

Four Fraternities To Suffer From New City Parking Ban

Presidents of three W&L fraternities, Beta, Phi Kap, and Phi Gam, have received notifications from the Lexington City Council forbidding any parking in front of their houses. The presidents of each fraternity received a letter early last week informing them of the change in parking regulations. A parking ban will exist directly across from the Beta and Phi Kap houses on the north side of Jefferson Street. A thirty day warning has been extended to the fraternities who are directly affected by this new ruling.

The Phi Gams have received a notice to remove their cars from Preston Street and find parking facilities elsewhere no later than the 20th of November. The City Council stated that this move was necessary due to the congestion that exists at the intersection of Preston and Lee Streets.

Large trucks are now being routed along Jefferson St. in order to reach highway 60 without passing directly through town. Members of the Beta and Phi Kap houses have in the past always parked their cars on the north side of this street which has led to much congestion and traffic mishaps, according to the Council. The city plans to widen this intersection some time in the future.

Neither of these two fraternities has a parking lot at the present time or space to make one in the immediate future.

Dick O'Connell, president of the Beta house, which is more directly affected by the parking ban on Jefferson St. than the Phi Kaps, plans to petition the Council through the Executive Committee.

Two years ago the Council passed an ordinance decreeing that students had to buy special licenses for their cars. A delegation from the Executive Committee, accompanied by several law students, appealed the legality of the decision. The students won their case and the ordinance was repealed.

The Council has pointed out that the University plans to build a parking lot directly across from the Phi Kap house on the South side of Jefferson St. This lot will be constructed for the purpose of handling all the student parking from both the Phi Kap and the Beta houses. The city did not say how soon this project would be completed.

This has raised some conflict in opinion as to the legal validity of the act, since two years ago a similar attempt by the Lexington Council was contested by a group of law students representing the executive committee of the Student body. At that time the attempt was defeated after a concerned protest by Washington and Lee students.

Frosh Lawyers Are Entertained By Student Bar

The Student Bar Association sponsored a luncheon Monday at the Robert E. Lee Hotel for the members of the First Year law class. A brief note of welcome was extended to the class by Milton Herndon, president of the SBA. Members of all three classes from the law school were present for the affair.

John Stump, chairman of the social and speakers committees, introduced the speaker for the meeting, Dr. James G. Leyburn, retiring Dean of the University.

Dr. Leyburn spoke on the subject: "Law in Primitive Society." "In the early days," said Dr. Leyburn, "the law was more or less one of custom. It was something that was preserved by the tribal elders and each member of the tribe, because it had been started by the ancestors of the tribesmen and was considered sacred.

Because the size of the tribes in early times was usually rather small, the early forms of law were far easier to control than those which we live by today in this country," he said. "Life was lived in the open, and it was indeed difficult, if not almost impossible to hide a crime of any kind from other members of the same group. Many interesting forms of punishment were followed within the various tribes in primitive pre-literate times. Also there were many different ways to detect the perpetrator of a crime, and some of those methods which were thought to be most successful are still not understood today."

S&U Reports Show U's Higher Than Last Year

The Dean's Office announced today that 112 freshmen have received 201 U's on their fall S and U reports. This compares with the 129 freshmen last year who received a total 191 U's.

All freshmen S and U reports are sent to the parents but are not put on the permanent record. These reports serve only to indicate to the students their difficulty or lack of effort in their classes.

Mid-semester letter-grade reports will not be out until Saturday, November 19th.

Gooch stated that activities for the year include sending a delegate to the National Convention at Madison, Wisconsin, on Nov. 17-19.

Present officers are: Colonel, Gordon Gooch; Lt. Col, Giby McSpadden, Captains, Marv Moreland and Charles MacIntosh.

Leyburn To Give Varied Concert

By FARRIS HOTCHKISS

Although Dr. James G. Leyburn's concert tonight at 8 in Lee Chapel will be his first independent performance in several years, it will be just another episode in Dr. Leyburn's long association with the piano.

His learning to play the piano when he was a boy was in stiff competition with his other interests and activities. Dr. Leyburn commented that he did quite a bit of playing by ear as this left more time to engage in sports.

Piano has always interested him, and he enjoys sitting down and playing all kinds of music. However, it is a purely amateur interest. Now as was true in the past, Dr. Leyburn's piano has to give way to many other interests and responsibilities.

Contemporary Music

In the second half of more contemporary music, a Toccata by Gustav Holst will be presented. This work is based on the Northumbrian pine-tune, "Newburn Lads." Next will be dances from "Saudades do Brazil" (Longings for Brazil), by Darius Milhaud.

Samuel Barber, composer of "Excursions," which will be the next feature of the program, comments on his work: "... Their rhythmic characteristics, as well as their source in folk material and their scoring, reminiscent of local instruments, are easily recognized."

Concluding the program, Dr. Leyburn will play "The Baby's Family" by Heitor Villa-Lobos, and Serge Prokofieff's Tacatta, from the 7th Sonata, op. 83.

Coffee will be served in the Art Gallery of duPont Hall following the program.

Alfred duPont Awards Foundation Is Ready To Receive Nominations

Leaders of the radio and television industries, and the general public, were invited last week to submit their nominations for the 12th annual awards of the Alfred I. duPont Awards Foundation.

O. W. Riegel, curator of the foundation and director of the Lee Memorial Journalism Foundation, said three awards will again be given for outstanding radio and television performance in the public interest.

One award will go to a radio or television station of larger power. Another will go to a radio or television station of smaller power. A third award will go to the news commentator whose 1955 performance, in the opinion of the opinion of the foundation's Award Committee, is characterized by aggressive, excellent and accurate gathering of news.

Nominations for the awards will be accepted through December 31. They should be addressed to the Curator, Alfred I. duPont Awards Foundation, Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va.

Recipients of the 1955 awards will again have the opportunity of creating educational scholarships with the cash stipend of $1,000 that accompanies duPont recognition.

Riegel noted that two of last year's duPont Award winners have already

Final Picture Dates Announced by Ladd

Russell Ladd, editor of the Calyx, announced today that Monday, Nov. 7, will be the last day that individual pictures for the Calyx will be taken at Borthwick's Studio.

The schedule for the remainder of this week and next will be as follows: Kappa Sigma, Nov. 2; Pi Kap, Nov. 3; Law Students, Nov. 4 and NFU, Nov. 7.

Ladd suggested that anyone who would not be able to have his picture taken on the assigned date have it done before Nov. 7.

Proofs on pictures taken prior to Oct. 28 are now ready. The prompt return of all proofs is requested in order that the student's selection be used in the 1956 Calyx; in event that the proof is not returned, the staff will make the selection.

Ladd also stated that the beauty contest is expected to close before the Thanksgiving Holidays in order to have the results before Christmas. Anyone desiring to enter a picture should contact Dave Noble at the Beta House or Richard Wilbourne at the SAE House as soon as possible whether you have a print available or not.

W&L Places 3rd At U. Va. Forum On Wage Topic

Duke Univ. Takes First Univ. of Rich. is Second

Three participants in intercollegiate debate try-outs here at Washington and Lee attended the Public Affairs Forum held at the University of Virginia last Friday and placed third behind Duke University and the University of Richmond.

Joe Ripley, Cliff Smith, and Rice Tilley compiled a 3.67 average based on a five point perfect standard. Duke University compiled a 4.00 and the University of Richmond tallied 3.94.

Other schools which participated in the Forum were the University of Virginia (3.61), Roanoke College (2.35), Virginia State College (3.15), Lynchburg College (2.46), and the University of North Carolina (3.34).

The forum, which was held to give debaters an early familiarity with the national debate subject, included three rounds of discussion, a legislative session to debate the subject in various forms, and a panel of experts to discuss the subject.

Although no one in the W&L group placed among the three receiving a rating of superior, W&L did place a man among the ten receiving a rating of excellent. There were 53 individual participants in the forum.

There are presently 26 men out for the intercollegiate debate team at W&L, the largest number in the last seven years. Eliminations began last week, and according to early reports, Bill Miller and Joe Ripley are going to be pushed for varsity team positions. Miller and Ripley are the only two back from last year's debate team.

Because of the depth of quality among the elimination participants, the debate team this year will consist of from ten to twelve men. There will be a varsity team of four men, a junior varsity team of four men, and either two alternates or an alternate team of four.

Washington and Lee has entered two full four-man teams in the Regional Tau Kappa Alpha Tournament which will be held at William and Mary on November 19th. W&L was invited as a guest participant since there is no T.K.A. honorary speech chapter here. It is hoped that the debate team and the Forensic Union can be used as a basis for obtaining a charter here next year.

W&L will also send a twelve-man delegation to the Morris Harvey Forensic Tournament which will be held in Charleston, West Virginia, on December 2-3. This is one of the largest forensic tournaments in the South, and usually is host to such schools as Ohio State, University of Kentucky, University of South Carolina, West Virginia University, University of Tennessee, Vanderbilt, and others.

Several other debate matches are scheduled with schools in and around Virginia both before and after these two tournaments, and the debate team will be announced in approximately two weeks.

Notices

President Charlie Dawson announced that both old and new members of P.A.N. would have their organizational meeting Wednesday night at 7:00 p.m. in the Student Union. There will be an explanation of the financial situation, and plans for a formal P.A.N. party will be presented.

All men who are trying out for the Washington and Lee Rifle Team are requested to fire for record at the times posted on the ROTC bulletin board.

Anyone interested in indoor track should contact coach Norm Lord in the gym.

Varsity basketball practice begins today at 3:30. Anyone interested see Coach McCann.

Guided Tours Committee Plans Larger Workable Membership

At the first formal meeting of the Student Committee on Guided Tours last Thursday a motion was passed to enlarge membership in the organization to insure a more workable program for this year.

The primary function of this organization, which was established last spring, is to conduct guided tours for prospective students, parents, and visiting guests.

In order to function properly, the committee calls for a membership of approximately 26 students from the undergraduate body. Membership will be open to all juniors and seniors and those sophomores now on Dean's list.

All student's interested in the committee may receive further details by contacting Buz Hanson-Sigma Nu, Russell B. Myers-Sigma Chi, or Ben Hoover phone Lexington 9.

The plans for the formation of this committee were presented to the Executive Committee of the Faculty and the faculty itself last spring. The plan was revised slightly and approved by both groups.

Dr. Leyburn's Resignation

We wish to extend our best wishes to Dr. Leyburn in his decision to devote his time to teaching and thus to relinquish the deanship.

We feel that the University will benefit from his work in the future as it has in the past. Such a decision comes only after much thought and meditation, and we continue to place a full measure of trust in his judgment.

Our sentiments are aptly expressed by a student in a Letter to the Editor today. It is our opinion that he speaks for the students of W&L in his statement, "to him we express our profound appreciation, admiration, and respect..."

We can but strongly reiterate the hope that his policies will be continued.

The task of choosing a successor will not be easy.

What's Up With Town Council?

Once again the Lexington City Council has leveled an ordinance toward Washington and Lee students in order that other influential groups in town might be appeased.

Two years ago the Council intended to levy a license tax on all cars belonging to Washington and Lee students. With the aid of several members of the law school, the Executive Committee managed to show the Council that there was little legality in their decree and a repeal of this ordinance followed immediately.

The strongest argument that the City has been able to muster in support of their parking ban is that the "University plans to build a free parking lot" directly across from the Phi Kap house. What are the two fraternities, who suffer directly from this ruling of no parking on the north side of Jefferson Street, to do with their cars until such time in the future when the University sees fit to make available more space for student parking?

Why did the Council wait until the by-pass was near completion to pass this parking ban? Once the new by-pass is opened the traffic that now travels both Main Street and Jefferson Street will be reduced considerably. The end of the congestion of these two streets is near conclusion and there is no reason why the council should act on this problem now, especially since the heavy traffic conditions have existed on both of these streets for many years and a few more months will not hurt.

The Phi Gams also feel heavily the effects of this new parking ordinance as they have no other parking facilities than Preston St. and a small lot behind their house which holds a maximum of six cars. Now that they have been ordered to remove their cars from Preston Street they face a serious situation in finding a parking lot for approximately fifteen cars by the 20th of November.

Because of the gravity of this situation we feel that the City Council should give some careful consideration of the effects that their ordinance will have upon the three fraternities directly concerned.

The thirty days that the fraternities have to make necessary parking arrangements will soon expire and we see no hope for these houses unless the Council repeals their ordinance or the University takes some definite action. T.L.

Charity Chest Has Many Aspects

(This is the first of a series of articles concerning some of the organizations supported by the Charity Chest.)

In contributing to the Lexington-Rockbridge Community Chest, the Charity Chest is recognizing the obligations of the Washington and Lee student to the physical community in which he lives during the school year.

The local Community Chest carries out charitable operations which are outside the scope of any of the other organizations contained in the Charity Chest drive. Among these are:

The Children's Clinic, devoted to medical and welfare service to the underprivileged children of Rockbridge County. It includes actual clinical facilities for the children and information for their families as to what constitutes the necessities of good health. This year the clinic is undertaking a new project—the obtaining and distribution of staples from Government Surplus Commodities. The Community Chest is its only source of income.

Children's Home Society, a state-wide agency providing care and foster homes for orphaned or homeless babies. Eight children from Lexington and Rockbridge County were given this care last year.

"Vive Le Cinema" Buffalo Birth Cut From Local Flick

By Philippe Labro

Time, words, paper and ink are priceless. I do not intend therefore to waste them on Mr. Jacobs. In his way he is having fun, but ignorants should be ignored. Now to go back to less trivial subjects, the movies of this week:

LOSERS AFTER LOSERS at the State. "Gentlemen Marry Brunettes" was directed by a man named Sale. This man attended Washington and Lee. Although our school is known for producing geniuses and great men, I regret to declare the show was an offense to good taste, to cinema and generally speaking to human dignity.

"Female on the Beach" cannot be described in civilized terms. Joan Crawford and her twenty pounds of make-up opened her eyes wider than ever in front of Jeff Chandler, who was a very repulsive gigolo. The entire affair was totally sickening.

It looks like Mr. Daves will have three decent shows from now on to Christmas. I am not trying to blame it on the respectable owner of the respectable State. In fact there is nothing he can do about such a lamentable situation. Never before has Hollywood gone so far away from art and so close to disaster. It is well-known, however, that business is better than ever. This is all very depressing, but very typical at the same time.

FORTUNATELY we had "The Asphalt Jungle" at the Lyric. Directed by John Huston, the picture was a masterpiece of intelligence, skills, finesse and acute insight. Not only was the photography highly successful and effective (the very first and very last shot are for instance almost perfect: Dix chased in the dark, empty streets of the asphalt jungle, and then Dix dead in the Kentucky grass, with two horses around his body. The show is completed. The circle is achieved—but the music, the dialogue were adequate, realistic. The acting was dense, in its simplicity and its spontaneity.

Sterling Hayden, who usually plays a two-bit hero for Republic Pictures, was surprisingly convincing and moving as the farm boy who became a hooligan. His part a very delicate one, could hardly be played more soberly and naturally.

The rest of the cast was tops—Louis Calhern, John McIntire, James Whitmore, gave a striking example of what good movie-acting can be. As in every one of Huston's work, each role had its importance, its significance, and therefore all the parts were played with a professional quality, which I find more and more rarely in today's pictures.

Finally the psychological value of such a film cannot be forgotten. Huston actually demonstrated how deeply men are attached to certain basic instincts or goals; Calhern seeking for social glory and esteem, the "professor" haunted by an obsessive sex urge, Dix, a country boy lost in the city trying to come back to his roots, longing for his Kentucky farm, etc... All those human, animal beings fighting for their only raison d'être, fighting in the jungle, a jungle hardly ruled by a frail system of justice...

If you can make it to the Rock-bridge on Friday or Saturday, do not miss "Violent Saturday." It is one of the few good cinema scope gangster movies I have seen this year. And for once, Victor Mature is pretty good.

I cannot end this column without mentioning the stupidity of this state's board of censors which cut a baby buffalo's birth in "The Vanishing Prairie." This is an act of distorted puritanism, hypocriticism, narrowness of views and plain dumbness.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Sir:
Re: Leyburn

Regarding his resignation as Dean of the University we reiterate our confidence in the soundness of his decisions. To him we express our profound appreciation, admiration, and respect. Other words, understood, need not be said.

His contributions to this university are extremely significant. His approach to education, to University management, and to the students make his resignation a real loss to Washington and Lee if they are not continued. We trust that the University leaders will see that his policies are continued; in them we place our faith.

We the students have long recognized and appreciated his unselfish willingness to devote his time to us and to our problems. We then are very happy that he will be able to devote his full time to us, for we regard him, above all, as our teacher. GORDON GOOCH

Winnings from Quiz Bowl Go To Hig Williams Fund

The members of the 1955 Quiz Bowl have announced that the proceeds from their victories this year will be added to the John Higgins Williams Fund. The winnings amount to $1000.00.

Began by the 1954 Quiz Bowl team, the fund was established in the memory of Professor John Higgins Williams, and amounted to $2500.00. This sum was the earning of the 1954 team.

Professor Williams was a graduate of Washington and Lee and later was a long-time member of the faculty. He died while serving on the teaching staff.

In addition to the earnings of the Quiz Bowl teams the fund has been supplemented by contributions of friends of Professor Williams. The fund is used for scholarship aid.

"Sprigs of Ivy"

Harvard University as Seen in The Eyes of an Old Alumnus

By Ed Hood

Besides "Where do you live?" and "Do you know...?", the question I've been asked most here is "How does W&L compare with Harvard?"—perhaps indicating a certain frustration on the part of disappointed preppies.

DURING RUSH WEEK I sedulously avoided the question for fear of alienating some banner-waving Rebel or mass-democrat. Usually, I pass it off with "Well, they're so different it's hard to compare them." And it is. Having been in Cambridge the past week, though, I suppose the time has come to make a stab at it.

Harvard, like most Ivy League Schools, is older, bigger, richer, more famous, and better academically. By the last I do not mean that it is impossible to get as good an education at W&L as at Harvard: it is simply less likely. The teachers are no better as teachers at Harvard; they are more scholarly, often famous. (Last week for instance, I was able to hear the lectures of Arnold Toynbee, Paul Tillich, Raphael Oemos, Harlow Shapley, John Finley and Archibald Mac Leish).

Thus Harvard is glamorous, impersonal, and sophisticated as W&L is not; an enormous gulf exists between teacher and student there. Harvard freshmen are lonely people. Nevertheless, it is possible to exercise greater selection of courses and teachers there; and while you may never be spoken to by the chief lecturer in a course, the fellow students are generally more inclined to take their studies seriously, to talk them over outside of class. In fact, I have often thought that the real benefit of Harvard lies in this extra-curricular intellectual stimulation, not only from classmates and young graduate students, but even in the Cambridge-Boston environment itself.

The "average Harvard student" (who spends half his time convincing himself that he is anything BUT average) is more likely to emerge with something approaching a general, liberal education than his W&L counterpart—perhaps through osmosis. (Business at Harvard is considered a graduate speciality.) He is to that degree more mature intellectually, being critically aware of what is happening around him... and WILLING TO TRANSLATE HIS AWARENESS INTO ACTION. Hence the myriad of clubs, organizations, unions, etc., at Harvard.

HE IS MORE LIKELY to think and act for himself than the excessively other-directed W&L boy. He is also more likely to be lost in a shuffle of the card-catalogue. (It was proposed that a plaque be placed on the Yard to commemorate the sport where Harvard Pres. Eliot once spoke to a freshman.)

Harvard does not have (1) fraternities (2) conventional dress (3) compulsory class attendance (4) an Honor System. Moreover, it is co-educational with Radcliffe. The effects of these differences are enormous. It has about the same ratio of prep to public school boys as W&L, but a wider distribution. There is no Jewish quota and Negroes are admitted. This, nine graduate schools—(each outstanding), the Boston-Cambridge environment, money enough to import top scholars in a field (Harvard's assets are $442 million), and an international reputation combine to make Harvard cosmopolitan as W&L is agrarian in tone.

Could we say, then, that the attraction of W&L is that of reticence, acceptance of limitations, and the beauty of participation in LIMITED FORMS rooted in tradition? And that the appeal of Harvard is that of a kind of heroic posturing, striving to "extend the frontiers of knowledge" (in a famous Harvard phrase)? That at W&L our options are limited as they are not at Harvard, but that our emotional attachment is somehow deeper? And that while the freshmen may not be so impressed with W&L as he invariably is at Harvard, he will find, nevertheless, that "these are the roots that clutch?"

This is by no means the whole story.

DON'T MISS "Gentleman Jim on the 88's" (not my phrase) tonight at 8 in Lee Chapel. The program is first rate and uncondescending—like the pianist. For this we may be thankful. The excellent display case in the Library, with its ingenious mobile of musical motifs, should also be praised.

STUPIDITY OF THE WEEK: Holiday magazine article, "The Ivy League; Its Natural Superiority."

Jenks' Year Abroad Includes Research, Study, and Parties

By CLIFF SMITH

Under a combined grant from the Fund for the Advancement of Education, a subsidiary of the Ford Foundation, and a Fulbright grant for Austrian historical research, Dr. William Jenks spent 12 months in Europe which began last summer and ended shortly before the convening of school this fall.

He first spent five months in Florence, Italy attending classes in the University of Florence. Although all classes were conducted in the native Italian language, Dr. Jenks explained that it wasn't particularly difficult to understand after you became a little accustomed to it.

His study in Florence was primarily concerned with fine arts and history. This study in history was of the Renaissance and Baroque periods which are in line with his teaching courses here at W&L.

Speaking a moment about the life in Italy, he mentioned that he lived in a boarding house owned by people on a pension. He said that these people had quite an insight into American attitude and that they were generally friendly. However, he stressed that he wasn't in a place that would likely be anti-American.

Then in February of this year, he and his family (which includes a four year old boy and a nine year old girl) moved to Vienna, Austria.

Here he began the laborious task of his grant—that of digging out facts about 19th and 20th century Austrian history from the huge archives located in Vienna. His research was concerned more with outstanding figures and personalities than with the past events in Austrian history.

In Vienna there was planned entertainment for those on Fulbright grants almost every day, and, according to Dr. Jenks, they seldom allowed one a dull moment. This entertainment included tours, social activities, operas, conferences, etc.

The children were taught by Mrs. Jenks in accordance with the educational plan used by many Point Four program ambassadors. "This was a pretty big task," Dr. Jenks said, "and I think that Mrs. Jenks really can appreciate a teachers' efforts now more than ever before."

Gondola Ride

The most enjoyable things for the children were a gondola ride in Venice and the brilliantly decorated merry-go-rounds in the Viennese parks.

Turning again to the recreational parts of his tour abroad, Dr. Jenks mentioned that one of the most colorful events was the bullfight in Barcelona which they saw during their last two weeks in Europe.

Dr. Jenks recently spoke before the Washington Literary Society, explaining the attitudes that he noticed abroad and also the spheres of the greatest American influence on Italian life. He is scheduled to speak tomorrow night to the new initiates of the Phi Delta Phi legal fraternity.

Ragan, Wheeler, Latture At Political Science Meeting

On the week of Nov. 4 three W&L political science professors, Dr. Allen E. Ragan, Dr. J. Harvey Wheeler and Mr. Rupert N. Latture, will attend the Southern Political Science Association meeting in Atlanta, Ga.

This twenty-seventh annual meeting, held in the Biltmore Hotel, will last for three days.

The following topics will be discussed at the convention: "The Second Hoover Administration," "The Conservative Renaissance," "Prospects for Electoral Reform," "Atomic Energy: Public Policy and Political Science," "Trends in Federal-State Relations" and "The Development of American Foreign Policy."

Washington Downs Generals 27-0 For 4th Loss

Daughterly Stars at Quarterback; Lack of Depth Wrecks Blue

Although they played their best game of the year, a lack of depth caused the General eleven to drop a 27-0 contest to Washington University in St. Louis Saturday. The W&L team completely outplayed Washington the first half, leaving the field at intermission only 7 points down, but injuries and pre-med exams took out several key players to weaken the bench, and the third quarter proved disastrous.

Second Half Fatal

Once more the second half proved fatal to the Blue and White, as Washington U. scored 20 points in the third quarter against the inexperienced Generals who fumbled 9 times, losing the ball 5 of these times.

Statistically, the teams were fairly even, with the Bears having 12 first downs to W&L's 10, 190 yards rushing to the Generals' 134, and 26 yards through the air to W&L's 29.

Washington's first score came solely through the efforts of Don Polkinghorne, the Bear's sophomore fullback, who intercepted Jack Daughtery's pass on the Bear 23 to end the Generals' most potent threat, and carried the ball the whole of the 77-yard TD drive.

He sped 16 yards on a reverse, faked a hand-off on a half-spinner, and went 38 yards for the touchdown, with a 15 yard roughing penalty against W&L thrown in. Don Sauer kicked the extra point and the teams left the field at half-time with a 7-0 Bear lead.

The second half started with a bang as Bob Ladd hauled in the W&L kickoff and sped 85 yards for the touchdown behind some terrific blocking to shake him loose. The effect of the run was rather disheartening to the Generals and that proved to be the key to the ballgame.

Bears Score

W&L's Jack Daughtery was forced to punt a little later in the quarter and got off a beautiful 65-yard kick which went out of bounds on the Washington 17. The Bears disregarded the kick and drove 83 yards to score, with Don Sauer scoring on a recovery of Mel Siegel's fumble into the end zone from the 3.

The final TD came as a result of a bad pass from center by W&L's Tom Salsbury which soared over the backs heads and rolled out of bounds on the General's 2 on fourth down. Washington took over and few moments later Ken Miles cracked over from the 1.

Polkinghorne Carries

Polkinghorne carried the ball 18 times for 122 yards and Bob Ladd carried 52 yards to provide the bulk of the Washington offense. It was the General's fourth loss against Washington's 3-3 record.

The prospects for victory don't look much better next week when Washington and Lee travels to meet unbeaten Hampden-Sydney College at Hampden-Sydney, Virginia. The Tigers are riding on the crest of an eleven game winning streak through two seasons now with six of the victories coming this year. Jim Hickey's charges hold victories over West Virginia Tech, Emory and Henry, Guilford, Johns Hopkins, Western Maryland, and a 34-0 rout of Bridgewater Saturday. The Tigers have good speed, depth, and are a well-balanced unit, with seven different players getting in the scoring column against Bridgewater.

It looks like another dismal afternoon for the Generals, but if W&L improves as much as they have in the last few weeks, Hampden-Sydney and the fans could be in for a good game and perhaps even a surprise.

Soccermen Meet Roanoke In Home Game Thursday

By HERB HUMMERS

On Thursday of this week a rapidly improving Washington and Lee Soccer Team plays host to Roanoke College at 4 p.m. in Lexington.

This past week the Generals played an excellent Virginia team to a 3-3 deadlock in a game which was prolonged by two overtime periods. This fine showing by W&L points up the improvement in their team. While Roanoke defeated the "Blue and White" in a previous outing, Virginia beat the "Maroons" by a considerable margin.

Roanoke comes to Lexington sporting a 2-3 record, and should provide W&L with a fine opportunity to pick up its first win. They are sparked by Bob McDade, their inside left. McDade, who is an excellent shot, received Honorable Mention All-American for his play last year.

The General's lineup will be essentially the same as it was last week except for Don Morine, who will start at Center Halfback. Goalie Ron Smith is a doubtful starter and Bill Russell will more than likely take his place in the nets.

Captain Jim Lewis, Ron Smith, and Belden Butterfield played outstanding Soccer in the game against Virginia. The Generals led until their goalie, Smith, was injured late in the game and had to be taken to the hospital. His replacement Russell was hampered by a hand injury and couldn't stem the tide.

This is Washington and Lee's second home game, and those fans who attended their game against Duke certainly saw a fine exhibition of Soccer. This "Blue and White" team has been making steady improvement since the season began. Their spirit is high after the improved showings they made against Duke and Virginia.

Harriers Lose To V.M.I., Davidson; Face W&M At Home Saturday

Washington and Lee's harriers clash with William and Mary, November 5, 1955, in a cross country meet on the General's home course.

Both teams have been beaten by VMI this year, but W&M has a better overall record. In a triangular meet with Davidson and North Carolina, W&M ran second to N.C. State and out-scored Davidson by a comfortable margin.

Washington and Lee's thin-clads ran Thursday, October 27, in a triangular match with Davidson and VMI. VMI won the race handily, while Davidson edged out the Generals by five points to capture second place.

The Harriers, led by Burke Armstrong and Charlie Duffy, must win the meet November 5 if they are to remain a serious contender for Southern Conference honors. The final test will be November 21, the day of the Conference meet, but unless the General's hit their stride soon, their future prospects look dim.

I-M Fall Season Ends; Phi Psi Wins Football

This past week saw a great deal of Intramural action in which the Phi Psi's won the Football championship, the Kappa Sig's won the Golf championship, and the Law School led in the still unfinished Tennis round-robin playoffs.

In Football the Phi Psi's finished first as the result of a 7-6 win in their final game against Phi Gamma Delta. Sigma Nu finished second, with a 2-1 record, the Phi Gams third with a 1-2 record, and Delta Upsilon fourth.

Rule Change

The one major change in the 1955-56 basketball rules is the widening of the foul lane to 12 feet. This may have several results.

It will make everyone extremely conscious of the three second rule. Officials as well as players will be more aware of this rule than they have been in the past. As soon as the player touches any part of the foul lane the three second count begins. It takes about four seconds to walk across the wide lane.

1956 Football Schedule Includes Seven Games

With the football season a little over the halfway mark, the Athletic Department has announced the tentative schedule for next year. The Generals will play Centre College in Louisville, Kentucky, for the season's opener; Davidson College, here; Southwestern in Memphis, Wabash College at Crawfordsville, Indiana; Sewanee, here; Washington University, here; and Hampden-Sydney, there.

The only newcomer to the schedule is Wabash College, which takes the place of West Virginia Tech. The Generals take on three teams on their home field and meet the other four on foreign soil. All seven schools are small colleges, with the exception of Washington University, which has about 5,000 students enrolled, including the graduate school. All seven play football on an amateur basis except Davidson which has a subsidized, but de-emphasized team.

The exact dates have not been decided upon yet but the tentative dates set up the teams in the order established above.

W&L should have a successful season next year, with a much more experienced team. The Generals will (Continued on page four)

Students' Work Appears Today

"New Campus Writing," the first collection of writings by students of American universities and colleges, appeared on the newsstands this week.

A Bantam Book, issued in pocket size, paperback format, it is edited by Nolan Miller, professor of English at Antioch College.

The collection contains 18 short stories and 26 poems representing the work of 29 students. The selections were chosen from hundreds of manuscripts submitted.

According to the publisher, the book will be used as supplementary reading in many college writing courses.

Eric Severeid, CBS commentator, recently established a scholarship for graduate study in radio and television at the University of Minnesota.

Station KGAK, Gallup, N. M., which won last year's small station award, has donated its stipend to the Navajo tribe to help educate a young Navajo for professional communications work.

Dr. Francis P. Gaines, president of Washington and Lee University, which since 1951 has administered the duPont awards, will head the Awards Committee again this year.

Winners of awards for 1955 will be announced at a dinner in Washington in the spring.

Even with the losses through graduation, the team will be better off experience-wise.

not hurt the team." He went on to explain that the team has players who can hit on long shots. One of Lee Marshall's best shots is a jump shot from the corner.

A distinct disadvantage of this new rule will be very apparent next year. The high schools are still using the six foot lane. This will pose a problem when they start playing college ball next year. They will be the only ones who will be unaccustomed to the lane, while this year this wide lane will be new to all college teams.

Undoubtedly more zones will be used in order to close up the middle.

It seems unnecessary to comment on these two organizations other than to say that both are extremely active in the Lexington area.

The Regional Library, providing library and bookmobile facilities to this area. It gives local people some of the many literary opportunities which are taken for granted at Washington and Lee.

The United Defense Fund, the SPCA, the Virginia Council on Health and Medical Care, the Salvation Army, and the Travelers Aid Association. The functions of these groups should be well known, and to go into them would be repetitious and time consuming.

The quick survey of the activities above should be enough to point out the excellent work that is being done by the Community Chest.
