Board Approves Plan For IF Council Dance After Kentucky Game

Advance Ticket Sale Begins Today Stowers States

The Dance Board yesterday afternoon put its stamp of approval on plans outlined by John Walter Stowers, president of the Inter-Fraternity Council, for an informal dance to be held in Doremus gymnasium next Saturday evening immediately following the University of Kentucky-Washington and Lee football game.

The dance coupled with the varsity game will usher in the fall season. In okaying the idea, the board pointed out that it customarily does not endorse an informal dance this early in the season but that Opening Dances have been moved forward to mid-November leaving a period of nearly two months during which there would otherwise be no university-wide dances or social events.

Because the Monogram Club's annual fall dance during Homecoming has had to be scratched to make way for Openings, the proceeds of the dance, while handled by the IF council, will go to the sweater fund, which is maintained for the purpose of giving monograms, sweaters and numerals to outstanding athletes.

Advance sale-subscriptions will be $1.50, and the early ticket drive will end Friday, October 3 at noon. After that time the tariff will jump to $2.00.

Music will be furnished by the recently revamped Southern Collegians, under the direction of Paul Baker. The vacancies left by graduation have been filled and daily practices will have the orchestra in shape for the dance.

All members of the Kentucky squad will be admitted without charge, but no other passes will be given.

Stowers in commenting on the dance plans stated that he firmly believed that this would be one of the best week-ends this fall. "All indications are that the students—and particularly the freshmen—are going to give the Inter-Fraternity Dance the support it deserves."

Three Members of Faculty Are Authors of Books to Appear Soon

Three Washington and Lee faculty members are authors of new books published during the late summer or scheduled for publication early this fall. Lawrence Watkins, noted author of the best-selling "On Borrowed Time," from which both a successful stage play and motion picture were adapted, has written two books, one for immediate publication and the other to be released next week. Two members of the university department of German—Dr. W. W. Pusey and Prof. A. G. Steere, who resigned in July for military service—also published a volume for German students during the summer.

Prof. Watkins, of the university department of English, is the author of "Thomas Jones And His Nine Lives," a volume for children published today (Sept. 25) by Harcourt-Brace company. Alfred A. Knopf, publishers, have set Oct. 6 as the release date for a new novel by Mr. Watkin also—"Gentleman From England."

The book for children is Mr. Watkin's first venture in the juvenile field, he explained on the eve of its publication. "Gentleman From England," his third novel, is historical in background, being laid in the year 1795. The action of the book takes place both on the continent and in America, much of the latter portion of the novel being laid in the historic area around Lexington.

Dr. Pusey and Prof. Steere have collaborated in editing a volume on "Reading in Military German." In a foreword, the collaborators point out that "no textbook is available at present to familiarize students with the specialized German military vocabulary," and indicate that such is their intention

College Students To Be Deferred By Local Boards

College students whose immediate induction into the Army would cause "undue hardship" because of interference with their work may be given deferment until the end of the semester during which they are called, Selective Service headquarters in Washington announced this week.

According to terms of the authorization given local draft boards, a student who had completed for instance, half a quarter (or semester) of his college year when he was called up for military service could obtain postponement from his board until the end of the quarter or semester.

Registered students should determine before entering upon a quarter or semester the time at which his call might be expected, it was pointed out, so that his plans could be arranged accordingly. Students who begin a school period with the knowledge that they are to be called shortly thereafter could not expect a deferment, it was added.

At the same time, Selective officials reminded local boards that students preparing for one of several specific occupations or professions, such as medicine and engineering, could be deferred for such periods as might be necessary to permit them to complete their work and enter into their chosen professions. Primary consideration in this case, however, is that there must be a shortage in the occupation for which the deferred student is preparing.

Town Time Changes

The city of Lexington will return to Eastern Standard time on Sunday, September 28th. The city, which hitherto had remained on Standard time throughout the summer, switched to Daylight on August 10th, in accordance with President Roosevelt's appeal for conserving electric power.

Three Classes Elect Officers On October 6

Freshman, senior and freshman law classes will hold their annual elections on Monday, October 6, Howard Dobbins, student body president announced today, and all office-seekers must notify Tom Clark, student body secretary, of their intentions by next Thursday.

The freshman class will elect one member to the student body executive committee. Two executive committeemen-at-large will be elected from the combined senior and freshman law classes. All freshman lawyers who did not vote in any of last spring's elections are eligible to vote.

In each of the senior academic, commerce, science and freshman law classes the following offices will be filled: president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, and historian. Proxies will be accepted only when the voter is ill or out of town, and they must be signed by two witnesses.

Marked Gains Shown in Honor Roll, Dean's List

Showing an increase of five over the number on last semester's honor roll, seventy men made averages of 2.5, or "A," to place themselves on the honor roll. All "A's" were made by twenty men, four of whom were freshmen. The complete honor roll for the second semester follows:

On His Way Back to W&L

FRED PERRY, world's professional tennis king and coach of W&L's varsity netmen, who is due to return to Lexington the first part of October to map plans for his team's winter workouts. The former British Davis Cup star will spend a short time here this fall, and will return for his second season of coaching next spring according to plans outlined in a letter received by Cap'n Dick Smith, director of athletics.

Gaines to Speak at First University Defense Forum

President Gaines will speak to students and townspeople in Washington chapel Tuesday evening at the first meeting of a series of public forums to be held in conjunction with the University's new course on "Citizenship and Defense."

Tuesday night's meeting, which will start at 7:45 o'clock, will inaugurate a series of weekly sessions which will bring a number of persons connected with the country's preparedness program to the campus for public discussions.

Dr. Gaines will discuss the question, "Defense of What?"

The series, arranged for students in Political Science 51-2, will be open to the general public. It is designed to "acquaint the student with the various defense agencies and organizations and the problems of citizen readjustment under the defense program."

Representatives of local, state and national defense agencies will discuss various phases of the preparedness program at the weekly meetings, and will devote a major part of their time to answering questions.

President Roosevelt, early this month encouraged the sponsorship of such courses in a letter to Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security Administrator. "I have long been interested in public forums and study-discussion groups as democratic means of developing popular understanding of pressing public issues," the President's letter said.

"Now, under the impact of the

Dobbins Will Resign From Athletic Group

Howard Dobbins, student body president, announced today that he will resign his position on the University Athletic Committee within the next few days.

The vacancy left by Dobbins' resignation will be filled by executive committee appointment, and all candidates for the position should hand in written applications to the committee by Monday, October 6. Qualifications are the same as those pertaining to any campus office-holding position.

Dobbins and Tommy Fuller were elected to membership on the committee last year just one month after the present athletic set-up of the university went into effect. Others on the group are five faculty members and two alumni.

SIGMA CHI PLEDGES

Omitted from the list of Sigma Chi pledges in Tuesday's issue of the Ring-tum Phi were Charles Martin, Jack Mertz and Bob Haynes.

Generals' Lead Wiped Out By Tiger Touchdown Pass; Extra Point Clinches Thriller

Washington and Lee's blue-clad gridders almost had the experts eating their words this afternoon, but Sewanee's courageous band of Purple Tigers pulled another of their last-minute thrusts to hand the Generals a nerve-racking 20-19 setback in their first start of the 1941 campaign.

The Generals, ahead by a 13-0 count at one stage of the game, defended a 19-13 edge against the Tigers in one goal-line stand late in the final period, then saw victory snatched away a minute later when a Sewanee touchdown and an extra point went on the scoreboard with less than two minutes to play.

Captain Earl Bearden, a thorn in the side of the Generals all afternoon, won the ball game for the Tennessee outfit when he put a perfect placement kick between the uprights after tossing a touchdown pass to tie the count.

The touchdown play that tied the score found Bearden tossing a 20-yard pass to Walker, an end who galloped the final five yards to score standing up.

Bearden's first try for the precious extra point was blocked by Jim Daves, but W&L was offside on the play and Bearden made good on his second crack.

Riley Smith's home team took to the air for a final few stabs, but the timer's watch ticked off the game's last few seconds before the Generals could do anything about regaining the lead which earlier in the afternoon had looked so big.

Sewanee scored three times in the final few minutes to top the Generals, 25-13, in last year's meeting at Chattanooga.

In former years, when delayed rushing plans have been in operation, the rules and regulations in force were practically the same as those governing the initial period of bidding new men.

Stowers also said that there would be a combined meeting next Tuesday night of every rushing chairman on the campus and the Inter-Fraternity Council. The purpose of this meeting is to discuss the past rush week, and to draw up and decide upon the rules for next year. A new and decided change in practice is under consideration by the council, and has been presented to the presidents of various houses for consideration, but Stowers declined to comment upon it until after next week's meeting.

Vernon Millsap, sophomore president, announced that the drive for class figure dues will get under way Monday. The committee named to collect the $2.25 fee, which includes a favor for dates, is composed of David Embry, chairman, Don Welch, Cliff Hood, Church Elmore, Grant Mouser and Stan Sacks. All sophomores are urged to co-operate in making the drive a success.

Christian Council Begins Year With Campus-wide Scope As Aim

Christian Council activities this year will be launched with particular emphasis by the committee heads in the enlargement of the religious program to a campus-wide scope which will encompass the participation of all students in the work, according to Seymour A. Smith, Director of Religious Activities, who has come here to replace last year's director, Denny Wilcher.

The preference cards for Christian Council work, which were filled out at the time of registration, have already been compiled, and will better enable the leaders to select the students to do the work for which they have shown an interest. Each committee consisting of approximately 3 or 4 persons, will direct the activities in its particular field.

It was also stated that more emphasis will be given this year to general student meetings which will present programs and speakers of interest to the student body.

A series of vesper services to be held purely for students may also be instituted later on in the season.

An innovation this year are the Social Study groups, to be organized under the directorship of Dr. Mervyn Crobaugh for the purpose of conducting field trips to underprivileged sections of the town and neighboring country. The trips are to be concluded by group discussions on the conditions in question and are expected to draw many students from both the freshmen and upperclass councils.

More week-end retreats to the cabin at Goshen Pass are to be planned for this year, and leaders for group discussions on the various phases of religious work will be provided at these times.

Religious Service, John Derr; Freshman Work, Corneal Myers and Charles Hobson; Publicity, Bill Talbot; Finance, Bill Noonan; Deputations, Ken Clendaniel; Fraternity Forums, Joe Ellis; Lectures, Ed Zelnicker, and Legal Aid, Al Overton.

Delayed Rushing Idea Abandoned

John Walter Stowers, president of the Inter-Fraternity Council, today announced that there would be no delayed rushing period, but that each house could entertain and bid non-fraternity men whenever they wished.

Although plans were offered for a regulated late rush week, to take place a month or two after the opening of school, Stowers said the council had found the plan impractical, since many fraternities had already started rushing.

In former years, when delayed rushing plans have been in operation, the rules and regulations in force were practically the same as those governing the initial period of bidding new men.

Stowers also said that there would be a combined meeting next Tuesday night of every rushing chairman on the campus and the Inter-Fraternity Council. The purpose of this meeting is to discuss the past rush week, and to draw up and decide upon the rules for next year. A new and decided change in practice is under consideration by the council, and has been presented to the presidents of various houses for consideration, but Stowers declined to comment upon it until after next week's meeting.

First Quarter

DiLoreto's kickoff carried to Sewanee's 23-yard line, where Lyle took the ball and lugged it back to the 32. On the first play from scrimmage, Captain Bearden fumbled and Billy Gray, General guard, recovered on the Tiger's 33 yard line.

Capitalizing on this break, the Generals staged a sustained drive for their first touchdown. Captain Bobby Pinck, plunging and passing to Bert Nelson, sparked the drive, which sent Floyd McKenna into paydirt from the half-yard line. Frank Socha, sent in for Pinck, missed the try for the extra point.

The Generals drove deep into Sewanee territory again late in the period, but a fourth-down aerial, Pinck to Roehl, failed and Sewanee took possession of the ball at the end of the quarter.

W&L 6, Sewanee 0.

Second Quarter

The period opened with the Tigers in possession on their own eight-yard stripe. Bearden's pass was intercepted by Cavaliere, who made his way to Sewanee's 15. A 10-yard penalty set W&L back to the 25, but Ligon picked up 12 yards for a first down on the visitors' 13.

Three running plays carried the Generals to the eight, and Cavaliere hauled down a Pinck pass for W&L's second touchdown. Socha place-kicked the extra point.

Socha's kickoff was returned to the Sewanee 38, from which point the Tennessee Tigers drove 62 yards for a touchdown. Featured in the march, which saw the visitors reel off six successive first downs, was the ball carrying of Bearden and Lyle. A pass, Bearden to Owen, put the Tigers on the W&L four, and Lyle bucked over for his team's first points. Bearden kicked the point after touchdown.

Washington and Lee was on the offense most of the time during the remainder of the period but neither team got off a serious threat. The half ended with the Generals in possession of the pigskin on their foe's 43.

For 1942's Rushing

The road to the freshman dorms no longer looks like a resort-bound highway on a summer Saturday and fraternity members all over the campus have gone back to grabbing the food on its first trip around the table. In other words, rush week is over.

Fraternities and freshmen are both nearing the point of normalcy again. But the boys are still thinking things over and the Interfraternity council is getting ready to talk over possible revisions in rushing rules.

Some there are who think drastic changes are in order. They think the whole setup is bad. Most of these would-be reformers are either disappointed fraternity men or disappointed freshmen, and they're looking at the thing the way a guy who flunks a history course looks at his professor. 'He's a hulluva professor,' grumbles that guy.

The existing system of rushing, evolved from several years of trial and error, cannot be given a wholesale going-over with any measure of success. Basically it's as good as could be any scheme of advance rushing.

But it has its faults.

Here is one suggestion for the Interfraternity council. Let the freshmen know how the preferential bidding system works before rush week starts. It's easier to explain a thing like that at freshman camp than it is on the Sunday of pledging when a fellow wants to know why he got a blank card. Tell him that a bid does not necessarily mean that he's "in" if he wants to get in. Tell him that freshmen are subject to disappointments just as are the boys on the other end of rushing.

A frank discussion of that phase of rush week would help a lot of freshmen.

The boy who thinks so much of a house that he doesn't even bother making a second and a third choice, for instance. He writes down the name of only one fraternity, and he draws a blank on Sunday because he was too far down on that chapter's list. That boy might have thought more about handing in the names of two other houses had he known that there was a chance of his not landing in the house of his first choice.

And the boy who doesn't land in any of the three house which he places on his list of preferences. More knowledge would help him, too. Why? Because the thought of disappointment will have entered the boy's mind before that disappointment comes. The thing would not drop upon a boy suddenly, like a telegram telling of a loved one's death.

Other phases of rush week are dealt with in rather frank terms at freshman camp. Certainly a little information about the preferential lists won't hurt the fraternities. It would lessen the chance of hard feelings. For if a boy doesn't know about the thing he thinks he's been singled out for a raw deal if he gets a bid from a house, puts that house down on his first choice and then doesn't get a button.

The Forums Sound Good

The series of Tuesday evening forums being scheduled for the students of Political Science 51-52, the new course on "Citizenship and Defense" and for the general public holds promise of developing into one of the year's most attractive undertakings.

According to Professor Barnes' plans, men and women who know what they are talking about will hash over the defense programs of the community, the state and the nation in a series of man-to-man discussions.

A lot of us have become lost in the maze of agencies and commissions which have been set up in Washington for the conduct of affairs in connection with this period of national emergency. We'd like to know what's going on. We know that the OPM is playing a leading role in the national preparedness program, but we want to know more about it.

We know that Virginia and other states are asking for volunteers to watch for enemy aircraft and what not, but we don't know just how all this state machinery is being moved into position for possible top-speed action.

We'd like to know what part each of us is best going to be able to play in national defense. This boy who is majoring in languages—how can he best use his knowledge? This boy in the Commerce school—where can he best fit into the jig-saw puzzle of defense personnel?

The "Citizenship and Defense" course is being lined up to provide all kinds of answers to questions dealing with the current problems. The meetings will not consist of lengthy, hard-to-take lectures. The speakers will be asked to deal with their subjects without waste of words, and will be prepared to roll up their sleeves and go to work on all kinds of queries.

Guests may include some of the nation's leading figures if present plans go ahead. But the idea must not be allowed to peter out for lack of interest. Students and townspeople will have to help the fourteen members of Political Science 51-52 make their course a genuine success.

Our P. O. Box Is Dusty

"By the students, for the students." That adaptation of a historically-famous phrase has been used, off and on, as a Ring-tum Phi slogan for a good many years. It's still as true as ever.

The Ring-tum Phi is one of a select group of school newspapers which is prepared and published by a group of students who bow only to the dictates of common sense and good taste. No faculty member, no administrative official stands over the staff as it works to give an official "yea" or "nay." The student staff makes its own decisions.

We who enjoy that privilege are proud that the Ring-tum Phi is, in every sense of the word, "by the students." But we are anxious that it be just as truly "for the students."

We cannot go around and ask every one of nearly 900 students what he thinks about a question or controversial nature every time we want to write an editorial. We can—and do—seek others' opinions in an attempt to find what seems to be the best answer. But there are bound to be those who do not share the views expressed in our editorial columns. And their ideas should not go unheard.

To them we open our "letters to the editor" column. We want—we beg for—students' ideas on any subject of student interest. It's up to the readers to make the Ring-tum Phi a genuine "for the students" newspaper.

History Repeats

The announcement from Washington and Lee that Colonel T. A. E. Moseley of the VMI faculty will this year teach an art course at the college and that George Brooke, Jr., will teach military science is of interest in showing how history repeats itself. This is not the first time a VMI professor has taught Washington and Lee students. Neither is it the first time that military science has been taught at the college. In fact, it is the third time for the teaching of such a course.

When the Virginia Military Institute came into being in 1839, taking over the old Lexington arsenal, provision was made between the new institute and Washington College for such an interchange of students. While each institution was to retain its distinct organization, all classes were open to students and cadets on payment of tuition fees not exceeding $10.00 per annum for each class. The professor of military science at VMI was listed as a Washington and Lee faculty member to teach military science to Washington and Lee students.

This teaching of military science in the college was required under a gift made by the Virginia Chapter of the Society of the Cincinnati. When the society, made up of Revolutionary officers and with George Washington as president, disbanded, its funds were turned over to the college on two conditions. The first was that it should teach military instruction and the second was that an oration called the Cincinnati oration would be made each year.

Accordingly, as recorded in Colonel William Couper's VMI History, General Francis H. Smith, first VMI superintendent and professor of military science, gave military instruction to Washington and Lee students who attended the daily drills at the institute and wore the same uniform worn by the cadets with the exception that the cadet uniform had a button on each side of the collar where the Washington College uniform had a black star.

In 1918, during the first World War, military science was taught as a course at the college during the days of the SATC when the student body was trained and drilled by army officers. —The Rockbridge County News.

CAMPUS COMMENT

By Lou Shroyer

Embarrassment Department: It is still rush week and Earl Alverson is sitting beside a freshman carrying on the usual sparkling conversation of how'd you like freshman camp, pretty cold out there, have you all your classes lined up, and other such gems.

Suddenly Alverson realizes he doesn't know the rushee's name, and doesn't like calling him "Mac" and "Doc" after being with him all afternoon. I'll be smooth about this says Earl to himself. He leans over and smiles toothfully.

"How do you spell your name?" he queries.

"J-O-H-N," says the freshman.

"No, Johnny, I mean your last name," says Earl confusedly.

"D-A-V-I-S," says the freshman.

And Dick Spindle, who picked a boy off the train at Clifton Forge, rushed him madly all the way to Lexington, only to find he was a Kappa Sig sophomore.

And also George Parton, who made four trips to Clifton Forge for freshmen, and all he did was to walk through the trains trying to line up something for Openings.

Overheard: At Mikes: First second-guesser—"I can't see where the Generals have a chance this year." Second prognosticator—"Frankly, I think the Generals do have a chance this year—but I wouldn't want it" . . . LaMotte—"Now you can say what you want about Hitler, BUT—" . . . Phi Delt House—"Who are those three freshmen that just walked in?" . . . Pardee at the Corner—"Who says I can't charge here this year." . . . Everywhere—"I'm damned if I'll ever go into McCrum's again." . . .

Vagrancy: Last year the police in Winchester took Shabby David—son for a tramp and ran him out of town. After that Shab decided to stay in Lexington where everyone knew him and stay out of trouble.

The other day he walked into McCrum's and wrote out a check.

PREVIEWS AND REVIEWS

By MARSHALL JOHNSON

LADY BE GOOD—

The State's week-end attraction, in case you haven't noticed, will be another film musical, "Lady Be Good," from the song of the same name. Co-starred are Ann Southern, Eleanor Powell, Robert Young and John Carroll, not to mention Charles Winninger and Red Skelton.

And continuing the subtle barrage of propaganda will be a rendition of that soul-stirring epic (or something worse) "The Last Time I Saw Paris," and believe us, it didn't look that good.

We've always taken a sort of delight in watching the terpsichorean efforts of Miss Powell, although we too admit that she isn't the most beautiful creature (See PREVUES, Page 4)

The clerk looked at him, winced, and took a second look.

"Are you a student?" she asked. Shabby ran his hand through his hair and pulled his tie up.

"Certainly I'm a student," he began, "look here," giving it this and giving it that.

"Sorry, bum, er—bud, I've seen too many that look like you. But if you'll go out and find someone that knows you, come back and I'll be glad to cash it for you."

Shab drew himself up to his five-five, tied his shoes, and tried to straighten his shirt.

"I'm damned if I'll ever come into this place again. . . ."

Prophecy: Pete Day and a bunch of less important individuals were standing on Main Street this morning watching a bunch of the boys in brown pass through town. Now Pete is not twenty-one yet and is really just a kid, and so he has not even got close to the army and so he was having a wonderful time, yes a peachy time.

"Yea, you recruits, you hams, you bums," he would call at them, "wouldn't you rather be drinking beer someplace?"

And then Petey would laugh longly and loudly and enjoy himself.

This went on for several minutes and he was having a wonderful, yes peachy time. He's such a kid.

Finally one draftee leaned far out of his chariot and, pointing a long finger at Pete and his hat, boomed raucously, "They'll get you, too."

Our hero was so stupefied he walked into McCrum's.

Revelation: And then there's the story of the freshman who stayed in Professor Barnes' Political Science 101 a week before he discovered that it was not accounting.

Castle Department: Lynn Murdock has moved into the Castle this year with Tommy Fuller and the Schellenberg man. Now Lynn has got flies on him when it comes to studying and who hasn't with the glittering expectations of Fuller and the Schellenberg man? Because they are two terrific party boys despite their Deans List stuff. So Murdock has now decided that is the answer to his problem and he will play with this pair and make the Dean's list and perhaps the Honor Roll.

And so bookies Mal Deans and Gordy Alford, who ran the only honest book on the Derby last year, are considering opening a book giving 5-2 odds that Murdock will not be here for Spring Dances, or that if he is here he will have no restrictions. If you know Fuller and that man Schellenberg, you'll also know that that's not a bad bet.

Shots in the Dark: Harrell Morris is clinging to his record of five yes five ICC's for this week-end. . . . the local Martha-lovers are beginning to wonder whetherhell Walt Aberg is going to get out of town. . . . Funniest thing you'll see all year is Charley Hobson without Buzz Lee. . . . Everyone saw Al Fuller and his Lamb in the newsreels this summer except him or is he just being modest?

GENERALIZING...

By MAL DEANS

Tomorrows' freshman game with SMA marks the first appearance of another crop of footballers at Washington and Lee, and there'll probably be a better than average crowd on hand at Wilson field to see just what to expect in the way of future varsity eleveners here.

Right now the freshmen are more or less of unknown quality and we know very little about what to expect from them tomorrow. Going purely from past performances, we'd say that one boy to watch is a shifty Connecticut Yankee tailback, Tody Coleman. Playing for Middletown high school, Coleman was honored with a place on the All-state team in his senior year, and the year before that was on the All-State second team. We're not saying that Coleman will be a star this year or a star in the future—merely that judging from past performances he should be one to watch.

Two other likely prospects on the Brig squad are Dyke and Pinky Norman, brothers, who play center and end respectively. Dyke, so far, has impressed Coach Jack Hennemier with his line-backing abilities, while Pinky has shown better than average pass-catching prowess at his wing spot.

The new intramural field, located behind the Wilson field scoreboard, will be a great thing for the fraternity teams at W. and L. All eighteen of the fraternities plus the non-frat teams have had a terrible time trying to find a place to practice in the past. With the varsity, freshmen, and now the 150-lb. football team taking up every nook and corner of the athletic field, the intramural managers have been taking their charges to VMI Island, the Fair Grounds, Lexington high school's field, and sometimes have even conducted practices on parts of the main campus.

Throughout the football season, at least, the fraternities will still have a tough time finding a spot to cavort upon, but by the time spring sports roll around, the field will be finished and ready for use. In past years, the spring sports were even more handicapped than the fall squads, for all the softball players were in constant fear of being felled by a javelin, discus, or a fly ball. Lots of credit should be given to the University for authorizing the leveling of the ground out there, for the added practice space should increase the number of men coming out for intramural sports, and will make life a lot more enjoyable for plenty of students.

At Wednesday's football practice, we got our first glimpse of the 150-lb. team's jerseys. The sweaters are very bright "peacock blue," with white shoulder blocks, and red numerals. On front, printed in red, are the words "Generals 150-lb.", or something like that. The pants are a cross between gold and olive-green in hue. When the lightweights take the field for their first game, spectators are likely to think that they are seeing The Sons of the American Legion outfit in action. The 150s may or may not display the best brand of football seen here this fall, but we can absolutely guarantee they'll be as brilliant.

ly arrayed as any team you'll see around Virginia at any time. The cross country team is starting to get into shape now, and under the leadership of Captain Sam Graham, the endurance boys may prove to be a better team than expected. Graham and Ken Clendaniel are the only returning lettermen, but in Sophomore Ev (Knuckleball) Schneider, stand-out of last year's freshmen, Coach Forest Fletcher may have a very able runner. Schneider placed fourth in the state meet last fall, and says he is already in excellent shape this year.

In one of the nearby papers the other day we noticed that the gridders at Fishburne Military academy had reported to their head coach for practice. The assistant coach was listed as Captain Robert Gary, former star W&L athlete. We didn't quite get that business about the "captain" part being stuck on "The Judge," but some knowing soul explains that all teachers at military academies are honored with a title. Apparently Bob teaches history on the side up there.

Tilson Successor Not to Be Named For Some Time

Dr. Livingston Smith, chairman of the Faculty Committee on Athletics, today announced that no successor has been selected nor will be selected in the near future to take the place of line coach Warren E. (Tex) Tilson, who recently resigned to take over the general managership of McCrum's, Inc.

Tilson joined the W&L coaching staff in 1931, as an assistant to the late Jimmy DeHart. In 1933 he succeeded DeHart as head coach, and in that year captured not only the state title, but also was the only Big Six coach ever to bring a Southern Conference title to the Old Dominion.

His 1934 and 1936 teams also won the state title, and in 1937 VMI and W&L shared Big Six honors. "Tex" resigned his position as head coach last year, after his injury-ridden Generals had lost seven of their ten games, the only victories being at the expense of Richmond and Hampden-Sydney, and a "moral victory" in a 7-7 tie with Maryland.

Immediately upon Tilson's resignation, Riley Smith, former Alabama and Washington Redskins' star, was promoted from assistant coach to the top position, whereupon Smith made the unprecedented move of appointing Tilson as his line coach. Both professed immense satisfaction at the change.

Upon learning of Tilson's recent resignation from the staff, Head Coach Smith said:

"We are extremely sorry to learn of Tex's resignation and I know that I, for one, will miss him very much. His leaving Washington and Lee is eased by the fact that he will remain in Lexington and I'm sure he still will be able to help us a great deal. All of us on the coaching staff wish Tex the best of luck in his new work."

Since Tilson's resignation does not take effect until December first, he will continue to coach the line for the duration of this season.

His new duties will put him in complete charge of the activities of the newly reorganized McCrum Drug Company, which include the operation of the store, soda fountain and bus terminal on Main street, the creamery, and the mercantile business.

Mr. Tilson also owns and operates a large stock farm and summer camp in Rockbridge County.

Outlook for W&L Harriers Is Dark As Cross Country Practice Begins

Led by captain Sam Graham, Washington and Lee's cross country team began practice Monday afternoon for its first meet late in October.

Only returning letterman beside Graham is Ken Clendaniel. Other prospects include John Peoples, Dick Houska, Ev Schneider, Earl Brown and Jim Davis.

Coach Forest Fletcher said that the team would greatly miss the services of George and Bill Murray, last year's co-captains as well as Cliff Muller. Last year the team captured third place in the state meet.

"Although the team is starting from scratch, I expect a good deal from Sam," said Fletcher, "and we should have an average team." Coach Fletcher stressed the fact that there are many vacancies on the team and that anyone without a "broken leg" stands a good chance to make the team.

Fall I-M Setup To Be Planned Tuesday Night

Cy Twombly, director of intramural athletics at Washington and Lee, will develop plans for the I-M fall sports campaign at a meeting with intra-mural managers of the 18 fraternities and the non-fraternity union in the hygiene lecture room in Doremus gym Tuesday night at 8 o'clock.

Indications are that the group, meeting with Twombly, will plan the inauguration of football rivalry within the following week.

Favored to take the football championship as they did last year, will be Beta Theta Pi, the 1941 intramural team champion.

The Betas won the football crown last year by downing Alpha Tau Omega, 13-0, in the finals. It is understood that the intramural managers may make a change in intramural tennis competition. According to one recommendation, each fraternity and the non-fraternity union will enter a tennis team in competition with the other groups.

Last year tennis was run as an individual sport with Tom Fuller, Phi Psi, eventually taking the championship in the spring when he defeated Henry Baker, Phi Delta. First rounds of tennis competition were contested in the fall.

At the meeting Tuesday night, the managers will select two men from their group to serve on the I-M board.

W. O. Shropshire Named Varsity Crew Captain

W. O. Shropshire, a senior from Paris, Kentucky, was elected captain of the 1942 Washington and Lee varsity crew at a meeting of last year's lettermen yesterday.

Shropshire, who has been on the crew during each of his three earlier years at W&L, is a member of Phi Delta Theta social fraternity and is majoring in physics.

Coach Hennemier Expresses Doubt Over Brig Outlook

With a squad of only 27 men, and a line of uncertain strength, Washington and Lee's frosh football team will encounter the Staunton Military academy eleven tomorrow on Wilson field at 3:00 p.m.

Coach Jack Hennemier, when quizzed yesterday about the prospects for the yearlings was very pessimistic over the outlook. Hennemier said that the backs, ends, and center were very good, but that the team was woefully weak at the guard and tackle positions.

The freshmen thus far have had very little chance to work out much of an offense, having played defensively against the varsity for several days before being left to themselves to develop an attack. So far they have a play for every hole in the line, and a few passing plays.

In the backfield, where material is abundant, "Tody" Coleman or Harry Harner will start at tailback, Jack Tuscik at fullback, Sam DeBlozio or Dick Working at wingback, and Russ Malmquist as blocking back. The kicking will be done by DeBlozis, Tuscik, and Harner, while Tuscik, Coleman, and Harner will take care of the passing.

The ends, "Pinky" Norman and Joe Ritchie, have impressed the coaches quite a bit in practice, as has Dyke Norman at center. However, at the guard and tackle slots Hennemier has a big worry as the boys are light and rather inexperienced. Coulter and Kelley will probably hold forth at the tackles.

Fast Field Set for All-University Tourney Sunday; Prizes Are Listed

Divots will fly thick and fast Sunday morning on the local Tri-brook club links when approximately 30 golfers will match strokes in Coach Cy Twombly's annual all-university tournament. Participants will get off the first tee between 9:30 and 10 a.m.

A fast field of both freshmen and upperclassmen will vie for top medalist honors in this annual 18-hole medal play affair, with the low scorer of the day receiving a handsome trophy donated by the Washington and Lee Alumni Association. Entrance fee is 25c.

But parshooters are not the only ones having a chance for the numerous prizes offered. Runner-up honors draw down an award, while a pair of "blind bogie" prizes, in which each participant draws a sealed handicap number before starting with this subtracted from his score to get a low net score, and a "booby" prize for the highest round turn in make the tourney more attractive for the "80" and "90" shooters. These awards are contributed each year by Lexington merchants.

Students are urged to make up their own threesomes or foursomes before Sunday morning, but those who do not will have no trouble in getting a game. The players are to keep each others score for the round.

Bud Bowie, senior, copped the low medal trophy last fall by touring the local links in a fine one-under-par 71. Bowie, S. L. Kopald, Bill Noonan, Dan Wells, and Al Shartz are members of last year's varsity golf team who are expected to compete, while freshmen Bill Stark, Luke Smith, Bill Crittenden, Bill Brennanman, and Guy Yaste have turned in hot rounds already in practice and are counted on to furnish plenty of stiff competition along with other strikers capable of low scoring.

Coach Twombly hold's this tournament each fall in order to get a line on his freshman golfing prospects along with the rising sophomore golfers and returning varsity material.

Camera Club Movies Of Sewanee Game To Be Seen Tuesday

Decrease of 48 Students Reported in Enrollment; Law School Hardest Hit

Eight hundred and seventy-nine men are enrolled in the several schools of Washington and Lee for the first semester of the 1941-42 session, according to figures released today by Earl S. Mattingly, registrar of the university. The total enrollment at this time last session was 927, showing a loss of approximately fifty men.

Two hundred and eighty-six of the students are in the freshman class as compared with last year's 287. 643 upper classmen were first semester last year, while 591 registered at the beginning of the re-entered the university last week.

The law school was hardest hit by the decreased enrollment, showing a loss of 19 men.

Of the 48 students in the law school, 47 are old men and 37 are transfer students or W&L students just entering the study of law.

Could be, but that date at Macon will be much more enjoyable.

ALOMA OF THE SOUTH SEAS—From now on we're going to call Dottie Lamour's pictures simply "A Song and a Sarong." Maybe she keeps cooler that way, but it seems to us that she'd get tired of wearing nothing but a piece of cloth in picture after picture.

Appearing opposite the alluring Miss Lamour in this one is Jon Hall, star of "Hurricane," who faded from existence after his marriage to Frances Langford. Lynn Overman also contributes his part, and the film marks the screen debut of Dona Blake, who looks interesting.

For the usual catastrophic element, an earthquake is introduced in "Aloma of the South Seas." So far there have been typhoons, hurricanes, floods, fires, but no earthquakes. Now you'll have seen all.

It's the same thing as the Dr. Kildare series. If you've seen one, you've seen them all, but then it's your time and money.

Third Quarter

Brown punted to Sewanee's 25 after the Generals had failed to get anywhere following the Tigers' kickoff. In a rapid series of plays sparked by Bearden, Sewanee moved 45 yards, but the advance stalled and Bearden dropped back to punt.

Nelson blocked the kick, and Brown recovered the ball on the Sewanee 35. A series of W&L plays failed to move the ball, and Baugher punted to Sewanee's eight-yard line. Bearden kicked out on the W&L 33, and Teddy Ciesla scooted 31 yards through a bewildered Sewanee team for the Generals' third touchdown. Socha missed the try for the extra point.

Bearden picked up Socha's kickoff on his own 22 and carried it back to W&L's 47. Two Bearden-to-Owen aeriels and an assortment of running plays carried the Tigers 47 yards to their second touchdown. Bearden's kick missed fire.

W&L's offense stalled after Roehl ran the kickoff back from his own seven to the 29 and Russell punted to the Sewanee 30.

At this point the Tigers caught the Generals flat-footed when Bearden quick-kicked to the endzone. The ball was moved out to the 20, and Ciesla picked up three yards on the last play of the quarter.

W&L 19, Sewanee 13.

Fourth Quarter

Brown kicked to the Sewanee 38 when W&L's running attack spluttered, and Bearden dropped back for a punt after the Tigers had had similar luck with their offense. He fumbled the ball, and the Generals took over on Sewanee's 29. An exchange of punts gave the Tigers the ball on their own 25.

Sewanee failed to move on a series of line bucks, and Bearden kicked to Marx. Eddie mishandled the ball, and Atkinson recovered for the Tigers on W&L's 37. Bearden shot a pass to Walker for a first down on the W&L 21, and three running plays carried Sewanee to the seven, where the General line held for three plays. McKenna batted down a fourth-down pass to end the threat, and Ligon kicked to Bearden, who wound up on the W&L 34.

Bearden and Owen made connections on a 12-yard pass, carrying to the W&L 22. Three more passes went astray, but Bearden rifled one to Walker on fourth down and Walker crossed the final stripe standing up to tie the score.

Daves blocked Bearden's kick, but the Generals were offside and Bearden made good on his next boot to put the Tigers ahead with less than two minutes of playing time left.
