"The Matter of Admissions . . ."

O^N JULY 25, 1964, the Board of Trustees of Washington and Lee University, after long and thoughtful discussion, approved a statement for entry in the Board's official minutes, one which dealt with the University's admissions process.

The statement said:

"The matter of admissions was mentioned. It was noted that no provision of the Charter, no provision of the By-Laws and no resolution of the Board has established a policy of discrimination among qualified applicants for admission. Traditionally matters pertaining to the qualifications of applicants for admission have been entrusted to the Faculty and its appropriate committees, and the By-Laws of the University so provide. The Board of Trustees has no cause to doubt the appropriateness of this delegation of authority to the Faculty and has no cause to doubt the collective wisdom of the Faculty in discharging the concomitant responsibility."

By this statement the Board made clear the absence of any stated policy of discrimination at Washington and Lee, and it also made clear that the Board would impose no de facto policy of discrimination against fully qualified applicants for admission.

Because the action represented, in the Board's view, a clarification of policy, rather than a change or reversal of policy, the Board saw no need for a public statement. As a result of queries from faculty members, President Cole communicated the substance of the Board statement to the faculty at its first meeting in October.

When the Board of Trustees met in regular session on October 23-24, President Cole conveyed to its members the request of the editors of the Ring-tum Phi for a statement for publication relative to the matter of admissions. Subsequently, the Board authorized the release of the following statement exclusively to the student editors. The statement, which was carried in the Ring-tum Phi issue published on October 28, said:

"Washington and Lee University's Board of Trustees has reaffirmed the university faculty's responsibility in determining standards of admission for qualified applicants.

"President Fred C. Cole said today that 'The Board of Trustees has no cause to doubt the appropriateness of this delegation of authority to the faculty and has no cause to doubt the collective wisdom of the faculty in discharging the concomitant responsibility.' "In response to an inquiry from the editors of the Ring-tum Phi, President Cole said the Board considered the University's admissions policy at its meeting on July 25.

"Said President Cole:

"'It was noted that no provision of the Charter, no provision of the By-laws and no resolution of the Board has established a policy of discrimination among qualified applicants for admission. Traditionally, matters pertaining to the qualifications of applicants for admission have been entrusted to the Faculty and its appropriate committees, and the By-laws of the University so provide.'

"A faculty committee on Admissions at Washington and Lee, which reports to the general faculty, is composed of nine professors from the College and the School of Commerce and Administration and four members of the University's administrative staff.

"Dr. Edward C. Atwood, Jr., dean of students and professor of economics, is chairman of the committee. Its members are:

"Dr. C. Westbrook Barritt, professor of Romance languages; Dr. Sydney M. B. Coulling, associate professor of English; Mr. John M. Gunn, Jr. assistant professor of economics; Dr. Leonard E. Jarrard, associate professor of psychology; Dr. William A. Jenks, professor of history; Mr. John K. Jennings, assistant professor of journalism; Dr. Cecil D. Jones, associate professor of fine arts; Mr. Henry L. Ravenhorst, associate professor of engineering; Dr. Edgar W. Spencer, professor of geology; Associate Dean of Students James D. Farrar, director of admissions; Assistant Dean of Students Lewis G. John, director of financial aid; and Dean, Emeritus, Frank J. Gilliam, former dean of admissions.

"The committee reviews all applications for admissions to Washington and Lee and selects the 330 to 340 students who annually compose the entering undergraduate class.

"A separate admissions committee functions within the School of Law. The faculty there has the same delegation of authority and responsibility for admissions to the School of Law as that possessed by the faculty in the college."

Reports relative to Washington and Lee's admissions procedures circulated by the general news media were interpolations of the statement appearing in the Ring-tum Phi.

A Lee College?

The Question of the Future Size and Development Of Washington and Lee Has Been Discussed for Many Years. President Cole Has Suggested the Possibility Of a "Companion College" as One Direction to Take.

A BOLD NEW CONCEPT of the future nature of Washington and Lee University has been introduced by President Cole for discussion among trustees, professors, students, and alumni.

In his address to the opening assembly of the 1964-65 academic year, President Cole described in general but thought-provoking terms how a "companion college" might be established adjacent to the present campus, thus affording Washington and Lee an opportunity to "play a larger role in American higher education."

An additional college, as envisioned by President Cole, would share many existing and future facilities with the current divisions of the University, but many other aspects of the present undergraduate program and its supporting facilities would be duplicated in the new facility.

For easy reference, he called the companion college "Lee College" and the existing undergraduate college of arts and sciences "Washington College."

Such a college, President Cole suggested, would enable Washington and Lee to increase significantly its undergraduate enrollment without affecting adversely the existing patterns of undergraduate education or the University's traditional emphasis on close relationships among professors and students.

President Cole suggested that such expansion would be wholly consonant with the University's basic purpose of undergraduate education of a superior quality. President Cole's public remarks have often stressed the importance to American higher education of institutions such as Washington and Lee whose primary goal is education at the undergraduate level, rather than in graduate and research programs which at some schools overshadow undergraduate programs in facilities, financial support, and prestige.

President Cole emphasized before the assembly, as well as in later remarks on the subject, that the concept of Lee College was at present only a discussion topic, not a definite plan for the future development of Washington and Lee.

The president reported that the University's Board of Trustees had approved in principle a suggestion that Washington and Lee give "serious and detailed consideration to its future size, its nature, and its responsibility in higher education." He said the idea of a Lee College was presented to the Trustees in the form of a discussion paper, and that the Trustees had accepted this paper as a "work sheet or framework for approaching this study of the future.

"No commitment to this course has been made, nor can one be made for many months or years to come," said President Cole. "It is intended as one point of departure."

Behind the prospect of a larger Washington and Lee University, President Cole said, is the question of the University's responsibility to American higher education in accepting more of the highly qualified young men clamoring for admission to the nation's leading colleges and universities. If it is decided that Washington and Lee should grow larger, then the question arises, President Cole said, "How can this be done without disrupting a good situation."

The area at the top of this photo, immediately beyond the athletic fields, is the general location suggested for future expansion of the University's facilities.

He suggested that Lee College, with students, faculty, and facilities identical in quality with those of Washington College, may be a possible answer. He invited everyone with an interest in the University's progress to give thoughtful consideration to this and other aspects of the institution's future. (Excerpts of President Cole's remarks to the opening assembly appear on Page 7.)

Subsequent to his assembly remarks and attendant coverage by Virginia's press, Lee College did become a topic of considerable discussion among professors and students. The student newspaper commented in various editorials and student columns, and the Faculty Discussion Club devoted a meeting to the Lee College idea. President Cole was present and elaborated on the description of Lee College given to the Trustees in their discussion paper.

Following is a summation of the concept of Lee College and its relationship to the existing University. It is general in nature, and as suggested to the Board of Trustees, it can serve only as a basis for discussion and not as a definitive blueprint upon which specifications can be devised.

Lee College would be a separate division of Washington and Lee University whose major academic emphasis would be identical with the existing Washington College. Lee College would be constructed new on land possessed by Washington and Lee west of the present campus in the general vicinity of the Liberty Hall ruins.

It would be a separate administrative unit, with its own academic dean, department heads, dean of students, registrar, and other administrative staff members.

It would be a residential college, with all students housed in dormitory units of relatively small size. A dining hall capable of accommodating the entire enrollment of the college is a possibility, although it may be more practical to have smaller dining units serving one or more dormitory units.

There would be classroom and laboratory facilities equal in quality to the existing facilities in Washington College.

A faculty equally well-qualified and equally well-trained would be gathered to teach in Lee College. Salary ranges would be the same for both colleges.

For the most part, courses offered in the two colleges would be identical, particularly on the lower levels, while at advanced levels where classes are normally smaller and can accommodate additional students without loss of effectiveness, there would be an attempt to avoid duplication. In this way, each college would have distinctive advanced courses which would be shared by students from each division.

No attempt would be made to duplicate within the new college offerings of the School of Commerce and Administration, with the exception of some courses normally associated with the Freshman and Sophomore years. The School of Commerce and Administration would continue as before in its present location and would draw its students from both Washington College and Lee College. The School of Law would develop its program within its own established pattern.

No attempt would be made to duplicate the offerings in Journalism and Communications. This department, now in new facilities of adequate size to accommodate future growth, would also draw its students from both colleges.

Lee College would have its own library, with much of the holdings of the existing McCormick Library duplicated. Athletic facilities, auditorium, infirmary, and little theater are among facilities which would be shared by the two colleges, located so as to be convenient to each college campus.

> "As much as we might wish to keep our present comfortable existence, the changing times might bring obscurity if our growth ceases."

As Lee College developed and its new and modern facilities were put into use, it would be essential that funds also be provided to improve existing facilities at Washington College so that the new division would not have physical superiority over the other. Every attempt would be made to make the two colleges as equal in every way as possible, so that a student's preference for one over another would depend upon purely subjective considerations.

Prospective students in Lee and Washington Colleges would apply for admission to a University admissions office, and would be assigned by the University to one or the other college.

The existing fraternity organization of Washington College could be expected to pose certain problems in regard to the residential nature of Lee College. Lee College students would be eligible for membership in fraternities, but would live in college facilities on the Lee campus.

Landscaping would be necessary to facilitate movement and communication between the two campuses. Adjustment of class schedules would be necessary to permit sufficient time for students to move from one campus to the other between classes.

Each of these general descriptive statements poses a challenge to academic or administrative ingenuity. Some questions which arise have no apparent answers at present. But in the concept of a companion college as one answer to Washington and Lee's educational responsibility there is the possibility of a successful development. And in the careful thought and planning that such a venture would demand, there may develop other more feasible solutions that would enable the University to increase its services and influence without possible injury to a program of proven merit.

Financing would be a major obstacle. Existing resources which support Washington and Lee would not be diverted, and would grow simultaneously with the acquisition of new funds for Lee College.

Reaction to the idea of a Lee College has been varied, as was expected by President Cole. As pointed out in his remarks to the assembly, questions can be posed for which there are no answers at present. But President Cole believes the questions that evolve from thought and discussion on Lee College will be helpful to the University in its consideration of its future course.

The University has begun a comprehensive Self-Study Program in compliance with the requirements of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, the regional accrediting association of which Washington and Lee is a member. The feasibility of a Lee College is not a primary concern of the Self-Study, but the detailed self-evaluation of all aspects of the University which the Self-Study entails will provide valuable data and insight when and if it does become feasible to pursue further the concept of a companion college.

"The money and efforts which would go into creating Lee College can better be expended in perfecting the school we already have."

-Student comment on Lee College in the Ring-tum Phi

President Cole's Lee College Remarks at the Opening Assembly

"For the next few minutes I will suggest a matter that all of you may wish to consider as you think about the longer term future of your University.

"It is always dangerous to make assumptions in regard to an institution that has had a successful existence for two centuries, and it is risky to suggest that some plan or another is worthy of consideration and study. Nevertheless, it is appropriate, I believe, to say that, by the very nature of things, faculty and students are desirous that their University attempt to meet the demands of the times and of the future. If one may be optimistic, and certainly this is often difficult, it may be suggested that most of the current problems faced by Washington and Lee will be solved in whole or in substantial part in the foreseeable future.

"There would, nevertheless, remain the question as to whether or not the University has done all that it should do to fulfill its role in the educational progress of the Nation in the second half of the 20th century.

"If It Could Be Assumed"

"If it could be assumed that the faculty will become as strong as it should be in all respects, that it will be paid as well as it should be, and that there will be full opportunity for professors to teach and study, to do research, to write, to work, and to rest all the things that contribute to a full life of scholarship and service—what would be the next appropriate step in regard to faculty and scholarship at Washington and Lee?

"If it could be assumed that the student body continues its present growth in the advanced classes and that it will possess the capability and the motivation to do superior work in all it undertakes, and that the ratio of faculty and students becomes as close to the ideal as can be determined, what would be the next appropriate step in regard to those students who apply and cannot be accommodated?

"If it could be assumed that all physical facilities that are needed for this faculty and for this student body are provided, what would be the next appropriate step in regard to buildings on this campus?

"We know this: There will be several times as many good students, excellent students, who will apply to institutions like this one and who must be turned away unless there is an increase in the number of admissions. We believe this: That there are over this country good teachers and scholars who would be happier and more successful here than at other universities or colleges. We know this: That there is a greater and greater imbalance each year between student body and faculty at publicly supported universities and those that are privately controlled. We know this: That the need for well educated young men is increasing significantly each year.

"What should be done, then, by Washington and Lee as it looks to the future?

The University's Responsibility

"Does a university have a responsibility to consider its role in the future, to set up alternate plans and proposals, study them and debate them? Perhaps not, but let me go further.

"Washington and Lee has an enrollment now of approximately 1300 students. If the ideal we are now seeking with our present facilities is achieved, we would admit 335 to 340 students each year and graduate that number in the undergraduate divisions. We would admit 60 to 70 men to the first year of Law and graduate that number. This is an ideal which we will not achieve in my time or in yours, but we can dream. In any case, when we look at this number, about 1450, it is not a large one but it is a number which we can house and teach comfortably in our present facilities.

"My view is that the present size of the facilities and the student body, or as it would be if we lost no student who entered here, is a good one and allows for the type of association among students and among faculty that is healthy and sound. But if it should be determined that this University should play a larger role in American higher education, how can this be done without disrupting a good situation?

"Let me state a personal conviction. Today more than at any other time in our history we have a need for a close relationship among teachers and students. I say "among" rather than "between," for these close relationships must exist horizontally as well as vertically in a healthy academic community. I believe that Washington and Lee, and schools like it, present our best hope to counter the trend toward over-specialization and fragmentation in our educational system. With these points before you, should Washington and Lee consider affording its influence, its help, its leadership, to greater numbers than now? If the answer to this, a question which must be considered carefully, is positive, then there are a number of ways to approach the problem; but I will suggest only one.

"In January of this year, the Trustees of Washington and Lee were presented with a discussion paper. The paper outlined certain assumptions and posed questions similar to those I have just stated. The paper assumed also that an increase in the enrollment was desirable.

"A way was suggested to increase significantly the undergradute enrollment without adverse effect to the existing College and schools:

"A companion college would be established on grounds adjacent to or nearby the existing campus. The companion college would duplicate most of the desirable features of the existing college. It would have its own physical plant and its own separate but equally highly-qualified faculty and student body.

"For the purposes of easy reference, the discussion paper identified the new school as "Lee College," while referring to the existing college as "Washington College." I shall do the same in my remarks here.

"The very mention of another college conjures up a host of questions, problems, and doubts, all of which must be resolved before the college could become a reality. Almost none of them can be answered or dealt with immediately with any real solution. Much further study and debate will be necessary.

"However, a general description of Lee College, as envisioned in the discussion paper, is possible at this time:

A Separate Division

"It would be a separate division of Washington and Lee University, its major academic emphasis identical with the existing College. Its campus would be to the west of the present campus in the general vicinty of the Liberty Hall ruins and the far athletic fields.

"There would be classroom facilities equal in quality to existing facilities. A faculty equally wellqualified and equally well-trained and experienced would be gathered to teach in Lee College. Salary ranges would be the same for Lee College and Washington College.

"For the most part, courses offered in the two colleges would be identical, particularly on the lower levels. At the advanced levels where classes are normally smaller and can accommodate additional students without loss of effectiveness, there would be an attempt made to avoid undue duplication. In this way, each college would have distinctive advanced courses which would be shared by students from each division.

"If Lee College is built and put into use, it would be essential that funds also be provided to improve existing facilities, so that the new division would not have physical superiority over the other. Every attempt would be made to make the two colleges equal in every way possible.

"Financing of such a plan would be a major obstacle, presuming that much more careful study than has been given thus far finds the plan feasible. Resources which now support Washington and Lee University must not be diverted, and must continue to grow simultaneously with the acquisition of new funds for Lee College. Needless to say, large sums of money would be needed.

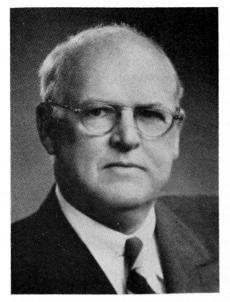

A "Work Sheet" for Planning

"In subsequent study of the Lee College discussion paper, the Board of Trustees has approved in principle the suggestion that Washington and Lee give serious and detailed consideration to its future size, its nature, and its responsibility in higher education. The Trustees have accepted the Lee College as a "work sheet" or framework for approaching this study of the future. No commitment to this course has been made, nor can one be made for many months or years to come. It is intended as one point of departure.

"Almost immediately, Washington and Lee will commence an institutional self-study program. It is required of us by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools in order that our accreditation be reaffirmed. But the self-study can be useful in another way. It is my hope that the self-study can be directed primarily toward the analysis and formulation of plans for the future of Washington and Lee University. The concept of a companion college-Lee College-may prove a valuable avenue of approach for this study. It is my hope that from this self-study there will come guidelines and directions that will help determine, with wisdom and foresight, the future course of this University, and that the compilation of information for the re-accreditation process will be an important by-product of our efforts.

'This undertaking will involve all of us in varying degrees. My purpose in mentioning Lee College today is to encourage all of you to think about the future of Washington and Lee University.

"No matter how important our concern with future planning may be, we will not lose sight of our primary obligation to teach and to learn tomorrow and the next days."

Mr. Joseph T. Lykes, Judge Kennon Whittle Retire from the Board

Two of Washington and Lee University's most distinguished alumni have retired from active membership on the University's Board of Trustees after long and devoted service.

The resignations of Joseph T. Lykes, '09, of Tampa, Fla., and Judge Kennon C. Whittle, '14, of Martinsville, Va., were submitted to the Board at its regular mid-summer meeting.

Each subsequently was elected a Trustee Emeritus, and in separate ceremonies were presented with engraved silver trays from their colleagues on the Board in recognition and appreciation for their work in the University's behalf for many years.

Mr. Lykes became a member of the Board in 1941, while Judge Whittle has served since 1952.

Dr. J. Morrison Hutcheson, rector of the Board, commented on the retirements of Mr. Lykes and Judge Whittle in this way:

"While both are alumni whose distinctions in life are a source of pride to the University, their contributions as members of its governinging body merit the grateful recognition of all alumni and friends of Washington and Lee.

"Few Trustees, if any, have attained in larger degree the respect and affection of their colleagues. Their approach to problems confronting the Board was invariably characterized by mature judgment, loyalty to the institution, and a clear understanding of its traditions and purposes. I am confident that the retirement of Mr. Lykes and Judge Whittle leaves a void in direction of the University that will be difficult to fill."

The handsome silver trays presented to Mr. Lykes and Judge Whittle bore engraved reproductions of the Washington and Lee coat of arms and engraved signatures of all members of the Board and those of President Cole and University Treasurer Earl S. Mattingly, long-time secretary to the Board. The inscription bespoke the "grateful appreciation and warm friendship" of the Board.

Mr. Lykes received his tray at a small luncheon at New York's Harbor View Club on November 12. His classmate and Board associate for many years, Christopher T. Chenery, '09, made the presentation.

Judge Whittle received his tray at his home in Virginia's Henry County on December 18 from President Cole and Mr. Mattingly.

Mr. Lykes, who for many years has been one of the nation's top executives in business and industry, first came to Washington and Lee in 1907 from his home in Florida where he attended public schools in Hernando and Hillsborough Counties. He received his B.A. degree in 1909, and spent the next eight years in Galveston, Texas, where he married Margaret Keenan of Galveston.

From 1917 to 1947, his business operations were based in New York City, and since 1947 he has made his headquarters in Tampa and his home in Clearwater Beach, Fla. He is 76 years old.

Among Mr. Lykes' business affiliations are: chairman of the executive committee and director of the Lykes Bros. Steamship Co., Inc., chairman and director of Lykes Bros., Inc., chairman and director of the Pasco Packing Company; director of the Bank of Clearwater: director of the Seaboard Air Line Railroad Company; director of the Tampa Electric Company; and member of the Advisory Board on International Business for the Chemical Bank New York Trust Company.

Mr. Lykes is a member of the Whitehall Links Pinnacle and Blind Brook Clubs in New York, the University Club, Tampa Yacht and Country Club, and Ye Mystic Krewe of Gasparilla in Tampa, the Boston Club in New Orleans, and the Carlouel Yacht Club in Clearwater. He is a member of the Episcopal Church and of Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

Mr. and Mrs. Lykes have three children. They are Mrs. Richard C. Colton of New York, and Joseph T. Lykes, Jr., and Mrs. John F. Carrere, both of New Orleans.

Judge Whittle, whose retirement as a justice on the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals will become effective on February 1, 1965, has long been recognized as one of the Old Dominion's foremost members of the bench and bar.

A native of Martinsville, Va., Judge Whittle followed in his father's footsteps when he assumed a place on the bench of Virginia's highest tribunal in 1951. Stafford Gorman Whittle was a member of the court from 1901 until 1919. He had attended Washington College during the presidency of General Lee, but earned his law degree at the University of Virginia.

Kennon Whittle worked as a substitute mail carrier to help pay expenses toward his law degree from Washington and Lee, which he received in 1914. After service in World War I, he entered into private law practice in Martinsville with his brother, Stafford G., Jr., and he continued in practice until 1944 when he was named Judge of the Seventh Judicial Circuit of Virginia. Says Judge Whittle:

"While I enjoyed every minute of the time spent on the Circuit Court and the Supreme Court of Appeals, my main joy in life was the thirty years I spent as a defense attorney, practicing with my brother. There was nothing I loved more than the active practice and trial of law suits as a defense attorney. My thirty years of practice proved both rewarding and enjoyable."

Judge Whittle is 73 years old. He is married to the former Mary Holt Spencer, and there are three children: Stafford G. Whittle, III, Kennon C. Whittle, Jr., and Mrs. Nelson Woodson.

In addition to his legal career, Judge Whittle has been a leader in many other fields. For twelve years he was senior warden of Christ Episcopal Church in Martinsville, he was head of the Henry County Boy Scouts organization, and was active in the Knights of Pythias for over fifty years.

He served as president of the Virginia State Bar in 1940, and his other affiliations have included the Royal Arch Chapter of Masons, the Elks, American Legion, American Judicature Society, the American Bar Association, the Society of Sons of the Cincinnati, and the Commonwealth Club. He belongs to Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity and Phi Delta Phi legal fraternity.

Business affiliations have included membership on the boards of the American Furniture Company, the First National Bank of Martinsville and Henry County, the Lee Telephone Company, and WMVA Radio Station.

He resides now at his Henry County farm, "Bellevue."

The announcement of Judge Whittle's plans to retire from the Virginia bench evoked a flood of editorial comment in the state press attesting to his exemplary record of service to the Commonwealth.

Joseph T. Lykes, Jr., Becomes a Member Of the University's Board of Trustees

The BOARD OF TRUSTEES of Washington and Lee University has elected to its membership Joseph T. Lykes, Jr., '41, of New Orleans, Louisiana.

Mr. Lykes met with the Board for his first meeting at its regular October session. He was elected at the Board's mid-summer meeting when the Board moved to fill one of two vacancies created by the retirement of Mr. Lyke's father and Judge Kennon C. Whittle.

Rector of the Board Dr. J. Morrison Hutcheson commented on the election of Mr. Lykes, saying, "It is gratifying to know that Joe Lykes, Jr., will succeed his father as Trustee. From what we have learned of this young man there is every reason to believe that he will more than fulfill our expectations."

Mr. Lykes was born in New Rochelle, N. Y., on November 14, 1918. He was educated at Deerfield Academy, Deerfield, Mass., class of 1937, and Washington and Lee University, (B.S. in Commerce) class of 1941. During the war years he was on active duty with the United States Navy and saw service in Europe, North Africa, and both the North Atlantic and Pacific theatres of operation. He held the rank of Lieutenant Commander, U.S.N.R.

Following the war, Mr. Lykes joined Lykes Bros. Steamship Co., Inc. He was assigned to numerous posts in various divisions of the company in New Orleans, Mobile, and Galveston, and in 1949 returned to New Orleans. During the same year he was elected a member of the Board of directors of the company. In 1951 he was elected a vice president, in 1957 a senior vice president, and was named president in 1962.

He is also president and a director of Lykes Lines Agency, Inc., and Lykes Enterprises, Inc., both wholly-owned subsidiaries of Lykes Bros. Steamship Co., Inc. He is a director of The Whitney National Bank, Gulf and South American Steamship Company, Inc., the New Orleans Steamship Association, the Louisiana and Southern Life Insurance Company and the South Atlantic Life Insurance Company of Florida. He is a member of the Foreign Policy Committee of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and is also a member of the National Export Expansion Council and a former director and member of the executive committee of International House, and the Chamber of Commerce of the Greater New Orleans Area.

Mr. Lykes is married to the former Miss Marjorie Carrere, of New Orleans, and they have eight children. They are Joseph T., III, Margaret Brinton, Leslie Anne, Mary Ashley, Catherine Sheldon, Howell Tyson, II, Chrisotpher C., and William Tracy.

He is a member of the New Orleans Country Club, the Pickwick Club, and The Boston Club. He makes his home at 604 Hector Avenue, Metairie, La., and his offices are in the Commerce Building in New Orleans. News of the University

Total Enrollment Near 1,300 for New Session

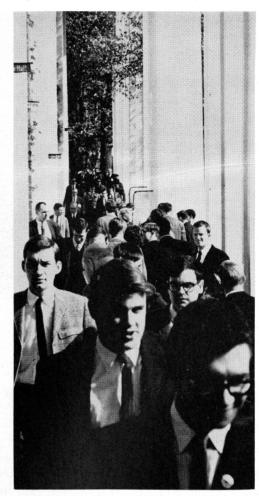

WASHINGTON AND LEE opened its 216th year in September with an initial enrollment of 1,293 students, one of the largest registrations in the University's history.

The total included 338 freshmen, 288 sophomores, 250 juniors, 248 seniors, four special students, and 165 law students.

Among the freshmen, qualifications for admission were more impressive than ever. For the first time, average scores on the College Entrance Examination Board's aptitude tests were over 600 for the class. The mean score on the verbal test was 602, for the mathematics test, 635.

There were eighteen new faces among the faculty, including new department heads in biology and in military science. Dr. Henry S. Roberts succeeded Dr. Kenneth P. Stevens as biology head, while Lt. Col. Richard H. Brownley replaced Lt. Col. Jack P. Burch as director of the ROTC program.

Physical facilities were rearranged somewhat. The Department of Journalism and Communications moved into the newly remodeled Reid Hall, vacating its former premises in Payne Hall. These were promptly taken over by the Department of English. The Journalism Laboratory Press moved from its small building behind Washington Hall into first floor quarters in Reid Hall, and just as soon as remodeling of the old print shop was complete, the History Department established a classroom and three offices there, along with the University's Office of Information Services.

A near record enrollment crowds the Colonnade walk.

Freshman Camp witnessed a renewal of the demonstration debate by the University's fine team on the topic: "Resolved, the South Should Have Won the War." Moss Memorial Library Dedicated for Journalism

■ THE ELSA AND ALBERT MOSS Memorial Library, located in the newly remodeled Reid Hall, was dedicated in November by the Department of Journalism and Communications.

The Library is named for the parents of Albert W. Moss, '35, an alumnus of the journalism department and one of its benefactors for many years. Mr. Moss is executive vice president of Standard Rate and Data Service and lives in Mt. Kisco, N. Y.

Mr. Moss is a member of an eleven-man advisory committee which is counsel to Prof. O. W. Riegel in the development of the expanded facilities and program in journalism and communications at Washington and Lee.

Members of the advisory committee, the University faculty and administration, and students attended the dedication ceremony of the Moss Memorial Library. Professor Riegel, Mr. Moss, and President Cole made brief remarks.

Custom-Made Carpet For Lee's Office Given to University

• A CUSTOM-MADE carpet for the office once used by Robert E. Lee in Lee Chapel has been given to the University by James Lees and Sons Company, a division of Burlington Industries Inc., carpet manufacturers of Bridgeport, Pa., and Glasgow, Virginia.

James Lees' creative styling staff designed the carpet referring to an old lithographic color print owned by Washington and Lee. The print shows Lee seated at his desk, and the pattern of the carpet is clearly visible. The carpet extends wall to wall in the 17 by 21 foot room.

The recurring pattern consists of scroll-like maroon borders forming eight-inch squares about an orange center, flecked with yellow, with a small maroon fragment of the border design repeated in the center of each square. The squares are staggered.

Using magnifying glasses and precise measuring devices, the designers related the size of Lee's foot in the print to the size of the carpet square. Then they measured shoes actually worn by Lee which are possessed by Washington and Lee, and from these measurements they were able to determine the sizes of the carpet patterns.

• FIRE OF UNDETERMINED origin gutted the Delta Tau Delta House early in September.

The house was unoccupied at the time, although six members who had returned to school early lost all their personal belongings. They had left the house for early football practice shortly before the flames were discovered around 7 a.m.

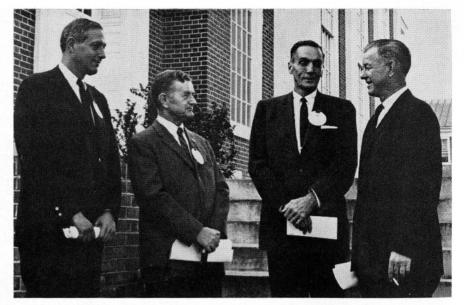

Insurance coverage was adequate, and plans call for a new house to rise on the same site during the Spring semester.

Parents, Alumni Bring Busy Days To Fall Campus

• THE TENTH annual Parents' Weekend of October 30- November 1 and the annual Homecoming event for alumni on November 7 brought consecutive busy and crowded activities to the Washington and Lee campus this fall.

Both affairs were bigger and seemed better than ever. The attendance of parents and guests has long ago outstripped the meager resources of Lexington to accommodate the nearly 1,150 visitors now involved. And there were more alumni on hand this year, too, although the Homecoming planners wish they could attract crowds that would tax the capacities of Lexington's motels and restaurants.

For parents it was the customary program of conferences with sons' professors, special lectures by professors, a reception by President and Mrs. Cole, guided tours, luncheon, football, and a Glee Club concert. The program doesn't vary much from year to year, but then it doesn't have to—the main attraction for parents are their sons. This year the parents of 518 students were on hand, the majority of them mothers and dads of freshmen and sophomores.

Homecoming this year was a big success on all counts. The students themselves took on the responsibility for renewing the old custom of a Homecoming eve torchlight parade and pep rally, they decorated their fraternity houses in ingenious ways, and they nominated lovely girls for their Homecoming Queens.

The pep rally in Doremus Gym was well-attended and obviously had a good effect on the football team which attended as guests of honor. The next day the Generals went out to upset previously unbeaten Sewanee in impressive fashion.

Phi Kappa Sigma's Miss Isabel LOPERENA was a lovely choice for Homecoming Queen, shown below as she was crowned by chief judge DR. KEITH SHILLINGTON. But some of the ones who didn't win were pretty too.

BILL DAVID, the Generals' senior halfback who set new W&L pass-catching records this year with 44 catches for the season and 72 for his three varsity years. David was chosen Virginia's outstanding small college player, named to the AP All-State small college team, the College Athletic Conference all-star team, and selected as Virginia's only honorable mention for AP Little All-American.

Happiness Is a Big Upset

THE FINAL record for the season was only 4-5, the Generals' worst football year since 1959, but Coach Lee McLaughlin's 1964 squad earned for itself a special spot of glory in Washington and Lee's long and colorful football history.

On November 7, before an almost unbelieving Homecoming crowd at Wilson Field, the Generals defeated Sewanee's Tigers by a modest 11-6 score, and in so doing they added a feat of accomplishment that ranks with the heroics of "Cy" Young's and Amos Bolen's eras, the 'Gator Bowl year's successes, that great win over Virginia in 1951, and the more recent undefeated seasons of the early 1960's.

The game was an upset, pure and simple. Had it occurred in the major college ranks, it would have replaced Penn State's triumph over Ohio State as the upset of the year.

On November 6, the Generals were struggling with a 2-4 mark for the season. McLaughlin's sophomores and juniors, as he had predicted, were showing their greenness, and three of the losses were the kinds that cause coachly ulcers—full of fumbles, stumbles, and falls.

On the same day, Sewanee was en route to Lexington, sporting a 14-game winning streak, a 37-pointper-game scoring average, an offense ranked among the strongest of the country's small college teams, and a rugged, nationally-ranked defense. The Tigers, odds on favorites to repeat as College Athletic Conference champs, were⁴ five-touchdown favorites over the Generals.

The 11-6 victory that emerged for the Generals scarcely told the story. Sewanee was held to only two yards gain rushing, and its 100 yards passing came mostly when the Generals were giving away the short pass in the final moments. W&L meanwhile controlled the ball, ran up 395 yards on the ground, added another 60 in the air. The Generals got their points on a 93-yard touchdown drive, a field goal and a safety. Sewanee managed a 95-yard kickoff return for its score.

Anything after that game was anticlimax for the Generals, but they went on to beat Southwestern, 9-0, before losing to powerful Washington University, 16-14, on a field goal in the last 16 seconds.

A Banner Year for the Cross-Country Team s AN ALUMNUS of Washington A and Lee's cross-country team put it, "You just don't run crosscountry, you've got to believe in it."

Fortunately for Washington and Lee and Coach Dick Miller, large numbers of fast and durable runners were believers this year, and the Generals turned in a sparkling 8-1 record in dual meets, perhaps the best ever by a W&L cross-country team.

In addition to their dual meet successes, the Generals also placed third in the Virginia intercollegiate meet which drew runners from all state colleges and universities.

Paced by senior Andy Kilpatrick, juniors Riff O'Connor and Lee Johnson, and freshman George Parker, the Generals turned in victories over Roanoke, Lynchburg, Old Dominion, Catholic, Richmond, American, Fairmont, and High Point. Their only loss was by a 30-25 margin to Bridgewater. The Generals took only three first places in their nine meets, but their excellent team depth provided usually comfortable edges over the opponents.

NCAA Tourney Bid Caps Good Soccer Year

NPRECEDENTED honor befell Washington and Lee's soccer team this fall as the General booters produced one of the finest seasons ever and then capped this with an invitation to play in the National Collegiate Athletic Association play-offs at Tufts College in Massachusetts.

There the Generals lost, 1-o, to the United States Coast Guard Academy in the finals of the fourteam tournament, after defeating Norwich, 2-0, in the semi-final round.

Overall, Coach Joe Lyles' wellbalanced team won nine matches, lost three, and tied one. The Generals placed second in the Virginia State Intercollegiate Tournament, losing out to the University of Virginia in overtime when the game was awarded to the team having the most number of corner kicks during the contest. The score was tied 2-2 at the end of regulation and overtime play.

Besides the loss to the Coast Guard at Tufts, the Generals dropped regular season games only to Virginia and to American University. Victories came at the expense of Pfeiffer, Lynchburg, Randolph-Macon (twice), Belmont Abbey, Virginia Tech, King College, Roanoke, and Norwich.

The Generals didn't possess a strong scoring punch, but they did throw up a rugged defense against all opponents. In the season finale against the Coast Guard, they limited the winners to a single, fourthperiod score, after the Coast Guard had moved into the finals by virtue of an 11-2 victory over Farleigh-Dickinson.

Individual honors came to many on the squad. Seniors Howard Busse and Pete Preston and junior Dave Redmond were named to the NCAA All-South first team, while these three and junior Tim Henry were first choices for the All-Virginia team. In the state tourney, Redmond was honored as the event's outstanding defensive player. In the NCAA play-offs, Redmond, Preston, senior Bruce Jackson, junior Bob Larus, and foreign exchange student John van Bork were named to the all-tourney first team.

Atlanta Minks and Wahoos Battle to Gridiron Tie

By I. M. Sheffield, '53 and Terry Whitman, '52

Old Alumni Rivals Revive Old Rivalry, Some of the Old Need Reviving After Two All-Star Teams End Up in a 0-0 Deadlock I^T WAS THE WEEK of traditional rivalries; Army-Navy, Auburn-Alabama, Harvard-Yale, Texas-Texas Tech and countless other gridiron battles which bring with them all the frenzy and frills associated with football.

In Atlanta, Georgia, however, a crowd of three hundred fans at Westminster Stadium saw the Alumni of Washington and Lee and the Alumni of the University of Virginia battle to a scoreless tie in a contest which in spirit and enthusiasm overshadowed even the giants on the national scene.

The game was conceived in early fall, and the initial idea met with such grand response that the game is destined to become an annual Thanksgiving weekend affair. Both teams donned the game jerseys of their respective schools, and organization was prevalent with the presence of four uniformed Southern Association Officials. Color and authenticity was added with a playby-play account over a public address system as well as a running account of statistics concerning the players and the schools. Oxygenbreathing equipment at each bench helped assure that the game was completed.

Calling the signals for the Generals were Tom Branch, '58, and I. M. Sheffield, III, '53, who is the leading candidate for Alumni All American. Jay Handlan, '52, another candidate for honors, Peter Candler, '64, Frank Carter, '49, Sumner Waite, Jr., '54, Paul Scoville, '63, made the offensive backfield a continuous threat with outstanding blocking and receiving throughout the sunny afternoon. Virginia's defense was harassed too by ends C. F. "Pat" Patterson, Jr.,

'55, and Frank Love, Jr., '50. Alternating at the center position were Bob Griffith, '52, Mike Masinter, '58, and Bill Dixon, '56.

From the opening whistle the seriousness of the game was apparent, and before halftime Dick Denny, '52, was forced out of the game with a broken collar bone, Peek Garlington, Jr., '54, had a badly twisted knee, and Terry Whitman, '53, pulled a thigh muscle. The stalwart defense was not in the least hampered, as the holes were fearlessly plugged by spectacular play on the part of Graham Fulton, '61, Rufus Safford, '58, Hill Robertson, '52, John Candler, '58, and Marcus Cook, '51. The Wahoo attack was completely throttled.

Farris Hotchkiss, '58, Ray Robrecht, '58, Charlie Hurt, '59, and Perry Borom, '52, balanced the roster with fine play.

At the final gun, with the W&L Swing blaring over the PA system and the cheering section raising their blue and white pom-poms for the last rousing cheer, congratulations were extended the players by such notables as Murray Shoun, '18, Rodney Cook, '47, and Bill Ward, '28, and well before the last man had retired from the field, spectators and players alike were beginning to talk of next year when again The Generals meet The Cavaliers in Atlanta's Alumni Bowl.

Not at all incidental to the game will be a joint cocktail party after the first of the year to celebrate and rehash the game. All W&L and U. Va. alumni, along with the game officials, and wives will be invited to this party where the color-sound films of the entire game will be shown. The trophy, which is to go to the winning team each year, will be awarded to both teams jointly and will permanently record the o-o score of this initial contest.

Alumni Fund Council Sets Its 1964-1965 Target at $210,000

H^{AVING ACHIEVED} unprecedented success in the results of the 1963-64 Alumni Fund, the Alumni Fund Council has set its sights even higher for the 1964-65 fund campaign now underway.

A goal of $210,000-$45,000 more than the recent year's goal and just under $45,000 more than was realized in 1963-64—was established by the six member alumni council at its fall meeting.

It is an ambitious goal, but the Council is convinced it is a realistic one for at least two reasons:

It is realistic in terms of the ability of Washington and Lee alumni to support and achieve a goal of this dimension.

And it is realistic in terms of the growing needs of the University as the pressures and demands on the resources of colleges and universities everywhere mount in alarming fashion.

The Council based its new goal on a conviction that Washington and Lee men can and will respond to an appeal that stresses the genuine merit of the kind of educational experience they shared at Washington and Lee. The new goal grew out of a shared belief among Council members that all Americans are becoming increasingly aware of the nation's educational strengths and weaknesses. The members feel that the contribution of privately-supported colleges and universities like Washington and Lee to the strength of American higher education is self-evident.

In the development of the 1964-65 Fund Campaign, the Council agreed that last year's dominant theme of increased participation by alumni in the Fund should be stressed again. They pointed to the statistics of the 1963-64 Fund as evidence that more Washington and Lee alumni fail to respond to the University's appeal for support than those who do respond. The total of 3,735 contributors last year represented only 34.2 per cent of alumni solicited. The average gift was $42. It was pointed out that a participation of only 50 per cent of Washington and Lee alumni in the 1964-65 Fund at this level of giving would result in the achievement of the $210,000 target figure.

The Council elected Robert B. Taylor, '44, of Lynchburg, Va., as chairman, succeeding Robert W. Kime, '51, of Roanoke. Other members of the Council included James E. McCausland, '43; William S. Hubard, '50; George W. Persinger, '51; William B. Wisdom, '21; and J. Maurice Miller, '45. Wisdom and Miller are new members of the Council serving the first year of three-year terms.

A Final Report on the 1963-64 Alumni Fund

THE GRATITUDE of Washington and Lee University goes forth to all who contributed to her well being during the 1963-64 fund year. Special appreciation goes to the 3,735 alumni whose gifts reached a new record of $165,272.00.

While numbers and dollars are, of course, extremely important, they tell only part of the story. This year, as always, many hundreds of alumni gave countless hours of their time in devoted work. The success of the 1963-64 annual Alumni Fund, therefore, is due again to the willingness and eagerness with which many approached the task of meeting a goal.

There were ninety-three class agents, nearly 175 regional agents and untold numbers of regional helpers and committeemen who are responsible for this report. Robert W. Kime, '51, served as Chairman of the Alumni Fund Council, which launched the campaign and helped in formulating policies and programs that brought success. Obviously it is impossible in this report to list all the names of the volunteers. But surely each and every one deserves the unfailing gratitude of Washington and Lee University and all those associated with it.

The importance of this significant Alumni Fund did not end with June 30, 1964. It is a clear answer to those individuals and organizations beyond our ranks who look for a response to their question: How well do your own alumni support Washington and Lee?

The complete report of the 1963-64 Alumni Fund begins on the next page.

JOHN, '31, and STOREY STEMMONS, '27L

The Stemmons Brothers of Dallas Are Industrial Leaders of the City

■ IN DALLAS industrial leadership is reflected in the story of the Stemmons brothers.

L. STOREY STEMMONS, law class of 1927, and JOHN STEMMONS, academic '31, took up and expanded the work of their father, the late Leslie Allison Stemmons. The family has been working hard at harnessing the Trinity River behind levees and developing the vast wasted acreage in the flood plain as valuable industrial property.

The brothers, whose accomplishments are legend, seldom see each other, yet they have worked together in splendid cooperation. Storey is Board Chairman of Industrial Properties Corporation and handles sales and leasing of property. John is president, handling development and planning. Both the Stemmonses have been officers and contributors in most of the Dallas civic, charitable, and professional projects. This year John is heading the influential Dallas Citizens Council, to do what he can for the betterment of what he endearingly refers to as "The Village."

Attesting to their success is their pet project, the Trinity Industrial District's 1,200 acres which are almost filled with plants of outstanding national firms. One of their biggest dreams is Trinity Navigation. The brothers are confident the river will be serving barge traffic from Dallas-Ft. Worth to the Gulf of Mexico by 1970. Their past record makes a strong case for the feasibility of this project.
