

Gary H. Dobbs III, Biology Professor, Dead At 33

by Todd Smith

W&L Biology Professor Gary H. Dobbs III, 33, shot and killed himself in his cabin home on the morning of Dec. 31. His body was found the next day by President Robert E. R. Huntley and three others.

Speaking at Monday's faculty meeting, Huntley said that in a letter Dobbs stated he was unsatisfied with his personal and professional achievement and would take his life.

Dobbs' remains were cremated without a service and will be scattered this afternoon at 5:00 on the front campus by President Huntley.

"In the fall we will have a new person," said Thomas Nye, chairman of the Biology department. "But we will never be able to replace what the university has lost, what the department has lost, and, most of all,

what the students have lost."

Dobbs, awarded a Ring-tum Phi award last year for "epitomizing a gentleman," was a popular figure on campus. He had 30 advisees, more than anyone in the department, and still had to turn students away.

Dobbs entered Washington and Lee as a student in 1966, the year Nye began teaching here. "By the time he was a senior he was totally devoted to the ideals and traditions of Washington and Lee," said Nye.

Nye and Huntley both said that no matter how successful Dobbs was, he could never be fully satisfied. Huntley stressed that Dobbs felt this way since before he entered W&L.

"I believe he carried that burden as long as I've known him," said Nye.

"There is no guilt to be assumed by the faculty, the students or the family."

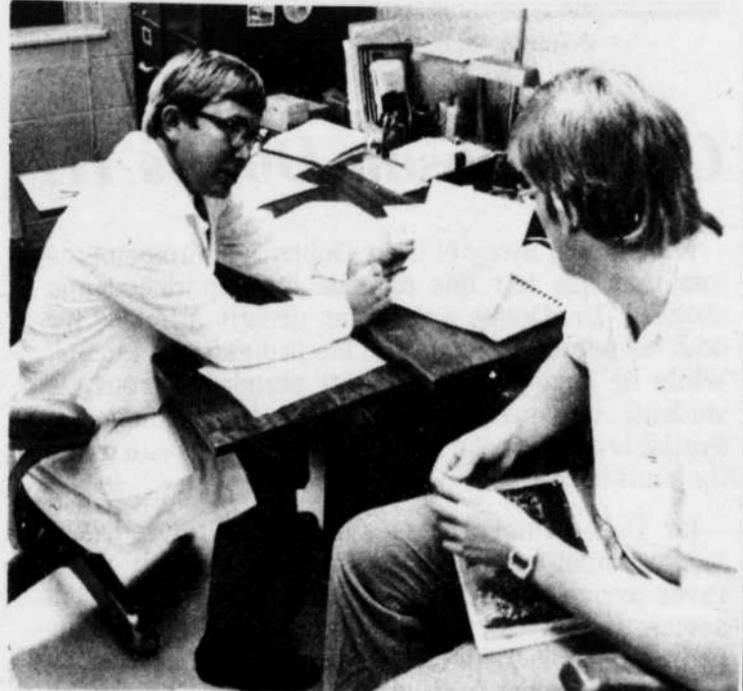

"A videotape with a personal message to each member of the (Biology) department for what they had meant to him" was left, according to Nye. Dobbs had been in charge of writing guidelines for the department's new video equipment.

Letters were left for colleagues, the Ring-tum Phi, the president and his father. Flowers were sent by Dobbs to secretaries in Washington Hall.

His message to the Ring-tum Phi included an open letter to his advisees (printed on page 2).

On Jan. 1, Huntley noticed in his mail a letter from Dobbs postmarked in Lexington Dec. 31. The letter directed Huntley to find Dobbs' will in the professor's office.

George Gallup Jr. Speaks Here Tonight

George Gallup Jr., president of The Gallup Poll, will speak at Washington and Lee tonight at 8 in Lee Chapel.

Gallup is the second visiting speaker in the university's Contact series, a speaker symposium jointly sponsored by the Interfraternity Council and the Executive Committee at Washington and Lee. The speech will be open to the public free of charge.

A 1953 graduate of Princeton University, Gallup has worked in all phases of The Gallup Poll's operations. He formerly served as editor of the poll. He has been the president since 1966.

Gallup is the author of numerous articles on public opinion research methods and also writes frequently on other topics.

George Gallup Jr.

The 51-year-old Gallup is also on the board of directors of the Gilbert and Sullivan Association of Princeton, N.J., and has played numerous lead roles with that company.

He is co-director of the Princeton Religion Research Center and a member of advisory councils of the departments of sociology and religion at Princeton. He is on the board of directors of The Roper Public Opinion Research Center at Williams College.

Gallup has been awarded honorary degrees by Georgian Court College in 1975, Glassboro State College in 1976, and Rider College in 1977.

The first speaker in the Contact symposium was former interior secretary Stewart Udall.

S.A.B. Appears Before E.C., Says F.D. Will Cost $55,000

by Ben Jarratt

The Student Activities Board presented its monthly budget report, including an estimated Fancy Dress budget of $55,000, at the E.C. meeting on Monday night.

The Executive Committee also heard reports from the Student Emergency Loan Committee, the Cold Check Committee and the Computer Club.

"The whole idea of a budget scares me," stated SAB co-chairman John Martin. The SAB can only estimate expenses and past Fancy Dress Balls have lost money.

Co-chairman Blake Wither-ington added the SAB spent $38,000 last year after setting a budget of $31,000.

Fancy Dress will be held in Warner Gym, allowing for larger crowds. Both co-chairmen said increased ticket sales should provide extra revenue.

Fancy Dress will be open to alumni this year, according to Martin. The W&L Alumni Magazine has written an article about the upcoming ball and the Alumni House is compiling a list of alumni over the past ten years. Martin added over 600 letters will be mailed out about the Ball. He also expressed interest in contacting P.M. Magazine about covering the weekend event.

Witherington said students will be allowed to bring guests, but this will probably be limited to only one guest ticket per student.

"It's a school function," stated Witherington. "The SAB wants to limit the number of non-W&L students. Advanced tickets will cost $25-$30 at the door.

Martin added the SAB will be sponsoring a "Reggae Party" Friday, January 15, in Evans Dining Hall.

"It's got to be a success," stated Martin. "The dining hall could be a potential alternative for concerts."

Martin added Gerald Darrell, director of the dining hall, was concerned about potential abuse of the hall by students. Extra security will be added to prevent any trouble.

Kip Gordon won the SAB Backgammon Tournament. First prize was a free ski trip for two to Snowshoe. Martin also added he was still working with the Ring-tum Phi over getting lower advertising rates.

Eric Kolts reported that the Student Emergency Loan Committee gave out eight loans totaling $1010 just before the Christmas Break.

"Most of the students needed money to go home," said Kolts. One needed to get his car fixed and another needed money for gas. (continued on page 8)

Darrell, S.A.B. Agree On D-Hall Concert Program

by John Wells

The Student Activities Board is planning a busy winter term that will include the groundbreaking initiative of featuring musical entertainment in Evans Dining Hall.

SAB co-chairman John Martin expresses hope that a Jan. 16 appearance in the dining hall by a Jamaican reggae band will open the doors for similar events in the future. Food Services Director Jerry Darrell has restricted activity there to Fancy Dress, The Superdance and the S.A.B.U. Ball due to damage inflicted by rowdy students when a band played there some years ago.

Darrell has given Martin and Bob Schmidt the go ahead for the upcoming event due largely to their success in other endeavors. It was their popular "Tuesdays at the Pit" concert program that helped pull Darrell's financially troubled Cockpit out of the red last fall.

Martin stresses that student attendance and behavior at the Evans concert will determine whether such special events will be staged there in the future. Due to Darrell's concern that disorderly conduct might violate a Virginia ABC Board ordinance, there will be heavy security at the concert, and (continued on page 8)

REVIEW and OUTLOOK

Editorial Opinion of The Ring-tum Phi

Gary Hobson Dobbs III

The passing away of Gary Dobbs is an unfortunate loss that has left this campus both saddened and shocked. Dr. Dobbs was a man greatly admired for both his personal charm and his professional talents. While he expected the highest standards from his students, he vowed, above all else, to make himself available to anyone in need. Few professors can make the same boast.

Dr. Dobbs' final choice leaves one bewildered. Why would a man with so many things apparently in his favor arrive at such a conclusion? The answer, it seems, is that Gary Dobbs made a choice that appeared sensible to him but for us was unfortunate.

We may never fully understand how the human mind operates. Likewise, there is no justification for Gary Dobbs' decision — it ended the life of a man who had much to give.

Gary Dobbs provided us with knowledge, dignity and compassion. For these reasons he will be greatly missed by all.

Football Information Requested

Dear Sir:

In 1954 I was one of the last recruited football athletes of W&L. I learned that I was not going to attend W&L in the press in the Spring of that year.

In the past I have been in communication with other officials of the university (Frank Parsons, John Hughes), in regards to the 1954 situation and the novel The Hero by Millard Lampell. I am again into that stage of nostalgia and 'the way things might have been,' and would like to know if your offices still carry information dealing with the dropping of subsidized football in the year of '54.

I would appreciate any information that might be forthcoming.

Thank you.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE ADVISEES AND STUDENTS OF PROFESSOR GARY HOBSON DOBBS, III

Each of you will remember that on our first meeting I made a commitment to be there whenever you needed me for help with your academic work and the forging of your future. Due to circumstances beyond my control I am no longer able to honor that commitment. You should not interpret this to mean that I have in any way lost faith or confidence in you. The happiest moments of my life have been spent in your company and it is with heartfelt pride that I look back on our time together. In the years to come as you reflect on our work together I hope to be remembered as a friend and teacher whose optimism for and interest in each of you knew no bounds. You hold the key to the future of Washington and Lee University and I know that future to be in the best of hands.

Sincerely,
Gary Hobson Dobbs, III
Associate Professor of Biology
Washington and Lee, 1970

Congratulations!

Dear Sir:

On behalf of the W&L football cheerleaders I would like to take the opportunity to congratulate the football team on winning the 1981 ODAC championship.

You men had a fine season, one unsurpassed in almost 20 years and it was apparent in your games that the quality of your ball playing earned you your rightful title of champions. Coach Fallon, your coaching brought your men some of their best wins and it is with great pride we would like to also congratulate you on being named the 1981 ODAC coach of the year.

Sincerely yours,
Debbie Autrey

Huntley called Dean Watt and Eric Sisler, University Attorney, and went to Dobbs' office in Parmly Hall. There he found the will and other personal documents in careful order.

Huntley located Dr. William Old, and went to Dobbs' home in many weeks or even months ago." The will, which has yet to be made public, names the university as executor.

Dobbs stipulated that the W&L make no official statement nor hold any type of memorial service. Huntley has expressed his desire to comply with this wish and the news of-

Sigma Chi social fraternity, the freshman honor society and Phi Beta Kappa.

Dobbs earned his Ph.D. at the University of California at San Diego. He did further graduate work at the University of Chicago and Duke Medical School.

Though still a young man, Dobbs had published three of his own articles and co-authored six more.

Dobbs was granted tenure last year as an associate professor and became eligible to take a sabbatical. He declined it.

Dobbs' eagerly participated in special conferences and alumni workshops. He greeted incoming freshmen, and addressed the class of '83 during its freshman orientation. He spoke at last year's senior banquet.

"We called on him several times and he was always delightful," said Frank Parsons, Assistant to the President. "He was such an articulate spokesman for the teaching profession and the way Washington and Lee tries to work with its students."

It was estimated that Dobbs shot himself between 3 and 4 a.m. on Dec. 31.

Dobbs was examined by Dr. F.A. Feddeman and taken to the Harrison Funeral Home.

The will was dated Dec. 17, and Huntley told the faculty that "from these documents and other circumstances, it is clear that Dr. Dobbs' preparations for his own death began

The amount of his bequest to the university will be released when the will becomes probate.

Dobbs is survived by his sister and his father, who lives in Birmingham, Ala. The two will be in Lexington this afternoon for the distribution of Dobbs' ashes.

Dobbs was born in Birmingham in 1948. He graduated from Washington and Lee with a B.S. in biology and the highest grade point average in his class. He was a member of the Applications are invited for the positions of Freshman Dormitory Counselors for the 1982-83 academic year. These positions are among the most responsible entrusted to Washington and Lee students.

D.C. Applications Sought

On the basis of past experience, certain guidelines for the selection of Dormitory Counselors have been established. Applicants must be at least current sophomores, and should not have commitments after 8:00 p.m. which would routinely take them away from the dormitory for any appreciable time. While counselorships are not awarded on an academic basis, a student who has failed to maintain a 2.0 average would probably not be selected. Any counselor who is placed on Academic Probation after being selected will be asked to resign.

In order to insure their availability to counselees, counselors are provided with a single room in the dormitory and with the dinner meal, which they are expected to eat in Evans Dining Hall. Each counselor will also be expected to live in his dormitory room seven nights a week and MAY NOT SHARE THE RENTAL ON OR HAVE AN OFF-CAMPUS APARTMENT.

The primary basis for selection of dormitory counselors will be the applicant's general fitness in making the dormitories a pleasant and suitable living quarters for a student's freshman year. Each applicant is encouraged to obtain from the Office of the Dean of Students a copy of the statement describing more fully the goals of our counseling system, the personality characteristics thought needful in a counselor and the skills the position requires.

STUDENTS WHO ARE PRESENTLY DORMITORY COUNSELORS and who wish to apply for next year should submit LETTERS to this effect to the Office of the Dean of Students, Payne Hall 6, by 4:00 p.m. on FRIDAY, JANUARY 8. Returning candidates should also indicate if they wish to apply for Head Counselor or Assistant Head Counselor.

NEW APPLICANTS FOR COUNSELOR POSITIONS in the freshman dormitories should submit LETTERS to this effect to the Office of the Dean of Students, Payne Hall 6, by 4:00 p.m. on FRIDAY, JANUARY 15. Such letters should indicate any previous counseling experience and the reason(s) for wanting the position. Further details concerning duties and responsibilities can be obtained from Rob Staugaitis, Head Dormitory Counselor, and Kelly Moles, Ben Muskin, Bob Shaver, Jim Wenke, and Brook Wright, Assistant Head Counselors. The interviewing committees will be composed of the Head Dormitory Counselor, two Assistant Head Counselors, and members of the Office of the Dean of Students. Applicants will be notified by mail of the time for their interviews after January 15.

Bridge-Sitters Needed

A nearby geological landmark which has become the ultimate tourist trap will be the subject of a month-long exhibit in the duPont Gallery during the winter term. "So Beautiful and Arch: Images of Natural Bridge 1787-1889" will be exhibited from January 4-29.

Many of the loaned paintings are old and valuable, requiring someone to sit in the gallery during its weekday hours. The Fine Arts Department will donate $1.50 for each hour of student volunteer service to the Muscular Dystrophy campaign.

Students interested in volunteering on an hourly basis Monday through Friday next term should sign up with Laura De Maria in the duPont Art office.

Two Matches Scheduled

Wrestlers To Visit N. Carolina

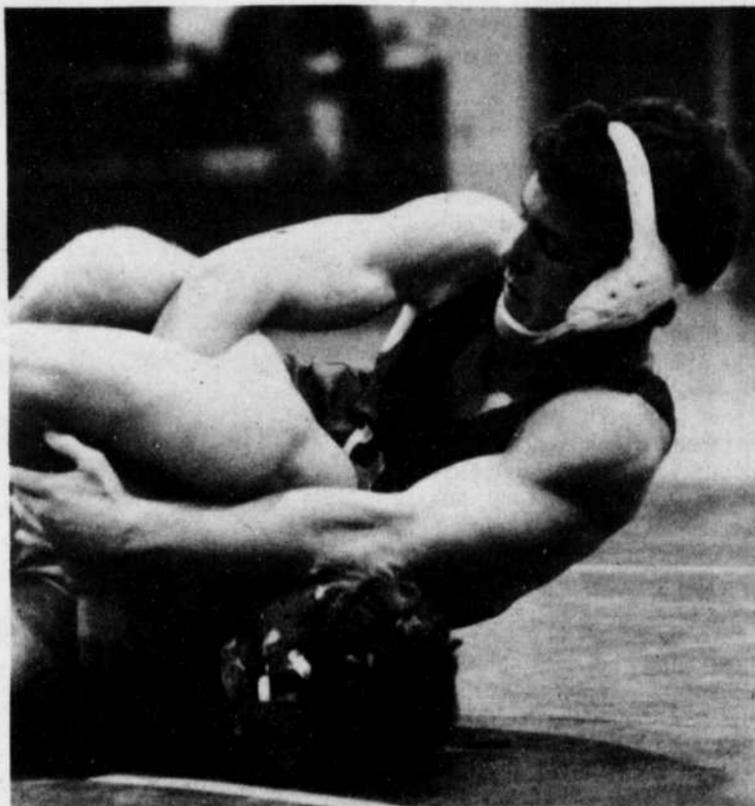

The Washington and Lee wrestling team will take its 1-1 record to North Carolina this weekend for matches with Campbell College Friday and Duke Saturday.

On Friday, January 8 the Generals will visit Buies Creek to face Campbell University. On Saturday, Jan. 9 the team will be in Durham for a contest with Duke University.

"Along with VMI, whom we faced back in December, these are the toughest opponents on the schedule," comments ninth-year head coach Gary Franke on the foes, both of which are members of the NCAA Division I category while the Generals belong to Division III. "We compete against these teams on a regular basis, taking on Duke in a dual match each season and having Campbell come to our Invationals."

Coach Gary Franke and Sophomore Captain Tim Valliere are encouraged by the Generals' start and believe that the team's 10 freshmen will be able to make a contribution. Said Valliere, "They've been here for a whole term and should be familiar with the program by now."

As for the upcoming matches, Franke said "I hope we can match up in the lower weight divisions." Most of the starting spots in 118 to 150 pound classes

The Generals will take a 1-1 record into the trip, the results being a 42-8 win over Lynchburg College and a 25-14 loss to VMI. The Duke and Campbell contests are two of 11 total dual matches for W&L this season.

W&L's line-up for the trip is complete with the exception of the 167-pound class, which Franke says will be finalized

Bowled Over At Christmas Time

Over the Christmas break most of us had more than our fill of football. Almost every other day of the holiday we were treated to some bowl game featuring two teams that we know almost nothing about. Most of these games are meaningless in the final standings but are intended to give the players and coaches some type of honor. One has to wonder what kind of honor it is to have to practice for a month after the season and be away from your family and friends during the holiday for one game.

Realistically, there are four or five important bowls that have bearing on the final standings and the determination of the national champion. Ironically, all these bowls take place on the same day and what some college teams have worked for virtually the year round is decided within a matter of hours. Maybe they had a better idea in 1951.

In 1951, one of the earliest years of the national college football poll, there were only four bowls after the regular season, the Orange, Rose, Gator, and Sugar bowls. In that same season the Washington and Lee Generals compiled an 8-2 season and, as a participant in major college competition, were ranked as high as thirteenth in the nation.

These were the days of such W&L greats as Joe McCutcheon, Jim Stark and the "General of the Generals" Gil Bocetti, an option quarterback heralded as "the master of the fake and the pitchout." At the end of the 1951 season, after playing Maryland, North Carolina, Virginia Tech, and Florida among others, the Generals had only fallen to number one ranked Tennessee and highly ranked University of Virginia. This impressive performance earned the Generals an invitation to the Gator Bowl.

The game pitched an underated W&L team against an undefeated Wyoming squad, one of the three most impressive teams in the country. Wyoming brought a threatening running attack with Vern Gale, a wingback, Eddie Talboom, a triple threat all-American tailback, and an all-conference blocking back Dick Campbell.

A major break for Wyoming was the timely arrival of appendicitis for W&L leader Walt Michaels now head coach of the New York Jets. Michaels, a player of double worth for his work as a fullback and linebacker, came down with appendicitis only twenty-four hours before the game in Jacksonville. That loss proved to be critical for the Generals.

A crowd of 26,000 fans, 5,000 from W&L, attended the New Year's day game billed as "the battle between the West and the South." The cowboys of Wyoming struck with two touchdowns in the second quarter and another in the third. The Generals could only muster a late fourth quarter touchdown as the game ended in a 20-7 victory and a perfect season for Wyoming.

Athletic Director Bill McHenry, then a member of the W&L freshmen squad, remembers that game as one of the last great games in that era of Generals football. W&L dropped from major college competition in 1953 and has since become a member of NCAA division three competition.

Nowadays in the light of such subspecies as the tangerine and peach bowls and other honorable events such as the astro-bluebonnet bowl (whatever an astro bluebonnet is), a bowl invitation is not such a respected thing. Maybe they had a better idea in 1951.

Cagers Win, Now At .500

by G. Bruce Potter

John Lee Graves and Brian Hanson paced a 16-4 scoring spree midway through the second half as the Washington and Lee basketball team evened their record at 3-3 with a 62-53 victory over Swarthmore College Tuesday night.

The Generals had the lead at the half by a count of 23-18, but Swarthmore, playing an aggressive defense, came back to take a 26-24 lead with 14:45 left in the game. Hanson, who led the Generals with 16 points, hit a jumper from the left side and a bank shot to give W&L a two point lead.

Following Swarthmore's Ron Bradley's third consecutive basket to knot the score at 28 for the final time, Graves connected on four straight free throws to give W&L the lead that they would never relinquish.

Swarthmore had kept the game close through the first half by playing a patient offense, taking only wide open shots. This way, they managed to jump out to a 4-0 lead, but the Generals came back and quickly tied the score at six.

Washington and Lee was also helped by two technicals called on the Swarthmore coaching staff as Graves, who finished with 15 points, hit on all four of the foul shots.

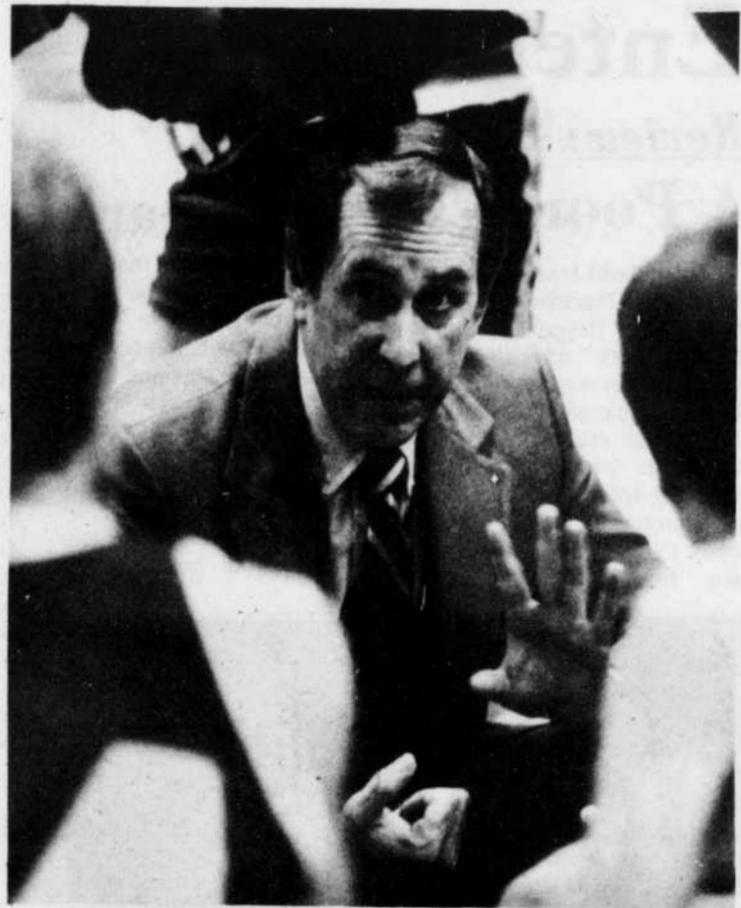

The game was all but sealed for W&L when Graves hit from the left side, was fouled, but missed the free throw. However, sophomore Chris Baldwin pulled down the rebound and fired around the court to Graves, who made the hoop from the same location as he had only seconds before. This gave the Generals a 46-37 lead with only 6:30 remaining.

Despite Graves' fouling out with 3:51 left, W&L clinched the victory by sinking eight of their last 11 shots from the charity stripe. For the game, they hit 22 of 28 (78.6%) from the line and 20 of 36 (55.5%) from the floor. The Generals had been ranked third in shooting percentage and fifth in free throw percentage in the nation entering the contest.

However, one of the contributors to those statistics, sophomore guard Henry Bond, failed to meet the academic guidelines required by the university and was subsequently dismissed. Bond, who had started the Generals last game against Allegheny College, was averaging 10.8 points per game and was hitting on 72% of his shots. Billy Yates, who scored five points Tuesday night, is replacing him in the lineup.

The team had closed out their pre-vacation portion of the schedule by downing Allegheny College 67-62 on Dec. 9. In that matchup, junior reserve forward Jay Fechtel only scored four points, but they were perhaps the most crucial of the game for W&L. With 6:28 left in the game, Allegheny, who had trailed by nine, 33-24, at the half, took the lead 54-53. However, Fechtel first tapped in a George Spears shot that was off the mark and then hit a shot himself to give the Generals a 57-54 lead with only 3:40 remaining in the game. Allegheny pulled within one at 57-56, but Graves, who scored 18 points and led the team with ten rebounds, hit two free throws to ice the game.

Hanson led the squad with 20 points, and he also pulled down seven boards. Bond added 14 points, including an 8-11 performance from the foul line.

Head Coach Verne Canfield said the win over Allegheny "cured a lot of ills as it showed the team is gaining character." He was still lamenting over the number of turnovers (19) that his team had committed and also their poor execution on offense several times down the floor.

General Facts

The Washington and Lee basketball team will host Haverford (Pa.) College and Bethany (W.Va.) College this weekend in the 13th annual W&L Invitational. Those two teams will square off at 7:30 tonight, with the loser meeting W&L at 7:30 tomorrow night and the winner at 7:30 on Saturday night in the round-robin affair.

Haverford brings a 5-4 record and the nation's leading defense (45.2 points per game) into the tourney while Bethany was 3-2 prior to a Tuesday game versus Denison College of Ohio.

this experimental procedure with those non-conference opponents who agree to such use.

Also in ODAC news a resolution was made in reference to two instances of post graduate competitors in conference competition. A motion was made and a second received that non-students or those students without athletic eligibility by NCAA or ODAC standards may not compete in any intercollegiate athletic event. Motion received unanimous adoption.

 Nine of the twelve teams that compete at Washington and Lee have winning records from their first season to date. The total won-loss record as of this fall is 3681-3333-138. A Poorly-Tuned 'Sharkey's Machine'

by Todd Jones

Sharkey's Machine is the latest Burt Reynolds film. Reynolds also directs this movie, which is very poor.

Burt plays a cop who "nobody owns." After chasing down a drug dealer who kills a bus driver, Reynolds is transferred from narcotics to the vice squad. While investigating some high-class hookers, Reynolds discovers that the next governor of the state employs one of them. Since Reynolds is such a good cop (not to mention star and director of the film), he asks for a 24-hour surveillance of the most attractive hooker, a woman named Dominoe, and naturally gets it. To no one's surprise, he falls in love with her, after taking pictures of her day and night.

We soon discover that the governor-to-be is backed by a mafioso chief who owns the hooker. The mafioso chief decides that the girl is no good, so after one last evening with her, he orders his brother to blow her up with a gun that resembles a hand-cannon. The brother, high on seventeen different drugs, accidentally blows away the wrong girl, not to mention half a door. The real hooker ends up at Burt's house and, as the violins swell and the lighting dims, in Burt's arms. However, Burt poignantly remarks, "I know how to hold

C.A.S.T. Meeting Planned

All Washington and Lee students interested in the performing arts are invited to attend a meeting of the Community Association for the Student Theater (C.A.S.T.) tonight at 7 p.m. at the Troubadour Theatre. The meeting will focus on C.A.S.T.'s activities for the next two months.

Included in the schedule of events are:

- a trip to Sweet Briar to participate with a drama class in a reading of Oscar Wilde's "Woman of No Importance." The group would leave the campus at 5:30 p.m. and dine with the Sweet Briar group before reading the play.

- a trip to the Roanoke Civic Center to see the musical "A Chorus Line," on Jan. 28.

C.A.S.T. also has several tentative plans including:

- a visit to the Virginia Museum Theatre for a tour and a showing of Lanford Wilson's "Tally's Folly."

- a weekend of theatre performance in Washington. This would ideally include taking in three plays. The three plays would include "Evita" and "Bent."

Roomful of Blues, the jazzy group who wowed 'em in The Cockpit (Marvin's Garden) during last year's Fancy Dress Ball, return with their classy act Tuesday night in the Cockpit. The group is part of the SAB's "Tuesdays in the Pit" series of concerts which began last term.

Film Notes

by John Wells

Citizen Kane (1941) Often and deservedly cited as the finest American film, Orson Welles' brilliant study in power and corruption is as entertaining as any great movie deserves to be. It's technical advances dramatically altered the look of American films for years to come. The subject matter was blatantly and scandalously lifted from the life of newspaper baron W.R. Hearst, operating quite a stir at the time. The editing and acting are fantastic, with performances by Welles, Joseph Cotten, Everett Sloane, Ray Collins, Ruth Warrick, Agnes Moorehead and Dorothy Comingore in the Marion Davies part. Shown by the Journalism Department Tuesday at 7 and 9 p.m., with no admission charged.

Natural Bridge Featured In Dupont Exhibition

"So Beautiful An Arch," an exhibition of prints and paintings of the Natural Bridge, opened Monday in Washington and Lee's duPont Gallery. The show includes nearly 50 pieces from the 18th and 19th centuries.

Pamela H. Simpson, assistant professor of art at Washington and Lee, will lecture on the current exhibition tomorrow night at 8 in duPont Auditorium. The lecture is open to the public at no charge.

The Natural Bridge show represents the seventh in a series of annual midwinter exhibitions organized by W&L to focus on some aspect of local art history. Past shows have been based on painting sculpture, drawing, and photography from area collections, but the Natural Bridge was chosen as this year's theme with the paintings and prints in the exhibition illustrating the various ways in which the Natural Bridge has been depicted by artists.

DuPont Gallery is open to the public weekdays from 9 to 5, Saturdays from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., and Sundays from 2 to 4 p.m. There is no admission charge, and catalogues of the show are available.

W&L Receives $135,000 Donation To Support Anthropology Research

Washington and Lee University has established an endowed program to support student research in anthropology as the result of three anonymous gifts made to the university.

The gifts, totaling $135,000, have enabled the university to establish an endowment to fund the Leyburn Scholars Program in Anthropology. The program is named in honor of Dr. James G. Leyburn, former dean of the college.

The Leyburn Scholars Program is designed to further the study and research in anthropology at W&L by enabling the university to provide stipends for students engaging in that research. Funds from the endowment may also be used for the purchase of equipment and for the support of publication of reports on the research.

Among his many contributions to Washington and Lee, Leyburn was instrumental in the development of teaching and research in anthropology at the university.

Responding to the establishment of the endowment program in his name, Leyburn said: "The pursuit of excellence among its students and the encouragement of their scholarship are among the primary purposes of a university. It pleases me greatly to know that students in anthropology, thanks to the Scholars Program, will now have both the incentive and the means to do scholarly research."

Leyburn retired from active teaching at W&L in 1972. He was named dean in 1947 after 20 years on the sociology faculty at Yale. As W&L's dean, he offered the university a series of bold challenges, which were part of what became known as the Leyburn Plan — a blueprint for strengthening the university's academic standards and making the curriculum more truly liberal. He relinquished his duties as dean in 1955, choosing to devote all his time to teaching. He was head of the sociology and anthropology department at W&L until 1967.

In addition to students at Washington and Lee, the Leyburn Scholars Program could also provide support for Washington and Lee alumni and for students from other institutions who have made a commitment to projects in anthropology at the university.

'Sharkey's Machine' In Need Of Repair

people, but I don't have a thousand dollars" (the hooker's going rate). Eventually things get hot for Burt, who still pushes forward and eventually gets all the bad guys.

If you enjoy watching person after person getting pumped with lead, this movie is for you. Someone is shot every seven minutes in the film by every type of gun imaginable, including a harpoon gun. I would be hesitant to be Sharky's next partner, for every person he works with in the film ends up lying on the floor with eight or nine bullets in him.

Also featured in the film are Earl Holloman, who plays the governor-elect; Vittorio Gassman, the mafioso chief; and Rachel Ward, the hooker. Charles Durning plays a vice-squad chief who is more concerned with his retirement than with catching criminals. Also in the film is Brian Keith, who plays an old cop. We are told that he could "wrestle a train," but he spends his screen time ambling around with food in his hands. It's hard picturing "Uncle Bill" constantly stuffing food in his face, making crude jokes about hookers, and using "nasty language." Really, what would Buffy and Jody think?

Sharkey's Machine is a film with little plot and even less entertainment. All Reynolds does is run through the film being a peeping tom, shooting up people, and losing fingers. Burt uses witty phrases like "I've got your ass in my hand" and "You're a piece of s-t in a toilet, and I'm going to flush you!" With witty statements like that, he endears himself to a $1000-a-night hooker, but to no one else, especially not the audience.

While the film might be entertainment to total Burt Reynolds freaks or sadists, I'm trying to forget this movie and think about Burt's upcoming film The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas. It has to be better than Sharkey's Machine.

Sydney Here Next Tues.

Arch-rival Hampden-Sydney will be at the Warner Center next Tuesday night for a key ODAC contest with the Generals. Earlier in the year, the Tigers scored a 55-54 victory over W&L, marking the fifth time in the last seven meetings that the game has been decided by two points or less.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Horrell of Lexington presented an important collection of 18th and 19th century English literature to the Washington and Lee University Library. Richard W. Oram, right, reference and public services librarian at W&L, accepted the collection on behalf of the University Library.

D-Hall Opened For Bands

troublemakers "will be thrown out with no questions asked," according to Martin.

The reggae band scheduled to appear is The Mighty Invaders, a group popular in the Middle Atlantic states that has just returned from a stint in its native Jamaica. Premium beers will be on tap in 16 ounce cups for 50 cents each or three for $1. Tickets may be purchased in-advance in Carole Chappell's office in the Student Center for $2 each. Only 600 tickets will be sold, and Martin says that tickets sold at the door will cease as soon as the 600th is purchased.

Martin emphasizes that student support will be crucial to open "new facets of entertainment" at the university in a variety of musical styles.

Variety, preached and practiced by Martin's predecessor Jamie Small, is evident in bands scheduled to appear each Tuesday night in the Cockpit throughout the term. The new season was inaugurated with a performance by The Movies on Tuesday night. Future bands include Roomful of Blues, a popular feature at last year's Fancy Dress, on Jan. 12; The Showmen, a soul band slated for Jan. 19; Virginia Fire on Jan. 27; Steve Bassett and the Virginia Breeze on Feb. 2; Brice Street on Feb. 23; Billy Price and the Keystone Rhythm Band on March 2; Little Big Band on March 9; The Motive on March 16; and another reggae band called Hooters on March 23.

Non-Tuesday night appearances scheduled for February include the Alabama-based Telluride on the 5th and The Deal, a "hot new band" from Charlottesville, on the 27th.

Martin and Schmidt are attempting to maintain established and high quality bands while diversifying, i.e. the soul bands, to appeal to a larger audience. As it is, he feels, the Cockpit is getting the same turnover week after week. He is also seeking increased publicity for the groups who do appear in order to increase student interest.

Other upcoming events include the weekly SAB film series, the lacrosse team's annual fund raiser at Zollman's Pavilion on Jan. 22, and the Muscular Dystrophy Superdance to be held Jan. 29 and 30.

game was the fact that Allegheny only got one free throw, which they missed, and Swarthmore did not get any until the second half Tuesday. "This has happened to us occasionally in the past," said Canfield. "It just shows that we are exercising some foul discipline."

The Generals now take their .500 mark into the W&L Invitational this Friday and Saturday nights against Haverford (Pa.) and Bethany (W. Va.). Those two teams will meet tonight at 7:30 with W&L facing the loser at that time on Friday and the winner on Saturday.

Fancy Dress To Cost $55,000

E.C. secretary Bennett Ross asked how many loans were committee approved. Kolts replied he gave out two and the committee approved six.

He added his committee may advertize about student loans in the school newspaper, but he did not want students to take advantage of the program.

Randall Jacoby reported the Cold Check Committee has picked up 102 bad checks since its last report. Of these checks 71 are still outstanding.

Jacoby added that about $200 worth of the checks belong to graduated students. He thought the committee would write these checks off as a loss.

E.C. president Eric Myers said the committee should notify the Registrar's Office of these debts and have the transcripts held up. This has proven to be an effective way of collecting money for bounced checks.

Jacoby replied he was not aware of this policy and would have his committee consider it.

Myers also recommended that some form of legal letter be sent to the alumni notifying them of their debt.

Lee Feldman reported the Computer Club was in the process of organizing a book exchange that would benefit the entire Washington and Lee community. He added that Jay O'Brien was working up a computer program for the Division III National Swimming Championships to be held at Washington and Lee in March. W&L swim coach Page Remillard asked the club to work on the project as the school would be the first in the country with computerized swim meets.

Jim Averett will represent the E.C. at the Third Student Legislation Open Forum to be held March 27 in Richmond. The forum is sponsored by the Radford Student Government Association.

The E.C. also approved a motion to send flowers to the family of professor Gary H. Dobbs.
