Great Class Meeting

Possibly the most important class meeting ever held since the foundation of this venerable institution more than a century ago was held last Thursday night in the lecture room of Professor Vance. Its influence is destined to be felt as long as these old classic walls and the rock-ribbed hills around us shall endure. When future generations of students shall turn back the faded pages of college history to the era in which we live, they will find emblazoned on those pages in resplendent letters of gold the name of Thomas Ball, the heroic leader of great student movements for reform, the courageous opponent of all shapes and descriptions of tyrannical oppression and fraud.

Though it may be a little premature to publish an account of this meeting at so early a day, yet as it is important that the Muse of History should get the thing straight, we will endeavor while the stirring events are still fresh in the memory of man to preserve a short record thereof in the columns of the RING-TUM PHI.

It has long been felt that the Faculty of the Law School have been overburdening the young minds entrusted to their care with an unnecessary amount of legal reading, so great an amount indeed that it is practically impossible for an ordinary brain to stand the tremendous strain imposed upon it. Assignments after assignments have been multiplied in heartless succession, until the cases we had to read were piled up as "Thick as autumn leaves that strew

the brooks
in Vallombrosa."

We were all painfully conscious of the existing abuse, but no one seemed wise enough or brave enough to suggest a remedy until a short time ago, when Mr. Ball arrived in Lexington and a cure was suggested which is likely to be radical and lasting in its effects. The plan proposed was no less than a formal petition addressed to the Faculty of the Law School, urgently requesting that only two cases be assigned each day in each class, and that on Thursday the Law School be excused from the reading of any cases at all!!

It would be beyond the power of human pen to describe the effect which the reading of this petition had upon the assembled body of Law students last Thursday night. Great cheers of approval shook the Law building to its very foundations. Men jumped upon the benches, threw their hats at one another and the chairs into the air; and sometimes, carried away by the intoxication of enthusiasm, they threw their hats into the air and the chairs at one another. In eloquent words, Mr. Ball pictured the pit-falls and dangers whereby the Faculty sought to entrap the unwary traveler along the legal road as he wondered towards the beacon lights of fame and honor. He demonstrated how oblivious the members of the Faculty seem to be of the fact that a day has only twenty-four hours, and that six of these hours are devoted to nocturnal slumbers. The scenes which followed upon these preliminary matters are such as are to be witnessed and not described.

After what had preceded, the subsequent events seemed only an inevitable sequence. Mr. Harvey arose and in one of the most eloquent speeches which the writer at least has ever heard, nominated Mr. Ball, "that great Virginian and unflinching advocate of student rights" for the august honor of President of the united classes of the Law School of Washington and Lee University!!!

"At which the universal host up sent
A shout that tore Hell's concave, and beyond Frightened the reign of Chaos and old Night."

One speaker after another followed in rapid succession to second the nomination, and their flowing periods were often punctuated with prolonged applause. Some one had the temerity to nominate Mr. Hardy for the same office, but the suggestion was hooted down in short order. Mr. Ball was then escorted to the Chair from whence he delivered an inaugural address to which we could not do justice by attempting to give "in substance." Suffice it to say that it will be one of the pleasant memories of those who were present last Thursday night, as indeed will be the whole meeting.

After the closing words of the speech, the whole body of his admiring fellow-classmen rushed upon the platform like a mighty wave of the sea, and with strong arms raised the newly elected President of the Law School high upon their shoulders and so carried him in exultant glee from one end of the building to the other.

After matters had again assumed normal quiet, the President resumed the chair and proceeded to consider the petition and invite suggestions with reference to it. (But perhaps your correspondent had better stop at this point, lest he reveal the secret councils of this momentous gathering.) Possibly some reader of these lines will think of that old Latin maxim and see some hidden meaning therein: Sic transit gloria mundi. The path of glory leads but to the grave.

Gymnasium Work

Dr. Wertenbaker has given notice that all who wish to enter the gymnasium class as candidates for the point offered in this course, should hand in their names. From a general view-point, this class is the best opportunity that can be obtained at the University, for symmetrical development, and for keeping in good physical trim.

Only a few men are physically qualified to play football, many think that they have not the time for tennis or rowing; but everybody can take this course. Broadly speaking, the point offered is a matter of small consideration, but the fact that it is offered may serve as an additional inducement.

For those who aspire to athletic honors in the gymnasium exhibition and field athletics, now is the time to begin. The laurels in these events come as a result of hard, patient, persevering work.

For the benefit of the new men, it may be said that the gymnasium exhibition is held during the latter half of the session, and is quite an event. A cup is given to the best all around man, and to winners in the other events. Field-day exercises were inaugurated last year with considerable success. A holiday in the Spring is set apart for this purpose by the faculty.

Sour Grapes

It seems that the V. P. I. derived no little amusement from the fact that we considered our recent victory in Lynchburg as a defeat of their team.

We had thought in our ignorance that the game was a regular association game, but we find that it was a mere "practice game." Now, we are not exactly sure that we rightly understand what is meant by a "practice game," but the effect in this case seems to be that the game, so far as V. P. I. is concerned, does not count on the season's record.

We suppose that it is the loser's privilege to consider all games played early in the season as "practice games," and thereby escape all the discredit of defeat. Washington and Lee has been laboring under the delusion that she was defeated in an association game by the University of Va., but, of course, as that game was played sometime before the V. P. I. game, it is our privilege to disregard it, as it could be considered nothing more than a "practice game."

Perhaps, though, the true reason why V. P. I. will not honor us by regarding their little encounter with us as a regular game, is because, as they say, we never scored on them before. We confess, we can't see the force of this argument, but out of mere curiosity, we have looked up the record of our football games with them in the past and we have noticed these things: that, as V. P. I. claims, she has always defeated us, and that we were so unsophisticated as to regard all of our defeats as regular games; and the last thing we noticed is that nowhere in the record does it appear that when the bitter pill of defeat was tickling our palates, did Washington and Lee refuse to swallow the dose.

While our teams in the past may not often have learned the secret of success, they at least knew how to take defeat, and V. P. I. might do well to profit by their example.

The Battle Monument for the V. M. I. will be placed in front of the Jackson Memorial Arch. It is expected that it will be completed and placed in position by May 1, next, and the unveiling will occur during the commencement exercises.

Baseball Manager

At the meeting of the Athletic Committee last Saturday, Mr. A. Tabb, of Kentucky, was unanimously elected manager of the baseball team for the coming season.

There is certainly the talent in the University necessary for the foundation of a first-class glee club, and some one should take the initiative in getting all the musically endowed together for the purpose of organization. Aside from the pleasure to be derived by the members in coming together, a number of pleasant trips might be arranged which would furnish as good an advertisement for the University as the playing of a football or baseball team.

The Alligator State Aggregation

The second regular meeting of the Florida club was held last Monday night in the rooms of Mr. O. T. Jones, at the "Blue Hotel." The meeting was called to order by President Gibbs, and the usual routine of business transacted until about ten o'clock, after which the regular meeting was adjourned and the members invited to participate in an elegant repast prepared for them by the committee on entertainment, Messrs. Gibbs, Jones, and Brown, R. E. Everything in the way of good things that could be desired, was furnished by the hosts, and nothing was left undone which could in any way add to the comfort of their guests.

After everything in sight had been consumed, and while seated around the table, the assemblage was favored by a few remarks from Mr. Howell, in his own peculiar style, which everyone present seemed to enjoy thoroughly. Mr. Henderson then spoke of "The deleterious effects of procrastination," and impressed upon those present the necessity of improving every moment of their time, while in college.

Mr. McKay made an interesting talk on "The success of Florida boys at Washington and Lee," and implored those present to keep up the enviable record made by their predecessors.

The last number on the program was a selection by Mr. M. M. Brown, in the form of a funny (?) story of his own manufacture. The length of the story, according to the clock, was thirty-five minutes, during which time he held his hearers "spellbound," but as soon as they were released from the "spell," as one man they arose and moved to adjourn. The next meeting will be held at the apartments of Messrs. Howell and Yarbrough, at the home of Major Houston, on the first Monday after the 15th of November.

Condition of the Y. M. C. A.

The regular Fall business meeting of the Y. M. C. A. was held on Friday night of last week. Reports were read by the chairmen of all committees. The report of the secretary showed a total membership of 90 men. The meetings thus far, as reported by the chairman of the devotional committee, have been planned as directed by the Ashville conference. There has been an average attendance of forty-five upon these meetings. Both the Bible-study and mission classes are now in a progressive state. The general aspect of the Association is encouraging. Still let it be our aim to promote in a straight-forward, open, yet unassuming way that part of the devotional work of this University that is placed in our hands.

The meeting Sunday afternoon was lead by Mr. Wallace. The usual song and prayer service characterized its opening. An excellent address was then given by the Rev. Dr. Hines, of Portsmouth. He made a character analysis of Absalom during the period of his rebellion against David, especially emphasizing two conspicuous traits, rejection and action. With the character thus delineated, he drew from it practical and appropriate conclusions. Inwardly, a man should restrain an undue pride and an unrighteous ambition; outwardly, he should guard against intemperance and worldly amusements.

Dr. Wertenbaker has returned from a short visit to his old Alma Mater.

McNulty has been sick for several days, but is able to be out again.

The Team

Physical strength and weight are necessary attributes to a football team, but something else, and a very important something must be associated with these.

Each man has a position to play and the success of the whole is dependent upon the successful work of the several parts. In both there is offensive and defensive playing, man for man, and something for each one to do in each play.

Before criticizing the individual members of the 'Varsity team of '02, it is but just to say that each and every one is playing with more pluck and vim and with greater zeal and interest than has been seen here for some time.

Smith is playing in better form this year than last, which ought to be enough said. In defensive work he lets nothing go around his end, and in offensive work he is fast with the ball and always on hand to help in every play.

Ross and Dawson are both playing a good game at end. They are sure at tackling and both run well with the ball. Ross has weight and is a valuable man in other positions.

Smiley and Meredith are also strong and sure men, and always do good work when called upon.

Trundle and McNeill are both good tackles and don't allow any ground to be gained over them. They are good ground-gainers and get in the interference well, but could improve in defensive work.

Judy, Sterrett, Miller and Cunningham have shown up well. Sterrett has had experience and is better now than he was before. Judy, Miller and Cunningham are new men, but have weight and strength and are doing well.

Stone is a tower of strength at center. He passes the ball well and plays excellently in defensive work.

Campbell and Marshall are both good quarter-backs. Campbell is excellent in defensive work though Marshall handles the ball well and manages the team well in offensive work. Campbell runs well with the ball and is a sure tackle, being also a valuable man at halfback.

Haw has improved in many respects. He carries the ball for gains and supports the man with the ball well.

Walker at full is playing a good game. He bucks the line with force and does good work at interference. He has also improved in punting.

Alexander has not been out long but he understands the game and is very swift. He will make a good man behind the line.

Dotson and Harle run well with the ball, but need improvement in their defensive work.

Masterson is showing up well for quarter. He handles the ball nicely and is very swift.

Great credit is due the second team men and material for future use is visible. Boogher as leader with Reard, McClung, Jones, Kelly, Quisenberry, Tabb, Thomson, Neel, Caperton, and others are doing good work.

The Ball

(Communicated)

The recent election of the Final Ball president calls to mind several important suggestions.

Bagley is undoubtedly a splendid man for the place and this is the first step toward having a successful ball. The second step is to raise the money for good music, decorations and supper. The third, and most important of all is to have pretty women to enjoy and to be enjoyed.

Now let an old observer suggest that right now you make your subscription to the Ball fund. You have more money and fewer needs now than in the Spring, and if you pay it now, by the Spring you will not miss it, and that is the time when every cent counts. Rise to the occasion and make your contribution as liberal as possible. This is practically the only money the President has to defray the expenses of the ball. Don't let anybody say you are close, especially where your own pleasure is concerned.

We take it for granted that you have at heart the success of the Ball, and are looking forward to the Finals as the end of a horrid grind.

"A pretty woman is the noblest work of God." I believe somebody once said something like that, and every one of us knows at least one pretty woman. If she is not pretty, we think she is. Be sure that she is here for the Finals. The way you can arrange this is to go to work on her card immediately. Let her have it as soon as possible and remove every objection to her coming.

To those who do not dance we would say that the dancing class will be started within a week. This is the best time to learn. The dancing class is an informal dance and great fun. Get in the game.

Athletic Committee Meeting

At a recent meeting of the Athletic Executive Committee, the question of the wearing of the University monogram was acted on and those entitled to wear it are as follows: from the football department, sixteen, including the manager of the team; from the baseball department, thirteen, including the manager; from the boating clubs, the crews and coxwain of both clubs; winner of the all-around track medal; winner of the all-around gym. medal; winners of doubles and winner of singles, in tennis tournament; winners of any event in inter-collegiate track athletic meet.

A further condition imposed on those from the football and baseball departments is that they must have played in at least one inter-collegiate game. It will be decided who shall wear these monograms after each season has been ended, by the Athletic Executive Committee, aided by the captains of the respective teams. The said body will make their report and the recipients will be given their monograms at the first morning assembly in chapel, following the close of the season.

Complicated Domestic Relations

Richard Colman Massey, aged seventy-one years, was married today to Miss Pearl Odom, aged nineteen years. The bride is the step-grand-daughter of the groom, Mr. Massey's son having married the bride's mother.

As the bride was not of age, it was necessary to secure the consent of her parents, and Massey's son had to give his official consent before his father could marry. The groom's son, by virtue of being the girl's step-father, gave her away to his own father at the wedding ceremony.

The elder Massey, by marriage to Miss Odom, becomes the son-in-law of his own son and thus his own grandson, while the younger Massey becomes his father's father-in-law, or his own grandfather. The bride becomes her own grandmother and the older woman is her own granddaughter.—Exchange.

Law Notes

With Gibbs and Harvey as counsel and Howell as a member of the court, an interesting debate was assured for last Thursday night. The question for discussion was rather technical and consequently not as many Juniors as usual came in on the voluntary debates. The English case of Cundy against Lindsey, involving a question of fraud and mistake was the subject of discussion. The facts are rather too long to give in detail. Briefly, it was a question whether an indefeasible title to goods can be passed to a bona fide purchaser by one who has acquired the goods from the manufacturers, by fraudulently assuming the name of a well-known and reputable firm and addressing an order to the manufacturers signed by such a name. This suit was brought by the manufacturers against the innocent purchaser, so that the court had to decide which of two innocent parties must suffer for the fraud of another. Gibbs and Crockett represented the purchaser, and though the law was plainly against them, both the speakers made out a strong case, and acquitted themselves very well indeed. Harvey made a beautiful argument on the other side, but was unable to develop his case fully during the short time allowed each speaker. His Junior partner, Mr. Cromer, also made a good speech. If any criticism might be ventured on the debate, it would be that suggested by the chairman that an unnecessary portion of the time was consumed in discussing points admitted by both sides and matters of generally accepted law. The point at issue was whether there was a contract in this particular case, or not. Professor Vance pointed out in his opinion that no such contract existed, as the manufacturers intended to contract with the reputable firm, and not with the fraudulent author of the written order.

The following opinion of Justice Howell should be preserved as a valuable contribution to the anthology of the University:

Messrs. Gibbs and Crockett, though not quite right, Brought forth many plaudits of delight.

The argument of tonight will be made famous by story and song, Though I must confess they are in the wrong.

Messrs. Cromer and Harvey covered the ground; Crockett made a star punt, Harvey a touchdown.

Therefore stand the question as it be, With the Chief Justice I do agree.

Jenkins was called home Sunday by the sudden death of his father.

Graham-Lee

More interest is being manifested and harder work is being done in the Graham-Lee Society this session than for many years. The men seem to have entered into the work of the society with the idea of obtaining every possible benefit in it. At the last meeting, Mr. Howell, of Florida, was elected to membership.

A well-prepared oration was delivered by Mr. Schaffer, in which he sought to defend the character and actions of the unfortunate Mary of Scotland. Mr. Moffett declaimed Poe's "Leonore."

The debate was on the question of restricting immigration, and a living interest was put into this hoary-headed proposition by the speakers. Among the speakers on the affirmative, were Messrs. Blain and Steves, while Messrs. Howell and Pilkington appeared on the negative. The negative won.
