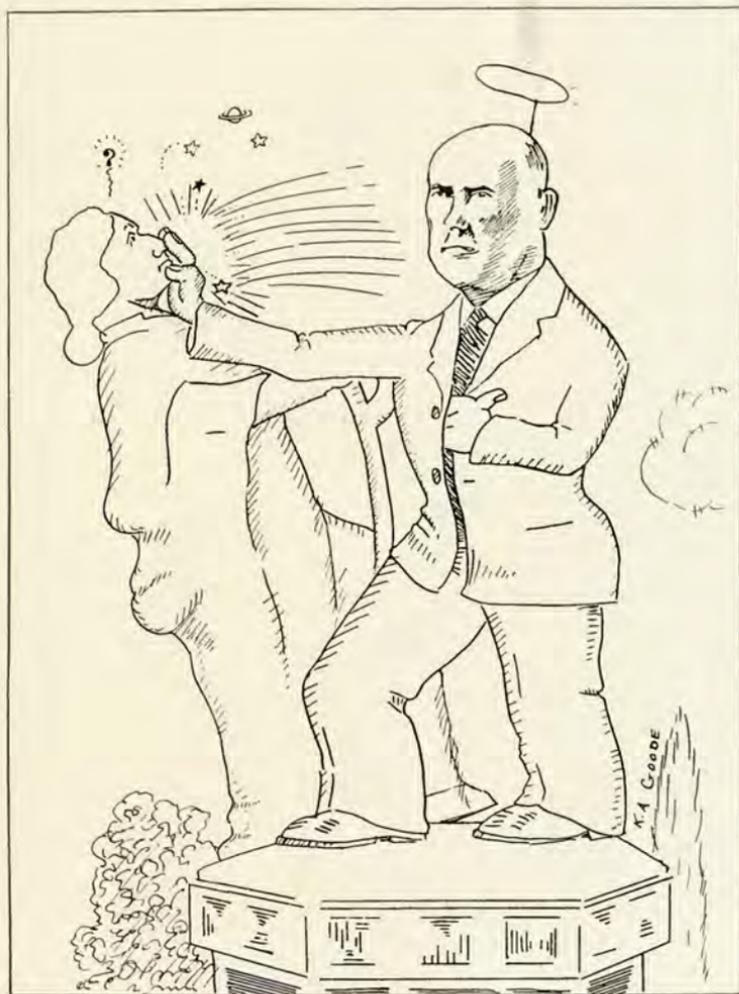

The outstanding alumni meeting of the year was held during the Florida-W. and L. football game at Jacksonville, Florida, on December sixth. Under the leadership of R. A. Baker, '96, and Fred Valz, '10, the Jacksonville alumni kept open house for the visiting alumni from the surrounding States. The successful meeting was brought to a climax at the alumni banquet given to the team on the evening after the game. Over seventy alumni attended this banquet. Interesting addresses were made by R. P. Daniel, '01; Coach DeHart; R. A. Baker, '96; and Lonnie D. Howell.

The lack of space prohibits the mention of further alumni activity and contributions in this issue of the CALYX. A complete acknowledgment would be impossible. Throughout the year, the Lexington office has been accorded the most gracious co-operation by the individual alumni throughout the country and the administrative officers of the University. From the oldest alumnus, J. J. Allen, '70, of Essex, North Carolina, to the most recent graduate, the alumni have welcomed and encouraged the efforts of the Alumni, Incorporated, to establish a closer and warmer contact between the University and her alumni, and among the alumni themselves.

THE CALYX EDITORS DO NOT STAY FOR FINALS

She: "What'll we talk about?"

He: "Say, I asked for a date, not an interview."

Inasmuch as Miss Cobb won't let us smoke in the library, she might at least furnish the place with gobboons.

While on the subject, we might suggest that Spang take better care of the Commerce Library. He hasn't cleaned the cuspidors in there for over a month.

"Johnny made an awful break last night."

"He ought to be more careful."

"Aw well, what can you expect of a boy that never shot pool before?"

A PLEA FOR SYMPATHY

Give a thought to the poor boys who now lie starving in the Jackson Memorial Hospital. Do you realize what they are going through?

I didn't, until one day, stricken down with chilblains, I was transported there by Friend Glas-cow, and put into a bed in a room with Duke Pollack and seven Sales and Advertising Students who were expecting a quiz.

The room was filled with tobacco smoke and the Commerce students were making so much noise that Pollack couldn't read his parallel and had to stay in the hospital an extra day and finish it.

At 8:30 an attendant entered, bearing a tray of food.

"Ah, meat!", cried a Commerce student.

"Who had the operation?" asked Pollack, quickly.

An argument then followed over whose turn it was to eat, after which the boys got up a few impromptu wrestling matches and sang a few songs, until the nurse came in and told them they'd have to keep quiet as there was a sick man in the building. The boys then piled the beds and furniture against the door to keep out the nurse with the elephant pills, and went to sleep on the floor.

During the night we were awakened by a terrible crash; the dumb waiter had broken down, hauling up a new barrel of aspirin, and in the morning they carried out the emaciated corpse of two men who had forgotten to make arrangements with the Greeks to have their meals brought in to them.

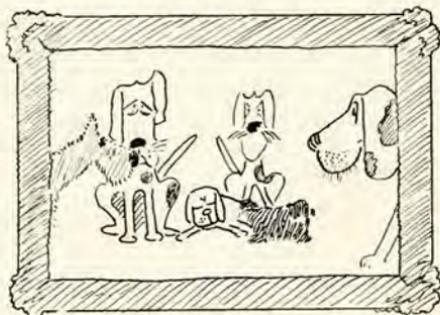

NECKING

Necking is a development. It is the result of the application of the modern sciences of wrestling, ju jitsu, and chiropractic to the obsolete pastime of spooning. It is the "ne plus ultra" of calisthenics. Through its influence we are evolving into a race of contortionists.

Though the word "necking" is comparatively modern, the sport has always existed. In earlier days, it was crude and inconvenient. The necking party between Marie Antoinette and the French Revolutionists, and the one tendered to Charles the First under the auspices of Oliver Cromwell, were among those in which one party was less enthusiastic about the function than the other, but due to radical changes and improvements, lack of enthusiasm on the part of one of the participants is a thing of the past.

In bringing the art to its present degree of perfection, great strides have been made. The principle has been applied to dancing; the scene has been shifted from the porch hammock and canoe to the automobile, and the aeroplane will be next.

Necking has been the subject of prodigious development, but to assume that that development has reached its highest point would be erroneous. The near future will probably see the application of the Franklin Air Cooling system to the oldest all round, all-weather sport in existence, but the peak, or if you be a member of the Faculty, the perfection of the art will not have been reached until Freud begins calling it the Romeo and Juliet complex.

CAMPUS SCENE

can't learn from the ground up. Here, any furniture should be removed by hanging it outside the window, the dirt shoveled out of the corners, and the whole floor raked over. The carpets should by this time be in sight, and these may be beaten by dropping them several times from the window. The windows need not be washed, as they will have to be replaced by new ones after finals.

After having properly wrecked the upper floor, the goats should begin in the living room, which is the technical name for the place the victrola is kept. The victrola itself should be emptied of all the cigarette butts which have been dropped inside it, and the "Nearer My God to Thee" record dusted off. The piano should be left alone in the corner. There's no telling what might be found behind it, and anyway, the thing's pretty heavy. But if the housecleaning should by any freak of circumstance be taking place at the Phi Psi house, the goats should be instructed to return the piano to the Sigma Nu house, where it was borrowed one Saturday night last fall.

PHI GAMMA DELTA

Dear old Phi Gam:

Give my love to all the dear boys, how I think of them and hope they are well. We are having lovely weather—just charming. And so many cute tea parties to attend, my, I just adore them. I have a new pair of trousers that are really fascinating—slits up the side and darling pearl buttons set off my size five shoes so well.

But to be more explicit. I want to tell you of the dearest boy who is coming to beautiful tree-lined Washington and Lee. Was sorry to hear you lost Palmer and Munson, but they were rather-er-rough, don't you think? And such boys when it came to spilling tea! But Roscoe Whelps is a paragon of social virtue; just as refined and elegant as you please. Why, he drank tea with Mrs. Warren G. Harding without even the appearance of incompetency. He also drinks the milder forms of alcohol, such as elderberry wine. As for his dancing, he is divine. His feet never seem to touch the floor, and he can think of the most enticing positions to put a girl in. I must close now and make sandwiches.

Best wishes to all, and remember me to that dear old Johnny Leggate who is such a rounder, I think.

Lovingly,

HORACE LAVENDER

CALYX HUMOR

WELL-KNOWN ALUMNUS SNAPPED IN COMPROMISING SITUATION

Here the CALYX photographer caught "Red" Lee, well-known alumnus and Campus Beau Brummel, in the company of one Dog Hundley, notorious evangelist and Y. M. C. A. habitue. Hundley is well known as the author of the Gentleman's Agreement, and is suspected of being a fundamentalist. It is rumored that Mr. Lee did much good work in the redemption of the other's soul. With only four years to work in, he succeeded in teaching him to smoke cigarettes and even tried to induce him to drink, but Hundley, who early in his life had come under the influence of Preacher Hill, the prayer-meeting addict, was firm in his refusal to form any good habits.

It is to be hoped, however, that "Red" hasn't come under Hundley's evil influence during the reformation process. It is whispered in fraternity circles that he paid his fare on the C. & O. once last spring, but there is nothing to substantiate the rumor, and now that he and Hundley are separated, there is no reason to believe that he will ever do it again.

Mr. Lee is now connected with one of the largest firms in New York by the Norfolk and Western Railway. A fitting conclusion to his long and fashionable existence at Washington and Lee.

A Number One (enthusiastically): "Gawsh, that's a hot baby. Her beauty is intoxicating!"
A Number Two (not so enthusiastically): "Yeh, I can hardly keep a sober face."

"Say, do I look foolish?"

"Don't ask those rhetorical questions."

Uncle Mose, telling of his narrow escape: "Nossuh, dey didn' lynch me, but dey had good intentions."

Garage man: "You need new sleeves on three of your valves."

Uncle Eben: "Yea, you old crook, 'en mebbe if I swaller that, ye'll tell me I need new coattails on the shock-absorbers."

BUSINESS FINANCE COURSE BLASTS SIMMONS'S LIFE

Another instance which goes to prove that Dr. Hancock's Business Finance is too hard, is the lamentable case of "Buck" Simmons. "Buck" studied hard all year to pass the course, but only succeeded in getting a D, thereby ruining his chance to make Phi Beta Kappa. Something should be done about this.

Dr. Willie Brown is making experiments to prove the theory of the transmigration of souls. At present, he has Dean Campbell in his Psychology Laboratory telling jokes. In this way he expects to prove that the dean is the reincarnation of his great grandfather.

THESE WILD COLLEGE BOYS

"LEFTY" LOUIE	F. B.	DeBIASO

The flying professors subdued the strong team from the two dormitories in a fast and furious battle just prior to the '24 Thanksgiving Dances. The final score was 7-3. To glance at the score is to justify one's mind as to the fight put up by both teams. Many spectacular plays were pulled off during the games, and until the referee, Morrison, blew the final whistle, no one was sure of the outcome.

The sensational play of the game came in the last quarter. The dormies were leading by 3 points, kicked by fullback DeBiao in an early period of the game and, try as they may, the profs had failed to score. By sweeping end-runs by Boss Moreland and line-backs by Lefty, the ball was advanced to the 40-yard line of the men from the dorms. With 4 yards to go and fourth down, Levitt was called on for a line-play. A bad pass by "Bugs" Hoyt caused a fumble which was recovered by Senator Crenshaw. With the speed of Mercury, the huge tackle sped down the field. Only one man, Riley, was in striking distance as he neared his goal. Closer and closer came end Riley as Crenshaw came closer to his goal. The Senator then made the fallacy of looking behind him, as did Lot's wife, but instead of meeting her fate and turning to a block of salt, he ran head-long into a goal post, dropping the ball as he did so. The fleet end then thought quickly, and picked up the oval and began a mad dash back down the field. The remaining ten dormies stood in his way. By a neat stiff arm he evaded the closing arms of Kimbrough. He went 10 yards more before he sidestepped Rouse and Roach. Using every ounce of his strength, and stretching the very sinews of his soul, he leaped over Strahorn, Pollack, DeBiao, and Patterson. Only three at this point stood in his path. Shaffer made a furious tackle and only by a corkscrew twist was he able to wrench himself loose from the dormitories' left ranger. This superb exhibition left Riley tottering on his feet, 20 yards from his goal, with Lowry racing towards him. Instead of giving up and relying on his teammates to do the rest, he summoned the rest of his strength and ran directly toward the oncoming Lowry. "Doc" then pulled the unexpected; he neatly stepped aside and with the ball in his right hand he smacked "all right" in the mouth. C. W. Lowry, the pride of the dormies and the idol of the beanery, bit the grimy ground. Riley was exhausted, but he stumbled on. Clark only was left in his path. Quarterback Gill, who was by now getting on his feet, neatly clipped Clark and the professors' stellar end, the "Red" Grange of the History Department fell across the white marker for 6 points. Boss Moreland kicked goal, and the game was won.

EXPENSES

The student's expenses are determined largely by the amount of money he is able to work out of the family. No statement can be formulated regarding his personal needs. A student should have seventy-five or eighty dollars a month for week-ends, and if it can be afforded, a little extra for luxuries, such as room and board.

FEES

Few parents are aware that two hundred dollars cover for a full session all fees except registration and those required for attendance at the Monday sessions of the Rockbridge County Court. These will vary, depending upon how often the student is here during the session. This amount includes fees for tuition, diplomas, the use of the Y. M. C. A. rooms, physician's fee, and the privilege of dying in the Jackson Memorial Hospital.

CALYX HUMOR

PERSONAL EXPENSES

Board usually includes soup, several varieties of case-hardened beans, and corn worked up in every conceivable form. The Lexington Restaurant is the only boarding house in town where that grain gets its just due. Room is likely to include almost anything. Chairs are frequently found in the higher-priced rooms, and beds are not at all unusual. Running water is supplied in many rooms free of charge during rainy weather. Some of the rooms are in suites, consisting of two bedrooms and a common card room.

SCHOLARSHIPS

This is a nice little graft whereby the Phi Beta Kappas get something worth while out of College. It also furnishes a means of subsistence for some of the boys who aren't so good at poker or pitch-penny.

REGISTRATION

At the opening of the session, every student is required to stand in line during the first three days in order to give the Ring-tum Phi and CALYX managers a chance to do their stuff.

A student absent from any recitation or class on the first two days after the Christmas Holidays will suffer the penalty of fines as follows: two dollars per class if student is in Staunton, a dollar seventy-five if in Lynchburg, and a dollar fifty if he is in Roanoke. The fine is only fifty cents if the student stayed over in Buena Vista.

HISTORICAL SKETCH

The history in the old catalogue says that Washington and Lee got its start in 1749 as Augusta Academy. This is untrue. It really started in the twelfth century as the University of Paris. The University of Paris flourished until 1745 when it was stolen and brought to this country. In 1749 it was set up in Lexington under the assumed name of Augusta Academy. It is from this Augusta Academy that our own Washington and Lee University has sprung. There may be some querulous person who will say that the University of Paris is still in existence. But for that matter, so is the Augusta Military Academy. The Academic Department was endowed by George Washington with a gift of a piece of C. & O. Canal stock, and it is expected that the new School of Journalism is to be endowed with Panama Canal stock.

STUDENT ACTIVITIES

1. Card-playing is one of the foremost student activities and is used as a means of getting rid of superfluous allowance while the student's friend takes a thirty-day vacation. The apparatus used consists of four or more of the University's finest, a table, a deck of cards, and a number of cold checks. Disputes may be settled in any of two ways: by reference to Hoyle's or the use of the All-American comeback—awgotohell!

2. Dancing is indulged in by some of the boys who wish to appear unique and stay on the floor while the orchestra is playing. It is popularly supposed to be the reason girls are invited to dances.

3. Drinking (see also Dancing). A quaint custom fostered by Swink and the Gentleman's Agreement.

STUDENT SELF-GOVERNMENT AND OTHER FORMS OF ANARCHY

The Faculty, in order to shift the blame of mismanagement of the school from their own shoulders, have consented to let the students run a lot of things they have always run, anyway.

Each spring, the students elect a man to be President of the Student Body, and from then on that man stops drinking in public.

The Student Body then makes ten other mistakes in electing ten other men to the Executive Committee, and then the fun begins.

It is a generally-known and curious phenomenon that the eleven men are generally pretty good boys before their elections to the Executive Committee.

Macbeth: My love, why does a chicken cross the road?

Lady Macbeth: To get on the other side, darling.

Macbeth: Damn you, you hussy, you've been listening to me talk in my sleep!

Lady Macbeth: Stop cussing me out in front of those three witches.

Macbeth (quick as lightning): Which Witches?

First Witch (approaching): Macbeth, Macbeth, beware the students!

Second Witch: They ain't got no sense; they lean all over my showcase.

Third Witch: My Leo got kicked out. It's a hell of a life a College town belle has to lead.

Witches No. One and Two vanish. Witch No. Three stops to ask Macbeth if it's true that Biddle is married?

Banquo: Great Caesar's Ghost!

Enter three witches.

First Witch: Run; there's a ghost!

First and Second Witches run.

Third Witch: Don't run; it's a man ghost.

Ghost: I want a bowl of tomato soup.

Third Witch: Wouldn't you rather play bridge?

Ghost: Hell, no!

Enter chorus of scene-shifters, singing, "Here we come for the scenery."

Exit ghost through a transom.

Third Witch: Get right out of here. You've scared off my man.

Scene-shifters exit with scenery, singing, "Here we go with the scenery."

Enter ghost, oozing through the keyhole.

BALL TEAM LOSES BY NARROW MARGIN

Hysterical College of Alaska Beats Varsity 174 to 0

If it weren't for 174 runs, air-tight pitching, water-tight fielding, a licentious habit of hitting homers which marked the playing of the Esquimo boys from Alaska, the Generals would have out-umpired Hysterical College in their annual diamond disgrace.

Incidentally, the uncanny magnetic attraction the walrus tamers' bats had for an ill pig, was added to the list of falsehoods why the Varsity failed to outscore their opponents. Moreover, the igloo inhabitants put whale oil on the bases it was reported in unofficial headquarters to the Drink-Bum Rye reporter.

Anyway, the Varsity played a great game. The Hysterical boys had an Esquimo dollar with which they won the toss because the Lexington aggregation couldn't tell which side was heads and which tails. They elected to bat first. The first man up knocked Snake Mayben out of the box. Snake landed about five miles this side of Rosnoke, so he went across the road to the Kappa Sigma house and took a bath. This last, however, was denied by the Kappa Sigmas who claim that he only changed his clothes in preparation for a date that night. The ball has not yet been located, but a friend of the Esquimo lads has a home wired that it passed three about noon the next day.

What went on after that, can't be told with only twenty-six letters in the alphabet and the asterisk broken off the typewriter. Lindberg, the only remaining pitcher, went in next and proved too much of a strategist for the Northmen. He dug a bombproof cellar behind the box into which he and the umpire ran after the first pitch. The pitcher pitched during the first half of the first, the Big Blue team, feeling still bluer by this time, made a clever double play which nearly beat their adversaries. With two men on base, a Hysterical man made a bunt which was scooped up by the left fielder and relayed to second just ahead of the runner. Then the ball was thrown to the third baseman, catching another runner who had stopped to bum a cigarette from the shortstop. Another out was registered when the centerfielder caught a man who came out into his territory to pick flowers, and the Varsity went in to bat. The first two men struck out before they discovered that the ball was still in the umpire's pocket. The third man up was the Redoubtable Slack. He jumped up to the box just as the pitcher was tossing the ball to the catcher to hold while he got out a fresh crew of bludger, and almost knocked it out of the infield along the first base line. The first baseman picked it up and tagged the base, thus ending the first inning, but Slack's stomach was in the way, and he didn't see the play, so he kept right on going and was much bewildered on reaching the base to find that both teams were already back in the clubhouse.

The scorekeeper evaded the count between halves, and on returning from the clubhouse, the Varsity tightened up their machine, dispensing with the catches so that four men could play in the outfield. Thus the game continued till seven o'clock, when it was called in the first hall of the second to give the out-of-townites time to dress for the P.P.P. Fancy Dress Ball.

LOCAL RESTAURANTER IN AGAIN. SOCKS STUDENT, SOCKS NOW IN JAIL

The trial of Dick Socks for assaulting a Washington and Lee man in his Main Street Feast Hall at Saturday night, caused the gay life of the Campus to cease temporarily. The student is said to have entered Socks's Sandwich Store with a gun, demanding the name of the artist who perpetrated the mural decoration depicting Unnatural Bridge and Souse Mountain. Socks, wishing to save the life of the four-year-old child, refused to give his name, and an altercation ensued in which the student was badly beaten and the student who was shot.

The student reported the matter to Chief Stink of the police force, who after calling Socks up on the phone

KARL ZERFOSS ISSUES CALL FOR TRY-OUTS FOR "REBEL YELL"

Karl Zerfoss issues a call for volunteers to try out for this year's staff of the Rebel Yell. Although several of last year's staff, namely Leo Haack, Shropshire, and Jimmie Rosentre, have graduated, Karl declares his intention of putting out the largest, best, and scummiest edition in the memory of Eddie Parks Davis. The skunk, he asserts, will screech some time during Finals.

It has been announced that Cluverius will hold the position of advertising manager in the place of President Henry Smith who is not coming out this year on account of his recent illness.

As yet, however, there is a lack of talent for the editorial staff, and Mr. Zerfoss promises the services of any writers of vulgar smut who can spare some of their time from the CALX.

GOOD CHECK GIVEN AS DEPOSIT ON U-DRIVE-IT

Proprietor of Rent-a-Ford has Weird Experience

Two unknown men, suspected of being students, rented a U-Drive-It late yesterday afternoon and gave as a deposit a check on the Rockledge National Bank for Ten Dollars. When at nine o'clock the following morning the car had not been returned, the proprietor of the company took the check to the bank to be protested. To his astonishment, the teller handed over two new five-dollar bills. Doctors working over the unfortunate proprietor brought him to about five in the evening, at which time they issued a statement to the Drink-Bum Rye reporter that they had pacified the victim by telling him that the bank teller had erroneously made a mistake. Later, when the patient had fully recovered, he expressed his intention of using the ten dollars for the purchase of two or three more U-Drive-Its to meet the demand for parking vehicles at Finals.

Y. M. C. A. LYCEUM PROGRAM STARTS

Beside the Bonnie Annheuser Busch; First Number

Beside the Bonnie Annheuser Busch, the first number of the Lyceum Program given by the Y. M. C. A., a campus organization which seems to have sprung up here, was wildly applauded at its first performance by A. T. Roy, J. D. Mayhew, and W. W. Donnelly. Donnelly, however, cleared his self of the suspicion of having been hired for the evening by admitting that he felt sorry for the little fellow in the plaid dress. At the end of the performance Karl Zerfoss gave a speech, apologizing for the rotten performance, and the leading man added his excuses, saying that since Harry Lauder quit the company it had gone from bad to worse and from worse to Lexington.

The Bonnie Annheuser Busch will be followed shortly by the Russian Vodka Players and a long line of Prayer Meetings.

and making sure that he would offer no resistance, went up and arrested him.

The next morning, in court, Socks pleaded guilty of assault and battery in the third degree (stratery reckoning). He explained that he was drunk and mistook the student for his wife.

The student said he didn't mind the beating but resented the humiliation of being seen sober on Main Street on Saturday night. Socks gave him a couple of meal tickets and the charge was withdrawn.

EDITORIAL

The Drink-Bum Rye wishes to take this opportunity to greet the returning Alumni. This is an annual custom, and it might just as well be done. We extend the usual right hand of good fellowship and at the same time the use of any student's room for social purposes. Now that we've said that, it is incumbent upon us to dish out several flattering spoonfuls of applesauce, so that they will be sure to return next year and give us the usual line about "When I was in College." It is for this sort of entertainment that we sink our crap-earned money in a "Likker and Petter Finals." Oh yes, it is! And now to cross our fingers and type off several paens of praise to our annual charges.

Who brings back the stuff that makes Finals a success each year? The Alumni! Whose are the forms which so gracefully drape themselves about the Campus in various attitudes of intoxication? The Alumni! To whom do we turn when we want to raise money for a new School of Journalism or a coat of paint for the chaotter house? The Alumni! And who so magnanimously dig down in their pockets to shell out for these projects? Well, hurrah for the Alumni, anyhow. They are the Cream of the South, as a reference to the catalogue will verify.

PRESIDENT'S PARAGRAPHS

No. Concluded, we hope. The essential feature of a good dance is plenty of whiskey.

Without it the dance is foreordained, nice word, fore-ordained, to failure. At the last Fancy Dress Ball the whole effect was ruined by the presence of members of the Faculty, and their children who were not intoxicated. If such conduct is kept up, it will be necessary to have them removed by the Floor Committee or make them sign the Gentlemen's Agreement.

Remember, Cream of the South, the engine is only good for locomotion. It is the box car that carries the liquor. Don't be an engine.

BERNARD GOOGLE MARRIES

The several friends of Bernard Google will be pleasantly surprised to learn of his marriage on last Friday, the thirteenth, to Miss Gydia Glanders of Horses Neck, Arkansas. Google was a member of the classes of 1906, 1907, 1908, and 1909, and finally got his degree in 1910. While at Washington and Lee he made a number of friends and was prominent in Campus activities, being a member of the Chi Rho Fraternity, medical fraternity, an intermittent reporter on the Drink-Bum Rye, and a regular reporter to the Dean. An enthusiastic athlete (Mexican), he acquired two loving cups and one for necking. Mrs. Gydia Glanders Google, who was finished at the Lexington Flaming Mill, has been a member of the younger set of Horses Neck for many years.

LITERARY SOCIETY MEETS

The Stentorian Literary Society met as usual Saturday evening in its room on the third floor of Washington College.

Both the regulars were present.

The meeting was called to order promptly at 7:30 by President Ghoul. In a few well-chosen words he thanked the member for attending, saying that the meetings for the past couple of weeks had been lonesome.

In the absence of the treasurer he made a few remarks about the urgency of paying dues and read a list of those who had not. This list also served as a roll call.

The member then moved adjournment, but as there was no one to second it the motion was lost. The president decided they would have to wait there until the next Saturday night for someone to come in and break the deadlock. Finally, the president fell asleep and the member sneaked out. A most enjoyable time was had by all.

Among the Colleges

Lack of students in their geology classes has put the Geology Department of Joe College on the rocks.

The Sing Sing Glee Club is to give a concert, a feature of which will be the rendition of "The Bars and Stripes Forever."

Glee Club Championship contests have been quite the fad and are now spreading to the correspondence schools. A score of warblers from the Alexander Hamilton Institute will indulge in an exchange of notes with the International Correspondence School.

A referendum at Mary Baldwin showed the girls' disapproval of the recent Faculty interpretation of the rule in regard to roller-skating. The Faculty insist on interpreting this rule as applying to any girl found with a skate on.

Dean Pearson of Southern Seminary says that Washington and Lee men write the most interesting letters lately received by the girls at that school.

A recent straw vote taken at Hollins College, on the subject of the women's college having the most beautiful girls, resulted in an overwhelming majority in favor of Hollins.

V. M. I. has recently put out a magazine entitled the "Butt Sniper." It is rumored that the staff intends to add a humorous section next year.

A great commotion was caused on the Campus at Roanoke College by the appearance of a student wearing a yellow slicker.

The City College of New York has enrolled a student from Czecho-Slovakia. They now have students from every country in the world except the United States.

A Virginia Alumnus has invented a set of collapsible glasses so that the students of his alma mater can take a drink without going home.

Columbia University Seniors have organized an honorary pawnbroking society called the "Three Ball Club." Not to be outdone, Washington and Jefferson is organizing an honorary football society and calling it the "Eight-Ball Club."

THE VOICE OF THE STUDENT BODY

Dear Mr. Editor—

I wish to call the attention of the Editors of the Drink-Bum Rye and the members of the Student Body to a matter which has recently come up.

The Rebel Yell has acquired a competitor, but it is not much of an acquisition. For the benefit of those who can't imagine what I mean by the word "competitor," I explain that I am referring in a jocular way to Pideltourus, a partly-humorous magazine put out by the Pi Delta Epsilon fraternity. On seeing this publication I was confronted with the same question that troubled the minds of the rest of the Student Body, and sent a psychology goat to find out what the hell Pi Delta Epsilon was. After consulting the omniscient Mattingly and Oracle Glass he came back with the information that it is a journalistic fraternity claiming to be humorous, and started by some idealist who believed in Santa Claus, the millennium, and the proposed W. and L. School of Journalism.

To furnish the society some justification for its existence, they published the sheep in wolf's clothing known as Pideltourus. The feebleness of this sheet can hardly be excused even on the grounds of a first attempt, and its frenzied groping after Neolithic wise-cracks would be pitiable if the pity didn't cost twenty cents, and its attempts to be funny exhibit all the originality of a trained seal.

The Rebel Yell and its Editor are sensible to the flattery of attempted emulation, but even conceding emulation to be the sincerest form of flattery, I do not consider myself to have been much flattered. I would recommend in the first place that the editors buy themselves a good parrot and get it to teach them to swear, and in the second place that they give their leftover copies to the local Sunday School for circulation in place of the customary "Little Folks' Weekly."

I don't intend to say that Pideltourus is unworthy of the W. and L. Campus. I will at least admit that it is the best publication of its kind that has been issued here since Dr. Smith stamped out the existence of my humorous publication a year ago. But nevertheless, I wish to call upon the Student Body to withdraw its support from this spurious imitation of one of the most sacred traditions of the Campus.

Yours truly,

DR. WILLIE BROWN
Editor, Rebel Yell

SULLINS POSING CONTEST

(Reviewed)

On Saturday night, April 4th, the New Theatre housed "Three Live Ghosts" and three hundred live suckers. The show was held on the wrong date. It should have come three days earlier.

The reviewer is particularly fitted to write up this event, since he was not present and therefore not prejudiced against it.

Stage directions in the original play were ruthlessly ignored. The title itself expressly called for live ghosts. About the rest of the act we can't complain. The play didn't expressly state that they were supposed to be alive, so we'll have to give them the benefit of the doubt.

The scene-shifting was by far the best part of the show. It was probably done by local talent.

Technically, the play ended when Lord Aigy walked the stage with the bleeding head of Fatima the musk-dancer clasped in his hand, but actually it ended when the last spectator walked out at the beginning of the second act.

The Sullins Suck-in plays tomorrow night at the University of Virginia, so mum's the word.

FANCY DRESS REELING SUCCESS

Figures Cause Favorable
Comment

This year's Fancy Dress Brawl was a riot of color and tone. It only differed from other riots of national news interest in that the others generally had a reason. This one was purely a riot for riot's sake.

It is the unanimous opinion of everyone attending that this brawl surpassed all the preceding brawls that did not surpass it. The ladies in their costumes were picturesque and delightful. Even those who wore clothes were appealing in their quaintness.

The figure was specially gorgeous and the men in it are to be congratulated for the skill they exhibited in remaining on their feet.

Other features of the brawl were the Russian dancing of Miss Lucy Heath and the appearance of Miss Annie White.

Among those present were Hogue Poole attired as an intoxicated cow-puncher, Jimmy Valentine as an intoxicated Cossack, "Skeet" Warthen as an intoxicated Chinaman, Fulwiler as an Alpine "yodler," Johnny Lovelace as an intoxicated Turk, "Toby" Hendrix as an intoxicated pirate, "Jack" Chapman as an intoxicated artist, and J. D. Mayhew as an intoxicated clown.

Among the all-too-numerous visitors from other colleges were:

Gus Copen of the University of Virginia with two quarts.

Junior Wilson of Roanoke College with chaperone.

Kenneth F. Hill of Sing Sing with haircut.

Billy Ward of Hampden-Sidney (?) with a bottle of Listerine and two packages of Life Savers.

Harry Horseshoe of Wake Forest with a dollar and fifteen cents until he could memorize some more dialect stories as the members of the jury knew all his present ones. The request was granted and justice moved on.

"Kelly Poole," howled the crier.

Poole got up and protested that his case came under the jurisdiction of the Phi Delta Phi court and therefore should be dismissed.

The judge dismissed the case and reprimanded "Fat" Pastures for sending him up, but "Fat" excused himself on the ground that he was so excited he didn't know what he was doing.

"Billy Endless," howled the crier.

"Not prepared; I mean not guilty," replied Endless.

Billy then went on to explain that the mud on his dress suit had been put there on purpose as a sort of camouflage so that people couldn't distinguish him from the rest of Wilson Field. Billy was convicted in spite of the influence brought to bear in his behalf by Brown's Dry Cleaning Shop, and since the jury had to get down town before nine o'clock came and the Greeks closed, court was adjourned.

SIGMA NU

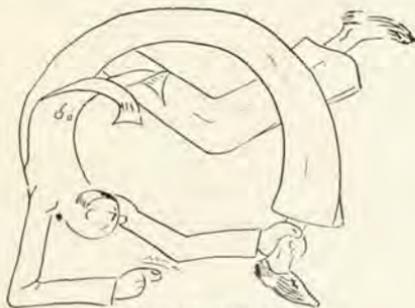

Dear Secretary,

You'd damn' sure better bid Ike Aig. He's a whoop! There's only one man in the community who can pass him out, and he weighs 490 pounds. Why this boy has been known to tear up a whole house, piece by piece, and he chewed up the hotel without batting an eye.

We are sending along his prison record for your approval. This boy ought to go big, and we guarantee his stomach is cast iron.

Fraternally,

MEMBER OF THE FLOOR COMMITTEE REMOVING THE LAST DRUNK FROM THE FLOOR

The Dance Control Committee held a court the night after Fancy Dress. Everybody was there who had been taken off the floor during the dances and, in addition, two innocent Freshmen who mistook the meeting for a compulsory assembly. Judge Johnny Morrischeur sat enthroned on the dais, dealing out the Executive Committee's selected line of W. C. T. U. justice. "Oyez, Oyez," wailed the court crier, imitating as nearly as possible the sonorous drawl of the illustrious Dr. Clapp. "'Oy, Oy' is right," muttered Gus Lindberg who was up on a charge of eating a ham sandwich during intermission.

"First case," called the court jester.

"Buddy" Almanac, yelled the crier.

The attorney for the defense stepped up and announced that he had two different alibis for his client. In the first place, the accused had absolutely no recollection of having attended the dance; and in the second place, he was running a trolley car at the time.

"Barred till Easter," came the verdict.

"Next case!"

"Rudolph Valentine."

"You are charged with taking away the most competent bookkeeper in the employ of the Rockbridge National Bank," said the judge, sternly.

Rudolph, acting as his own lawyer, arose and asked that the hearing be postponed

ELECTROCUTION OF WATER

Purpose of experiment: To monkey with a pint of water and guess what it is made of.

Material used: water; electricity.

Apparatus used: Bunch of glass tubes and wires.

Description of experiment: I put some water in the glass tubes and turned on the juice. The two tubes inside the horseshoe-shaped tube began to rise. The right-hand one rose faster than the other one. (I lost. I bet on the left-hand one.) When the water was nearly all gone, both the tubes were full of wind. I took out the short tube and held it in the gas flame, but the wind in it blew up before I had a chance to find out what it was. It cost me two bits for a new glass tube. The wind in the other tube made a stick burn like the devil. The prof said it was oxygen, and he ought to know.

Equation representing reaction: H_2O equals O plus $???$

Principle, etc., illustrated by experiment: Electrocuting water turns into oxygen and something else.

"Sta Yankee, whassa fawmalya fa hygen suffide?" he asked in his inimitable Southern drawl. Mr. Yankee didn't know what the formula for hydrogen sulphide was.

"Well, whassa fawmalya fa sojum droxide?" he asked.

Mr. Yankee didn't know what the formula for sodium hydroxide was, either. Mr. Ogburn then became peeved.

"Well, dya know tha fawmalya fa water?" he asked sarcastically.

"Oh, sure," replied Yankee. "I learned that before I came here."

THE SQUAD

THE TRAFFIC SQUAD

Here is portrayed a picture of one of the best-known members of the Lexington police force in action, or at least as much action as he has ever shown. The town of Lexington showed very little foresight in not putting lamp-posts on the principal corners, for this oversight cost the town the expense of erecting the street semaphore shown in the picture (the gentleman must have something to lean against).

Mr. Swink, before achieving his position as the auto traffic squad, spent many years in regulating the liquor traffic and is well qualified to hold his own.

Washington and Lee University

ITS UNIQUE POSITION AMONG SOUTHERN INSTITUTIONS OF LEARNING

WASHINGTON AND LEE UNIVERSITY was founded as Augusta Academy in 1749. By unanimous vote of the board of trustees its name was changed to Liberty Hall in May, '76, and later, when selected and endowed by George Washington, the name was changed, with his approval, to Washington College.

In 1782 it was formally chartered as an independent institution of higher learning, with a self-perpetuating board of trustees. At the close of the Civil War, General Robert E. Lee refused offers of the headship of state and church institutions and chose Washington College as the agent through which he might dedicate his life to the obliteration of sectional antagonisms and the training through their future leaders of the whole Southern people.

Its position among Southern institutions of higher learning is altogether unique in the following characteristics:

1. Its Patriotic History and Ennobling Associations.

The roots of Washington and Lee were set far back in colonial days. It is a sacred and inspiring shrine of Southern patriotism, of ennobling memories and traditions, of lofty and unselfish devotion to the public good.

2. Its Independence of State and Church Control.

Washington and Lee is located on sacred and classic Virginia soil, but it is entirely independent of politics and political or legislative control. It is an historic institution independent of state lines and is patronized by the whole South.

The spirit of Washington and Lee, while deeply Christian, is non-denominational and independent of all ecclesiastical control. Among the old historic Southern institutions it is the only one thus independent of both state and church boundaries and limitations.

3. Its Humanitarian Spirit and Tendency.

Washington and Lee is not a technical institution dominated by the idea of learning something which can be immediately turned into money. It has always been a wonderful nursery of leaders of men rather than of makers of money.

4. A Record of Washington and Lee's Service to the Nation from 1914 to 1918:

Secretary of War
Ambassador to Great Britain
Ambassador to Italy
Justice of the Supreme Court
Solicitor-General of the United States
Assistant Attorney-General of the United States
Two Judges of the United States Court of Claims
General Counsel of the United States Food Administration
Joint Chairman of the National War Labor Board
Secretary of the National War Labor Board
Chief of Legal Division, Bureau of War Risk Insurance
President of the American Section of the Inter-Parliamentary Union
Chairman of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs
Chairman of the House Committee on Military Affairs
Chairman of the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency
Chairman of the Senate Committee on Mines and Mining
Chairman of the House Committee on Foreign Relations

5. Its Climate and Environment.

The marvelous climate of this intermontane plateau, dry, tonic, and curative; the cosmopolitan fellowship of a student-body drawn from the whole South; the characteristic cordiality of its campus toward new students as well as old; the unequalled facilities for the care and training of the body; and the all-dominant and traditional honor-system which rules all campus life and thought characterize this unique institution.

Why Do Printers Estimates Differ?

When Using the Same Specifications

THE answer is: THEY DO NOT!

Let us explain.

No specification you or anybody else ever made was complete.

All the estimates you ever received on a printing proposition differed on the thing that you didn't specify—quality. Each printer quoted you on his quality.

Now listen!

There are only two things you can specify with exactness on a printing order—paper and size.

Everything else is style. Style consists of design, taste and workmanship.

The King's bones and muscles contain the same elements as the pauper's; the only difference is personality.

We endeavor to put personality in every piece of printing.

Printing that will always be a Cherished Possession

THE PRODUCTION of books, programs and calendars for the students of America's Universities requires an ability to originate printed forms that will be cherished possessions in the mellow years that follow a University career.

BEAUTIFUL forms and compositions are not made by chance, nor can they ever, in any material, be made at small expense.

A composition for cheapness and not for excellence of workmanship, is the most frequent and certain cause of the rapid decay and entire destruction of arts and manufactures.

— Ruskin

In the libraries of many of the "old grads" will be found books, programs and announcements preserved for their intimate memories and associations.

It is the production of this kind of printing that has brought to this organization its frequent opportunities to serve University men and women.

When the urge is for something better, we will welcome an opportunity to submit ideas
