THE STRAW VOTE

Washington and Lee's cosmopolitan student body picked by popular vote Franklin D. Roosevelt as the man they would like to see as the next president of the United States but Herbert Hoover gained the majority of the votes that count, those of the electoral college.

It presents a situation that has seldom occurred in a national election—the candidate with the majority popular vote failing to carry the electoral vote. In one of the most representative student bodies in this country, where thirty-three states and the District of Columbia are represented, it was a matter of virtually equal distribution.

It was in the Law School that Roosevelt really obtained his majority. This fact readily is understood because few of those living north of the Mason-Dixon line choose to continue graduate work here.

Norman Thomas perhaps disappointed his backers, who talked of a "three hundred Thomas vote," but when one considers that four years ago he received only one vote in a similar straw vote, his gain is the more understood.

The percentage of the total popular vote gained by each candidate is almost exactly the same as that of national polls now being conducted.

In proverbial sophomore fashion, some members of the second-year class satisfied their whimsical desires and provided the tabulators with an occasional laugh and now and then a dab of trouble. Just apparent as was their high type of cleverness was their inability to comprehend that they were supposed to mark all sections of the ballots or none. Incomplete information was of little use, and helped prevent the straw vote from being entirely school-wide. As it was, faculty and students balloted virtually 100 per cent, and The Ring-tum Phi takes this means of saying "thanks" to those members of the student organization who contributed to the success of the enterprise.

RUSHING PLANS ADVANCE

Although no statement is yet forthcoming from the inter-fraternity council concerning the outcome of the voting by the fraternities on the first plan submitted by the committee on deferred rushing, it appears to be certain that the hope of straight thinking, progressive Washington and Lee men for many years is soon to be realized. With the proper cooperation from the fraternities the committee of five can and will bring deferred rushing to the Washington and Lee campus.

It is perfectly evident and natural, of course, that the plan which was put before the fraternities last Wednesday did not meet with the approval of all. Each group looks at the suggestions from a different angle, and even individuals in the same fraternity probably disagree as to the merits of the proposed system, but almost all are in accord with one sentiment; Washington and Lee must have deferred rushing. The work of the council and committee will have been in vain, however, if the fraternities are not willing to disregard their own particular wants and prejudices for the common good.

A critical analysis of the plan which the council set before the fraternities last Wednesday, reveals a number of faults and weaknesses, all of which were no doubt brought to light in the various chapter discussions of it. The committee which drew up the plan would probably itself admit that these faults and weaknesses existed therein. A meeting of the council last night brought to the attention of the members the objections which the different fraternities had to this first plan, and the committee, supported by the council, has taken up the work of revising it to make it more acceptable to all concerned.

A perfect rushing system is inconceivable even under Utopian fraternity conditions. The difficulties to be faced at Washington and Lee are great. Fraternity rivalry and suspicion and the economic insecurity of many chapters has long hindered the taking of any definite action on the problem of deferred rushing. Councils of previous years have given up in discouragement after having their efforts to sell the idea of deferred rushing to the fraternities quashed by the negative votes of a few houses.

The situation is different this year. The council realizes that practically every fraternity favors deferring the rushing here. They do not have to first sell the idea of deferred rushing; it is the plan they must put across now. The fraternities, like all customers looking over a new product, are not quite sure they are satisfied with it as it is, and like good salesmen, with the interest of their customer at heart, the council is willing to have it altered to satisfy them. The difficulty is that the same plan must do for all twenty fraternities, and they all have different ideas. The only satisfactory arrangement, therefore, is a compromise between extremes. The job for the committee now is to so effect this compromise so that every fraternity believes it is winning its point. This is probably impossible, and the matter is left in the hands of the fraternities. It is up to them to be big and broad-minded and fraternally-spirited enough to make some little sacrifices and push together to put the system across. Once this is accomplished time will smooth out the wrinkles and take away the flaws.

TRUE HOSPITALITY

Washington and Lee will have the opportunity of playing host to hundreds of alumni and visitors on Homecoming day. Alumni, both of recent years and of many years past, will return to the campus to refresh memories and renew old acquaintances. There will be many people who have visited our campus before and are returning for the festivities. On the other hand, many people will visit the University for the first time.

Whether these guests are fraternity brothers, friends, or perfect strangers, it is up to every Washington and Lee gentleman to extend his hand in true Southern hospitality to our guests. Our University enjoys a sterling reputation for friendliness that has extended far and wide, and every student should make an effort to uphold this reputation and tradition. Washington and Lee students are known for their cordiality.

Every student of this University should conduct himself in such a manner so that the returning alumni may point with pride at the student body. Each one should assume the responsibility of a perfect host, so that the visitors who have returned once again may be glad they came back, and those who have visited the campus for the first time may carry back home a fine impression of Washington and Lee and her student body.

The use of his name by the Republican party has been refused by President King of Amherst College when he declined to serve on the advisory committee of the college division of the Republican National Committee in the East.

In a letter to the Republican committeeman, President King said:

"... I am, of course, heartily in sympathy with any effort to stimulate undergraduate political sentiment by whatever political party the effort may be made. It seems to be highly desirable that the young citizens of this country who are enrolled in our colleges should become interested in the present national campaign and should attempt to understand the issues involved and should try to formulate their own opinions of these issues.

"As president of the college I shall not be either directly or indirectly a propagandist for any political party. Under these circumstances, I know you will understand me when I say that I do not care to express any opinions on the administration at Washington nor can I permit my name to be used as a member of an advisory committee by any political party.

"That the students of Amherst College should think for themselves on the issues of the day seems to be important; what they think on individual issues, which party they are affiliated with, does not concern the president of the college."

VALUE OF EDUCATION

ALTHOUGH the average college graduate is supposedly too idealistic to consider the financial benefit of an education when he is answering that old question, "Why I Came to College," there will probably be quite a few who will be interested to know that William Atherton Du Puy, the eminent statistician has estimated that the pecuniary value of a college education amounts to $65,000.

While the high school graduate may expect to earn only $110,000 during his life span, the college graduate will earn $175,000 according to the report of Mr. Du Puy, executive assistant at the department of interior, who has just completed a statistical study of the power of education.

At 18 the high school graduate earns $800 in contrast to the boy with only grade school training. He will net an annual income of $1,500 at 22 which represents the maximum of the average income of a man with grammar school education. The college student begins to earn at the age of 22, reports Mr. Du Puy, without taking into account the abnormal conditions due to the depression. He starts off at about $1,400, which is less than the high school graduate makes at the same age, because the latter has been working four years. The college graduate's income rises rapidly by the time he reaches 26 years of age, but that of the high school graduate mounts more slowly. When the two are between the ages of 43 and 48, the college man's income usually comes to a point of rapid increase and the high school trained man's income is stationary and his momentum is slackened. When the college man reaches 60 he is earning $4,000 a year, but at 70 his income drops to $3,500.—Carnegie Tartan.

"Six Hours to Live," with Warner Baxter, at the New Theatre Monday has a good idea for a movie plot. It is unusual and well done. Tuesday is "The Night of June 13," another picture that manages to introduce something new in the way of story. The critics gave this one a flock of stars.

Sidney Franklin, the Brooklyn boy who became one of Spain's leading matadors, has been put to it to rouse the bulls into action at times in the bull fight scenes being filmed for "The Kid From Spain," starring Eddie Cantor. The eagle eye of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, however, ever watchful about such matters, has kept an official standing by the arena every day there is a scene to be shot. If Matador Franklin taps the bulls a bit too heavily, the S. P. C. A. 'ite warns, "Careful, Mr. Franklin, you're verging on cruelty."

Heard at a Hollywood party: "Do read it, dear, you really should. It's a classic, you know, quite dirty in places."

Another story about a Hollywood party concerns the hostess sending out invitations engraved with the following: "formal dress compulsory." And one of the Barrymores wore bedroom slippers.

Getting back the foreign market means more to Hollywood right now than any other financial move. Carl Laemmle, Jr., is going after this end of the industry with his recent announcement of an "international picture technique." He warns movie authors to "use as little dialogue as possible—shoot it silent as much as possible—and allow the characters to talk only when they are required to talk and only then."

It is rumored that a certain film firm is quietly doing a travesty on "Grand Hotel," with Zazu Pitts in Garbo's role, Buster Keaton as the Baron, and Schnozzle Durante as Kringelien.

When Leon Trotsky was a film extra he played in an Ethel Barrymore picture. Which might have something to do with his influencing Russian movies.

Joan Crawford is having Ivor Novello's play "The Party" prepared for her particular talents.

Lewis Stone, who uses no make-up in pictures, gave up the idea of having a Hollywood party when at one of his biggest undertakings someone he had never seen before came up and said: "Say, who's the host? I never saw such lousy food and liquor." Stone replied, "I'm the host, and I never saw you before. Scram!"

The latest movie find is Katherine Hepburn, who scored on the New York stage last year in "The Warrior Husband." You'll see her in "A Bill of Divorcement" and in "Rasputin" if the Barrymores don't manage to completely cover her up.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Cincinnati, Ohio

My dear Mr. Culley:

Permit me to say that it is indeed a pleasure to note that after many years in which I have asked for it, the Ring-tum Phi, under your editorship, carries the football schedule in every issue. It is too bad that the scores have to be so one-sided, but we will come out of that eventually.

May I make the suggestion that the term "Little Generals" and "Baby Generals" have little of football ring to it and, in my opinion, is poor psychology. In fact, I think the term is quite grammar-schoolish.

How much better is the term "Brigadier!" One reference to freshman team is sufficient to identify this name for that term.

Let me urge that unless there is a good reason for it, which I do not understand, that you eliminate these terms of Little Generals and Baby Generals.

I think if I were a member of one of the teams so designated, I would feel like showing that I was neither a baby nor little.

Very truly yours,
Laurence C. Witten

Easton, Pa.—(IP)—If human beings are like mice, then the later marriages age of today reduces the number of children not only by the decreased time of wedded fertility, but by 25 per cent additional, according to Prof. W. L. Wachter of Lafayette College.

"Considerable interest," he says, "has been shown in recent years in the birth rates of groups of persons who, because of the necessity of extended preparation for their life work, or because of other reasons, have delayed marrying.

"Many authorities have expressed the opinion that such a postponement of marriages reduces the birth rate only to the extent that the reproductive period of the woman is reduced by so many years. The difficulty of putting such a problem to test in a human population or of gathering data free from environmental disturbing influences, suggested the experiment with mice.

"Female mice were divided into two groups, and with one of them group matings were delayed for several months, which is a long time in the life of a mouse.

"The mice in the delayed group were mated with the same males as the non-delayed, to make more certain of a true comparison. Those of the delayed group which produced had just as large litters as their sisters of the early marriage group.

"But quite a number of the 'spinster' mice were unable to produce litters at all. There were so many of these that the late mating reduced the young mice by about 25 per cent."

Calyx Pictures

Pictures for the Calyx will be taken all next week at the fraternity houses, according to Dick Edwards, editor. The schedule will be published in Tuesday's issue of the Ring-tum Phi.

During the Pajama Parade, an annual event at Ursinus college, the frosh turned the tables on the sophomores by leaving before the upper class could assemble.

HERE are entirely different kinds of tobacco.

Blend them and you get a different taste.

Cross-Blend them and you get a better taste.

While blending mixes the tobaccos together, Cross-Blending "welds" and "joins" their flavors into one.

Imagine doing this with the world's finest cigarette tobaccos—many kinds of Bright tobacco, a great many types of Burley tobacco and numerous grades of Turkish tobacco!

What you have when you've finished is Chesterfield tobacco—better than any one kind, better than a blend of all kinds—really a new kind of tobacco flavor that's milder, more fragrant and a whole lot more pleasing to the taste.

Yearling Grid Title At Stake In Tilt Today

Little Generals And Virginia Frosh Decide Championship; Both Undefeated

Washington and Lee's Brigadier-Generals meet the Virginia first year team on Wilson Field at 2:45 this afternoon to determine the freshman football championship of the state.

Coach Cy Young's proteges have not suffered a defeat this season, having chalked up victories over the William and Mary and V. P. I. frosh and Greenbrier Military Academy, and are determined that they will give the Little Cavaliers their third consecutive defeat at the hands of a Washington and Lee freshman grid team.

Visitors Boast Strong Defense

The Baby Cavaliers also have an undefeated season to their credit. They defeated the Virginia Military Institute "Rats" 26-0 last week and boast a victory over the Maryland frosh. Judging from their records their defense must be unusually good, as the V. M. I. boys did not score a single first down against them.

Last year's freshmen will remember the 1931 game with the Virginia frosh as the most exciting of the freshman grid season. The game was won in the last three minutes of play by a long pass from Jay Henthorne to Charles Smith. This gave the Baby Generals the long end of a 12-7 score.

Mattox Returns to Line-up

The Brigadiers' scoring chances will be greatly aided by the return of Osby Mattox to the line-up. Mattox sprained his ankle in the W. and M. game and was not able to play in the V. P. I. fray on this account. Gumm, right guard, has been forced from the line-up by a back injury. His presence will be greatly missed on the line, and it has not yet been decided who is to take his place. Either Sweet or Morawick may get the call.

This will be one of the Homecoming attractions, and a record crowd should see the successful Brigadiers play. As the Little Blue team has already defeated teams representing two of the Big Four of Virginia, the winning of this game will assure them the state freshman football title.

Debate Plans Nearing Completion

With Arrival of Oxford Team
New York—(NSFA)—With the arrival of the team from Oxford University, the final arrangements for the international debate season are being made. The two members of this team, Mr. A. J. Irvine and Mr. Geoffrey M. Wilson, will leave New York on October twenty-fifth for a trip through New England, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and other eastern states.

At about the same time a team from Trinity College, Dublin, Ireland, will begin their tour through the middle western and Southern colleges. Each team will have about 30 debates on their schedule, and will return to New York about the middle of December.

.. Following the BIG BLUE..

By De Clark

Washington and Lee's prospects never have been brighter than now. This Homecoming contest Saturday will be a great game and the many visiting alumni should not leave Lexington disappointed. The team is in excellent shape and ready for those up-and-coming Gobblers. After outplaying and outdriving the William and Mary Indians last Saturday, the Big Blue has been whipped into perfect condition and will fling its full strength against V. P. I.

With the return of Hanley, crafty end, and Toots Ruffner, center, the Generals will be minus an injured list at the opening kick-off tomorrow. Henthorne returned to the squad this week but he is not expected to play until the Virginia game.

Believe it or not, V. P. I. is afraid of the Generals and realize that the game tomorrow is the most important of their remaining games. Thoughts of the Alabama conflict which comes next week have been pushed aside and the Gobblers will show everything they have on Wilson field. The same line-up is expected to be used that defeated Georgia, Maryland and Kentucky and will not be changed, according to line coach Tilson, until the Gobblers lose a game.

Tomorrow the battle will not only be between two leading Virginia teams but also a battle of brothers. Line coach Sumner (Tex) Tilson of V. P. I. will have it out with line coach Warren (Tex) Tilson of Washington and Lee. This is Sumner-Tilson's first year with the Gobblers and a successful one so far. Back in '19, '20, '21 and '22 he played right tackle for the Techmen. Perhaps one of the reasons for the Gobblers' success this year is the fact that the entire coaching system is made up of alumni. Even the milk for the training table comes from thoroughbred cattle at the school and the agricultural department furnishes the vegetables.

The Gobblers will throw full strength at the Generals tomorrow, but the Big Blue is not worrying. The Generals will match the Gobblers along the line pound for pound. After watching the Generals' passing attack last week, Gobbler coaches have been drilling their backs in tactics to stop an aerial battle. With Seaton and Mattox handling the ball, V. P. I. will have to be on the jump every minute.

The Duke-Tennessee contest looms as one of the most important games on tomorrow's schedule. The Vols consider the Blue Devils a tough assignment and have had no let up in practice this week. Duke is out to turn back Tennessee. They have plenty of power and drive, but the Vols should come out on top.

West Virginia is having plenty of trouble this year. The Mountaineers have won only one game so far and the alumni are raising a big kick. The student body seems to be sticking with coach (Greasy) Neale. Last week buttons were issued for the student body to wear, which said, "West Virginia, 1932," but drastic measures have already been taken and this will be Neale's last year. He told the players in Detroit recently that he would not return in 1933. Athletic officials are considering Dr. Clarence W. Spears, head coach at Wisconsin, but the salary he now receives at Wisconsin far exceeds the amount that the state pays West Virginia.

The Mountaineers expect another defeat tomorrow at the hands of Marquette, a new rival. This mid-west team boasts a strong record. In 85 games played, they have won 65 and tied 4. This year they have lost but one game and that was to Wisconsin, 7-2.

The Wahos meet St. Johns and should win without the services of Edgar, star quarterback, who was injured in the V. M. I. game last week. Over in Richmond, Maryland and V. M. I. will stage their annual battle. Ray Poppelman who was recently dismissed from the Old Liners' team, has been reinstated but it is not certain that he will start Saturday.

Mitmen Face Tough Season

With Most of Veteran Team Back, Boxers Begin Training

With a week and a half of practice behind them, the aspirants for the varsity and the freshman boxing teams are gradually getting down to hard work in preparation for the opening of the boxing season on January 9.

The workouts are being directed by last year's monogram winners and will continue to be until the end of the football season. Then Coach Tilson, who is now occupied with football practice, will take over the reins. Tilson will be glad to have any freshman or upperclassman come out for the team. Practice starts every afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Meet Navy

The mitmen are taking on a tough assignment in the United States Naval Academy. The Navy has never lost a match at Annapolis. With only two lettermen, "Robbie" Robertson, and Tex Tilson, lost from last year's squad, the Generals hope to break the record or at least make a creditable showing.

Veteran men back this year and out for the squad are: Martin, who alternated with Tilson in the heavyweight division; Collins at 175 lbs.; Pound at 160 lbs.; Mincher at 145 lbs.; Farmer and Seraphine at 135; and Tucker at 125. Also Cleveland, Carmen and Mitchell from last year's freshman squad are trying out.

Schedule Listed

The varsity schedule is as follows:
January 9—St. Johns College.
January 12—North Carolina State.
February 6—University of Maryland.
February 11 or 12—Roanoke (pending).

The decks are all cleared and all hands on board for the big game of the year for us. Tech is here in all its glory and ready for the game. We believe they will return to Blacksburg sadder but much the wiser for their short stay here.

How did you like the proposition which Happy Vckers put before us on Thursday morning? Sounded mighty good to us. We are pulling for it to go through, for they have some smooth numbers over there.

When we first went into assembly on Thursday morning we were commencing to feel a little worried for fear of some one's safety. But Dr. Gaines soon put us wise to the reason for the rope being there. Think it would be a good idea to have it there when there is a chance of a long-winded speaker being on the program.

Horseshoe pitching is going very slow, the rain making the pits almost impossible to use. Very few upsets have occurred so far, but when the field is narrowed down they will commence to fall.

From the number of comments made after the assembly the other morning it seems as though Sweet Briar has a great number of followers in school.

It looks like some of the students are getting a little competition from some of the faculty members. Better be careful, boys, for you would hate to have a late date with one of your prof's best and then bust his course.

HOSPITAL NOTES
There were only two boys in the hospital on Thursday. J. E.

Guggenheim, of San Antonio, Texas, has been there for some time with a severe attack of the grippe. His condition is improved now, however, that he is expected to be out in a day or so.

Richard Cross, of Johnstown, N. Y., was also in the hospital, but he was released today.

Gene Vinson, of Meridian, Miss., who had an appendicitis operation which was entirely satisfactory, was released Thursday morning.

Cleveland, Ohio—(IP)—How a college graduate took the alumni roster of his school and toured the country inducing alumni in various cities to cash his allegedly worthless checks "for the sake of dear old alma mater," was revealed by detectives here.

The check-writer's trail ended here when police arrested Charles A. Springstead of Mountain Lake, N. Y., and charged him with issuing a check to defraud.

Springstead said he was a graduate of Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y., and he is charged specifically with passing a worthless check for $57 on Yateman Anderson of Cleveland Heights, another Hamilton graduate.

Roosevelt Popular Choice; Hoover Electoral

 dent of independent political persuasion who cast his lot and his state with Socialism, thirty-two states would have been left for Democracy but for the fact that only thirty-four states are represented in the entire student body.
 Statistics show that there are no students here from Arizona, Colorado, Idaho, Iowa, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Rhode Island, Utah, Washington, South Dakota, and Wyoming; but statistics also show that had all these states been represented and had all gone to Mr. Roosevelt, still the Democrats could not have won.

From the point of view of the popular vote, Roosevelt polled 52.59 per cent; Hoover, 38.56; and Thomas, 8.85 per cent. This does not include the faculty vote, which was, respectively, 64.52 per cent, 20.97 per cent, and 14.51 per cent.
 But for the Law school, the Democratic party would have eked out a small victory. The following table shows that it was in the School of Law that Mr. Roosevelt piled up most of his plurality. In the undergraduate departments Hoover ran almost neck and neck with his Democratic opponent, and with the votes polled for Thomas, won more than half of the student body.

How They Voted

Class	R	H	T
Freshmen	121	107	19
Sophomores	92	67	23
Juniors	67	61	10
Seniors	58	56	10
Freshman Law	40	6	2
Inter. Law	18	4	1
Senior Law	15	4	2
Grad. Studs.	4	0	3
Total	416	305	70

The great hue and cry that many, many votes will jump their parties bore no fruit in this straw vote. There was some desertion, of course, but contrary to rumors current in Lexington and around the University this favored the Republicans rather than the Democrats. Student ballots showed that:

28 Democrats voted Republican; 15 Socialist.
 16 Republicans voted Democratic; 12 Socialist.
 No Socialists jumped their ticket.

One Prohibitionist went Republican.
 Independents voted 17 Republican, 10 Democrat, and 7 Socialist.

Those conducting the straw vote express their thanks to students and faculty for full cooperation. The ballots on the whole were free from horse play. Less than a dozen had to be discarded because of votes for Miss Garbo, Miss Harlow, and Mr. Durant. Most of these were from the sophomore class.

Of the 791 votes cast, 507 were by students living in places of 10,000 and more population. Governor Roosevelt won 236 or 56.9 per cent of his votes from these urban districts; President Hoover's percentage, represented by 225 votes, was 73.7; and Mr. Thomas' 46 city votes gave him an urban percentage of 65.7.
 Of the 791 students voting, 530 were under age.

Generals Ready For Battle With V. P. I.

 of Alabama next week.
Battle Is Predicted
 Alumni and visitors, here for the gala Homecoming, students and townspeople, all predict a close battle and a hard fight. The Generals are going into the game as the underdog, and if past points and statistics can be relied upon, the Gobblers have an advantage of nearly 60 points. However, the Blue and White were doped to lose by 39 points last week, and the probability is that the upset will be even greater this time.
 Coach DeHart has been running the team through stiff practice sessions all week, and the scrimmages of the varsity against the frosh are even better than they were one week ago. The squad has been working on a new passing attack, which consists mainly of short passes over the line from Seaton to Sawyer, and this particular play should bring forth all the expected Homecoming thrills.

Injured Regulars Return
 The Homecoming crowds will probably see the return of two of the Generals' injured. Ruffner, hurt in the Davidson game, has been working out lightly with the squad all week, and should see service in the game. Jay Hen-thorne, injured in the Navy game, has again donned the moleskins, and there is a great chance that he will play also.
 Hanley has had the cast removed from his lamed wrist, and he may be among those fighting tomorrow, though the excellent relief work of both Charlie Smith and Thomas does not necessitate his return to the line-up too soon. Morris returned to the Generals last week, and played one half of the Indian game at Norfolk.

Large Crowd Expected
 For Homecoming the Generals could not have picked a better team or a more opportune time. The Gobblers are fast rising to be one of the great teams in the nation this year, and their presence and the Washington and Lee Homecoming should combine to draw a capacity crowd at Wilson field tomorrow. Early ticket sales have been excellent and there is every indication that the stadium will be filled to overflowing.
 V. P. I. has not been idle during this past week. Redd has charged his varsity again and again against the plebe eleven and has also instructed his men in lines of pass defense. The Generals are adept passers when the time is ripe, and Redd understands perfectly that Washington and Lee cannot be robbed by the untimely stop watch week after week. The Generals' line was impregnable last week against the Indians, and Redd plans to have his Gobblers take to the air for their hoped-for long gains and possible victory.

Credit Strong
 The finances of the Troubadours are under a very strict system this year. All expenditure invoices must be approved by the business managers before any expenditure is made, and all purchases are made for cash with no charge accounts allowed. At the present time the credit of the Troubadours is in the strongest position that it has ever seen since the founding of the organization.
 The business staff of the Troubadours will go into action next week canvassing for ads for the program for the Thanksgiving production. The program planned will be more elaborate than the last book program of the organization which was used when the organization presented the musical comedy "And How." It will contain many features of interest to the patrons of the Troubadours and will follow very closely the model set by Broadway shows.

Four Gridiron Battles Involve Future Rivals

 must be hurdled first.
 Tennessee will be favored to repeat its triumph of a year ago, but the going may be rougher than many expect.
 The University of Maryland will invade Richmond Saturday with the firm intention of registering its first Southern Conference victory of the season at the expense of V. M. I. Although the Old Liners outplayed Virginia in their first conference tilt, they lost 6 to 7, the Cavaliers recovering a fumbled ball back of the goal for their touchdown.
 In its other two games Maryland was outplayed by V. P. I. and Duke. With Tom Webb, star center back in the line-up, it won its first game last Saturday from St. Johns. V. M. I., fresh from its sensational victory over Virginia last Saturday, will be ready to make Maryland forget any hopes it has for victory.

V. M. I. Plays Maryland
 The V. M. I.-Maryland games have always been thrillers and this year will be no exception. Anticipating this, the Flying Squadron taking the entire Cadet corps with them to Richmond. Not since 1929 has a Cadet machine defeated Maryland. That year the Cadets won 7-6 in Richmond. In 1930 the Maryland team won 20-7, and last year, after leading 20-0 at the half, the Cadets were unable to stop a second-half assault and lost. The Cadets should rule as favorites this Saturday.
 Virginia, with two defeats stacked up against her already, will try to get out of the red this Saturday when she opposes St. Johns. This game should be no more than a warm up for the all important game with Washington and Lee next Saturday.

 and that because of this there is the contention that whatever progress was enjoyed in these civilizations is dead.
 "While I cannot prove that the future will be greater than the past, I can and do believe it. Instead of trying to refute the great minds who contend there is no real progress, I wish to find what truth there is in them and take that truth into me."
 "Instead of taking great time trying to disprove other theories, let me list for you ten of the hundreds of upward steps of mankind."
 The philosopher then enumerated as these great steps the following:
 Speech, Fire and Light, Conquest of the Animal (when man ceased being hunted and became the hunter), Agriculture, Permanent Advance of Social Organization, the Coming of Morality, Tools, Science, Writing and Painting and Other Means of Dissemination of Information, and Education.
 "Agriculture," he said, "was the greatest step after Speech. With Agriculture came civilization."
