Mesdames Veech, Stowe, Lammers Conduct Drive In Fraternities

A campaign to sell the seals of the National Tuberculosis Association is being started in Lexington today under the direction of Mrs. Alex Veech, Mrs. Marcellus Stowe and Mrs. Edward Lammers will canvass the fraternity houses, and seals will be on sale at the cashier's desk in McCrum's.

Although the National Tuberculosis Association is nation-wide in scope, its importance locally is of great extent. Last month 314 cases of tuberculosis were reported in Rockbridge County and the majority of these cases are being treated by the organization. There are three sanatoriums in the state of Virginia which treat only tubercular patients and which are supported by the National Tuberculosis Association. There are also several general clinics and two X-ray clinics in Rockbridge county provided for by the organization.

Mrs. Veech, in commenting on the drive about to be initiated, deplored the lack of undergraduate understanding of the purposes and importance of the work carried on by the National Tuberculosis Association.

According to an article in the December issue of the Reader's Digest, tuberculosis is still the leading killer of those between 15 and 40, and is annually responsible for 70,000 lives in the United States. By the sale of the Seal, however, this figure represents a reduction in death rate of 179 per 100,000 in 1907 to 54 today.

Funds realized from the sale of the seals have served to promote the organization of an anti-tuberculosis war in which are enlisted 1,000 tuberculosis associations which sponsor medical and social

Dr. Cole Outlines Policy Of Australia in Talk Before I. R. C. Tuesday

Dr. Percival R. Cole, vice chancellor of the University of Sydney, outlined Australia's international relations in a speech delivered before a meeting of the International Relations Club in Lee chapel Tuesday evening.

"The adoption of a power plan by Japan is a disturbing element in the Pacific," declared Dr. Cole, and the three great white powers, United States, England, and Australia, must prevent an invasion of Australia by the greatly overcrowded Asiatic countries.

Dr. Cole pointed out the importance of Australia as a trading nation, stating that Australia was "one of the big four countries in wheat exports." Dr. Cole also mentioned that Australia was the big wool exporting country. After the meeting a smoker was held under the auspices of the International Relations Club in honor of Dr. Cole in the new student union building.

Thanksgiving Staff Puts Out Tabloid Issue

In honor the editor, accompanied by approximately three-fourths of the staff, having left for a protracted Thanksgiving holiday, The Ring-tum Phi has deserted its staid conservatism and finds itself in tabloid form for this issue.

Hampered by a depleted staff, and motivated by a desire to let those remaining enjoy the benefits of a Thanksgivingtime comparatively free from hard labor, this tabloid nevertheless still attempts to cover the campus as well as the Atlanta Constitution covers Georgia "like the dew." We hope you agree with us.

Tabloid issues of The Ring-tum Phi usually come at least once a year—at Christmas time. This year the editors have subscribed to the doctrine of doing their Christmas shopping early—in the shape of this special Thanksgiving edition.

Sunday Movies Win Foothold

Buena Vista Theatre Owner Pays Fine in Test Case Trial

Buena Vista blazed the trail for other Rockbridge county towns to follow when they opened the doors of their moving picture house to the public on Sunday, with Marion Talley in "Follow Your Heart."

The show was well attended for the two performances. At the conclusion of the picture, the manager was brought into court and fined $10.00 by Mayor Griffith of Buena Vista. The case will be appealed to the City Corporation Court where it will be heard December 7.

Lexington movie-goers are casting anxious glances in the direction of Buena Vista. The case on December 7 might prove to be a test case and involve Lexington in its consequence.

Mid-Week Chapel will be held Wednesday in the student union.

WPA May Paint Portrait Of W & L Law School Founder

As a first step in gathering of portraits of distinguished men who have been connected with Washington and Lee's law school, the Lexington town council Thursday passed a resolution requesting the Federal Works Progress Administration through its art department to have painted and later to have hung in the law library here a portrait of Judge John White Brockenbrough.

John Brockenbrough was founder of the Brockenbrough school of law which later became the Washington and Lee law school. He was judge of the United States District Court for Western Virginia prior to the War Between the States.

Judge Brockenbrough founded the Brockenbrough law school in 1849 as the Lexington Law school

Generals Score First, But Lose To Terps, 19-6

7,500 See Washington and Lee End Season In Baltimore

Maryland's Terps put the finishing touches on the Generals' 1936 football season by running roughshod over the invading team from Lexington, 19-6, in the crucial game of the season yesterday. A crowd of 7,500 fans shivered through sixty minutes of sub-zero Thanksgiving football at the stadium in Baltimore.

The Old Liners played a head-up brand of ball, which was featured by a triple lateral pass after a pass interception. The Generals turned in a good exhibition of football, but the Terps in the latter part of the game arose to the occasion to stop any Washington and Lee uprisings.

The Big Blue team received the Maryland kick to open the game and then promptly walked 57 yards down the field to score without surrendering the ball. Don Dunlap ran the kick-off 34 yards to his own 43, almost breaking into the clear. Pres Moore and Dunlap collaborated to chalk up a first down in three plays. Don Dunlap lobbed a pass over the line to Bob Spessard for a 14-yard gain and another first down on the Maryland 21. After three running plays netted five yards, Dunlap picked out Frank Jones all alone in the end zone for a 16-yard gain and a touchdown. Willie Sample's try for the extra point was low as Willis got in the way of the ball.

An exchange of punts followed the next kick-off. Nearing the end of the opening stanza, the Old Liners started off on a touchdown drive. Guckeyson passed to Willis for 18 yards from his 29-yard line and followed it up with a shovel pass to Meade for 20. Meade's 18-yard dash to the Washington and Lee 15 ended the quarter. Charley Ellinger, Terp quarterback, bucked the line four times straight to

Maynard Warns Men On Minor Infractions Of W-L Honor System

Aptitude Tests Slated For Pre-Med Seniors

The Association of American Medical Colleges' aptitude test will be given December 4 at 3:00 p. m. in Washington College.

This test should be taken by all students who expect to apply for entrance to a medical school in the fall of 1937. It has been adopted by the Association as one of the normal requirements for admission, according to an announcement placed on the University bulletin board today.

Dr. V. C. Franks Speaks Sunday

Well Known Episcopal Rector Was Once Located In Lexington

Dr. Vincent C. Franks, nationally known Episcopal preacher and former rector of the Lee Memorial Episcopal church here, will preach at the local Episcopal church Sunday morning.

At the present time rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, Norfolk, Dr. Franks has declined calls to some of the largest Episcopal churches in the country, including St. Bartholemew's in New York. He was pastor of the local church from 1929 to 1933 and was one of the most popular preachers ever to address Washington and Lee students.

Dr. Franks served for four years in the Canadian army during the World War. He was an educator and an editor before entering the theological seminary.

In 1931 Washington and Lee conferred the degree of Doctor of Divinity upon him.

Professor Walls Plans Series of Lectures On French Paintings

A series of lectures on French paintings will be held in the near future by Professor F. S. Walls, assistant professor of romance languages and fine arts. The lectures will be held in Washington chapel and will be open to the townspeople as well as students.

In the series Professor Walls will deliver three lectures, the first being on the French Romanesque and Gothic Architecture. "The use of colored slides will make the lectures more interesting and will portray the subject with a greater clearness," Professor Walls said. The dates of these lectures will be posted on the University calendar in the near future.

Another series of lectures is planned for the second semester which will include subjects on French sculpture and Modern French Art.

President Calls for More Observance of Petty Case Violations

A direct warning to all students who exchange or borrow clothing without permission of the owners was issued today by Fletcher Maynard, president of the student body.

Due to a number of petty cases arising from the disappearance of clothing from the gymnasium and freshman dormitories, President Maynard stated that some action had to be taken to prevent any further violations.

"I realize that some of the students do not understand the functions of the honor system as well as they should," he said, "but that will not be an excuse for any such infringements in the future. The case of any student who borrows the possessions of another student without the owner's permission will be dealt with as a major violation of the honor system."

Quite a few recent cases of missing clothing have turned out to be the result of a student's borrowing an article of clothing from a friend's locker in the gym, or from a room in the dormitory, and then forgetting to return it later. Not only has this proved to be inconvenient to the unconscious lender, but it has also led to several unnecessary reports to the Executive Committee.

Most of the cases have been unintentional violations, according to Maynard, but these endanger the honor system and will not be tolerated in the future.

Mrs. Flournoy Wins UDC Convention Prize

Mrs. William Cabell Flournoy, mother of Dr. Fitzgerald Flournoy, was awarded a prize of $25.00 for the best paper on "The Part Southern Men Have Had in Expanding This Nation" at the General U. D. C. convention held in Dallas, Texas, last week.

Mrs. Flournoy has been very active in U. D. C. work for the past years and the award comes as a reward for her services to the society.

Calyx Meeting

There will be an important meeting of the business staff of the Calyx at 7:30 Monday in The Ring-tum Phi offices in the basement of Tucker Hall. The meeting has been called to discuss the issue of special blotters advertising the 1936 Calyx.

Play Rehearsals

L. E. Watkin, Troubadour director, announced today the rehearsals for "Overture" for act one will be held Wednesday night and acts two and three on Friday night. Both rehearsals take place at 7:30. "Overture" will be given December 10, 11, and 12.

"IT IS MORE BLESSED TO GIVE THAN TO RECEIVE"

With Christmas approaching, the time of year is at hand when welfare agencies by the hundred thousands are carrying on drives for funds. Local Community Chests, the Red Cross, and the National Tuberculosis Association head a long list of organized charities which annually conduct campaigns for the relief of the distressed.

There is no question of the responsibility which faces everyone who has his head above water, financially speaking, to aid such groups as the ones cited. They have proved their efficiency and usefulness over a period of years long enough to recommend their continuance in the absence of adequate governmental discharge of the functions which they perform.

The question of individual responsibility, for lack of a government charity tax, is left entirely to individual conscience. It then becomes incumbent on everyone who is not himself a social casualty to give almost "until it hurts." The sacrifice of a few movies, even a dance or two, is not too big a price to pay for the alleviation of the troubles of some poverty-stricken or disease-ridden fellow being.

WHY THOSE PATHS ACROSS THE CAMPUS?

Since the recent construction work on buildings began here last year, the greensward of this campus has been fast disappearing under the punishing tread of workmen and trucks. Where once was an unbroken stretch of grass, the back of the campus now resembles a gravel pit.

Seemingly made negligent by the loss of beauty in the rear campus, the students at large now seem to be making a determined attempt to destroy the front campus. Half a dozen paths have sprung up, cutting directly across what used to be a lovely stretch of grass. When spring comes round next year back of the campus will be replanted, but unless students begin using the concrete walks, and they alone, these paths in front will never be eradicated.

MURDER AT GENEVA

Besieged by burly ruffians in the persons of economic imperialism, bristlingly aggressive corporate states, pugilistic rightists and leftists, and swaggering dictator-orators, the League of Nations, that pale, frail, white angel born of the idealism of Woodrow Wilson, is in the death throes.

The death rattle comes as no surprise to students of international relations who saw failure foredoomed in the unfortunate founding of the League upon the Treaty of Versailles, that document of greed and hatred, in the woeful lack of real authority invested in the League, and in the lack of an international military unit to enforce the decisions of the league.

American students generally are prone to scoff at the League of Nations either deriding its weakness which in some measure was caused by American failure to enter the League, or harking back to the immortal words of a certain soldier, Mr. George Washington, "No foreign entanglements."

The best reply to the words of the man who, because he was the father of his country, could undoubtedly foresee and understand perfectly international affairs 150 years beyond him, is the statement of Dr. Harry N. Howard that "the United States has played an active part in every world conflict in modern history" which he follows with an enumeration of seven such world conflagrations.

But now the League is dying, or dead. With the last vestige of rationality and arbitration wiped away, the arena is nearly cleared for the settling of international problems with blasting shells, screaming airplanes, and ripping bayonets. Now will come a mad dance of alliances and alignments with an ever-tightening circle of armaments and military preparation and soon all the world will be aflame in the next world war.

It may come within months or a few years or ten, but it will come, and eventually the United States, after first carefully choosing the side of justice, truth, and freedom, will set valiantly forth to save the world from dictators—keeping the world safe for democracy. That, you see, is progress; that is civilization. "Time Marches On!"—Miami Student.

THE EASY CHAIR

By EVERETT AMIS

No school in the country can boast a tradition more glorified or more respected than the honor system of Washington and Lee. This is pointed out to every student when he matriculates in this university, and it is also made clear that some of the soundest ideals and principles of this institution rest upon the foundation of this honor system. Recently, however, there have been a great many minor violations due to ignorance of its full meaning. These violations have been dulling the glamour of the honor system and should be remedied without further delay.

A student of Washington and Lee should realize that the honor system is not to be regarded lightly. Certainly he is aware of the fact that without it he would be denied many of the privileges granted by this university and carried out in accordance with the honor system. He would probably be under a strict set of rules, study hours might be enforced, he could no longer leave books unguarded on the campus, and there would be a prevailing atmosphere of distrust. Dear as these privileges are to the average Washington and Lee student, however, it is obvious that not enough effort is being made to understand thoroughly the functions of the honor system, and this is being evidenced in the number of minor cases being brought before the Executive Committee. These cases not only tend to destroy the real purpose of the honor system, but they are entirely unnecessary and should be corrected.

According to Fletcher Maynard, president of the student body, the majority of these trifling cases arise in the dormitories and the gymnasium. A typical case would be as follows: a student goes down to the gym for a class, finds he has forgotten his tennis shoes, and borrows some from a nearby locker without saying anything to their owner. After the class, his gym clothes, plus the tennis shoes, are thrust hurriedly into his locker so that he can dress in time to make his next class. He may have forgotten about the shoes, and since his next gym class may not meet for two or four days, the owner in the meantime finds them missing the next day. Their failure to appear either causes him inconvenience, or results in his reporting the matter to the Executive Committee. The same applies to freshmen in the dormitories who borrow a tie or shirt from the boy next door and forgets to return them. These incidents have become too frequent recently, according to Maynard, and any new cases will be treated as a major violation of the honor system. On this move, the student body president is to be lauded.

Only recently the fraternities put a new plan into operation by requiring every freshman in their midst to stand an examination on the meaning of the honor system. The flaw in this plan, however, was that the upperclassmen and non-fraternity men escaped the examination, and although every upperclassman should already understand the system fully, it is a sad truth that a great number of them do not. We are inclined to believe that an examination for the entire student body would not be out of place.

It is fortunate that President

Maynard has taken a definite step to curb these minor and unintentional violations, but it is the duty of every member of the student body to acquaint himself more thoroughly with the honor system and to cooperate in ending any further misunderstandings. Our failure to do so may allow the greatest tradition of this university to lose the prestige which it now possesses.

Va. Tech Win Gives Generals Virginia Title

6-0 Upset of VMI Makes Washington and Lee State Grid Champs

A fighting V. P. I. football team gave Washington and Lee another Virginia State Championship this year by defeating V. M. I. 6-0 yesterday. The Generals' record this year in the state is three wins and no losses.

The Keydets, until yesterday led with Washington and Lee for he state lead, were heavy favorites after their victory over Maryland last week; but the Gobblers rom Virginia Tech were out to keep clear their string of V. M. I. victories.

Taking the ball on the opening kick-off, Marvin Choger ran 65 yards to the V. M. I. 35-yard line. Five plays later Mel Henry went over for the only score of the game.

Time after time the Flying Squadron went deep into Tech territory, but every time they were browned back. In the closing minute of the game a pass was rounded on the Tech goal line, and with it were grounded the Keydets' last hopes for a State title.

The first step to the Washington and Lee crown was a 13-0 victory of the University of Virginia here Bill Borries intercepted a pass and ran down the sideline for the first touchdown. Don Dunlap scored from the three-yard line or the other goal. Then at Homecoming the Blue and White beat the Gobblers by 27-0. Sample scored twice and Moore and Dunlap crossed the goal line with long runs. Playing William and Mary at Norfolk the Washington and Lee team won by the close margin of 13-7, with Sample and Pres Moore doing the scoring.

Virginia Tech's victory also put them up in second place, pushing M. I. down to third place. The final standings are as follows:

Team	W	L
Washington and Lee	3	0
Virginia Tech	4	1
M. I.	3	1
Richmond	1	3
Virginia	1	2
W. and M.	0	5

Swimming Team Starts Daily Practice Monday; Frosh at 4; Varsity at 5

Beginning Monday the swimming team will take daily workouts. Previous to this time the team has been working out only once a week. The freshman squad will practice at four o'clock, and the varsity team will drill at five o'clock.

The team thus far has been swimming lengths, beginning with six and working up to twenty-five, practicing starts and turns, kicking with the surf-boards, and swimming with only the arms by using water-wings.

Coach Twombly as yet has not met the team in any sprints, but plans to do so in the very near future.

When the late Rev. Dr. Carl G. Rickson became president of Upland College in 1920, the school had only 16 students. The present enrollment is about 400.

Following the BIG BLUE

By ROBERT NICHOLSON

To everyone interested in the welfare of Washington and Lee athletics, the announcement that track practice will begin this year earlier than usual is indeed welcome. It is assurance of Coach Fletcher's plan to regain for the Generals some of their lost prestige on the cinder paths.

Fletcher, who was captain of the best track team of his day at Notre Dame, has brought many conference championships to Washington and Lee. However, in the last few years the lack of interest has cut the position of General track teams to a low inconsistent with the school.

To regain some of this lost glory became an ambition of Coach Forest Fletcher. First step in his program was the winning of the Virginia freshman cross-country title in 1935. This victory was followed by a successful freshman track season last spring, which was culminated by the winning of the Virginia state title. Taking up at this point, Fletcher directed both varsity and freshman cross-country teams to state titles this fall, and the varsity squad also turned in a splendid race to finish second in the conference run.

The logical step to follow is to build a strong team for this spring, as Fletcher expressed it. "To do this requires that every man be in top shape throughout the season, and that everyone who can run come out and do his best toward building a strong squad."

In contrast to previous years when practice began late in January and the men scarcely had time to get in shape for the first indoor season, Fletcher has ordered early practices this year that he can work on every available man.

"For two months we will devote our practices to just getting in shape. There will be no racing. In this way every man, whether he has ever done any competitive running before or not, will find out what he is suited for and will have ample chance to train himself. Teamwork will also play a part in the practices, as well as personal workouts. In a strong all-around team lies our biggest chance for success."

The day of track supremacy for North Carolina and Duke is done, if Washington and Lee continues the path of success they have been treading the past year and more. Individual stars from last year's varsity and the freshman champs are ready to go. But the team requires others to help build the strong team Fletcher wants. To these men who have not competed here before falls the main burden of producing the winning team.

To a better track team!

score, gaining 13 yards on his first try, and shorter distances until the last plunge required only six inches. Daly's placement was wide.

It was early in the second quarter after Washington and Lee received the kick-off that another drive was started. Preston Moore romped down the side lines to Maryland's 31, preceded by two blockers. Ray Craft just tipped the fingers of Frank Jones on a pass that looked good for a touchdown. Another pass resulted in a triple lateral, when Maryland intercepted. From the Generals' 31, where the play finally stopped, Willis ran for seven yards on an end run, and Ellinger broke loose over right guard for the last 16 yards and a touchdown. Again Daly's kick was wide.

After blocking one of Moore's kicks, Maryland failed to take advantage of a scoring chance. Guckeyson gained on a forward from Ellinger, but nullified the play when he tried to lateral to Willis and passed forward instead. Another Terp score went glimmering when a 21-yard pass, Guckeyson to Headley in the end zone was recalled and a 15-yard penalty was inflicted.

Willie Sample halted the only scoring rush in the third quarter when he intercepted a Maryland pass. Play as a whole in this period was about on even terms.

Guckeyson, Maryland's all-American candidate, made a bid for greatness in the final stanza. He began by punting from midfield to the Washington and Lee one-yard line, where Willis touched it dead as it was about to go into the end zone. The play gave Maryland a scoring chance which frizzled as Guckeyson tried to dropkick a field goal from an acute angle. Pres Moore got off a beautiful 70-yard boot to put the ball on the Maryland 20, but not to be outdone Guckeyson topped it by booting from his own 18 out of bounds on the opposite four—a distance of 78 yards.

After exchanging punts, Guckeyson broke loose for the longest run of the day to sprint down the west side lines for 33 yards and a first down on the Generals' 16. It looked as though the scoring threat was stopped when a fourth

By BILL BYRN

The acme in the felicitation and enjoyment of the academic grind under the lecture system has recently been attained at the Richmond Medical College. The junior class of medicos there are using a plan under which one member of the class acts as secretary, taking notes while all the rest "jes' sit an' listen." Periodically, the secretary gets out mimeographed copies of his notes, which he distributes to the others for a nominal fee. The proponents of the plan claim that the purely muscular matter of penning words so harasses and wearies the pupil that he has neither the time nor the inclination to grasp the full significance of the material. He is too busy taking notes to weigh, correlate and arrange his subject matter for retention. Under the new plan, a student also may compare his own ideas and those acquired in the usual collateral reading with the lecture.

The Richmond boys also point to the advantages of a full set of mimeographed notes over the scribbled with which many of us fill our notebooks.
