THAT WASHINGTON ALUMNI BANQUET.

Association Holds Rally in Honor of President Emeritus—Prominent Alumni Present—Dr. Willis Makes Great Speech.

Unable to resist the call of the past clamoring for recognition by those who have passed through the halls of the old university and out into the world, carrying with them the spirit of the Father of the nation and of the south's most honored leader, senators, representatives, members of the judiciary, and men prominent in all walks of life assembled at the Shoreham Hotel in the national capital on Tuesday night, March 15, to pay tribute to their alma mater and to live over again their college days, which for some gathered there had receded far into the past. Members of the classes of the fifties and early seventies mingled freely, the barriers of age cast down, with the boys who have, but recently left the shadows of the campus, sounding in enthusiastic utterances the praises of the old institution.

After a short business meeting of the Association, the members assembled in the banquet hall, where President Thom continued his address in which he outlined the purpose of the organization to put into operation a system of active alumni participation in the affairs of the university, to be carried out through a board of alumni trustees, modeled on a plan which has been adopted by the alumni of John's-Hopkins University and Harvard. President Thom forcibly stated that a more effective interest on the part of the Alumni of Washington and Lee is essential to insure its future prosperity and to preserve its ancient standards. Concluding his address of welcome, President Thom proposed the toast to Gen. G. W. C. Lee, the president emeritus of the university, in whose honor the banquet was given, and then introduced the toastmaster, Col. Robert E.

W. & L. OPENS BASE-BALL SEASON AT WILSON FIELD

The White and Blue Wins From Holy Cross and Rutgers College in First Two Games of Season—Lose Two Straights to Swarthmore in Comedy of Errors—Moran and Eford Pitching Great Ball.

Washington and Lee opened the baseball season on March 26 in a pretty game on Wilson Field with Holy Cross, the varsity winning from the visitors by a score of 6 to 5. The second game of the season was played on March 28, when the White and Blue won from Rutgers College by a score of 3 to 2. In the two games with Swarthmore the visitors won the first in a one-sided contest by a score of 7 to 0, while in a more evenly matched game they won the second by a score of 4 to 1.

Chapter 1.

In a pitchers' battle between Moran and Maloney, in which the former was the stronger, Washington and Lee defeated Holy Cross 6 to 5 in the opening game of the varsity's season. Although Moran had the misfortune to hit six opposing batsmen, he was in far better form than Maloney, and pulled himself out of some bad holes. It was the opportune hitting of Webster and Waddill which won for the locals.

Holy Cross tallied first in the second inning when Moran hit two men and, after Erwin's error, Craig drew a pass, forcing Burns over the plate. The locals evened up when Stras walked, stole second and scored on Brown's single. In the fourth Holy Cross added three, but in the sixth chapter Washington and Lee sewed it up when Webster hit for three sacks and tallied on a wild heave. Waddill doubled and came home on an error, and Brown scored. In the seventh Moran singled, went to second on an error, and tallied when Erwin smashed a double into left garden. At this stage Foley was substituted for Maloney, and Spaiden went behind the bat. Maloney was safe in the ninth on Foreman's error and Eford's failure to field Wayland's bunt put Maloney on second. He tallied on Flynn's single. In her half of this chapter Washington and Lee won the game when Waddill doubled and scored on Captain Stras' sacrifice.

Flynn's heavy hitting and Foley's pitching featured for Holy Cross. Captain Stras covered the first sack in good form and Waddill did some pretty fielding when he went back to the fence for two long flies.

Chapter 2.

Washington and Lee defeated Rutgers College 3 to 2 in a listless game. "Jap" Eford was on the firing line for the varsity and with better support should have registered a shut-out. The Fishburne boy was in fine form, fanning twelve men and allowing only nineteen batsmen to face him during the first six innings.

The inability of the locals to hit the ball safely and Rutgers'

CATALOGUE FOR 1910 OUT.

Several Important Changes—Sixty Point System Adopted—No Thesis Required for B. A. Degree as Heretofore.

A comparison of the new university catalog, which has recently appeared, with that of the previous year, shows several important changes. The chief of these are the establishment of the sixty-point system, and the addition of the McDowell scholarship.

With regard to the latter, the catalog states: "By a bequest of Mrs. Mary B. Ross the university has $5,000 to establish a scholarship in memory of her father, James McDowell, formerly Governor of Virginia. This is to be known as the James McDowell scholarship.

Under the head of advanced entrance the following paragraph is added: "A student may be assigned conditionally to an advanced class by a professor, and if he successfully completes the work of the higher class, he may at the discretion of the professor be given credit for the work of the lower class."

The chief change is in the establishment of the sixty-point system. Instead of requiring sixty-six points for the B. A. and B. S. degrees as formerly, the two points given for gymnasium work are abolished, and sixty academic points required, fifteen being required from each of the three groups for the B. A. degree, and fifteen points optional.

Instead of assigning an arbitrary number of points to each study separately, as heretofore, each course of study during a single annual session is to have an assigned numerical value in points equal to the number of hours the class meets each week during the year. In laboratory work two and a half hours is counted as one hour of class-room work. Thus, Latin 1, formerly valued at four points, will in the future, since it meets five times a week, be valued at five; while Latin 3, formerly valued at six points, will in future count as only three points.

In group three, instead of requiring four points from mathematics, and ten from the other subjects in the group, three will be required to be taken in mathematics, and nine in the other subjects of the group.

The bachelor of science degree is under the same regulations as heretofore, except that sixty points are required, and for the two degrees, B. S. and B. A., eighty-one points are required, instead of ninety.

Eighty-one points are required for the degree of Master of Arts, twenty from each of the three groups, and twenty-one optional, instead of twenty-two required and twenty-four optional, respectively, as formerly required.

These are no longer required of applicants for the bachelor of arts degree, although still required of applicants for the B. S. and M. A. degrees.

Students entering the university for the first time on or after September 15, 1910, will have their credits measured by the sixty-point system, while other students will have the choice between the new method of valuation and the old method.

A schedule of examinations is added, to be held the first five days of the session, September 15-20, 1910, for the removal of conditions incurred at previous regular examinations and for admission to advanced standing.

According to the new catalog the class in Latin 2 will meet an extra hour each week in future sessions the hour to be determined after the organization of the class.

WRITE THEM A LETTER.

Don't go to the theatre, concert or ball,

But stay in your room tonight,
Deny yourself to the friends that call

And a good long letter write.
Write to the sad old folks at
home,

Who sit, when the day is done,
With folded hands and down-
cast eyes,

And think of the absent one.

Don't selfishly scribble, "excuse my haste,
I've scarcely got time to write."

Lest their brooding thoughts go wandering back

To many a bygone night—

When they lost their needed
sleep and rest,

And every breath was a prayer,
That God would leave their delicate babe

To their tender love and care.

Don't think that the young and giddy friends,

Who make your pastime gay,
Have half the anxious thought for you

That the old folks have today.
The duty of writing do not put off;

Let sleep or pleasure wait,
Lest the letter for which they looked and longed,
Be a day or an hour too late.

For the loving, sad old folks at
home

With locks fast turning white,
Are longing to hear from the absent one—

Write them a letter tonight.

WASHINGTON LITERARY SOCIETY.

Officers for the Johns-Hopkins Debate Chosen—Kaylor President.

At a joint session held between the two literary societies the following officers were chosen to officiate in the Johns-Hopkins debate on April 23:
O. T. Kaylor, president.
C. O. Dunn, vice-president.
R. W. Alley, secretary.
Claude Smith, chief-marshal.
After the adjournment of the joint session the society proceeded with its regular program. President-elect Pence made his inaugural address, in which he lamented the lack of interest shown in the society work by a large number of the members and hoped that those dormant members would help him make his administration a success. President Pence was followed by ex-President Potter, who made his retiring address, in which he expressed his gratitude towards those who helped him make the past administration a successful one. Owing to the small attendance due to recent exams. only part of the program was performed.

Mr. Sacks delivered a declaration on the “Unveiling of the Statue of John Marshall.”

(Alfred B. Mackay, in Smart Set.)

“What are the trumps of life?”
“Hearts,” said the maiden fair;
“For sweetheart, maid or wife
Love is beyond compare.”

“No,” said the heartless flirt,
“Diamonds the trump shall be;
Hearts are as cheap as dirt;
Give wealth and power to me.

“No,” said the man blase,
“Clubs are the trumps we want;
Such gands for the young and gay,
But clubs for the bon vivant.”

Then the gravedigger said,
“Vainities soon are past;
The earth shall be your bed,
And spades must win at last!”

We are always glad to publish any communication that may be handed to us, but we desire to state that we will not be responsible for sentiment expressed.

We also desire to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published. Those who do not desire their names published should add a pen name and their wishes will be complied with.

JEERING.

In the last issue of the Ring-tum Phi we published a brief editorial under the caption of "Athletic Courtesy," in which we appealed to the rooters "to root for our team and not at our opponents." But in the very first game of the season a few—and we are glad to say few—would-be rooters violated the code of courtesy and were found guilty of making personal and jeering remarks towards the visiting team. We do not mean to pose as a dictator and say that our appeals must be complied with, but we do know that any degree of discourtesy to our guests is discountenanced by the student body as a whole. Personal and jeering remarks do not help our own team to win, but casts a reflection upon the whole student body and makes a bad impression with our visitors. We are of the opinion that "A good name is rather to be chosen than many victories," and urge the better element of the student body to exert itself and do all in its power in the future to suppress any unnecessary remark or act of discourtesy that may arise. We think that, when some mealy-mouthed, two-by-four cheap screw bobs up on the side line and begins to jeer at a visitor, it is the duty of the student body to put him down, and the rougher the means the better for the jeerer.

A COLLEGE BORE.

Well, let me see what time it is; my, my, it's half past seven o'clock. All of the boys have quieted down from their usual after-supper gossip. I have "six straights" tomorrow, so the best thing I can do is to get the best thing that I can do is to get busy.

It is eight o'clock now. Well, I am making pretty good progress, and if things hold out this way I shall have my work in shape to make a half dozen tens tomorrow. O, my, but I have a long Latin lesson to prepare tonight. Where is my book? I must get to—

Tap, tap, tap, was the sound on the door.

"Come in, Bill," as squeak went the door, and that familiar and ever present countenance again made its appearance.

"Hello there, boy; looks like you're hard at something. What are you doing, anyway? You don't mean to say that you are studying, do you?"

"Well, I am trying to study a little."

"Did you see the play last night?"

"No, I didn't have the necessary funds."

"Kid, you missed half your life. I borrowed a quarter from Joe Willard and went to the roost, but I enjoyed the play all the same. I see you've got you a new pipe; getting extravagant in your old age. It's a French brier, too, isn't it? Lend me your tobacco, and I will try it for you. Ha, ha ha! Guess you think I got my nerve with me."

"That's all right; help yourself."

Puff! Puff! Puff!

"This is the best smoking new pipe I ever saw. Where did you get it?"

"I got it at Brown's."

"I am sure going to get me one like it."

"I know one thing: I have certainly got some hard lessons for tomorrow."

"I got some hard ones myself, but I don't think I'll be called on tomorrow, so I am not troubling myself about getting them up."

"My, my! Forty pages of geology, and I haven't looked at it."

"By the way, where is the contest going to be at this year? I wish it would go to Columbus, don't you? That's the place for it. What book is that you're fixing to study?"

"Astronomy."

"I have heard lots of talk about astronomy. Is it very hard, and what all does it treat of?"

"About a little of everything."

"What time o' night is it, any way?"

"A quarter of twelve."

"Golly-boss, I had no idea it was after nine. Don't the time fly? I must get to bed or I won't be able to get up for breakfast in the morning. Good night."

"So-long."

O! the gall of some people! That fellow sat here for three hours and a half shooting off his "hot-air" and I have looked at but one book tonight. Some people do not live, they merely exist. I must do something to bring about a change. You can knock that fellow down with a hint and he will not notice it. O, these bores, these bores, these bores! How shall I get rid of these college bores?—Purple and White.

WAS I EVER.

When I see a youth with his pants rolled up,
And his beautiful sox on view,
A little round hat on the back of his head,
With its ribbon of mauve or blue,
With his dear little self decked with rings,
And pins from that dear Prep school,
It strikes a chord, and I say,
Oh, Lord,
Was I ever that big a fool?
When I see a youth with his gloves turned down,
And a cigarette stuck in his face,
A horse-cloth coat and a loud-checked vest,
And a two-inch wide shoe lace,
With a bunch of hair that covers his ears,
And hear his line of senseless drool,
I paw the sward, as I say: "Oh, Lord,
Was I ever that big a fool?"

CHANGES IN FOOTBALL RULES.

Flying Tackle Eliminated—Game Divided into Four Quarters of 15 Minutes Each.

At a recent meeting of the Inter-collegiate Football Rules Committee held in New York six important changes were made in the rules for the popular American game of football, which are calculated to eliminate the dangerous features of the great college sport. The changes are:

1. Removal of the requirement that the player who receives the ball from the snap-back runs five yards to either side before advancing.
2. A requirement that seven men be maintained by the offense on the line of scrimmage.
3. Prohibition of the flying tackle.
4. Division of the game into four periods of fifteen minutes each.
5. No pushing or pulling of the runner to be allowed.
6. A requirement that the ball, in the case of an outside kick must strike the ground at least twenty yards beyond the line of scrimmage, failing which the members of the team kicking the ball are offside.

GRAHAM-LEE ELECTS OFFICERS.

Society Chooses Leaders for Most Important Term of the whole year—Bunch President.

On Saturday evening, April 2, the Graham-Lee Literary Society met in regular session and elected the following officers for the coming term, which begins April 9.

- J. H. Bunch, president.
J. G. Arnold, vice-president.

W. M. Miller, secretary-treasurer.

H. K. Dickinson, reporter to Ring-tum Phi.

This is decidedly the most important election of the whole year since the term runs over into the next session of the university. These officers will guard over the interests of the society for the remainder of the present session and will organize and start the work at the beginning of the next session. The success of Graham-Lee during the coming year depends largely upon the efforts put forth by those at the head of affairs and with such an efficient corps of officers the society is assured a successful session.

A good story is going the rounds about a drummer and a pretty waitress. Here is what happened, according to the report:

The dapper little traveling man glanced at the menu and then looked at the pretty waitress. "Nice day, little one," he began.

"Yes it is," she answered, "and so was yesterday, and my name is Ella, and I know I'm a little peach, and have pretty blue eyes, and I've been here quite a while and like the place, and I don't think I'm too nice a girl to be working in a hotel; if I did I'd quit my job; and my wages are satisfactory; and I don't know if there is a show or dance in town tonight, and if there is I shall not go with you, and I'm from the country, and I'm a respectable girl, and my brother is cook in this hotel, and he weighs two hundred pounds, and last week he wiped up this dining room floor with a fresh $50-a-month traveling men who tried to make a date with me. Now, what'll you have?"

The dapper little traveling man said he was not very hungry, and a cup of coffee and some hot cakes would do.

bunting almost cost the varsity the game.

Andrea did good work on the slab for Rutgers.

Washington and Lee drew first blood. Waddill was safe on an error. Captain Stras walked, and then Waddill and Stras executed a double steal. Gwathmey sent a long fly to left and the fleet-footed Waddill came home.

Rutgers evened up in the seventh session, when Brown's failure to cover first put Sangster on the bag. He went to second on Green's sacrifice hit and tallied when Prentiss singled to right. The locals drew ahead in the same chapter when Simmon's error put Gwathmey on first and Efrd scored him with a triple.

Washington and Lee added another in the eighth, when Webster doubled to left and scored on Simmon's failure to handle Sangster's throw.

Green gave Rutgers another tally in the ninth. He beat out a bunt and reached second on Foreman's failure to take Efrd's throw, and an error by Stras sent Green to third, filling the bases. He scored on Glandring's hit.

Waddill's fielding and base running again featured for the locals, and Sangster did good work at short for Rutgers.

Chapter 3.

Washington and Lee went to pieces and allowed Swarthmore to pile up a 7 to 0 score on them in the first game of the series. The varsity had several good chances to score, but the needed hits were not forthcoming and the clean fielding of the visitors cut off other opportunities.

Gaskill was in fine form for Swarthmore, but was hit on the arm in the seventh. N. Tarble, who replaced him, also worked well.

Efrd was in the box for the varsity and his good pitching was in striking contrast to the poor support given him. He fanned fourteen men and kept the hits well scattered.

Foreman's error in the opening session gave Swarthmore the first tally and in the fourth a couple of singles and three errors added three more runs. In the eighth inning three errors and N. Tarble's triple gave Swarthmore three tallies.

With clean fielding, the visitors should not have scored.

Chapter 4.

Swarthmore captured the second game from Washington and Lee by the score of 4 to 1.

N. Tarble was in the box for the Pennsylvanians and his work was the best seen on Wilson field for several years. He allowed the varsity but one hit, fanning eleven batsmen and issuing only three passes to first. It was the sharp fielding of the team behind him, however, which robbed the locals of more than one hit. Parodes toed the rubber for the varsity, and despite his suffering from a bad arm, the little twirler's work was excellent. Jap Efrd took his place in the seventh, and his pitching was of its usual high order. Witt Efrd starred for the locals by his classy work behind the bat. His throwing was good for a youngster, and he shows great head work. The varsity fielding was better than the day before.

"The little cares that fretted me,
I lost them yesterday
Among the fields above the sea,
Among the winds that play;
Among the lowing of the herds,
The rustling of the trees,
Among the singing of the birds,
The humming of the bees.

"The foolish fears of what might be,
I cast them all away
Among the clover-scented grass,
Among the new-mown hay;
Among the husking of the corn,
Where the drowsy poppies nod,
Where ill thoughts die and good are born,
