Now that the schedule has been completed, I take this opportunity of putting before the student body in general the necessity of support to both the management and the team. If a sufficient number of season tickets can be sold, the price of them will be exceedingly small, and I trust that this can be accomplished for it will bring large crowds to the games and arouse the true College Spirit and enthusiasm which will cheer our team on to victory. There will be 20 games on our home grounds.

Season tickets will sell for $5.00 if 250 of them can be sold. A paper will be circulated next week and is hoped that every man that can possibly do so, will sign for a ticket.

The schedule has not as yet been approved by the Faculty and its approval depends largely upon the number of season tickets signed for. The faculty will do its part if the students will do their's.

From what I can understand from Captain Trimble and Coach Brown, the material this year is better than ever before and the fastest team that ever represented Washington & Lee is anticipated.

I trust that each man will give this matter his careful consideration and, when seen, sign for a season ticket. Then come to every game and give the team the support that is due it.

L. A. TOMS.

Not a Gift

It is the understanding of almost the entire student body that the Dormitory, as such, was given to the University by Mrs. Susan P. Lees; but such, we learn, is not the case. For some time prior to the erection of the building the Board of Trustees had been discussing the advisability of putting up a dormitory; they reached their decision when it was learned that Mrs. Lees had made a bequest of $30,000 to Washington and Lee and work on the building was begun at once. In making this bequest Mrs. Lees did not state how the money should be used but left that matter entirely in the hands of the college authorities. On account of some intricate process of law the Lees bequest has as yet not been handed over to the University. The fact in the case is that the dormitory was built by the University purely as a business adventure and not to supply to the students a means of obtaining cheap room rent.

Student Committee Suggested

Editor of Ring Tum Phi:

In reading the different suggestions offered concerning the management of your paper, I am reminded of the saying: "Men's judgments are like their watches—none exactly right, yet each believes his own." Thus it is that I honestly find fault with both the plans given in your columns.

As to allowing the officers of the athletic association to elect your staff; that is not to be thought of. Your very motto forbids it. How could you expect to have free speech when the faculty can control three of the five votes of that body. Whilst we believe there is more danger of the editor's failure to be outspoken from policy's sake than of the direct censorship of the faculty, still there is danger in it.

The article on the same subject in last week's issue deserves much praise and due consideration. Theoretically it is admirable and the writer says it has been shown to be practical. However, it has a few weak points, though some of them could be easily remedied. Such for example as the omission of representatives from the Engineering school, and no provision made whereby a lawyer may serve as editor-in-chief since it is declared that it must be his third year in college.

But there are more serious objections. Would there be any assurance that the board of editors would be congenial or even active? Should not the Editor-in-chief choose his own assistants that he may make changes if found necessary. Then too, is the freshman, who by his very importunity perhaps, secures the most subscriptions, necessarily the best candidate for the management? He may be, but it does not follow that he is.

My plan is simplicity itself. You have a student committee of eleven men representing the entire student body. Let it choose the Editor-in-chief and business manager and they in turn appoint their assistants. I would suggest that this committee receive and consider recommendations from the retiring board.

If you desire to consider my suggestions further, I would be glad to work out a plan in detail.

ALUMNUS

Colonel Robert E. Lee, Jr., of Fairfax, has accepted an invitation to deliver the alumni address at Washington & Lee at the approaching Commencement in June.

Graham-Lee

With President Flannagan in the chair the society was called to order. After the reading of the minutes Mr. C. N. Hobson delivered an oration. Mr. Herzog then gave the society a voluntary oration. The regularly appointed declaimers being absent, Messrs. Desha and Leech delivered very interesting voluntary declamations.

The debate was then called: Resolved, That the United States should establish free trade with the Philippine Islands. The affirmative champions were Messrs. Michler and Pilkington, C. R., while the negative was defended by Messrs. Benson and Staples, A. P. Voluntary arguments were heard from Messrs. Houser and Jones. The decision was given to the affirmative.

After the debate a committee was appointed to consider revision of the constitution and report the following Saturday.

President Flannagan made the following appointments:

Secretary, Mr. Benson.

Critic, Mr. Bandy.

Censor, Mr. Hobson, J. P.

Committee on Questions, Messrs. Larrick, Leech and Keebler.

ESMERALDA

The Wash Society

The Wash met in regular session Feb. 10, with President Light in the chair. The minutes of the previous meeting were then read and approved. As the declaimer and orators were absent, extemporary speeches were in order. We then took up the debate: Resolved, that England should colonize her poor. Mr. Baker opened the debate with a well prepared speech. He was followed by Messrs. Hooper, Hardy, Wisman, MacDonald, Synor, Larrick, Koontz, Mayer, and Light. The discussion was quite interesting and the affirmative were victorious. Other matters of business were then considered, and especially the communication concerning the Buena Vista girls. The acceptance of the invitation to our celebration of the 22nd, was greeted with great applause and the meeting adjourned with all in a happy mood.

Rev. Dr. Richard Mellwaine of Prince Edward, former president of Hampden Sidney college, was an interesting visitor in Lexington Friday. He is traveling in order to promote interest in the Jamestown exposition.

Manager Toms certainly deserves great praise for the excellent baseball schedule he has arranged for us. It is by far the best one we have had. He has done his part; the team is going to do their—but is the student body going to do its? That is the question now. The faculty is not going to allow us to play 30 games; all but two of which are with good schools; unless the students show that they are going to do their part. Now we have a chance of showing it. Manager Toms has offered to sell season tickets for $5.00, which is exceedingly cheap, if 250 students will subscribe. If we subscribe for those 250 tickets it will insure not only that the team will be supported financially, but that there will be a crowd to see every game and the team will then be given the other kind of support which is necessary if we want them to win. Students its up to you.

We stated in one last issue that if it was Mrs. Lee's purpose in giving the dormitory to supply the university with a source of revenue that no one had any kick coming about the rates charged. Since it develops that the dormitory was put up by the university itself; and a business investment, the same thing would hold good and we have no more to say about the room-rent being too high. Just give us enough hot water and try to improve the electric light and everyone will be satisfied.

At a recent meeting of the Senior Academic and Senior Engineering classes in joint session, Mr. B. M. Manly was elected Valedictorian and the class is sure to be well represented.

A banquet was decided on for the night of Feb. 22nd, after the Wash. celebration.

The curtain rises at 8.30.

Florida Men Banquet

One of the swellest affairs of the year occurred when the Florida Club assembled at the University Inn last Tuesday night in response to an invitation extended them by Messrs. Durrance and Diamond.

At 10:30 p. m. President Herzog called the meeting to order and in a few brief remarks Messrs. Durrance and Diamond welcomed the 'gators to their glorious midnight feast.

President A. L. Herzog then spoke of "Florida," and in a few moments had all the boys homesick for their dear old sunny state. Secretary M. Caraballo, in an interesting manner, told of the happenings of the "Club" for the past year. A nine-course supper lasted some time, and in order to keep things interesting President Herzog was continually calling on those present for a toast.

B. R. Walzer spoke of the work of Florida men at Washington and Lee, and when he finished it appeared to the Club that they were really the only ones at the University. After the seventh course DeVane seemed to think that we needed to be reminded that we were still 'gators from the piney woods of Florida and should stand by our own state on all occasions.

It was in the midst of the eighth course when May arose and said one subject had been forgotten, and that was the "femme soles" of Virginia. From his "spiel" we took it for granted that he was talking from experience. Vice-President Sapp followed Mr. May, his subject being "femme soles" of Florida, but his words causing Mr. Givens to fall backwards and having the peculiar effect of bringing tears to Mr. Collins' eyes Mr. Sapp thought it best to stop.

Messrs. Minnetree and Bagley being guests of honor both expressed in a few well-chosen words their appreciation of the invitation. Both of them, being good fellows, added greatly to the occasion.

President Herzog then asked that the men divert their attention from the joyous features of the evening and requested the secretary to publish in the minutes of the meeting our heartfelt sympathy for our comrade, Mr. J. Long, who was called away from college on account of the death of his father.

After the last course cigars and wet water were handed around until "jocond day stood tiptoe on the misty mountain top," and realizing that lectures would soon begin, one long Florida yell was given and the men silently stole away.

Chess matches are also pending with George Washington and Washington and Lee—College Topics.

Make arrangements now to see Esmeralda next Friday evening.

Mr. Shipman, of New York, addressed the regular meeting of the association last Sunday afternoon. He pointed out that co-operation is the condition of our being, progress and ultimate salvation. We see its importance in the independence of the organs of the individual. In the family the value of co-operation is still more evident; and communities, states and nations are prosperous and progressive only so far as they observe the fundamental law of co-operation. In recognition of the importance of this law, Universities and Churches have been founded and successfully run. And finally the Young Men's Christian Association is founded on the same principle. The speaker then referred to the great work which the association is doing and the opportunities which lie before it for still greater work.

Dr. Stevens on Development of Modern Airships.

An interesting and instructive lecture was given last night in the chapel by Dr. W. LeConte Stevens on the Development of the Modern Airship.

Beginning with the earliest attempts at ballooning in the latter half of the 18th century, he traced the gradual development of aerial navigation up to the present time. The most successful and practical of which is that of Santos Dumont. Besides giving an account of all the most noteworthy attempts at ballooning, Dr. Stevens gave character sketches and reminiscences of many of the prominent promoters of aerial navigation. An enjoyable feature of the lecture was the lantern views, which illustrated various stages of the development of the airship. These are a good history of balloon in themselves as they form in almost a complete series an illustration of most of the attempts at ballooning and show vividly the perils of such experiments. Dr. Stevens predicted that the airship would never become a successful agent for transportation but yet believed that it would be perfected to a much higher degree of efficiency in the next decade. This he thought would be largely due to the Aerial Club of America, which was organized a year or two ago.

There was not as large an audience out to hear the lecture as should have been. The proceeds are for the Boat Clubs.
