President Smith Given Watch as Parting Gift

Student Body Presents Timepiece at Last Assembly Over Which Doctor Smith Will Preside

Declaring him the greatest leader Washington and Lee university has had since the presidency of General Robert E. Lee following the close of the Civil War, the student body of the University today presented President Henry Louis Smith with a green gold jeweled watch at the last University assembly at which Doctor Smith will preside after half a century as an educator.

President Smith will retire to private life December 31. Following the presentation speech by student President Lewis F. Powell, Jr., Richmond, Va., Doctor Smith was accorded an ovation which lasted several minutes. The watch, joint gift of the entire student body, came apparently as a complete surprise to the president who appeared deeply affected. It was inscribed, "To President Henry Louis Smith, in appreciation of seventeen years of untiring service for the student body of Washington and Lee University."

At his last commencement in June, alumni and faculty members gave President Smith a silver service as a parting gift.

President Smith will the last day of this month close his office door for the last time. His resignation, which he was asked to defer until the close of this semester, becomes effective at the end of this calendar year. New Year's Day he will leave for Greensboro, N. C., his birthplace, where he will build a home and devote his time to writing and lecturing. He will also actively manage his orchard properties in North Carolina.

Campaigns to strengthen prohibition and to weaken compulsory military training in American schools and a book on "The Effective Use of English" he has announced as part of his "commencement years after college."

Doctor Smith came to Washington and Lee from the presidency of Davidson College, North Carolina, in 1912. During his administration, scholastic standards have been very greatly raised, the enrollment of the University has grown, departments of study to meet modern demands have been added, the physical plant has been enlarged, the endowment has materially increased, and the curriculum of the school extensively modified.

Specifically, Doremus gymnasium and the Science building have been erected since his installation as president; the biology wing, Graham dormitory and seven faculty houses have been constructed, and a far-reaching fraternity quadrangle.

Reading Room In Preparation

New Room In Library to Be Furnished as a Private Library Soon

Preparations for the new reading room that resembles a private library are well under way, according to the latest reports from Miss Blanche P. McCrum, head librarian. This room, opening from the art gallery, and above the desk, will be furnished with soft, shaded lamps, huge over-stuffed chairs, done in red and gold, bookcases, and a study table. A grandfather's clock, from the home of Miss McCrum, will stand in one corner. Quaint objects of art will repose upon the shelves and the table, among them being an ebony elephant with ivory tusks, formerly the possession of Mrs. Mary Custis Lee. Two antique bookshelves will be moved from the art gallery to the adjoining room, one of which also belonged to Mrs. Lee. The chairs have already been purchased, and the bookshelves are being made by the University carpenter.

This room will contain only the more beautiful and rarer editions of volumes already in this department of the library. Books may not be removed from this room, but must be read there.

Seligman Makes All-Jewish Team

Generals' Tackle Named On All-American Team of Jewish Athletes

"Mike" Seligman, one of the mainstays of the General's football team for three years, has been placed on the Jewish All-American team. This team is selected by the Jewish Advocate, a New York paper, and is composed of such outstanding players as Harry Loom California; Nat Barrage, Southern California; and Al Davidson, Lehigh. Leading sports writers over the country say that the team could well oppose other all-American teams. Seligman was placed at left tackle on the team with Sington of Alabama as right tackle.

Remember that life's length is not measured by its hours and days, but by that which we have done therein for our country and kind.

Omicron Delta Kappa Has Had Meteoric Career Since Its Founding Here In 1914

Omicron Delta Kappa was founded at Washington and Lee December 3, 1914. On a campus already crowded with Greek letter organizations of various kinds was born a fraternity which at last gave recognition to one of the most vital phases of college life—leadership. Omicron Delta Kappa's place in the campus sun was speedily recognized, and circles have now been placed in 26 American institutions of learning.

O. D. K. is not a mere honorary organization. It is an active force on every campus where it has been installed; not a force that operates with a great amount of publicity, but one which works at the roots of campus society. Unlike other fraternities of its kind, O. D. K. does not demand of its members excellence in one particular branch of college activity. It demands leadership in general. First consideration for O. D. K. eligibility is character. Then the new man must have attained special distinction in either scholarship, athletics, social leadership, including service to the institution, publications, or other non-athletic activities. He must also be either a junior or senior.

The fraternity's purpose is "to honor men in every phase of campus life and bring together students and faculty on an equal footing and for purposes of mutual understanding and promotion of the institution's best interests. Politics are eliminated in the selection of new members."

Lejeune Talks On Leadership At Assembly

V. M. I. Supt. Stresses Qualities For Leaders After O. D. K. Ceremony

PRESIDENT SMITH IS GIVEN GOLD WATCH

Lewis F. Powell Makes the Presentation For the Student Body

The student assembly on Tuesday morning proved of three-fold interest when the new men of Omicron Delta Kappa were tapped; Gen. John Archer Lejeune, superintendent of V. M. I., addressed the student body; and Dr. Henry Louis Smith was presented with a gold watch from the students by Lewis Powell, in recognition of his active and fruitful years as president of Washington and Lee.

General Lejeune was the first of the men honored by O. D. K. After the ceremony, he made an address on the subject of Leadership. Choosing the inevitable qualities of leadership, ability, understanding of human nature, strong will and unflinching courage, he showed that a leader's words are distinguished by character in their utterance.

The speaker discussed three types of leaders, the good leader such as the criminal, the indifferent leader who seeks popularity and has no goal, and the good leader who has beside the fundamental qualities that of unselfishness. The last man will go far by sacrificing his personal ambitions and working for the good of others, he said. General Lejeune chose as illustrations of his discrimination, the two great French generals, Napoleon and Foch. The former achieved much through his great personal ambitions, but lost everything, and died alone and bereft of power. Foch, on the other hand, was dominated by Christian duty and gave for his country. His only desire was to serve his state and his people in any capacity allowed him to contribute to the good of his nation even after death.

In closing General Lejeune stressed the need of leadership in our present times. He exposed himself without fear to the shells of the enemy in order to place his men in their proper positions and returned to his former inconspicuous position.

WILLIAMS AND COX LEAD IN SCORING

All Five Starters Are Monogram Men From Last Year's Team

Making their initial appearance of the season the Generals' basketball team won a decisive victory over the Shawnee Athletic club of Lynchburg Monday night in Doremus gymnasium by the score of 50 to 16.

The Generals showed unusual form for the opening contest and led early to 20-0 with Cox and Jacobs tossing two shots in from the top in quick succession after the first few minutes of play. The first time found the Generals leading 22 to 10. In the second half, Leigh Williams, lanky center, and Harris Cox, forward luminary of the Blue and White, hit their strides and the Generals scored seven baskets from the floor while Cox tossed in nine to take high point honors with two goal shots giving him 20 points for the game. Masters, Shawnee center, was the visitors' bright light and led their scoring with five points.

Dick Smith, Blue and White coach, started a team of five monogram men from last year's squad and they turned in splendid opening game performances. McLenahan, new member of the squad saw some service. One of the forwards was credited with one field goal. Gene Barin and Bamsch, both sophomores, were also sent into the contest in the later periods.

The game summary follows: Williams, f. 9 20; Cox, f. 9 20; Jacobs, f. 9 22; McLenahan, f. 2 2; Bamsch, f. 0 0; Barin, f. 0 0.

Faculty Executive Committee To Act As President Here

The Executive Committee of the faculty will serve as acting president of the University to fill the place of Dr. Henry Louis Smith who departs January 1. It was announced yesterday by Paul M. Penick, treasurer of the board of trustees. No further action will be taken on the question of selecting the new president until the annual meeting of the board of trustees which is held on Founder's Day, January 19. It is possible that he will be announced at that time.

Five W. & L. Men Passed Virginia Bar Examination

Two present students and three alumni were among the 54 aspirants who passed the Virginia bar examination in Richmond December 10 and 11. A total of 151 attempted the exam. D. A. Penick and H. L. Echols, members of the senior law class here, were successful as were E. A. Fitzpatrick, G. L. Warthen, and Joseph Sharove. Sharove studied here two years and is now in the University of Richmond law school. Warthen was a member of the law class of 1929 and Fitzpatrick studied here but one year in the law school. Warthen and Fitzpatrick are now employed in Roanoke. While approximately one-third of all taking the exam passed, Washington and Lee representatives were above eighty per cent successful.

Much News of University Published in Newspapers Throughout Country

An "auditing" of the Washington and Lee University publicity records just completed reveals a university news service of high quality and an unusual newspaper reaction to it.

Although this work has been carried on for five years by the Journalism department, in addition to full-time teaching and administrative work, no report of the work has previously been published. The Ring-tum Phi wishes to bring outstanding points in this service to its pages for the information of students and alumni.

The following unsolicited letter was received from R. F. Nelson, director of publicity for the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce: "The Virginia State Chamber of Commerce appreciates a great deal your sending it news releases of your department. These have real merit. I do not know of any school anywhere which is issuing material as good as yours, certainly not in the state of Virginia."

News stories on the last commencement exercises, totaling four columns of printed material, were sent to more than 300 newspapers. As commencement never is striking and as it comes at a time when schools all over the country are furnishing similar news—a type considered difficult to get published—the following telegram was sent to every leading daily in Virginia and to the Associated Press, which serves hundreds of papers, to check state publication:

General Lejeune Also Tapped

Men Chosen For Honor In Recognition of Leadership As Expressed In Five Fields of College Activities

Twelve students and Gen. John Archer Lejeune were tapped yesterday morning for membership in Omicron Delta Kappa, national society for the recognition of college leadership. The annual ceremony was conducted in impressive fashion at a University assembly called for that purpose and also for the presentation of a gold watch to Dr. Henry Louis Smith. These men, selected from the junior and senior classes of the University, with General Lejeune, who is the superintendent of the Virginia Military Institute, were conducted through a formal initiation last night, following which a banquet was served at the Robert E. Lee hotel.

Band Selection For Annual Set Well Received

Students Are Pleased With the Announcement That Goldkette Will Play

The announcement that Jean Goldkette and his famous Victor recording orchestra will play for Fancy Dress Ball and Junior Prom, has been well received by Washington and Lee students. Although this is the first appearance of Goldkette's orchestra here, he comes well recommended. W. Van Gilbert, president of Fancy Dress, has received many letters of recommendation in his correspondence pertaining to the band. Among them was one from the business manager of the Princeton Triangle club saying that the orchestra's engagement there for Senior Prom was an outstanding success. They have played at several other universities this year and for a number of fraternity dances in Philadelphia, and during Thanksgiving, furnished the music for the Junior Prom at the University of Pennsylvania.

The orchestra, which is composed of 14 members, is Jean Goldkette's original recording band. It is directed by Henry Biagini. The band has played long engagements at several of New York's smartest night clubs, among them being the "Casa Loma." Recently the orchestra played for a convention in At-

Students honored yesterday were: F. S. Hanna, Howerton Gowen, M. N. Thibodeau, A. C. Conway, W. V. Gilbert, Wilbur Owen, H. Leigh Williams, H. R. Groop, T. J. Sugrue, R. K. Sutherland, L. H. Davis and J. W. Davis.

The tapping was conducted under the direction of Lewis Powell, president of Alpha Circle, assisted by S. F. Hampton, T. B. Fitzhugh, and H. G. Morison. The usual procedure was followed out, each man raising from his seat in the assembly upon being tapped and walking to the rostrum where Doctor Smith congratulated them, and introduced the speaker, General Lejeune, who spoke on "leadership."

In his explanatory remarks preceding the ceremony, Powell explained the history of O.D.K., the fields from which new members are selected, and the method used in selecting them. The fraternity was founded here in 1914 and now has twenty-six chapters, he said. Men are selected for the honor on the basis of their leadership in five fields: scholarship, publications, social and other extra-curricular activities. While a point basis is generally observed, he said, a man is not automatically elected to membership by holding any number of positions, if, in the opinion of the local circle, he does not possess the qualities of a leader.

Alumnus Notes Widespread Use Of W & L Swing

Alabama and Tulane Among Colleges Using "Swing" With Local Titles

A recent article published in the Birmingham Age-Herald has proved of much interest to alumni in that section who read the "This Morning" column by John Temple Graves.

In commenting on school songs used at the University of Alabama Graves stated that Alabama and Georgia used, as their alma mater song, the Cornell University song. Upon reading the paper the column came under the scrutiny of an alumnus of Washington and Lee, Henry P. Johnston, '29, and editor of the Ring-tum Phi last year.

Johnston made an immediate reply to the writer of the column calling his attention to the well-known fact that the University of Alabama had for sometime been using the "Washington and Lee Swing" as one of their school songs and under the name of the "Alabama Swing."

Graves replied to the note in a later issue. He pointed out the fact that the school songs at Alabama represented some of the

Williams Named On All-Southern

General Wingman Is Placed On the Team Picked by Commercial Appeal

Washington and Lee placed its first man on a 1929 all-Southern team last week when Leigh Williams was chosen for an end post on the first team as picked by the Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

No second and third teams were picked nor any honorable mentions given, one substitute end, back, and lineman completing the aggregation. In picking Williams for the job, the Commercial-Appeal ignored such men as Smith of Georgia, Dalrymple of Tulane, Jones of Georgia Tech, and others who have drawn columns of ballyhoo from the eager far southern sports writers.

The team is:
L.T. Maree, Georgia Tech.
L.G. Brown, Vanderbilt.
C. Roberts, Tulane.
R.G. Sington, Alabama.
R.T. Abbernathy, Vanderbilt.
R.E. Van Sickle, Florida.
Q.B. Dodd, Tennessee.
L.H. McEver, Tennessee.
R.H. Banker, Tulane.
F.B. Holm, Alabama.
Utility End: Schwartz, Vandy.
Utility Lineman: Johnson, Tenn.
Utility Back: Thomason, Georgia Tech.

TO EVERY W. & L. STUDENT

In this last issue of the RING-TUM PHI during my administration the editors request from me a farewell word to the students of Washington and Lee. No task could prove more pleasing and congenial than to add to the scores of "presidential paragraphs" previously appearing in its columns a final message of congratulation, good wishes, and presidential advice.

In its trebled income, doubled equipment, increased endowment, and renovated "plant" the university of today, while still struggling with remorseless poverty, far excels the institution of yesterday.

In its scholastic rating by every national and sectional agency the university of today has been raised to a level never before reached by W. & L. In the harmony, loyalty, and devotion of its faculty, student-body and alumni there is hardly a cloud on the horizon.

And surely in that splendid University Assembly of yesterday, when the official spokesman of the student-body amid tumultuous applause declared the present administration second only to that of General Lee in the long history of the University and presented the retiring president with a jeweled Hamilton masterpiece as a constant reminder of their love and loyalty, no administration could ever be blessed with a lovelier "sunset and evening sky", that has become my cherished possession.

Recalling to your mind and heart the present day motto of the Ring-tum Phi, By the Students, for the University, let me urge every student organization and every individual student to follow in all the future General Lee's illustrious example of rigid moral self control, of splendid freedom from every taint of intemperance and immorality that so often infect and poison the inner glory of American manhood.

Assuring the Ring-tum Phi that its bi-weekly arrival will be like fresh water in a thirsty land, and commending my successor to your love and confidence and whole-hearted cooperation, I am as always,

Yours for W. & L.,
HENRY LOUIS SMITH.

OMICRON DELTA KAPPA

In line with the tapping of new members by the Alpha circle of Omicron Delta Kappa yesterday morning, the following editorial from the Diamondback of the University of Maryland has particular emphasis at Washington and Lee now. We reprint in full:

"With the public initiation ceremony conducted by Omicron Delta Kappa at a recent assembly, we are again impressed with the importance of the existence of this organization on the campus of the University of Maryland. An excellent outline of its purposes and ideals was given by Professor Carpenter in his introductory talk, but we feel that too much explaining cannot be done; that too much stress cannot be laid on the functions of this organization and the good that it can and does do the entire university.

"O. D. K. was installed during the winter of the 1926-27 school session, and for the past three years has been the goal and hope of the greater portion of the male students in attendance at Maryland. It has served a varied assortment of commendable purposes, aiding both the student body and the administrative authorities of the university. By offering recognition in the several lines of endeavor it has increased interest in these lines and thereby raised the general standard of student activity. Leadership in social, political, and publicational activities, as well as excellence in athletics and scholarship is to be strived for on account of the eligibility rules of this society, which provide that a student before being considered for membership must be a leader in at least one of these five fields.

But recognition and honor, as was so clearly pointed out by Professor Carpenter, are not the prime functions of Omicron Delta Kappa. Attainment of membership furnishes the occasion for work which will be of benefit to the entire university; more than anything else, it is an opportunity.

Some of the achievements of O. D. K. are reviewed, this fact will be apparent. This organization is often consulted by members of the faculty for the purpose of effecting some student movement, and itself is ever on the lookout for some idea, most current of which is the proposed telephone system mentioned in a recent Diamondback, through whose accomplishment some condition existing here may be improved.

"One of the greatest assets of O. D. K. is its diversity of membership. Its members are not chosen for the same considerations as are the members of a social fraternity; they are selected from the leaders of the various activities and are brought together in their common interest of the university.

"It seems to us that Omicron Delta Kappa, because of the high regard in which it is held by the majority of the student body, and more particularly for the beneficial functions of the fraternity, should be considered the highest honor and greatest opportunity which can be attained in the field of extra-curricular activity."

COLLEGE ENROLLMENT

Although college enrollments in this country are much higher proportionately than in any other land, it is nevertheless true, according to a summary of the annual report of William John Cooper, commissioner of education, appearing in the United States Daily, "that the great increase in attendance of institutions of higher learning so conspicuous since the World War seems to have been very much abused." The conclusion is based partly upon the fact that the rate of increase in high school enrollments has been slackening for three of four years. That means, obviously, that the supply of college students has been reduced.

Dr. Cooper's announcement will be hailed with satisfaction by all who realize the extent to which our resources in higher education have been strained by the flood of students which has inundated campuses everywhere. It has not been a happy experience for the colleges, it has not been a good thing for the students, and it has not helped the cause of education. If colleges are now being given a chance to catch up with themselves, they may count themselves twice-blessed. And if colleges take advantage of their opportunity to consolidate their expansions into a cohesive and adequate scheme of instruction, later generations of students will be vastly benefited.

Just why this drop in enrollment should have taken place is not made clear by Dr. Cooper. He does say something about a lower birth rate and changes in agricultural and industrial conditions, but these are clearly inconsiderable elements. For there is no reason assigned why birth rate or other alterations should be making themselves felt just at this time. These factors have been operative for many years, and nothing has happened with reference to them which would have concentrated their effect upon the last half decade.

The surmise may be ventured, however, that a psychological change has had something to do with lowered attendance. Immediately after the war, it was very much the fad to go to college. Prosperity, the mood of the younger generation and the encouragement of the government through the training it provided for many former soldiers, helped to create the collegiate style. One gathers that modern youth has found other fish to fry. Perhaps parents are less gullible, because less well-heeled. In any event, there has been a lessening in the crowd which threatened to drive educators and taxpayers crazy. That is something to be grateful for.

Much University News Published In Many Papers

From the Portsmouth Star came this reply:

"Portsmouth Star received from you and carried last June considerable amount of Washington and Lee commencement news, including story on farewell gift by alumni to retiring President Smith. News received by Portsmouth Star from Department of Journalism, signed Roscoe Ellard, is the best of all news this newspaper receives from any institution anywhere. Wish to highly compliment you on your efforts and fine work in journalism."

Records from an Atlanta clipping service show that more than 5,000 stories about Washington and Lee University were printed last year.

An investigation of the records of last year's news service shows that ninety stories, totaling 35,300 words—no duplication included—were sent to more than 700 newspapers throughout the South. Accounts of student activities were also sent to numerous northern and home-town papers.

The service this year has been greatly enlarged. To date, 84 stories, totaling 31,800 words—no duplications—have been released to the papers of 13 Southern states. These 82 stories include administrative news, all elections and campus activities of interest to outsiders, and feature articles on the University. Five hundred pictures have been issued.

A special article on Washington and Lee University will be published in the magazine section of the Christian Science Monitor for December 30. "This is a most excellent article," wrote A. H. Williams, Eastern News Editor.

A special bulletin board is now being prepared for the University library so that students may read stories about the institution sent out by the publicity news bureau and published by newspapers.

What Other Editors Say

NEWSPAPERS HAVE A HEART

College is a great sport—for the metropolitan newspapers. Greedily they lap up the juice of the most recent collegiate scandal and spray their columns with features, pictures, and interviews about college people alcohol-bent for dissipation. Headline writers between chaws of tobacco revel contentedly in the belief that "these college guys are no 'dashed' better than the rest of us; they like their liquor too." After such reflections more captions grind out anent college brawls and football.

Through such accounts and with glowing devotion to college sports, the newspaper brings a vicarious, educational experience to its readers who cannot taste for themselves the nectar of higher education. The press then seeks to translate learning into spectacular language. A halo still clings to the academic figures and inspires reverence in the minds of the "un-rinsed." Cognizant of this, the press nurtures this worship of "collegiatism" and circulation swells.

Yes, the newspapers really publish items about the research and study of colleges, but the journalistic thirst for the bizarre subordinates too frequently the true educational values. Geological expeditions must be "featured." Egyptology must be modernized into journales. The press loves college—for copy; it wastes small affection for the more abiding benefits; first, it must have its story!—Minnesota Daily.

Mathis Explains Errors Committed Against W. & M.

Wrestling Coach Corrects the Mistakes Made In Last Varsity Match

At a very private meeting called Monday night for the wrestling squads only, Coach Mathis thrashed out the whys and hows of the William and Mary meet of last Friday night. Picking out each man separately and individually, he showed him the most apparent and prevailing mistakes of his bout. The wrestling mentor seems to be quite displeased with the showing of his men even in view of the overwhelming victory, primarily due to the fact that they have failed to show any particular adaptability in applying and using the fundamental holds which he has been attempting to demonstrate and teach for some time, and secondarily, because most of the men showed an extreme lack of conditioning.

Coach Mathis intimated that unless some remarkable improvement is seen in both the freshman and varsity men who were in the lineup for the initial encounter, other men on the squad will in all probability replace them for future meets.

Immediately after that particular phase of the meeting was over, Coach Mathis illustrated and explained the style and method of wrestling in use at the Army, and stated that it is for this type of wrestling that the men will be trained for until the time for the West Point meet.

Regular workouts will continue through Friday of this week and will resume on January 6 for all men except those whom have been asked to return early. Coach Mathis reports that the Army grapplers are returning to the mat on December 29, in preparation for the meet to take place on January 11.

The wrestling team, with coach and manager, will leave for the Army meet on January 10, arrive at West Point that night for a brief workout, weigh in at 12 o'clock noon on the eleventh, and wrestle that same afternoon at 4 p. m.

Boxers Working Hard For First Meet Of Season

Coach Malone has been giving the boxing squads strenuous workouts for the past two weeks and promises to have them in the pink of condition to meet North Carolina in the first bout of the year.

Faulkner is fighting two or three rounds every day with agile adversaries to improve his wind and endurance. Slossberg is also fighting fast men to improve his defense and foot work. Long road trips and setting-up exercises with short rounds of boxing in between compose the daily workouts.

Malone boxes eight rounds each day with members of the squad to keep himself in condition for his bout on the twentieth with Riley.

Alumnus Notes Widespread Use Of W. & L. Swing

(Continued from page 1) most widely known college song tunes but that they were heard by others that knew the tunes better and could not appreciate them being essentially tunes of Alabama.

Graves commented further with the fact that they were all "corking" good tunes but people who looked to Alabama as the land of music were doubtless surprised when they heard the strains of Cornell's "Far Above Cayuga's Waters," and the Washington and Lee "Swing" being used by Alabama.

The "Swing," as Graves writes, belongs to Washington and Lee University in Virginia. It's writer was Thornton Allen, an alumnus of Washington and Lee, of the class of '10. The writer has a copyright on it which stipulates that it always be known as the "Washington and Lee Swing."

The tune has not only been taken up by Alabama, but its popularity is more attested by its use at Tulane as the "Tulane Swing," and many other colleges and schools throughout the country. "The copyright is apparently more honored in the breach than in its observance," he wrote.

"A master man is one who is master of himself."

Fletcher Goes To Meeting Of So. Conference

Attends Convention at Baton Rouge As Delegate From Washington and Lee

Last Saturday Coach Forrest Fletcher attended the annual meeting of the Southern conference, held this year at Baton Rouge, La., as delegate from Washington and Lee.

At this meeting several things of importance were discussed. Atlanta will again get the 1930 basketball tourney, the dates being February 28 to March 1. Birmingham will hold the track meet this year on May 16 and 17. Late in February the University of Virginia will be hosts to the conference leather pushers. During the week of May 11, Tulane will conduct the tennis tournament.

In addition to the regular events scheduled there will be four new events in the calendar of the conference. The first annual golf matches will be held at the Shady Valley club at Birmingham on May 1, 2 and 3. In conjunction with the basketball tournament held at Atlanta this year there will also be a swimming meet. The first wrestling meet is to be held at V. M. I. At a place to be determined later there will be an indoor track meet on the first of March.

In an effort to curb the professionalism of athletics in the conference, Maj. W. H. McKellar, faculty chairman of athletics at Sewanee urged the council to adopt a resolution that he offered enabling the schools to come out in the open and defray the expenses of athletes through college. This motion was quickly downed by a counter resolution offered by H. C. Byrd of Maryland, which put the conference on record as not being opposed to athletes being aided by their school but opposed to any funds reserved especially for athletes.

Football Schedule For 1930 Finished

With the addition of two new teams the football schedule for 1930 has been completed, it was announced early this week.

The two new teams added are Randolph-Macon and Hampden-Sidney. Randolph-Macon will open the season for the Generals on the home field on September 20. The following week the team will travel to Lynchburg and meet the Hampden-Sidney outfit.

Lewis F. Powell, president of the student body, presented Dr. Smith with a gold watch from the students. The retiring president of the school accepted the gift with his customary grace and wit. He expressed his appreciation for the remembrance, and quoted "The Element in Leadership" from his recent pamphlet. Dr. Smith closed by voicing the hopes that future leaders of Washington and Lee might continue in the traditions of General Lee.

So. California Beats Carnegie

Decisive Victory of Westerners Stimulates Interest In Rose Bowl Game

Southern California's win over Carnegie Tech has added much interest to the Rose Battle. Before this game they were not given much chance to defeat the University of Pittsburg, but now it looks as though the game will be a closely contested affair, although Pitt holds the advantage in individual stars in their two all-American members, Donchess and Uans.

The Army squad of 110 players includes many freshmen, who will not take part in the game, but will take part in the three practices they have scheduled on their way to the Pacific. Coach "Biff" Jones leaves with his squad in a special train on December 18 to engage a strong Stanford eleven.

A game of great interest to Virginians will be the one played in Richmond New Year's Day. Bennie Friedman and an all-star professional team will meet a team composed of football stars of Virginia colleges of last year and the seniors of this year. Albert Barnes, Frank Peake, of V. M. I. and V.

P. I., respectively, Sloan of Virginia, and many other stars will compose this team piloted by Coach Dobson of Richmond.

Other intersectional games include the all-star East-West game in San Francisco and the Northern-Southern divisions of the Southern conference in Atlanta on New Year's Day, all of which promise to be filled full of thrills and excitement for the post-season grid-iron fans.

Chester Mystery Plays Presented By Troubadours

The first Troubadour Christmas production was staged last night in the Lee chapel under the auspices of the English department of the University. A sizable crowd witnessed the presentation which consisted of a series of Chester mystery plays.

These plays deal with the Nativity and Adoration cycle. Those taking part in the exposition were Miss Margaret Anne Moreland, who represented the Madonna; Harry Fitzgerald, First King; R. B. Skeen, Second King; William Gordon, Third King; Stanley D. Waxberg, First Shepherd; C. A. Bowes, Second Shepherd; G. R. Holden, Third Shepherd; J. Franklin Jones, Trowle; Clairborne Darden, an angel, and William Hawkins as the Expositor.

The chapel was decorated in the Christmas spirit with cedar trees throughout. Special Christmas lights also added to the impressiveness of the presentation.

The chapel was lit only by candles, two in each window and a candelabrum on the altar. Evergreens were placed around the sides of the stage and banked in front of it.

The chapel was well filled with members of the faculty, students, and town people who were held spellbound by the solemnness of the pageant.

Prof. H. V. Shelley played the organ prelude and postlude. A hidden choir, led by Prof. J. A. Graham, sang a hymn in the pageant, representing the chorus of the angels.

Omicron Delta Kappa Has 27 Charter Groups

26 Chapters Established By Original Circle Since Year 1914

Four new chapters of Omicron Delta Kappa were established in 1929, bringing the total number to 27. Since its founding here in 1914, the national organization now includes chapters at this number of southern and eastern colleges and universities.

Two chapters were granted charters in 1916—Johns Hopkins University and the University of Pittsburgh. In 1917 only Davidson College, North Carolina, received a charter.

Three chapters, the University of Richmond, Centre College of Kentucky, and William and Mary were granted charters in 1921.

The University of Akron was given a charter in 1922.

Three Added in 1924

Charters were granted to the University of Alabama, Birmingham-Southern College, and Hampden-Sidney College in 1924.

lantic City, and then for the fall opening of "Roseland."

The theme of Fancy Dress this year will represent a Spanish fiesta in Valencia. The Doremus gymnasium will picture a Spanish court, with balconies, shops, and colorful scenes.

The decorations are being made under the supervision of Prof. C. E. L. Gill and Van Gilbert. The various fraternities were requested to send their pledges to aid in the work and they have responded well. There have been 15 or 20 freshmen at work every afternoon and all the heavy work will be completed before the Christmas holidays. The details will be completed within ten days after the resuming of school the first of the year.

The Van Horn company of Philadelphia will again furnish the costumes, and orders will be taken on or about January 7. Students who are expecting to order costumes for their girls, especially those who are in the figure, are asked to get the exact sizes during the holidays.

The dance set, which will take place January 30 and 31, will be composed of three dances; Fancy Dress Ball, Junior Prom and a dansant.

gle program has been begun. The fraternity program involves the leasing of university property at a nominal rent and the lending of three-fifths of the money to build fraternity houses. Four fraternity houses are now completed on this plan—Sigma Nu, Phi Delta Theta, Phi Kappa Sigma and Beta Theta Pi.

When a fraternity so leases university land and so borrows university money, a contract is entered into whereby no liquor or immoral women may be brought into the houses so financed, no gambling can be carried on, and a house-mother must live in the home.

Doctor Smith considers his greatest single accomplishment the abolition of hazing at Washington and Lee, which, he says, he found as a crucial situation when he took up his duty here as president. The present friendly and gentlemanly treatment of freshmen, about which a 1929 first-year man recently published a highly complimentary article in his high school newspaper, President Smith secured, he recounted, after an eight-year campaign.

Doctor Smith received his A.B. and M.A. degrees from Davidson College, being graduated maximum cum laude and elected to Phi Beta Kappa. During his college and university career, he won medals in Greek, mathematics, English and two in oratory. He received his Ph.D. degree from the University of Virginia and was awarded the L.L.D. degree by the University of North Carolina for his research and practical work in physics and for distinguished and eloquent lecturing on scientific and educational subjects.

Though born in Greensboro, N. C., his father, the Rev. J. Henry Smith, distinguished Presbyterian minister and pulpit orator, was for years a resident of Lexington, Va. Doctor Smith is one of five sons all of whom constitute a unique group of Southern leaders.

The dramatic triumph of President Smith's career, perhaps, was his trip to London to represent the governor of Virginia in presenting a statue of George Washington from Virginia to the people of Great Britain. Doctor Smith's address on this occasion in June, 1922, "Virginia's Message to Great Britain," was acclaimed at the time on both sides of the Atlantic as a brilliant and major contribution to the friendly relations between England and the United States.

Doctor and Mrs. Smith were on this occasion accorded social honors and entertainment extended to no others by the British government except members of the royal families of other nations.

Since the World War, President Smith has doubled the teaching force of Washington and Lee, introduced a system of retiring allowances, almost doubled the income of the University, and raised one-half million dollars of additional endowment, meanwhile rigidly limiting the enrollment to a number within the capacity of the institution.

In reviewing these outstanding accomplishments of his seventeen years of service as president of Washington and Lee, one recalls the description of Doctor Smith made yesterday by Student President Lewis F. Powell, Jr., in presenting the gift from the student body—"the greatest leader the University has had since General Lee."

THREE IN HOSPITAL

Three students are now confined to the hospital, C. G. Allen, W. B. Carver and R. W. Davis. According to the authorities, all but Davis, suffering with pneumonia, will be able to leave before the holidays.
