Cadet Corps Given Leave For Tourney

Generals Move Into Lead With Eight Men In Semi-Finals

7 V. M. I. GRAPPLERS IN SECOND ROUND

Thomas, Seitz, Shively All Win Opening Bouts This Afternoon

Bulletin

General John A. LeJeune late this afternoon granted leave to the entire V. M. I. corps to attend the finals of the wrestling tournament in Doremus gymnasium tomorrow night, when the Generals and the Keydets are expected to be battling for the conference championship. The application for permit was made by Cadet First Captain Carpenter.

When the tournament was held two years ago at V. M. I., rivalry was great between the Minks and Keydets in several bouts and the gym was seething with excitement. Tomorrow night when the team title is at stake, feeling is expected to run even higher.

A delegation of Delta Tau Deltas has just returned from V. M. I. with $150 that they took to put on Washington and Lee over the Keydets at even money, but all that could be raised in the barracks was $28.

With the preliminary bouts completed, Washington and Lee this afternoon led the Wrestling tournament, having scored one point on a fall when Rowland Thomas threw his opponent in 49 seconds, and Ed Seitz and Glenn Shively winning by time advantage, placing eight men in the semi-finals, for the Blue and White.

V. M. I. Second

In the second place, is Virginia Military Institute, with seven men in the semi-finals, and with one man in the finals. V. P. I. is in third place, with six men, and N. C. State in fourth, with five men in the semi-finals. Duke is in fifth place, scoring one point on a fall by Ardolino, and having two men entered, and N. C. U. is in the last position with two men also.

None of the V. M. I. wrestlers were in the preliminaries this afternoon, by virtue of the drawings made this noon. In the heavyweight class, only three men are listed, and by the drawing, Farley of V. M. I., is listed for the finals.

Record Pin

The most impressive bout of the afternoon was in the 118-pound class, as Rowland Thomas, of Washington and Lee, and Southern Conference champion in 1933, pinned Bell of N. C. State in 49 seconds.

Shively of Washington and Lee, in the 145-pound class, defeated Canup of N. C. State, with a time advantage of 6:44, in a bout that was a definite victory for Shively, his opponent gaining an almost negligible time advantage.

Seitz Beats Captain

Seitz of Washington and Lee, defeated Efland, captain of the N. C. U. team, with a time advantage of 1:41, in a bout that was close from the start, and in which Efland gained 59 seconds advantage before Seitz overtook him.

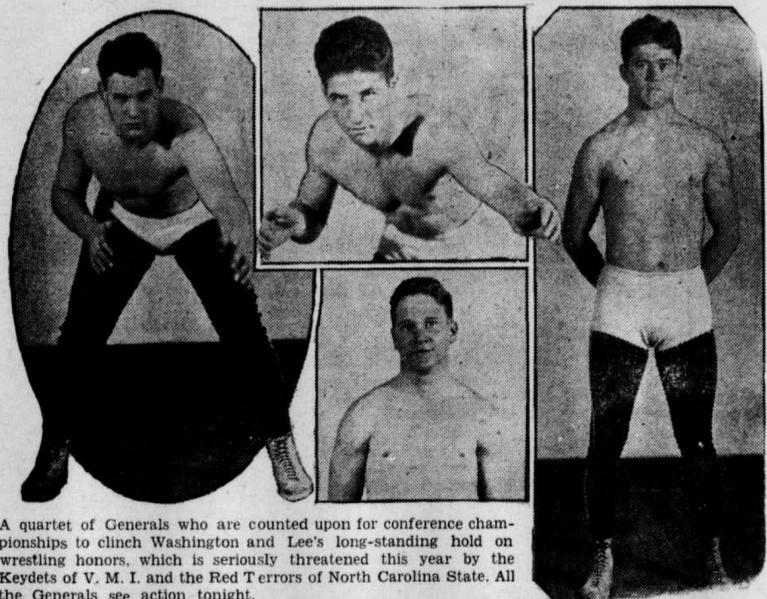

Stevenson of Duke, defeated Umstead of N. C. U., with a time advantage of 4:18. As the referee's whistle blew for the close of the match, however, Umstead was piling up time advantage, and had Stevenson's shoulders within approximately two inches of the mat.

Krash, N. C. State, threw Adkins, of V. P. I., in 25 seconds of the first period.

Spring Football

Football uniforms will be given to all spring football candidates on Sunday afternoon, between three and five o'clock. Coach Tex Tilson is especially anxious to see as many students turn out as possible, for there is plenty of room for all on either the varsity or junior varsity squads. Experience is not essential, he says.

Ready for Issue with Keydets and Red Terrors

A quartet of Generals who are counted upon for conference championships to clinch Washington and Lee's long-standing hold on wrestling honors, which is seriously threatened this year by the Keydets of V. M. I. and the Red Terrors of North Carolina State. All the Generals see action tonight.

Seniors' Girls Prettiest, Decides James M. Flagg

Famed Artist Selects Eight of 49 Entries in Calyx Beauty Contest.—"Lovely to Look At—Hard To Choose," He Says

By MARTIN CRAMOY
Selected by James Montgomery Flagg, noted illustrator, as being the most beautiful out of forty-nine pictures of girls submitted, eight particular young ladies will, in all probability, be the recipients of many future invitations from an admiring student body—that is, if their former escorts don't mind. The girls are: Mrs. John Champ Neely, of Fairmont, West Virginia. Miss Isabel Connolly, of Stinesville, Indiana. Miss Gillet Epps, of Richmond. Miss Jane Carson, of Cleveland, Mississippi. Miss Juanita Boger, of Philadelphia. Miss Anne Weidman, of Lake Forest, Illinois. Miss Suzanne Marshall, of Pittsburgh. Miss Winifred Goodman, of Newport News.

The contest, sponsored by the Calyx, attracted forty-nine pictures, all of which were submitted to Mr. Flagg, the sole judge. All eight of the winners will have their pictures placed in the annual, according to Editor Ed Chappel.

It is interesting to note that five of the winning pictures were submitted by seniors; one by a sophomore, and two by freshmen. No picture submitted by a junior was selected.

Mr. Flagg, in a letter accompanying the photos, said: "I am sending you the photos back. I have chosen eight. Those I have selected (or at least the photos) were very lovely to look at, and difficult to choose."

Flagg, who is famous for his eye for beauty, kindly consented to act as judge for the contest upon the request of Chappel.

Four of the girls selected are from below the Mason-Dixon line, while the other four are northerners.

Miss Isabel Connolly led the Fancy Dress figure as Countess Mettermich, escorted by Don Wallis. Miss Connolly is brunette and is at present attending Indiana university.

Miss Gillet Epps, tall and blonde, is going to art school in Richmond. Harry Rhett was her escort at Fancy Dress.

Miss Jane Carson, who was escorted to Fancy Dress by Jeff Busby, is a former holder of the title "Miss Cleveland." She is now attending an art school in New York.

Miss Juanita Boger, a brunette, was invited here by Fred Strong. Miss Anne Weidman, the only red-head to be selected, will attend spring dances upon invitation from Chris Keller.

Miss Suzanne Marshall, now attending Southern Seminary, is blonde. "Cy" Anderson escorted her to Fancy Dress.

Miss Winifred Goodman, a brunette, formerly attended Mary Baldwin. Bill Hudgins was her partner.

Mrs. John Champ Neely, the only married woman candidate, is from Fairmont, West Virginia.

Two of the girls chosen by Mr. Flagg were blondes, one a red-head, and five were brunettes. Virginia, with two winners represented, and Pennsylvania, also with two, led the selection by states.

Dr. Tucker Will Speak Before Civil Engineers

Dr. Robert H. Tucker will speak on "Public Utilities" at a meeting of the Virginia chapter of the American Association of Civil Engineers at V. M. I. March 29.

Dr. Tucker, who is recognized as an authority on this subject, has taught a course in it at Washington and Lee since 1915, the first course in public utilities ever given in a Southern college or university.

Students Favor Formal Dances, Survey Reveals

377 Respond to Poll, Giving Formality Majority Of 43 Votes

Student opinion favors the plan to make all Washington and Lee dances formal, according to the results of a Ring-tum Phi straw vote. Students at eighteen fraternity houses this noon voted 210-167 in favor of this change.

The student poll was conducted by the Ring-tum Phi at the request of the Monogram club, sponsors of the dance to be held after the Interscholastic Basketball tournament on March 9. In response to student demand for making these hops formal, the Monogram club decided to take this test of student opinion. Consequently, 377 students at eighteen fraternity houses were asked to vote this noon on the resolution on that "all dances (dansants excepted) at Washington and Lee should be formal."

The results of this poll were as follows:

9 Men Barred From 2 Dances

Rounded Up in Drive Against Crashers At V. M. I.

Nine students were haled before the executive committee Tuesday night and pleaded guilty to attending the V. M. I. dances in violation of the reciprocal agreement that allows only Washington and Lee seniors at the Keydets' hops.

Each was barred from all Washington and Lee dances until the Saturday dances of the spring set, except one who was barred from the Saturday dances of the spring set and allowed to attend the Friday night dance as a dues-paying member of the "13" club, sponsor of the affair.

Jack Ball, president of the student body, at the same time, announced that the executive committee will henceforth pursue a vigorous policy in enforcing this rule during the remainder of the year.

Academic School Leads Science Dep't.; Justice Eggleston Nominated

INITIATION DINNER SET FOR MARCH 16

Regular Ceremonies Will Be Followed by Banquet at Dutch Inn

Fourteen seniors have received and accepted bids to Phi Beta Kappa, Dr. Livingston Waddell Smith, secretary of Gamma chapter, announced today. The number of science students recognized for scholastic achievement was unusually high, including two taking engineering and three taking chemistry and biology. Only one commerce student was elected, compared to two senior lawyers and six academic students.

Last year the academic school had seven Phi Beta Kappa pledges to its credit. The commerce department came next with three, then the law department with two; and last the science department with only one.

Justice John W. Eggleston, recently appointed member of the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals, was elected to alumni membership in the fraternity. Justice Eggleston received his B.A., M.A., and LL.B. degrees from Washington and Lee. He was a member of Kappa Sigma and Phi Delta Phi when a student here. He has been practicing law in Norfolk for the past twenty years.

The initiation ceremonies will be held Saturday, March 16, followed by a banquet at the Dutch Inn.

One of the newly elected men is taking a degree in three years. Another is doing the same thing, plus one summer school term. Seven are fraternity men and seven are non-fraternity, and the same balance is maintained between students from the North and South.

The following men were elected to membership:

Irving Rosen Block, of Brooklyn, N. Y., is a senior in the school of science, majoring in chemistry and biology and preparing to study medicine. He began his sophomore year here in 1933 as a transfer from Howard college in Alabama and attended summer school at N. Y. U. in 1934. He is a member of Chi Gamma Theta and T. K. I.

George Boyd, Jr., of Hagerstown, Md., is a senior in the academic school and is majoring in history. He is completing the regular university course in three years instead of four. Boyd is a member of Delta Upsilon, an expresident of the Graham-Lee, and served as dormitory counselor the first semester of this year.

George Harding Foster, of Jackson Heights, N. Y., is a candidate for the master of arts degree in English. He holds the Howard Houston teaching fellowship and is an instructor in the English department. He is a member of Delta Upsilon, was editor of the Southern Collegian last year, and has been a leading Troubadour actor since entering school. He attended college at the College of the City of New York.

Daniel Penick Gholson, of Holly Springs, Miss., is a senior in the Receipts This Year Are Seventy-five Dollars Over 1934; $500 More Paid For Orchestra in 1935; Slight Further Amounts Expected

A clear profit of $417.80 was realized by Fancy Dress, 1935, according to a statement issued today by Sam Rayder, treasurer of the student body. This represents an increase of nearly $75 over the profit of Fancy Dress, 1934.

Slight further receipts are expected, Rayder said, but not in sufficient amounts to change the statement materially.

The profit this year was made in spite of a $500 increase in the expenditure for the orchestra. This was made up largely in the costuming. In 1934, a loss of nearly $150 was sustained in handling of costumes, while this year a gain of about $230 was realized. Junior Prom dues also increased by about $100 this year.

The nation-wide broadcast of Fancy Dress Ball over the Columbia Broadcasting System cost Fancy Dress $100 this year. Another $100 for this item was contributed by the Publications Board.

One substantial item of which this year's ball was relieved was the $100 payment on the loud-speaker system in the gymnasium. This expense, contracted several years ago, was to be partly paid by dance organizations, and was completed last year.

Mongolia Danger Spot Col. Magruder Tells Club

"Mongolia is destined to be the danger spot of the far east," Colonel John Magruder, Commandant at V. M. I., stated at a meeting of the International Relations Club last night in Newcomb Hall. He went on to explain that the spheres of influence of Japan, Russia, and China all conflict in a strip of Mongolia called Chahar. Even though the League of Nations did not discuss this point in a recent report on the far east, every fact seems to indicate that trouble lies in Mongolia.

George Boyd, vice-president of the International Relations Club, gave a short talk about the South-eastern conference, which he attended last week-end at Davidson College in North Carolina. At this convention several outstanding men gave addresses on current topics.

Five in Hospital

Five Washington and Lee students were confined in the Stone-wall Jackson hospital this afternoon. Apparently the measles epidemic is over, because none of the students have measles in the hospital at the present time. The students in the hospital are: R. W. Hostetter, Sidney Repplier, Ernest Williams, Ralph C. Ingram, and Wallace Shingle.

Famous Group To Sing Here

Hampton Institute Quartet To Appear Here Wednesday Night

The Hampton Institute quartet, world famous group of negro singers who have performed here in past years, will again sing in Lee chapel next Wednesday night at 7:30 p. m. The quartet is being brought here under the auspices of the Christian council and is touring all Virginia and North Carolina colleges, sponsored by the Inter-Racial committees of these two states.

Members of the quartet have recently returned from touring Europe where they sang before the king of England and other prominent personages. This quartet, and a group from the Fisk Institute of Nashville, Tennessee, are probably the two most famous negro spiritual singing groups in the United States, according to Dr. Morton, advisor of the Christian council.

This making weight idea hit Glenn Shively pretty bad. He wrestles his tough man tonight in Bonner of N. C. U., and he wants to be in good shape.

IF THE RAH-RAH ERA HAS ENDED, WHAT NEXT?

The policy of the Ring-tum Phi in insisting that the future usefulness of Washington and Lee lies in the field of broad cultural training under conditions that should stimulate student intellect and weed out the rah-rah boys and the educational camp followers is strongly supported by the twenty-ninth annual report of the Carnegie Foundation of Teaching. As summarized on the front page of the New York Times, this significant report declares that the rah-rah era in colleges has ended and that the serious students of today are demanding real seats of learning that are qualified not by adherence to the old standards of credits, points, and professors' salaries, but by what they do for the student. The report forecasts the doom of some colleges and a loss of ground by many others, and emphasizes the "acceptance of institutional responsibility for student personality," involving new developments in student housing, tutorial devices, recreation, and study. Money, it is said, will be much less important in determining which colleges will best serve the needs of the future than intelligent leadership that is able to analyze the limitations of its institution and be content with doing a thorough job within these limits. This report carries a stirring challenge to every one of the 800 colleges in the land, and especially to a small college with background like Washington and Lee. It is as much a challenge to the students of today, who must further prove that the purpose of the college system is to meet their genuine demands for learning and the opportunity to develop a character.

To quote from the report:

"The student on the campus is no longer the blase, sophisticated student of the Twenties; he is a hard-working, serious-minded person who demands more of the college library, the laboratory and the instructor than did his brother of a decade ago. He is increasingly a patron of the seminar, the serious lecture, the art gallery, the symphony concert. This student is deflating the 'rah-rah boy' of yesterday. He has a different attitude toward scholarship, research, athletics, fraternities and student activities.

"It is a fact that every serious-minded experiment on the part of educational institutions to attain a new level of educational effectiveness is now being met by the students with serious-minded and intelligent co-operation. This has been notably true at Chicago, Harvard, Minnesota, and Princeton. It is altogether likely that the students will do their part in maintaining colleges as 'seats of learning' if the colleges—executives and staff—can forget the educational fantasies of the Nineteen Twenties and face the present in the spirit of reality."

Is this proclaimed new seriousness of students noticeable at Washington and Lee? It is difficult for one of the present generation of students to say, but even if there is a trend in this direction the Washington and Lee student body has a long way to go before it can be said to take its education very seriously. There seems to have been some recent de-emphasizing of extracurricular activities, and a latent student intellectual interest is being manifest in various new forms; but the average student's aim is still to get a degree because it's the thing to do or because it is a more pleasant occupation than many other things. Classes are tolerated as the necessary evils of a system whose redeeming features are its high-powered athletics and its high-powered automobiles, its dances and its fraternities, and its fertile opportunities for the potential office grabber and big shot. And the professors seem to accept this student view-point, so that they, too, are helplessly in the rut that leads to a degree but over whose sides one catches but a glimpse of the great field of intellectual development. There is going to have to be a revolution in thought at Washington and Lee from top to bottom, from chapter room to Administration offices, before the rah-rah attitude is deflated and replaced by something more than provincialism and shallow vacuity.

A university is felt to be a place where people are thinking, and doubting, and proving, but what student here finds anything to encourage him in these processes? Class work is carried on by rote rather than through individual interest and effort. The University's academic and cultural influence ends with the class hour an edict that the peace be not disturbed. The course of study if loosely strung together and designed to call attention to itself as a ways and means to a degree, which is all the student asks of it. These criticisms are challenges that the college that is to be useful tomorrow must meet. The Carnegie report suggests greater use of the tutorial and seminar systems as the way in which the larger colleges are facing these issues. Extension of such systems at Washington and Lee would surely mean revolution, accompanied by a renaissance of student and faculty concern for true education if any good were ever to come of it. The alternative is stagnation.

A PRACTICAL AND VALUABLE REWARD FOR SCHOLARSHIP

For many years the Society of the Cincinnati in Virginia has offered a handsome gold medal to the Washington and Lee student submitting the best essay setting forth the principles for which the society was founded. No one has qualified for this award since Mr. Fitzgerald Flournoy won it as an undergraduate some fifteen or eighteen years ago. Students have ceased to attach a great deal of significance to gold medals, and the principles of the Society of the Cincinnati are well enough known and accepted to make any further discussion of them superfluous. It was over a hundred years ago when the society was under fire as the possible roots of an American aristocracy that the true purposes for which it was founded had to be defended. But with recently made changes in the conditions of the award, a great opportunity is opened to all students interested in American history to explore the variety of interesting topics connected with the American revolution and incorporate the results of their research in a paper of literary value. A paper on any phase of colonial or revolutionary history is now acceptable. Of perhaps greater interest to potential student competitors is the fact that fifty dollars in cash and a bronze medal can be substituted for the gold medal.

The high practical value of this award supports what should be a natural interest on the part of history students with a strong incentive to enter the competition. It is expected that the Cincinnati award will no longer go begging, but that the attainment of it, as the competition grows in the next few years, will be marked with considerable honor and significance.

MONOGRAM CLUB LEADERS MAKE THEIR OWN BED

Although Monogram club officials do not favor making the dance after the basketball tournament formal, it was their stunt to stir up interest in the affair by having a student poll, so it is up to them to stick by the voice of the people and announce a formal dance. To do anything else would be little short of a breach of good faith. The student body has clearly demonstrated that it believes all Washington and Lee dances should be formal. This establishes a set principle, not for this dance alone, but for the Homecoming set next fall, when there is even more reason for a formal dance. The chief objection, beside laziness and perhaps a brand new spring suit, is that the high school ball players will feel abashed in informal attire, but this need not be so. Let them be told that it is their dance and that they are expected to go informal, and there will be no cause for the youngsters being embarrassed. Not that they are likely to feel that way under any circumstances. Be that as it may, the student body has expressed itself clearly on a fundamental issue.

CONCERTED ACTION TO CUT CALYX COSTS

A number of fraternities are objecting, and rightfully so, at having to pay sixty dollars to be represented in the Calyx. That amounts to an average of two dollars per member, in addition to the high cost of individual pictures and the large percentage of the campus tax that goes to pay for the book. Sixty dollars knocks a hole in any fraternity budget, but what can an individual club do but pay through the nose and appear to like it? It cannot afford not to be represented. Here is a chance for the inter-fraternity council to act. If a majority of the clubs feel that they are paying too much to be represented in the Calyx, the concerted action of the council can drive a more reasonable bargain. The Calyx needs the fraternity section as badly as the fraternities need to be in the Calyx; if the clubs stick together they can enforce any fair demand.

OFF THE RECORD

By DUNCAN G. GRONER

By BILL HUDGINS

There is a vacancy on the Board of Trustees because of the death of Judge Louis Spencer Epes. Choosing his successor is a great problem. It is of supreme importance to select an industrious, broad-minded and cognitive alumnus. Realizing on which side our bread is buttered, we are cautious in our criticism of the present Board. We do have a distinguished and renowned directorate, but do we not need diligent workers more than mere names?

The present Board contains notable figures of state and national fame. These men are naturally interested in their alma mater, but some of them are so important as not to have sufficient time to devote to the institution. They give the school prestige but not enough action.

Such a university as ours deserves unceasing praise for its administration. We are free and independent of all external control from either church or state. Denominational institutions are supported by the church, while state institutions receive large appropriations from governmental grants. There is no other school in Virginia that does not receive compensation from either church or state.

Because of this condition, we frequently have to resort to rather mercenary means. This is unfortunate but inevitable. When the successor to Judge Epes is chosen, we hope that the choice will not be entirely based on national reputation and wealth.

From a wholly personal viewpoint I might mention a few men whom we think will be under consideration. There seems to be an abundance of judicial material. There are two outstanding associates of Judge Epes on the state's highest tribunal — Judge Henry W. Holt and Judge Herbert B. Gregory. Judge Epes' successor, Judge John W. Eggleston, is young and energetic.

Others who may be selected include: Col. Henry W. Anderson, former member of the Wickersham Commission; Major Heth Tyler, head of the Virginia ABC Board; Governor Ruby Laffoon of Kentucky; Wade Hampton Ellis, former Solicitor General, of Washington; Lieut. Governor James H. Price of Virginia; Attorney-General Abram Staples of Virginia; Fred Valz of Florida; Lawrence Witten and Walter McDonald of Ohio.

The Board, a self-perpetuating group, must be composed of from twelve to fifteen members. At the present time the group consists of twelve men. Thus there were two vacancies prior to Judge Epes' death. There is little doubt that it will be deemed necessary to choose at least one new man, and it is possible that three new members will be selected.

Naturally, the old question of sectionalism will face the body. At the present time there is no one on the Board who lives south of Virginia. Fifty per cent of the student body and seventy-five per cent of the alumni live in this unrepresented territory. If there is good available material, we therefore advocate selecting a man from the deep South.

The Board will be confronted with a paramount issue, and the student body is vitally concerned. If possible to combine industry, wealth, illustriousness, intellect, and human insight, we hope that the present Board will do it. Above all, however, let the new trustee have a keen insight into the wants and needs of university men today and an infinite capacity for work.

The Faculty Turned Loose

"Tomorrow Appears." Mr. Watkin's new play, looks like a sure-fire production. A rehearsal last night, even in a bare and unattractive classroom in Washington College, showed that the play has a punch. The theme of the play has an Enoch Arden echo in that a husband supposedly dead, returns home and finds his wife married a second time. That is all of the plot that may be told now. The rest will be known by the audience which sees the play at the Ann Smith Academy on Monday night at eight.

Mr. Watkin has created one of the most delightfully crochety of old grandfathers ever. Mr. Barnes plays this part, cackling away and belching with superb nonchalance. His best drawing card is his appearance on the stage in pajamas and bathrobe. Perhaps he should have followed a stage career instead of a professorial one. If you don't believe it, go and see.

Dr. Leon P. Smith, bellowing and blustering about, all but bursts buttons in his portrayal of a big, powerful husband just home from South America. He is the swashbuckler personified. As a dry, wise-cracking cynic, Mr.

Jackson does admirably. Miss Penick plays the part of the wife, and Folger Thomas the part of young Harvard material. Though Mr. Mattingly was not a member of the rehearsing group last night, his part is short and sweet and ought to floor you.

At the rehearsal, Mr. Watkin sat puffing his pipe, relighting it ever five minutes, nodding and grinning at the capers of the characters as they went through their lines. Some of the lines are hilarious, but mixed with the keen humor is a dramatic force which ought to keep you on the edge of your seats. If it doesn't, nothing ever will.

There is some nice slugging in the second act with Dr. Smith on the "giving" end. Following this a gun is waved about with threatening gestures. With highlights like these, even though the play is not on the campus tax, it is going to be worth anybody's forty cents to see.

If the Monday night audience is not thrilled by the performance, if the play does not go on tour, and if Mr. Watkin does not receive due praise for his production, this was not worth the writing.

The Married Undergraduate

Now that the National Association of Deans of Women have put an official okeh on undergraduate marriages

We expect to start seeing a sudden flock of pink-and-white baby carriages

Rolling wailingly about through campus and classroom to the disgust of all honorable bachelors and to the detriment of scholastic sanity.

Young matrons will walk about on the paths of co-educational colleges with an air of urbanity.

And chatter among themselves about whatever young matrons chatter about when together.

And we shall see worried young husbands who are reaching the end of their tether.

Coming from the registrar's office, having tried to stall off a payment on the tuition, since Junior needs new shoes.

In the meantime Junior is tucked away in the buggy-parking lot in front of the school, and coos.

Pity the plight of the young married student who marries a gal who can't cook a chop

And whose pancakes make a dent in the floor when they drop.

Somehow we don't think this undergraduate marriage stuff would work in all cases.

And we think that there would be many a bruised head from accurately aimed china vases.

No wife wants her hero to stagger in from a chemistry lab smelling vilely of ingenious concoctions, or from the biology lab, reeking of a dissected cat.

One good whiff, and that would be that.

The facts contradict us, for the married students we know all look pretty healthy; But we bet one thing: if a college guy gets married he's got to be wealthy.

CAMPUS COMMENT

We go off the record, then on the ball, and get hang-overs.

At last the French 110 boys have found a parallel which they can read with enjoyment. It is the "Lettres Persanes" of Montesquieu, in which there are vignettes of life in a harem. The cop reports a large sale of this book. What do you expect?

Reports are coming in from some Staunton friends concerning the February 22nd edition of the "News Leader." They say that the paper was wonderfully pepped up, "looked like another paper," "quite an improvement," and all sorts of other nice things. That ought to make the collegiate staff feel hep. Just goes to show that we have a good journalism school ably directed. We're waiting to hear the other side of the story.

This play of Mr. Watkin's ought to be good. We are looking forward to the performance with some interest and trepidation, since it is not impossible (but it's improbable) that some student will want to get even with one of the pros and come armed with a tomato or two. But seriously, it will be an opportunity to see some of the professorial dignity thrown aside while the footlights blaze away, an opportunity that you can't afford to miss. At least we are sure that Monday will see the performance of "Tomorrow Appears." We were worried that, like tomorrow, it would never get here. Our best wishes, Mr. Watkin!

From V. M. I., home of the measles, comes the following gem of jumbled journalism. It's a reprint from the V. M. I. "Cadet," and has to do with the recent dance at Southern Seminary: "Our pals (?) the Minks were there in force, as usual, and they did everything in their power to cramp the Keydets' style. They

Generals Hit Stride---Enter Semi-Finals Against Duke

Basketeers Look Like Champions Of Last Season

Come From Way Behind To Bowl Clemson Over, 29-25

Duke Has Beaten Big Blue Twice by Four Points

Returning to their true tournament form, the Washington and Lee Generals upset the Duke and Clemson Tigers 29-25, Thursday night in their first battle in defense of their Southern Conference basketball title. The Big Blue meets Duke tonight.

Though they were behind 12-15 at half, and 14-22 with most of the contest over, the Generals never ceased fighting. Paced by Joe Pette and Norm Iler, and backed by the morale of fiery Bob Fields, Washington and Lee slowly caught up on their rivals.

In the first half Swail, the six foot six inch center, was too much competition, but Captain Charley Smith solved his play after that. Joe Pette was the high scorer of the game with 14 points.

Tonight the Big Blue meets Duke university. Beaten during the season by the Blue Devils, 31-27 and 33-29, they will be on the short end of the odds. In the finals of the tournament last year, the Generals defeated Duke 30-29.

The box score:

Trackmen Face Stiff Opposition

S. C. Meet Promises Brilliant Competition; Take Small Squad

If the track team intends to live up to the records of the other Washington and Lee athletic teams, they are going to find the sledding pretty rough in the 1935 Southern Conference meet for the Maryland, Duke, Virginia, and North Carolina University outfits are unusually good.

While Coach Fletcher will take any man to the meet whom he thinks has a chance, the Generals will probably have the smallest squad in the competition. Captain Billy Schuhle, particularly, will have to oppose some of the best men in the country.

In the sprints, Earl Widmyer, outdoor champ, will give Billy trouble, whereas in the hurdles, Abernathy and Hawthorne of North Carolina and Everett and McDonald of Virginia, will be present. Captain Dick Dunaj will have more than his hands full, too, for Harry Williamson and Ed McCrea of North Carolina University are among the best college milers in the East. Dick, however, should take the two-mile run.

PREVIEWS

By ROCKWELL BOYLE
Saturday: "The Gilded Lily," a story that tries to be runner-upper to "It Happened One Night," may not be as good as the latter, but it is pleasantly light and amusing. Claudette Colbert shifts about between riches and poverty but has a good time all the same.

Monday: "The Night Is Young" is a music comedy of royalty (Ramon Navarro) falling for the plebeian (Evelyn Laye) and in the end marrying the duchess. Music by Romberg and Hammerstein is not so notable, but Charles Ruggles and Edward Everett Horton give the show a great lift and we're sorry they weren't starred.

By ZACH KRAMER

Dunaj and Torrence, America's Track Orators.—The V. M. I. Bets Are Nothing Short of Magnanimous. The All-State-Richmond Basketball Team.

Hasn't anybody noticed the superior look that Dick Dunaj has been carrying around lately? Well, you see, it's because Dunaj and Jack Torrence spoke over a Charlotte, N. C., radio station Monday before the Junior Chamber of Commerce indoor invitation track meet. Torrence, by the way, is the fellow that's been breaking the World's shot put record every time a new one is set up.

This was quite a compliment for Dick, as the call was for the outstanding men at the meet. Earl Widmyer, Glenn Hardin, and Harry Williamson were other participants in the race, and yet only Torrence and Dunaj spoke.

The catch of it is that Bomar Laurentz, '34, is the sports announcer at that station and broadcast the meet. Just another case of that old Washington and Lee spirit breaking out. This new position of distinction was pretty hard to hold, but Dunaj managed to score five points for the Generals, so Laurentz can feel justified.

Whether Washington and Lee wins the Southern Conference basketball title or not, the system of judging the champion is pretty poor. The tournament has only on rare occasions determined the best team. In such a system, upsets are prevalent, and bad breaks common. Games are played one right after another, making no allowances for sickness or off-days. Last year, the Generals with only a mediocre record copped the title over South Carolina, which was easily the best in the South.

In the days of Leigh Williams, Hanna and Cox, the Big Blue was seeded number 1 in the conference for three years straight, and always went out of the tournament in the first round. At that time there were twenty-three teams in the conference, too. The Generals were coached by Captain Dick Smith, and used to win twenty-two and twenty-three contests a year.

Williams would score on the average of 12 points a game, and is recognized even today as the greatest basketball player that ever donned a Washington and Lee uniform. Yet these great teams never won a championship.

The cutest all-state team ever picked by any group of authorities was the basketball team announced in the Richmond Times-Dispatch of a few days ago. Said team had three University of Richmond men on it, another a resident of Richmond, and the fellow they couldn't keep off, Glenn Roberts, of Emory and Henry. Lacy, Leverton, and Elmore performed on the Generals' court a week or so ago. Lacy was great and surely deserved his recognition, but Elmore and Leverton don't even rate honorable mention. Leverton was made a fool of by Norm Iler who was incidentally the best man on the court that night, and Elmore didn't even get a point. Bill Downey of V. M. I. is a good guard, but his playing this year was not all-state calibre.

Since last Tuesday's publication, the Washington and Lee student body has been crazy to get their hands on some of this Virginia Military Institute money, but where is it? Even the reporter who wrote the story is having trouble finding some. It looks like another mirage of gold that has faded before the Minks' eyes. The odds they were reported as giving were nothing short of benevolence.

May Enter A. A. U. Meet

Four men from this year's crack Brigadier swimming team may be entered in the South Atlantic A. A. U. championships to be held in Baltimore.

Paul Lavietes in the backstroke, Arch Logan in the breaststroke, and Griffin and Bird in the sprints will be the Washington and Lee representatives. All are crack swimmers and have excellent chances of winning.

How Mat Tournament Score Is Kept--Told in One Lesson

While most of the fans are wondering who will be the new Southern conference individual wrestling champions, the coaches are busy worrying about the second and third places, because that is what usually decides the meet.

In a tournament of this kind, it is the well balanced team that wins the title, not the one with the individual stars. First place earns five points, second, three points, and third place, one point. Also any wrestler getting a fall in any round of the main tournament or the consolation scores one point for his team. No points are given for winning matches on time decisions.

Coach A. E. Mathis attributes Washington and Lee's victory last year to the second place wins of Crew, Seitz, and Pritchard. Here's how the second and third places are decided:

The first consolation bout is between the runner-up and the man whom the champion defeated in the semi-finals. If the runner-up wins this bout he takes a second place. A battle for third place must then take place between the man whom the champ eliminated in the semi-finals and the man whom the runner-up eliminated in the semi-finals.

The other possibility is that the man eliminated by the champ in the semi-finals beats the runner-up, gaining second place for himself and forcing the runner-up down to third place.

If you find difficulty in figuring that out, try to follow this: Suppose W. and L. wrestles

Meeks Elected Captain Of Freshmen Wrestlers; Unbeaten in 175 Class

Harry Meeks, 175-pound freshman wrestler from Baltimore, has been elected captain of the Brigadier wrestling team, it was announced yesterday.

Meeks, an outstanding wrestler, has a perfect record thus far at Washington and Lee, having pinned every man he has wrestled this year, and having allowed no bout to last more than four minutes. His record is comparable only to that of "Tubby" Owings, who wrestled in the unlimited class for the freshmen last year, and also pinned all of his opponents.

Duke and V. M. I. wrestles State in the semi-finals and, still supposing, Duke then beats V. M. I. in the finals. This sends W. and L., V. M. I., and State into the consolation, in which W. and L. would wrestle V. M. I. in the first bout.

Should W. and L. beat V. M. I., then W. and L. gets second place and V. M. I. third.

Should W. and L. lose to V. M. I., then V. M. I. gets second and W. and L. must wrestle State for third place.

Frosh Tankmen Win Last Meet

Close Successful Season By Defeating S. M. A. Second Time

The freshman swimmers brought a highly successful season to a close Wednesday afternoon by defeating the Staunton Military Academy team 46-20. This was the second victory this season over the Staunton team. The Brigadier team captured first places in every event but the diving, which was won by Irvine of Staunton. Griffin was high scorer for the winners taking first places in the 50 and 100-yard events and swimming on the winning relay team. Meem was also outstanding, capturing first in the 220-yard swim, second in the back stroke and swimming on the winning relay team. The breast stroke event was won by Logan, who has captured first in every meet this year and has broken pool records three of the five meets.

In winning the back stroke event Paul Lavietes set a new pool record of 27.9. This is seven tenths of a second faster than the old time. The team itself holds the record of having broken one or more pool records in every meet this year except one.

Although Captain McDavid will be lost to the varsity next year, Coach Twombly is looking forward to a record breaking season in which this year's freshman team will play no small part.

Campus Comment

Continued from page two seemed to be going right well, too, but that is to be expected. After all, what's another prep school in the life of a Keydet? I wonder if some of the Minks ever heard of such a place as a girl's college. Of course some of them can be given credit for having a bit of common sense. They pulled their usual shine, and to deal with that I have written the following verse:
Shine on, shine on, dear little Minks,
You'd do right well in the Main S-s!"
That little bit of poetry at the end is the pay-off!

A T O's Defeat Delts For Title

Bolen Stars as Champs Retain I-M Basketball Crown

Alpha Tau Omega regained its intramural basketball title when they trimmed Delta Tau Delta 29-20 Thursday night in Doremus gym.

Starting off like a flash, the defending champs jumped to a 16-3 lead at half. The five-minute rest, however, rejuvenated the Delts, and due to the spectacular shooting of "Phi Bete" Allan Harrelson came up to 15-20.

Captain Bolen reorganized his men, and they kept their opponents at bay for the rest of the contest. Bolen was high point scorer with 12 markers while Harrelson and Mathes were his closest competitors with seven each.

The Sigma Delta Chi meeting scheduled for Thursday night has been postponed until Tuesday, due to the inability of Judson Evans, the speaker, to attend Thursday.
