DR. ARNOLD TO SUCCEED SLEDD

Washington and Lee Scholar Will Go to Emory College

A Virginian is to succeed Professor Andrew Sledd in the chair of Latin at Emory College, Ga. Professor Sledd's resignation as a sequel to the publication by the Atlantic Monthly of his article on the race question is known all over the country. His successor is an equally cultured scholar, Dr. M. H. Arnold, an old Washington and Lee man who has subsequently pursued his studies at other institutions. Dr. Arnold is a native of Virginia and a graduate of Washington and Lee University, from which he has received both the bachelor's and master's degree. He has done work in Johns Hopkins University looking toward the degree of Doctor of Philosophy.

Since his graduation from Washington and Lee, Dr. Arnold has taught both in his alma mater as instructor and in Trinity College, North Carolina. He is eminently fitted both by education and experience to fill the position to which he has been elected and will make a worthy successor to Professor Sledd.—Richmond Dispatch.

Football

While it is a little early yet to get a very definite idea as to what will be the line-up of our eleven, still the week's practice has shown that there is more material on the field this fall, from which to develop a strong team, than we have had for a number of years.

Of old men, there are from last year's team, Trundle, who should certainly hold down his old position at guard, unless the coaches conclude he will prove more valuable at tackle; Haw, who is playing his usual strong game at half-back; Walker, a strong candidate for full-back, again; Whipple, last year's centre, between whom and Stone, who was a substitute last year, the choice for that position seems to lie; Dotson, half-back, who is making a strong fight for a position, and Hall, quarter-back, and Glasgow, full-back, who have not yet come out.

The team will be greatly strengthened on Saturday, by the arrival of Capt. Smith. It goes without saying that he will play his old position at end, as but few men are capable of doing it.

McNeil, who played such a star tackle for Washington and Lee in '98 and '99 is again in college, and sure of a position. Sterrett, tackle, '00, is another promising candidate for the line, and with his weight and past experience should prove a valuable man.

There is an unusually large number of promising candidates among the freshmen. From the V. M. I., we have Ross, who played end on that team last year and Marshall who is fighting hard against Campbell, one of last year's scrubs for quarter-back.

Cunningham and Alexander represent Pantops and are both good men and stand excellent chances for making the team; Meredith was Trinity College's star end last year, and though he has not had much of a chance here, is reasonably certain of getting a place. Other good men are Smiley, Williams, Conner, Rheard, and Judy, all of whom are playing hard ball.

Manager McNulty, is hard at work raising the necessary funds to secure the services of an efficient coach to assist Dr. Wertenbaker in the development of the team. Our prospects certainly are such as to justify the spending of a considerable amount in order to get the best man obtainable, and we hope that before many days, the management will be able to definitely engage such a one.

The following schedule has been arranged:

September 24—Miller's School, at Lexington.

September 28—University of Virginia, Charlottesville.

October 11—V. P. I., Lynchburg.

October 20—University of North Carolina, Norfolk.

October 26—Richmond College, Lexington.

November 11—V. M. I., Lexington.

November 14—Roanoke College, Lexington.

November 20—Columbian University, Lexington.

November 27—Thanksgiving Day—Hampden Sidney College, Lynchburg.

Opening Hop

The first dance of the year was given in the gymnasium, on last Friday, immediately after the Y. M. C. A. reception, and was voted a great success by all those present. Among these were:—Miss Savage, of Rahway, N. J., Miss McGuire, of Winchester, Va., Miss Paxton, of Natural Bridge, Va., Miss Eva Butler, of Little Rock, Ark., Miss Dunlap, of Roanoke, Va., Misses Ridgely, Tucker, Moore, Turner, Brockenbrough and Graham of Lexington, and students Pancake, Price, Haw, Burks, Mason, Gilbert, Foarde, Shields, Worthen, Stephenson, and Bledsoe; Mr. R. J. McBryde, Jr., Mr. D. M. Barclay, Capts. Stockdale, Bernhard and Carter, of the V. M. I. and several members of the cadet first class. Mrs. W. LeC. Stevens, Miss Annie White, and Mrs. S. B. Walker acted as chaperones.

Student Mass-Meeting

Mr. J. W. Bagley called the first mass-meeting of W. and L.'s students together September 16th, 1902. He stated the object of the meeting and introduced Mr. C. S. McNulty, manager of the football team, who gave some essentials to W. and L.'s success on the gridiron this fall.

He stated that one most necessary element was enthusiasm on the part of the whole student body and a high enough temperature to melt the hermetic seal on their pocket-books and allow a few dollars to roll out for the benefit of athletics. He gave a clear-cut, concise presentation of what is necessary for the very best results in football this season.

President Denny was then called on and while it was pleasant for all yet it was particularly so to the old men to hear his hearty endorsement and willing and ready support to this important feature of college life. He spoke of the necessity of physical development in general and then roused the audience to be not merely desirous to see a victorious team on the field this year but urged every student to do all he could in that direction.

Dr. Wertenbaker then spoke of the need of another coach to help him get the best team W. and L. has yet had. Each year has shown an improvement under his work and as there is better material this year than last the result should be logical.

Although not more than ten per cent. of the student body was present, yet a goodly sum was realized and when others are called upon and contribute as liberally, the team of '02 should be expected to count for something and be one that the boys will rally around with pride and pleasure.

OTT ON HIS TRAVELS

Interviewed by a Reporter While Passing Through Staunton

Staunton, Va., Sept. 10.—E. D. Ott, editor-in-chief of the Southern Collegian, who has been nicknamed by Washington and Lee's politicians, "Richard Croker," passed through this city yesterday evening.

When asked about college politics, Mr. Ott declared he was going to retire; that he had repaid his friends for their services, and settled his accounts with his enemies; that his duties in the law department peremptorily demanded his whole attention.

To the remark, "I understand you are talked of for President of the Senior Law Class," "Croker" said: "My friends have been kind enough to mention my name; but I have emphatically refused to run.

"I never have cared for social honors, and don't believe I am the right man for the place."

"One more question, somewhat private, but don't get angry. I understand your engagement to Senator —'s daughter, of A—, has been publicly announced."

The reporter turned his head for a moment, and when he looked again, the man who had ruled Washington and Lee's politics with an iron hand for the past three years, was nowhere to be seen.—Harrisonburg Evening News.

Another session has begun! The student has unpacked his dusty books and begun the burning of that midnight electricity which lights the path that leads to honors on commencement day; the college sport is with us again and brings back with him the usual complement of good resolutions on which he relies to carry him safely through another session; the athlete has clothed himself in his football togs and is spending his afternoons in kicking the ball and his nights in dreaming of a glorious victory over the V. M. I., while the college cynic is here to remind him that "'tis but a dream," and an old one at that; the bleat of the fraternity goat is once more to be heard and the editor again takes up his rusty pen.

The RING-TUM PHI, with this issue, enters upon the sixth year of its career with the feeling that it has fully justified the belief of its founders that a weekly was a necessity at Washington and Lee, and can only hope that it may continue, during the coming year, to deserve the support of the student body as it has in the past.

The present staff is unfortunately without its editor-in-chief and hopes that those disposed to criticize will take this into consideration and console themselves with the knowledge that Mr. Lauck will soon be here.

In another column will be found an account of the mass-meeting held on Tuesday in the interest of athletics. For several years past our football teams have failed either from poor coaching or lack of material to do more than make a fair showing. This year we have the largest number of students that have matriculated for years to support the team financially, and plenty of good material, both old and new, from which to develop a team. Let the student body only do its duty by securing the services of a good coach and we see no reason why we should not make this a banner year in our football annals.

Since the close of the last session there have been several changes in our faculty. To the great regret of the entire student body, Profs. Tucker and White have severed their connection with the University. Their chairs will be indeed hard to fill, but from the reputations which have preceded them, we are sure that the Board of Trustees acted wisely in electing Profs. Long and Latane as their successors, as well as in calling Professor Kern to the chair of Latin.

Opening Exercises of the New Session

One week ago last Thursday morning, the Lee Memorial Chapel was filled with an unusually large number of young men, ready to enter upon another session's struggles and pleasures with renewed vigor or to embrace for the first time the opportunities which a college education offers. The end towards which our strenuous President and Law School Dean had labored so during the past summer was realized and the result was not only a larger number of students but a more intelligent set of men,—coming as they do from the best homes in our Southland. The religious exercises were conducted by Rev. C. R. Hemphill, of Louisville, Ky., after which President Denny announced Professor Willis as the speaker of the morning.

Professor Willis spoke on several aspects of a college career. He compared a college education to a co-partnership in business and showed the necessity of coöperation on the part of the students to make it a success. He referred with pride to the honor system which dominates college life at Washington and Lee so completely and mentioned the lack of it which a certain preparatory school in the North had showed in recent entrance examinations. He warned us of the danger of becoming too materialistic and practical in our views of college work and advised every student to obtain as much culture as possible out of his college course instead of aiming along merely revenue producing lines.

He also emphasized the need of the educated citizen in politics and referred to conditions as he had seen them in Washington as indicating greater need of independence in politics.

In conclusion he addressed himself to the old students and pointed out the great value of the influence of President Wilson and expressed confidence in his successor.

To the writer as he noticed the President and the faculty, a new era seemed to be opening for Washington and Lee. All, thoroughly harmonious, were working together with one common purpose, to enlarge the influence and to extend the traditions of our University.

Graham-Lee Society

The Graham-Lee Literary Society reorganized last Saturday night, September 14. In the absence of the President, Mr. M. T. McClure, the secretary, presided. There being no regular program, President G. H. Denny and Professor W. S. Currell were asked to make addresses appropriate to the occasion—a continuation of that interesting feature of last session when Mr. Tucker and Mr. Denny addressed the Graham-Lee Society.

In his interesting and instructive address, Dr. Currell spoke of thinking, reading, writing, and speaking as the quadrilaterals of liberal culture. He named the essentials of thinking properly as clear, consecutive and continuous thinking and emphasized the importance of thinking on the feet. Dr. Denny dwelt largely on the importance of the training in literary societies, its high place in the college career and the power of public speaking.

After the addresses of the evening, an opportunity for membership was given, and two new names were enrolled and several old men signed up. It is to be hoped that all the old men will be on hand next Saturday night as the election of officers will then take place.

Y. M. C. A. Reception

In the lower chapel on Friday night after college opened, at 8.30 o'clock, the students of the University were welcomed and informally entertained by the Young Men's Christian Association.

After opening with a hymn, Rev. Mr. Hall, pastor of the Baptist church, led in prayer and then the President briefly but heartily welcomed one and all present.

Rev. Mr. Light, of the Methodist church, made plain in a few words how much the pastors of our churches love the students, collectively and individually, and how precious they esteem the privilege of knowing them intimately. In behalf of the Faculty, we were favored with an earnest and loving talk from Dr. Quarles. We are indeed grateful for the plain and practical exhortation that he gave us, and hope that many will be profited by his advice.

Refreshments of cream and cake were served and new men and old became one in social conversation.

We want to express our gratitude to the ladies who helped in providing for and carrying out the program for the night. We feel greatly indebted to them.

The first meeting of the Y. M. C. A., Sunday afternoon, was a very auspicious beginning of the work for this session. The President, Mr. Spencer, led the meeting, and in a few well-chosen words, gave a hearty welcome to all present and exhorted them to coöperate with the officers of the Association in order to further its interests and broaden its influence. Mr. McNeill then spoke on the Christian athlete. As a basis for his talk he chose Rom. 12, 9: "Abhor that which is evil; cleave to that which is good." He emphasized, but tried not to over-develop the physical side of Christ's nature. This was a new idea to many of us and one deserving deep thought.

This interesting meeting was closed with a hymn. We hope that the service next Sunday afternoon will be still more interesting and instructive. Every student is cordially invited to be present at 4 p. m.

Law Notes

Old Absque Hoc seems to have begun its voyage under a happy star this year. Everything about the Law School is wearing the cheerful hue of prosperity. The Senior men are all back, with a single exception, and the Junior class of this year is very much larger than that of last. The new Dean has the unbounded confidence of all, and there is every reason to believe that Mr. Long, newly elected to the chair of Constitutional Law and Equity, will prove an able and brilliant teacher. We might add that fortune has been propitious to the Law School in other directions also, as the priests of Hymen inform us.

The office of Law Librarian will be filled by Causey this year. Shields will look out for the interest of the students in the way buying new books.

We were pleasantly surprised to find that Dillard had decided to return to the effete civilization of the East. He comes with the express purpose of lassoing the Code and corraling all the Virginia cases. Harvey whiled away the past summer in the recesses of the Law Library, where he and Knipmeyer swept away the cobwebs from all treatises on Married Women and Insurance. Harvey is confessedly a shark on Bishop and Pomeroy. Brown, R. E., and Chevalier also spent a large part of the summer in this quiet little town.

Mahoney, Sale, Swearingen, Bridges, and Lemon, between whom and their degrees stood only one examination, were successful in passing this examination last July, when they were given a special. This will add five names to the roll of the present Senior class.

A preliminary meeting of the Bradford Law Debating Society was held in Professor Long's lecture room on Wednesday, Professor Vance assuming the temporary and permanent chairmanship. It was decided to hold the weekly meetings of this important organization on Thursday, at 8 p. m. It was also determined to have a new constitution drawn up, a committee being appointed by the chairman for that purpose. The Senior class held a short meeting on the same day, in which the following officers were elected for the present session: Stuart Chevalier, Kentucky, president; G. D. Moore, West Virginia, vice-president; G. C. Gibbs, Florida, secretary and treasurer.

Personals

The Misses Butler, of Little Rock, are at Mrs. Cole's.

Dr. Parker Willis, after a brief visit here, has returned to Washington.

Miss Vance, of Kentucky, is the guest of her brother, Professor W. R. Vance.

Miss Nellie Dunlap, of Roanoke, will make her home in Lexington during the fall.

Knipmeyer having read everything in the law library during the summer, left for Missouri last week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Veech, after a short stay with Col. Ross and family, have returned to their home near Louisville, Ky.

Miss Helen Savage, of Rahway, N. J., and Miss Evy McGuire, of Winchester, have been visiting Miss Rosa Tucker at "Col Alto."

"Jake" Armistead and Dewey Cooke came up from Lynchburg yesterday evening, the former returning this morning. Cooke, who is representing one of the finest merchant tailoring establishments in this section, will stay over till Tuesday in the interests of his firm.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. H. A. White, after spending a week in Lexington from their summer vacation, left last week for Columbia, S. C., where Dr. White will assume his duties as professor in the Columbia Presbyterian Theological Seminary. In addition to his professorship in the Seminary, Dr. White expects to devote considerable of his time to literary work.

The Law Class of 1902

The senior men of last year, so far as we have been able to hear, are doing remarkably well. Abernathy has associated himself with the Central Trust Company of Kansas City. Beauregard has hung out his sign in Norfolk, and Breckenridge has done the same thing in New York. Bridges, Swearingen and Tucker expect to take a special course in law at Harvard this year. Eckles is engaged with one of the busiest lawyers in Norfolk, Judge Edward Spalding. Jack King has formed a partnership with Judge Benjamin F. Lidon, a former Chief Justice of the supreme court of Florida. Preston took a summer course in law at Chapel Hill, and expects to locate shortly in the beautiful little town of Charlotte. Sale has decided to carry the law into the most lawless part of Kentucky. If still alive he may be reached by letter at Pikeville, Ky. Tuten is practicing in Tampa. At least he has rented a law office at that place. McCoy is reported to have formed a very good partnership in West Virginia. Wall has decided to seek his fortune and that of his clients in the far West. He will no doubt be one of the leaders at the bar of Seattle in the course of a few years. Wilson is reported to have had a successful experience with a whiskey case in Florida, not only winning his case, but sending the prosecuting witness to the penitentiary for five years.
