ALUMNI MAGAZINE

Fall 1968

*A Warm
Good Morning,
Mr. President*

ON FRIDAY MORNING, October 18, Robert E. R. Huntley was inaugurated President of Washington and Lee University. It was a solemn and auspicious occasion—solemn because ritual surrounds such events, auspicious because it marked the official beginning of the tenure of a young, energetic, and brilliant son of Washington and Lee who pledged to devote nothing less than his whole being to the good of the University.

The Inauguration of President Huntley came too late to be covered in detail in this magazine. Alumni and friends of Washington and Lee may expect a full report on the Inauguration in this and other publications. Let it be said for now that the Inauguration was a time of renewal of faith in a great institution and a fitting tribute to the man who heads it. Let everyone join the Inaugural Speaker, President William C. Friday of the Consolidated University of North Carolina, in his salutation to Bob Huntley:

“Yours is the opportunity to associate with men and women who are indeed committed to the intellectual, cultural, and spiritual advancement of this nation. Yours is the privilege of expressing the hopes that arise out of the creative dynamism of this university community. Yours is the great challenge to bring the full power of the university to bear in building a stronger commonwealth, a greater southern region, and a United States in which there is greater hope, not despair; tolerance and not hate; liberty and not injustice; and a country in which every man receives his proper measure of respect as a human being and a child of God.

“To this great experience, worthy of the personal dedication of any man who possesses the courage, intelligence, and humility to meet the test, as I know you do, I bid you a warm Good Morning, Mr. President.”

NIXON'S THE ONE

Rockefeller's last-minute entry almost made Washington and Lee's Republican Mock Convention a horse race, but Richard Nixon shook off the challenge on the third ballot to prove he's a winner. BY JOHN HUGHES

TEN RIGHT and only four wrong. That's the amazing record compiled now by Washington and Lee students in their mock political conventions. They were proved right again in August when the Republicans chose Richard M. Nixon as their candidate, confirming the W&L students' choice of last May.

That makes it five correct choices in a row, going back to 1952 and the selection of Dwight Eisenhower. Not since 1948, when the students chose Arthur Vandenburg over Thomas E. Dewey, the actual nominee, have the students been wrong.

Of the latest correct choice, some people might say, "Ho hum, so what? Picking Dick Nixon wasn't hard to do. He had the real nomination wrapped up anyway." (And at this writing—mid-October—it appears that he has the presidency locked up, too.)

It looked as if Nixon would be a shoo-in at Washington and Lee for a while. But, just three days before the convention began, the on-and-off Nelson Rockefeller made his dramatic announcement that he was a candidate.

The students were pleased. "I'm glad to see it's a horse race again," said Steven R. Saunders, the Elmont, N. Y., senior, who was the convention's permanent chairman and who had been planning the event since he was a freshman. "Now the convention really means something again," Saunders said.

Patrick L. Arey, a junior from Chatham, Va., who had been practically a one-man "Rockefeller-for-President" committee, was naturally very happy.

"Before Rocky came into it officially, I had just about written the convention off to Nixon," he said. "After that though, we had a chance, although it was only a slight one."

When Rockefeller was not a candidate, there was no official national headquarters to help Arey with materials or money. However, he and a handful of supporters had been busy for months, making Rocky posters and buttons and pushing the governor's candidacy as best they could.

All during the convention Arey and his fellow Rocky supporters sat at small tables in one corner of Doremus Gymnasium continually on the telephone to Rockefeller's national headquarters for advice on strategy.

Doremus Gymnasium, above, was jam-packed with bunting and other convention accouterments, almost like the real affair in Miami Beach. Tennessee delegation, below, dressed out in traditional Mountaineer garb.

Rocky's dramatic announcement forced a change in the Nixon strategy as well. Hayward F. Day, Jr., a law school senior, head of the former vice president's campaign, changed his assessment of Nixon's chances from "excellent" to "good." Day was still confident Nixon would get the nomination, but he then doubted a first ballot win. He was hopeful Nixon would get it on the second.

He was nearly right. Nixon came within 19 votes on the second and then easily romped to victory on the third.

A comparison of the W&L mock convention balloting with the real thing in Miami Beach shows a remarkable similarity, especially state-by-state. In 16 states the W&L students hit the real vote total exactly, and in 10 others they were not off by more than one or two votes. The vote total for Rockefeller and Ronald Reagan were very close to the real thing. (In Miami Beach, Rocky had 277, Reagan 182; at W&L, it was Rocky 302, Reagan 163.)

The only major difference was that the W&L students, acting on the probable GOP course at that time, nominated even more favorite sons than the actual Republicans did. It was this that kept Nixon from winning on the first student ballot, but he gained considerable strength from the favorite sons on the second and swept to a landslide victory on the third ballot.

On the second W&L ballot, after the favorite son commitments had been honored, the students hit three more state vote totals on the nose and added five more near misses. Take the cases of Virginia and North Dakota. In Miami Beach, the Virginia delegation had to be polled before its vote was determined at 22 for Nixon, two for Rockefeller. In Lexington, it was the same, without the poll. The real North Dakota vote was split five for Nixon, two for Rocky, one for Reagan. W&L's students had already voted exactly the same way.

The worst goof involved Oregon. The students, who had to vote before the Oregon primary, guessed wrong and cast all 18 votes for Rockefeller. Nixon, of course, won the Oregon primary and received that state's votes in Miami Beach.

Nixon accepted the students' nomination shortly after receiving it. Speaking over a telephone hook-up from Louisville, Ky., where he was attending the Kentucky Derby, Nixon said, "I'm very complimented. I accept this nomination."

CONVENTION RECORD

- 1908—Right with William Jennings Bryan.
- 1912—Wrong with Judson Harman. Wilson won.
- 1916—Right with Charles Evans Hughes.
- 1920—No convention.
- 1924—Right with John W. Davis.
- 1928—Right with Al Smith
- 1932—Right with Franklin D. Roosevelt.
- 1936—Wrong with Arthur Vandenburg. Landon won.
- 1940—Wrong with Charles L. McNary. Wilkie won.
- 1944—No convention.
- 1948—Wrong with Vandenburg. Dewey won.
- 1952—Right with Dwight D. Eisenhower.
- 1956—Right with Adlai Stevenson.
- 1960—Right with John F. Kennedy.
- 1964—Right with Barry Goldwater.
- 1968—Right with Richard M. Nixon.

Nixon, who in January spoke in the gymnasium where the mock convention was held, said the next President will have "the greatest responsibility that has ever rested on any president's shoulders in our history. For the first time, not only peace abroad but peace at home must be discussed in an American campaign. A nation that can't keep peace at home certainly cannot keep peace abroad." (This became one of Nixon's major campaign themes.)

More than two dozen newsmen covered the event, including representatives from Virginia television stations, both major wire services, the Washington, D. C., papers, and the Washington correspondents for Florida's largest daily newspapers.

An innovation at the 1968 Mock Convention involved the platform. In previous years, this was largely just a perfunctory preliminary to the balloting, but this time the students attempted seriously to adopt a platform similar to the real one.

A platform committee, under the guidance of Andrew Colclough, a senior law student from Arlington, began its work months ahead of time. They read volumes of material about the Republican position on the issues, conducted committee hearings, and heard testimony from numerous experts on the problems facing the country.

They also sent a 70-question questionnaire to about 400 leading Republicans throughout the country and analyzed GOP and Democratic platforms as far back as the 1920's.

The document they came up with bore strong resemblances to the one adopted in Miami Beach. Just as they try to do in the balloting, the students emphasized authenticity in drawing up the platform.

"It was not necessarily a reflection of the personal attitudes of the committee members," Colclough said. "In fact, there were a number of times when personally the members of the committee were unanimously opposed to a particular plank, but we put them in because we believed that's what the Republicans would do in Miami Beach."

Later, Colclough presented a copy of the platform to Sen. Everett Dirksen of Illinois, chairman of the Republican Platform Committee.

Platform chairman DREW COLCLOUGH presents Mock Convention's document to SEN. EVERETT DIRKSEN, chairman of the Republican Platform Committee. REP. WILLIAM BROCK (R-Tenn), right, a Washington and Lee alumnus, was parade marshal.

Of necessity, the platform had to be fairly general and adaptable to any of the possible GOP candidates. "We think any Republican leader—well, maybe not Goldwater—could run on this platform," Colclough said after the document was drawn up.

Twenty-two pages long and covering everything from the Vietnam War to the space program and consumer affairs, the platform sailed through the Mock Convention, except for a plank on the draft. Here, a minority plank calling for elimination of the draft and recruitment of a volunteer army—after the Vietnam War is settled—was adopted after a rousing floor fight. Three other minority planks attacking the space program, calling for a reciprocal free trade policy, and altering the method of meeting urban problems, were rejected.

There were the usual array of well-known politicians, beauty queens, and curious spectators. Gov. Claude Kirk of Florida delivered the keynote address, and nearly everyone agreed that the most explosive thing about that was the bomb scare which hastened adjournment of the initial session.

Lexington police notified University President Robert E. R. Huntley, who was on the convention floor, that an anonymous telephone caller had said a bomb was planted in a flower pot and was due to go off soon. As Kirk wound up his keynote address, the police and University quietly searched the gym, but found neither a bomb nor a flower pot.

Florida Gov. CLAUDE KIRK speeded up his keynote address when a telephone call indicated a bomb had been planted in Doremus. University PROCTOR BOB MURRAY, left, looked high and low, but came up with nothing but an empty gym.

Former Oklahoma Gov. Henry Bellmon addressed the convention at the second session and presented the platform for debate. Alumni William E. Brock, III, '53, and A. Linwood Holton, '44, took active roles. Brock, now a Republican congressman from Tennessee, was parade marshal. Holton, a Roanoke attorney and Southeast Regional Coordinator of Nixon's national campaign, was temporary chairman and introduced by Gov. Kirk.

Another alumnus, New York Supreme Court Justice Sol Wachtler, attended the convention. Wachtler, who as a student seconded the nomination of Eisenhower at the '52 convention, headed the Mock Convention National Advisory Council.

The 1968 convention was not without its zanier moments. A truck bearing live elephants to lead the parade broke down in Winchester and didn't deliver its cargo until hours after the parade was over.

Several huge crates of crepe paper and other decorating materials failed to arrive for use on the parade floats. Parade chairman Bob McLaughlin gallantly rented a private plane and flew to Baltimore—the nearest place where such supplies could be obtained in large quantities on such short notice. The plane returned to Lexington's unpaved, unlighted runway after dark on the eve of the convention. McLaughlin's fellow students illuminated the runway with their car lights so the plane could land.

The day before the parade, an overzealous delegate from Georgia decided to test the "fireproof" material used to decorate his state's float. He found out soon enough as the float burned to the ground. But the delegation worked all night and rebuilt it in time to take part in the parade.

DURING THE 1968 Mock Convention, a brief memorial service was held and a moment of silence was observed for Tommy Mac Baremore, a 21-year-old senior from Shreveport, La., who on March 17 drowned in the Maury River while on an outing at Goshen Pass. A campus leader and an outstanding student, Tommy was director of state delegations for the convention and active in planning the event. His classmates and friends established a scholarship fund in his memory, and his family and friends established in his name a debate award to be given each year to a Washington and Lee student "who has distinguished both himself and his University by his contribution to intercollegiate debating." Tommy was a leading debater, winning twice the Noell-Eckes Debate Trophy, awarded annually to the outstanding debater at Washington and Lee.

The Mock Convention, man's work almost, didn't suffer from any lack of beauty. Girls were everywhere—joining in the hoopla, keeping an eye on late developments, or just being pretty—as these pictures show.

On August 13, Lee McLaughlin, Washington and Lee's head football coach, who was to become Athletic Director this year, was electrocuted by a defective freezer unit at his home and camp near Lexington. A Michael Philipps, '64, former Director of Sports Information, wrote the following tribute:

Lee McLaughlin was the kind of man you'd never forget. To meet him was an experience in itself. He'd come at you with that big, infectious smile, stick out his hand, and right then and there you had a friend for life.

Many people met Lee McLaughlin during too short a life. From the small child of 10 at his summer camp and home in Rockbridge Baths to the toughest fullback that played football for him, Lee McLaughlin's influence was a daily blessing. It was a good influence, a decent one, an influence that strengthened belief in one's fellow man.

For 11 years, he brought a quiet feeling of confidence and determination to the Washington and Lee athletic program, from the uncertain early days of 1957 to the present, when the Generals' non-subsidized athletic policy is a recognized success.

Lee McLaughlin was largely responsible for that. Picking up the remnants of a vanishing football spirit at Washington and Lee, caused by the then-controversial 1954 decision to drop athletic scholarships, he began his earnest crusade to restore football dignity at the school he loved so much.

"Everybody thought I was crazy coming to Washington and Lee's graveyard," he said at the time of his appointment in 1957. "But it's the best school in the country," he added, "so how could I go wrong."

Lee McLaughlin

For three years, Lee McLaughlin suffered through the miseries known only to a football coach. In 24 games, the Generals won only four times, and that surely would have made a lesser man call it quits. But starting in 1960, his teams embarked upon a three-season drive that recorded 25 wins in 27 games, including the undefeated and untied campaign of 1961. The Washington, D.C. Touchdown Club awarded Washington and Lee its small college Team-of-the-Year trophy that year, which Lee McLaughlin accepted for a very grateful school.

That was just one testimonial to the man. Another was his nomination by the University of Virginia, his alma mater, for Sports Illustrated's Silver Anniversary All-America Award in 1966, honoring 25 men for their contributions to society in the 25 years since their senior football season.

Lee McLaughlin's contributions extended far beyond 100 yards. They stretched through the campus, into Lexington, and on out away from Virginia to any point where someone had a former association with him as coach, camp director, and friend.

He continually maintained those associations. Speaking to groups in Memphis, Louisville, New Orleans, or wherever he felt like going to talk about Washington and Lee, he would tell his audience he held one of the best three jobs in the United States. The other two belonged to assistant coaches Boyd Williams and Buck Leslie.

But he was often irked at these meetings. There would always be a few to chastise Washington and Lee about its "small-time" approach to athletics, and that would send Lee McLaughlin into a quick speech.

"I don't think our boys would like to think of themselves as small-time athletes," he would say. "They work just as hard, hit just as hard, and want to win just as much as the athletes at larger schools.

"What we take out of it is the professionalism, the spectacle for the crowd's sake alone. Our boys are playing for the school and for themselves, and that's the way it should be."

Lee McLaughlin kept everything in perspective, and because he did he was admired and envied by many of his fellow coaches. His was a relaxed and easy-going approach to collegiate athletics, and he said that athletic programs should complement the overall educational process, not take precedence over it.

And this is what made him so perfect for Washington and Lee. He believed first in his own philosophy, which was a carbon-copy of Washington and Lee's philosophy. The two were made for each other.

His loss will be deeply felt, of course, and the school will sorely miss a man that gave so much to it. But he will not be forgotten, as President Robert E. R. Huntley so well expressed: "He was a part of the heart and soul of Washington and Lee, and his death leaves a void which cannot be filled. But he brought to this institution a vitality and a spirit which will never die."

All those things you hear about building character cannot be said about Lee McLaughlin. He didn't build character, he gave it away. You drew from him, and you just wish it could have been more.

McLaughlin Memorial Fund

The Lee Massey McLaughlin Memorial Scholarship Fund has been established at Washington and Lee in honor of Coach Mac. The scholarship will be awarded each year to a rising junior who exemplifies the spirit, vitality, and nobility of character of Lee McLaughlin. The award will be based on the recipient's financial need and will continue through his junior and senior years.

A group of anonymous donors have assured that the fund will meet the University's requirements for an endowed scholarship. Additional gifts to the fund are welcomed and are being received. Checks should be made payable to Washington and Lee University and designated for the Lee Massey McLaughlin Memorial Scholarship Fund.

A SUMMER OF CHANGE

Several shifts in administrative responsibilities, additional leaves of absence for faculty members, deaths in the University family, appointments of new faculty members, and the return of several faculty members from leaves—all these combined to make the Summer of 1968 a season of change for the University.

Some of the changes have been reported in previous issues of the Alumni Magazine. The following is a resume to bring readers up to date:

■ ROY L. STEINHEIMER, JR., former professor of law at the University of Michigan, has assumed his position as Dean of the School of Law. He succeeded ROBERT E. R. HUNTLEY, who became President of the University last February. CHARLES P. LIGHT, who was interim acting dean, has returned to full-time teaching duties.

■ MAURICE D. LEACH, JR. is the new head Librarian, replacing HENRY COLEMAN who retired on July 1. Mr. Leach was professor of library science and department chairman at the University of Kentucky.

■ E. GRAHAM (BUCK) LESLIE, JR. has been named acting head football coach, following the death on August 13 of LEE M. McLAUGHLIN. Mr. Leslie was assistant coach in charge of the backfield. E. P. (CY) TWOMBLY, who was to retire September 1, is continuing for the time being as athletic director, a post Mr. McLaughlin was to assume.

rector of Development, has been appointed Assistant to the President. He will be concerned with immediate and long-range planning and assist President Huntley in coordinating activities of the University's administrative offices. He will continue to direct the University's overall program of public relations and information.

■ FARRIS P. HOTCHKISS, formerly Associate Director of Development, succeeded Mr. Parsons as Director of Development. He will supervise all the University's fund-raising and support activities.

■ LEWIS G. JOHN has returned from a two-year leave of absence spent at Syracuse University working toward his Ph.D. He is now Associate Dean of Students and Director of Financial Aid. WILLIAM NOELL, who filled the position during the past year, has returned to his law studies at the University of Virginia.

■ WILLIAM M. SCHILDT, a '68 graduate of the Law School, has been named Assistant Dean of Students and Assistant Director of Admissions. He is also teaching commerce courses.

■ WILLIAM J. WATT, professor of chemistry and Assistant Dean of the College, has been appointed Associate Dean of the College.

■ JOHN HUGHES, formerly Assistant Director of Information Services, has been named Director of Public Relations. His duties have been expanded to include sports information in addition to the University's general information program.

■ A. MICHAEL PHILIPPS, formerly Director of Sports Information, has become Director of Photography and Assistant Director of Publications.

■ WILLIAM N. MOHLER, formerly Assistant Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds, has been appointed Assistant Director of University Services, assisting L. VERNON SNYDER in the areas of central purchasing and student and faculty housing. Mr. Mohler's former

■ Death claimed five members of the Washington and Lee family during the summer: CHARLES R. McDOWELL, Distinguished Lecturer in Law, and D. GAY CROCKETT, Maintenance Services Foreman, both on July 6; Mrs. ROBERT W. DICKEY, wife of the retired head of the Physics Department, on July 16; LEE McLAUGHLIN on August 13; and Mrs. RUPERT N. LATTURE, wife of the retired head of the Political Science Department on August 26.

post was assumed by JAMES L. ARTHUR, formerly Plumbing and Heating Foreman.

Faculty members on leave during the first semester only are LOUIS HODGES, religion; ROBERT STEWART, music; and MARSHALL JARRETT, history.

Faculty members on leave during the second semester will be DAVID SPRUNT, religion; MARION JUNKIN, fine arts; OLLINGER CRENSHAW, history.

Many of these leaves for research and other scholarly self improvement were made possible by three recent grants received by the University: the $250,000 grant from the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation for the sciences; the $197,300 grant from the National Science Foundation under its College Science Improvement Program; and the $60,000 grant from the Ford Foundation to assist the humanities.

■ Faculty members who returned to the campus this year from leaves of absence, besides Mr. John, were WILLIAM A. JENKS, history; FELIX P. WELCH, mathematics; SAMUEL KOZAK, geology; ROBERT K. RUSHING, law; JOHN K. JENNINGS, journalism; and GEORGE W. RAY, English.

■ New appointments to the faculty are ROBERT B. BROWNELL, mathematics, CHING-YEH HU, biology; JAMES T. COOK, music and fine arts; PETER M. CUMMINGS, DAVID H. ZUKER and HENRY E. SLOSS, Jr., English; GERALD M. DOYON and ULYSSE DESPORTES, fine arts; JAMES E. LOESEL, political science; GEORGE MANDEVILLE, physics; D. RAMSEY MARTIN, philosophy; JOHN E. MEHL, religion; FREDERICK J. NOWAK, commerce; and S. SYDNOR WALDEN, physical education.

Any gathering of lawyers or judges is likely to bring together a large number of Washington and Lee graduates, reflecting the remarkable record of judicial service performed by Washington and Lee men across the country.

One such event was a seminar this summer at the University of North Carolina conducted by the National College of State Trial Judges, a privately endowed organization affiliated with the Judicial Administration Section of the American Bar Association. Attending were 118 state trial judges from 42 states. Of this number, at least seven were Washington and Lee alumni, and there were probably others. Washington and Lee men known to be present were John D. Maley, '52, District Court, Okmulgee, Okla.; George R. Triplett, '61, Twentieth Judicial Circuit Court, Elkins, W. Va.; B. Lamar Winegeart, Jr., '52, Fourth Judicial Circuit Court, Jacksonville, Fla.; Allie H. Lane, '43, Tenth Judicial Circuit Court, Bartow, Fla.; Alvin N. Wartman, '51, Eighth Judicial Circuit Court, Las Vegas, Nev.; Richard T. Edwards, '33, Hustings Court, Roanoke, Va.; and D. C. (Gus) Mayes, Fourth Circuit Court, Dinwiddie, Va.

A Record Run by Zeliff

Senior co-captain Harry Zeliff of Staunton, Va., set a Washington and Lee cross-country record October 12 in a triangular meeting with Old Dominion and Roanoke Colleges during the halftime of the W&L-Lafayette football game. Zeliff covered the grueling 4.1-mile run in 23:36.0, breaking by four seconds the old mark set in 1966 by Lee Johnson.

An English major, Zeliff is a member of the Troubadours, Circle K, Young Democrats, debate team, and Phi Epsilon Pi social fraternity.

In spite of Zeliff's fine performance, the Generals lost both ends of the meet to put the season record at 4-2.

Washington and Lee In Manhattan

THE COLONNADE OF Washington and Lee made the scene this past summer in New York City.

James N. Applebaum, '62, reported that the Dry Dock Savings Bank's headquarters building at Lexington Ave. and E. 59th St.—one of Manhattan's busiest intersections—used a massive, full-color photo of the W&L campus as the backdrop for a three-dimensional setting that promoted the bank's student loan program.

Mr. Applebaum and others familiar with the campus stopped in the bank to ask about the picture. Harvey Corbett, the bank's advertising director, said the picture was gleaned from hundreds of college pictures supplied by "a stock photo house."

"We selected the shot because we thought it uncommonly attractive and rather ideal of what a residential college campus should look like," Mr. Corbett said. He added that the angle of the shot gave the display the desired depth.

"No old school ties prompted the choice of the picture," he went on. "The men who designed the display and those who put it up were not even college graduates."

Mr. Iden's Gallery Of Presidents

WHEN WOODROW WILSON held the first presidential news conference in history, Gilmore Iden, '07, was there to cover it. Today—at the age of 83—he is still pounding out newspaper copy—a weekly column on national politics for the Aiken (S.C.) Standard and Review—“just to keep my hand in.”

His hand has been in a lot of journalism—and history—since he began his writing career under Theodore Roosevelt's administration. He was personally acquainted with every President from Taft through Kennedy and received from each an autographed photograph. In 1965, Mr. Iden designated the Lee Memorial Journalism Foundation as the permanent repository of the collection, and the pictures are now on display on the second floor of Reid Hall.

His forte was financial reporting. He specialized as a Washington correspondent in government finance until 1919, and his first big assignment was to write a review of the Federal Reserve Act. He later became managing editor of the New York Journal of Commerce. In 1927, he became secretary of the American Institute of Steel Construction and later assisted in the establishment of the United States Daily in Washington. He joined the Bureau of National Affairs in 1940 and moved to the U. S. News and World Report in 1948, becoming its chief United Nations correspondent. He is the author of several books and magazine articles on financial and economic subjects. He retired in 1962 and lives in Aiken with Mrs. Iden, two of whose brothers attended Washington and Lee.

Enrollment 1968: Freshmen Up, Law Down

WASHINGTON AND LEE BEGAN its 220th academic year with an enrollment of 1,458, three short of last year's record enrollment.

The Freshman Class, however, was larger by five—361 compared with 356 a year ago. Undergraduate upperclassmen numbered 911, a slightly higher figure than last year, reflecting the University's improved holding power of students in all classes.

The School of Law experienced a rather sharp decline in enrollment because of the draft situation. But Roy L. Steinheimer, the new Law Dean, said the drop was not as great as expected last year when deferments of graduate students were eliminated. The Law School has this year 186 students compared with 216 last year—a loss of 30. The Law School reported that at least 20 students who were admitted to the first-year class were drafted before school opened. In addition, another 20 rising second-year students were drafted during the summer. The school, however, was able partly to make up these losses by having a backlog of qualified applicants.

There are 38 sons of alumni in the 1968 Freshman class. They and their fathers are:

REPORT of GIFTS

Washington and Lee's Annual Giving

The following pages record the generosity of the University's alumni, parents and friends. These contributions are not simply gifts of money. They are expressions of devotion; they are provisions for the continued excellence of Washington and Lee.

Every year your University turns to you for this support. It always will. The plain fact is that a private university must receive a substantial part of its financial needs from persons like you. Your gifts make a difference to Washington and Lee. The difference is between its just getting along and its having the resources for greatness. The strength of the University is tied directly to the measure of your giving.

During the past year, Washington and Lee recorded a new high in financial support from its annual giving programs. Already, the benefits are in effect.

The Robert E. Lee Associates

Over the long reach of Washington and Lee University's history one man stands above all others in the manner of his influence upon the institution. No student who has attended Washington and Lee in over one hundred years has been untouched by the personal ideals and the educational foresight of Robert E. Lee.

The Board of Trustees of Washington and Lee University has therefore found it fitting that the University's most generous and loyal benefactors be brought together and acknowledged as the Robert E. Lee Associates.

Among the purposes of the Robert E. Lee Associates are these:

To enable the University to recognize and honor those persons whose support of Washington and Lee and whose enthusiasm for its role in higher education are unmistakably above the ordinary.

To provide a focus of leadership that will give direction and impetus to all of the University's annual giving programs.

To bring to the University each year a substantial sum of money that will be a cornerstone of strength in meeting the University's constant challenge to sustain its reputation as an institution of truly distinctive merit.

Special recognition as a charter member of the Robert E. Lee Associates continues to be available until December, 31, 1968. One hundred and six persons have become charter members as of the printing of this report; their aggregate giving stands at an inspiring $197,231.52. They are:

Annual Alumni Fund

The University's alumni, every year, make a collective effort to promote the ability of Washington and Lee to be excellent in all respects. The 1967-68 Annual Alumni Fund is the largest investment that alumni have ever made in their alma mater through annual giving. It is a challenge for new measures of support in the years ahead. The opportunity it affords Washington and Lee can be derived from no other source.

	1967-68	1966-67 (Last Year)

In the following honor roll of alumni donors, under each class heading are two graphs recording the achievement of that particular class. The top graph shows the percentage of class members who contributed to the 1967-68 Annual Alumni Fund, i.e.:

33%

Each class had an objective — a dollar quota it sought to attain. The second graph records the percent of its quota realized by that class, i.e.:

111%

For all alumni, the 1967-68 Annual Alumni Fund presents this picture:

The Parents' Fund

Washington and Lee's parents have for many years supported the University in an unusually generous manner. This generosity has made the Washington and Lee Parents' Program a model for other institutions and has brought the University national recognition.

Under the direction of the Parents' Advisory Council, the Parents' Fund nearly doubled last year's performance. In so doing, the parents are making an admirable and necessary effort to meet those instructional expenses not covered by tuition.

Nine parents qualified for charter membership in the Robert Lee Associates.

Corporations Contributing to Alumni Fund, 1967-68

The businesses listed below matched the gifts that their employees made to Washington and Lee University during the 1967-1968 Annual Alumni Fund year. In this manner they contributed a total of $15,626.33 to their employees' alma mater. This "matching gift program" is an enlightened approach taken by many American businesses in sharing with their employees the important undertaking of educational financial support.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Coelie at a W&L gathering in Houston.

THE EYES OF TEXAS were upon Washington and Lee University for seven days last July. At the same time, a delegation of University officials headed by President Robert E. R. Huntley looked upon Texas. And often the gazes met in wide-eyed wonder and mutual admiration.

The "Texas Trip" as it became known, was prompted by "Washington and Lee Day" on Friday, July 12 at HemisFair in San Antonio. Washington and Lee was the first out-of-Texas college to have a special day at Texas' first World's Fair. The planning began in February, and, in the process, the visit was expanded into a wide-ranging trek rivaling the dimensions of Texas itself.

President Huntley was accompanied by his wife, Evelyn; Dean of the College W. W. Pusey, III, and his wife, Mary Hope (a native of Texas); Director of Development Frank A. Parsons and his wife, Henny; and Alumni Secretary William Washburn and his wife, Libby. J. Stewart Buxton of Memphis, Tenn., a University trustee, and Mrs. Buxton were in the official delegation. They were joined in Texas by another trustee, John Stemmons of Dallas, and Mrs. Stemmons.

By the time the trip ended, the Washington and Lee officials had seen and talked with hundreds of Washington and Lee alumni (there are more than 600 in Texas), had deliberated with many of Texas' leading citizens, toured many of Texas' monuments of dynamic progress, and covered hundreds of miles of Texas ground—San Antonio, Houston, Galveston, Dallas-Fort Worth. The group returned by way of Shreveport, La.

at HemisFair

Washington and Lee had a special "in" at HemisFair. Two of its chief officers are alumni, Marshall T. Steves, '44, president and Tom C. Frost, Jr. '50, vice president. Brent C. Harnisch, '39, president of the San Antonio alumni chapter, was in charge of the arrangements for the activities that attracted more than 200 alumni, wives, and guests from throughout Texas and many other parts of the nation.

"All praise should be given to Brent Harnisch for his superb leadership, direction, supervision, and just general hard work to make the event a truly wonderful time for all," Alumni Secretary Washburn said. "Everything was beautifully arranged, and everyone had a great time."

On the evening before the HemisFair program, Mr. and Mrs. Steves entertained President Huntley and visiting alumni at a party at their home, a handsome place that has received national attention in home-making magazines.

The Washington and Lee group arrived at the fair grounds aboard three barges that had first taken them on a cruise on the San Antonio River. The HemisFair Band played "The Swing" at a welcoming ceremony. (One alumnus said that the band was small, but in that setting it sounded like the Marine Band.)

At a luncheon in the Tower of the Americas Restaurant, Mayor Walter McAllister of San Antonio made President Huntley an "Alcalde." That's Mexican for mayor, and if President Huntley ever moves to San Antonio he will, as "Alcalde," be exempt from city taxes for a year. Mayor McAllister also paid tribute to Mr. Steves for his contributions to the success of HemisFair. All of this took place as the restaurant atop the 550-foot Tower of the Americas revolved at the rate of one revolution per hour. The group had earlier visited the U. S. Pavilion. After lunch, there was a special tour of the Institute of Texas Cultures, followed by tours of HemisFair at leisure.

President Huntley was the principal speaker at a banquet that evening at the St. Anthony Hotel. He was introduced by Mr. Frost. President Huntley stressed the strengths of the University as reflected in its faculty, its student body, and its alumni and touched on the University's physical needs, particularly in the area of physical education facilities. He was given a standing ovation when he ended on the note: "I am convinced that our greatest asset is the distinction our alumni have brought to us . . . We expect to let you know how good you are, and we expect to let you know how good we are, and we expect to do it rather frequently."

The next day Mr. Huntley and other Washington and Lee officials were given a tour of Trinity College in San Antonio by R. R. Witt, '13, and Trinity Dean Bruce Morse. Mr. and Mrs. Frost entertained the group at a dinner that evening aboard one of the river barges. The menu featured Mexican food.

The Huntleys and Washburns moved on to Houston over the weekend, and on Monday had a full day of activity, including a tour of Rice University and of the Astrodome, a luncheon given by Thomas D. Anderson, '34, a reception for President and Mrs. Huntley at the Pavilion Room of the River Oaks Country Club, and dinner at the home of Marvin Collie, '39. Many people prominent in education and business were present at the luncheon and dinner.

The next day Temple Webber, '54, president of Houston alumni chapter, drove Mr. and Mrs. Huntley to Galveston, where they visited the home of Mrs. Mary Moody Northen of the Moody Foundation. Mrs. Northen had been a guest of the Washington and Lee group at the HemisFair program.

The Huntleys and Washburns spent the next two days in Dallas, where they were guests of the North Texas chapter, which includes Fort Worth. John Stemmons, '31, president of Industrial Properties, Inc., a firm that is reclaiming vast areas in the old Trinity River valley, took them on a tour of the city and gave them a close look at the industrial developments sponsored by his firm. Included were the Furniture Mart, the Apparel Mart, and the Stemmons Towers. Among the other hosts were L. Storey Stemmons, '27; Maurice E. Purnell, Jr., '61, Richard D. Haynes, '58, and Clay J. Berry, Jr. '50. The activities included lunch and golf at the Preston Trails Golf Course and a dinner at the Northwood Club given by John and Storey Stemmons.

The next day President Huntley was taken on visits to the offices of several prominent Dallas business men by Mr. Purnell and Mr. Haynes; John Stemmons gave a luncheon for the President at the Chapparral Club attended by the leading business and educational leaders of Dallas.

The Dallas-Fort Worth reception and dinner was held that night in the Great Hall of the Apparel Mart, with John Stemmons presiding. Some 200 alumni and guests attended.

The Great Hall is enormous, so large that parakeets are allowed to fly freely around inside. "There is just no way to describe the place," Mr. Washburn said. This setting and the enthusiasm for what President Huntley had to say about Washington and Lee made a fitting finale to the "Texas Trip"—admiring Washington and Lee eyes on Texas and admiring Texas eyes on Washington and Lee.

NEWS of the CHAPTERS

NORTHERN LOUISIANA

■ PRESIDENT AND MRS. HUNTLEY were guests of honor at a reception and dinner on July 19 at the Shreveport Country Club. The arrangements were made by M. Alton Evans, Jr., '53, chapter president, and Robert M. Jeter, Jr., '41. Alumni Secretary Bill Washburn and Mrs. Washburn accompanied the Huntleys. After a luncheon at the club, Mr. Huntley, Mr. Washburn, and Robert U. Goodman, '50, played a round of golf while the women were entertained at home by the wives of E. Alton Sartor, Jr., '38, and Staunton Sample, '38. A large gathering of alumni, parents of current students, and friends at the reception-dinner heard President Huntley report on the status of the University and discuss long-range plans. For the new president, it was a warm and rewarding reception.

CHARLESTON

■ AN ALUMNI PICNIC was held on August 29 at the home of Ruge P. DeVan, Jr., '34, in honor of entering freshmen from the Charleston area. W. T. Brotherton, Jr., '47, chapter president, welcomed the freshmen to the Washington and Lee family on behalf of the chapter and the University. It was a pleasant outing.

ROCKBRIDGE

■ ON THE EVENING of October 3 a historic meeting took place at the Tri-Brook Country Club in Lexington. The gathering organized the Rockbridge chapter of the Washington and Lee University Alumni, Inc. Robert W. H. Mish, Jr., '46, was elected the first president. Named directors were Russell Robey, '19, William Buchanan, '41, Ralph Daves, '26, Cap'n Dick Smith, '13, Matt Paxton, Sr., '18, and Tex Tilson, '26. The principal speaker was University President Huntley. President Mish noted the interest and enthusiasm shown at the meeting and pledged an active program for the chapter. He urged all members to attend homecoming events and to be official hosts to out-of-town alumni.

CUMBERLAND VALLEY

■ JUDGE EDWARD S. DELAPLAINE, '13 was honored at an alumni dinner on August 27 at the Red Horse Steak House in Frederick, Md. Judge Delaplaine, who has retired from the Maryland Court of Appeals, is the second oldest member of the chapter. William M. Schildt, '64, a 1968 honor graduate of the Law School, reported on the progress of the University. Mr. Schildt is now an assistant dean of students, working in the admissions program and teaching commerce courses. These officers were elected: James L. Rimler, '31, president; Omar T. Kaylor, '45, vice president; and John B. Hoke, '60, secretary-treasurer. Directors elected were Glen Shively, '36, Merle Kaetzel, '31, Charles Beall, '56, John McCardell, '37, Manuel Weinberg, '31, John Warfield, '51, and Robert E. Clapp, '30.

LOUISVILLE

At Shreveport, PRESIDENT and MRS. HUNTLEY talk with M. ALTON EVANS, JR., president of the Northern Louisiana chapter.

There are 10 freshmen from Louisville this year.

NEW ORLEANS

■ THE NEW ORLEANS chapter held its annual luncheon for incoming freshmen on August 29 at the International House. The 12 freshmen from the New Orleans area set a record for this year. Dudley D. Flanders, '56, chapter president, presided. John Minor Wisdom and Joseph T. Lykes, Jr., University trustees, were present and spoke briefly to the freshmen. Mr. Flanders told the alumni University President Huntley planned a visit to the chapter in November.

Class Notes

Since retiring from the Louisiana State Department of Public Works in 1963 H. M. (MONTY) HAYNE has lived in Franklin, La. He writes that the yards around his home are enough to keep him busy with grass cutting and tending to flowers. He continues to do a little consulting work on surveying.

1917

LT. GENERAL A. G. (GALLA) PAXTON (Ret.) was honored July 6 at a review by Mississippi National Guardsmen at Camp Shelby. The review was also the first for Governor John Bell Williams who took office earlier this year. A new two-story air conditioned building was dedicated in honor of General Paxton, former commanding general of the 31st Infantry (Dixie) Division. It was named Paxton Hall. The Greenville military and civic leader began his military career in 1917 and retired in 1958. More than 9000 National Guardsmen and Army Reservists passed in review following the dedication ceremonies. General Paxton is also at the top of his business profession as a cotton broker having served as President of the American Cotton Shippers Association.

BRIG. GEN. ANDREW H. HARRISS, JR., retired assistant to Chief Engineer Communication and Signaling, Atlantic Coast Line R.R. Co., has been appointed as Civilian Advisor to the Commanding General, Third U.S. Army. Gen. Harriss was breveted Brigadier General, North Carolina National Guard, by Gov. Hodges for outstanding military service. He was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal in 1962. He has also been a member of the President's Executive Reserve in the Office of Civil Defense Mobilization and of the Economic Advisory Council.

After over forty years of medical practice as a surgeon, DR. JAMES G. SMITH, JR., retired in 1967 and now lives in Wauchula, Fla. He did not remain retired long, for in Feb., 1968, during the critical period of educational-teacher problems in the State of Florida Dr. Smith became principal of the Hardee County High School. Just recently he has been elected County Superintendent of Public Education.

1926

KENNETH C. KIMBROUGH is in the interior decorating business in Memphis and is a national vice-president of the American Institute of Interior Design.

1927

RICHARD STUART BARNETT received an honorary LL.D. from the University of Arkansas in June. Mr. Barnett is a prominent farmer, ginner, and banker of Altheimer, Ark., and he has been a leader in obtaining financial support for agricultural research in Arkansas. He is president and manager of both the Elms Planting Co. and the B. N. Word Gin Co. He is vice-president and director of the National Bank of Commerce of Pine Bluff, and director of the Arkansas Rice Growers Co-operative Association.

Among the less conventional conventioners at the Republican Convention in Miami was W. J. DAVIS BELL. On a week's vacation, David rented an air-conditioned car and posted a sign reading "courtesy car for VIP's." By Friday of the week his log book recorded 3484 passengers among whom were three Governors, five Senators, and twenty-two House members. Bell charged nothing for his service but grateful riders contributed drinks, free meals, and hard-to-get tickets to the sessions of the convention.

ADRIAN L. MCCARDELL will become chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the First National Bank of Maryland, effective Aug. 1, 1968. The new chairman is a Frederick, Md., native who joined the bank in 1958 and became its president in 1961. After graduation from Washington and Lee and Harvard Business School, he was a national bank examiner. Mr. McCardell is president of the Baltimore Clearing House and a director of the Eutaw Savings Bank and the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company.

FRED B. KING, JR., is president and treasurer of the King Funeral Home in Youngstown, Ohio. He was recently elected to 33 degree Scottish Rite Masons and also elected a director of First Federal Savings & Loan of Youngstown.

The Jesse Jones Sausage Company of Garner, N.C., and Danville, Va., has merged with General Mills, Inc. EARL T. JONES, president of the Jesse Jones Sausage Company, said the merger will provide more capital to expand product lines and territories. The Jesse Jones Sausage Company will retain its present name and operate as a subsidiary of General Mills.

During the spring of 1968 CHARLES J. LONGACRE and his wife participated in the 1968 Comparative Education Society's seminar and field study. The study was "Contrasts in European and Secondary and Higher Education" and took the Longacres to five different foreign countries, three of which were behind the Iron Curtain. Longacre was also elected president of the Association of Field Services in Teacher Education for the coming year. Newark State College will be the scene for the 1969 Conference. As a delegate of the New Jersey Education Association, Longacre attended the NEA Convention in Dallas.

E. J. (JERRY) ADE has opened a new firm in New York City, Pointmakers, Inc. The firm offers professional planning, organizing, directing, and staging of new product introductions, sales meetings, trade shows and conventions, and fund raising affairs. It is equipped to provide services such as art-layout, audio-visuals, direct mail, displays, printing and publicity, radio and TV commercials and sales presentations.

After July 1, H. ARTHUR LAMAR will have headquarters in New Orleans where he will be on the staff of the Regional Director, Southwest Region, for Singer Company.

ROBERT L. BUFFINGTON has been promoted to Assistant Chief, Engineering Division, of the Corps of Engineers in the Southwestern Division at Dallas. He had been Chief, Project Planning Branch, of the Little Rock District of the Corps since Nov., 1963. Buff and his wife, Ruby Lee, reside in Richardson, Texas. His two boys, Bob and David, are engineering students at Oklahoma State University.

GEORGE D. MCCLURE was recently selected as one of the nation's top "representative agents" by the Aetna Life & Casualty Company. As a result, his full-page advertisement was currently featured in 22 national publications.

J. M. VAN ZANDT has been elected president of the Kentucky Association of Insurance Agents. He has previously served as vice-president and president of the Louisville Board of Insurance Agents.

San Antonio, Texas, attorney, W. W. FOWLKES, has been elected secretary of the Texas Bar Foundation. The foundation is a non-profit corporation to raise funds for expansion of key programs of the State Bar.

EDWARD L. BOND, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Young & Rubicam, Inc., New York, has been elected chairman of the board of the American Association of Advertising Agencies. Bond, who began his advertising career in the mail room of Kenyon and Eckhardt, joined Y & K shortly after his Army discharge and during his 21 years with the advertising agency has moved up from account executive through various departments to Senior Vice-President, then Executive Vice-President and general manager. In Jan., 1963, he was named President of Young & Rubicam; and in March, 1965, he became the Chief Executive Officer. In Memoriam

AVERY HENRY REED died May 1, 1968, in Lexington Ky. He was 93 years old. After attending Washington and Lee, 1893-94, Mr. Reed attended the University of Virginia and received honors there. Mr. Reed had a distinguished professional life filled with many prominent engineering positions and wrote several engineering articles for publication in technical journals. In his later years, Mr. Reed was a prominent consulting mining engineer. He retired in 1949 and, after several years of study, published genealogies of three widely connected Virginia families, i.e., Anderson, Peyton and Reed.

RICHARD P. DANIEL, attorney and civic leader of Jacksonville, Fla., died at his home on June 4, 1968. During his long and active life he followed and embellished a family tradition of service to the community and the underprivileged. His father, Colonel James Daniel, died in 1888 while heading a relief and sanitary association which he organized to combat the yellow fever epidemic in Jacksonville. A grateful city established the Daniel Memorial Home for Children in his memory. It was this influence and family tradition that guided Richard Daniel in a long life of service to the community. Richard Daniel's public career began in 1908 when he was elected to the City Council. That same year he helped found the Jacksonville Association Charities, which was the forerunner of the Community Chest and later the United-Fund. Mr. Daniel also inspired the organization of the Family Welfare Agency and he sponsored and led the fight for legislation which created the Duval Medical Center. In recognition of his leadership and contribution to the establishment of the Medical Center, the Welfare Board in 1947 named a wing of the Duval Medical Center, The Daniel Unit in his honor.

Mr. Daniel was admitted to practice before the U. S. Supreme Court in 1916. He had been affiliated with a number of law firms and at the time of his death was senior partner in the firm of Daniel, Mitchell and Higgins. Among his many attainments Mr. Daniel was director of the Daniel Memorial Home for Children and chairman of its endowment fund committee; a founder and director of the Jacksonville Art Museum; president of the Jacksonville Historical Society; and the author of a number of articles on local history.

ALEXANDER McCLAIN CLARK died June 19, 1968, in a Birmingham, Ala., hospital. He was a retired civil engineer and a native of Fayetteville, Tenn.

1906

DAVID WASHINGTON PIPES, JR., former New Orleans, La., attorney and Southdown sugar planter, died Sept. 6, 1968, in Houma, La. Mr. Pipes was instrumental in revitalizing the Louisiana sugar industry in the 1920's by importing the highly disease-resistant POJ canes. A former president of the American Sugar Cane League, he was also a member of the Boston Club and various Carnival organizations. After receiving his B.A. degree from Washington and Lee in 1906, he was awarded the LL.B. degree from Tulane University in 1908. Mr. Pipes began the practice of law in New Orleans and in 1910 was married to the late Mary Minor.

WILLIAM W. ACKERLY, veteran of two wars and former commonwealth's attorney for Rockbridge County and judge of the County Court, died Aug. 9, 1968, after a long illness. Following his graduation from Washington and Lee, Major Ackerly accepted employment with the Lawyers Cooperative Publishing Company, a law book publishing firm in Rochester, N. Y. In 1915 he joined the New York National Guard and saw service with the First New York Cavalry on the Mexican border in 1916 and 1917. During World War I he rose to the rank of Captain and was discharged in 1919. After opening a law office in Lexington in 1921 he was elected commonwealth's attorney in 1927 and served in that capacity until 1942 when he resigned to re-enter the service. During World War II he was promoted to the rank of major. Major Ackerly later served as compliance officer with the War Manpower Commission in Richmond and as assistant veterans employment representative with the veterans' Employment Service. He left government service in 1949. He became judge of the County Court and Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court for Rockbridge County in 1958 and retired in 1961 because of ill health. Major Ackerly was a charter member and past commander of Post 95, American Legion; a former member of the Lexington Kiwanis Club; and a past judge advocate of the American Legion Department of Virginia.

COLONEL PAUL J. B. MURPHY, Sr., long-time and beloved class agent, died Aug. 1, 1968. He was 77 years old. Colonel Murphy began his military career as a private of the mounted scouts in the Virginia National Guard and served as one of President Wilson's body guards at the celebration in Staunton of Wilson's birthday. The Staunton native entered the Army as a private in the 29th engineers in 1917 and served in France. After his discharge, he served as superintendent of public works in Clifton Forge and later as city manager of Radford. In 1924, he re-entered the Army as a second lieutenant and was promoted to Colonel before retiring in 1949. During World War II Colonel Murphy served as a liaison officer to the French Foreign Legion for the 1943 desert campaign. He was on General Stillwell's staff in the China-Burma-India theater and was on General Wedemeyer's staff in China. Colonel Murphy worked closely with the staff of General Chiang Kai-Shek of Nationalist China; was held in high esteem by the Generalissimo, and was awarded one of China's highest decorations. He held the Legion of Merit and the Bronze Star along with other medals. Colonel Murphy was an avid correspondent with his classmates of 1914. He had served with distinction during the 1967-68 annual alumni fund which reached a record level of giving. An editorial in the News-Leader of Staunton, Va., had this to say: "He evidenced deep interest in a wide variety of organizations devoted to military and civilian interests and to his church, all of which he supported generously. His career should be an inspiration to young men responsible for the preservation of their nation and its military and civilian ideals." He is survived by his wife, Mary Wine Miller Murphy, also a son and a daughter and a sister.

On the Soccer Fields of W&L

EACH FALL, as campuses everywhere get caught up in the hurly-burly of collegiate football, the exciting sport of soccer somehow is forgotten in favor of 50-yard runs, crunching tackles, and crucial third-down plays.

That need not be, especially at Washington and Lee where Coach Joe Lyles has built the Generals into probably the most successful team the school has had in the last nine years.

Since 1959, when Lyles was appointed to the athletic staff, Washington and Lee soccer teams have enjoyed seven winning seasons, compiling an over-all 65-36-7 record. There was a break-even (6-6) mark in 1960, and the only losing cause was a year later (3-8).

In 1964, the Generals were selected to play in the NCAA

Eastern Regionals, thanks to an 8-2-1 regular season record. After an opening-game 2-0 win over Norwich Academy, Washington and Lee finally lost, 1-0, in double overtime to the Coast Guard Academy in the championship game. Last year, Lyles' team capped a fine 9-3-1 season by taking the Virginia Invitational Soccer Tournament championship, 3-0, from Eastern Mennonite College.

An M.A. graduate of Springfield College, Lyles is every bit the reason for soccer success at the University. He is a tough and determined coach, and he has recognized the fact he must push his soccer program if it is to compete in popularity and acceptance with football.

"We work hard," says Lyles, "because we have to. It is very rare that we'll get a natural talent here, so we have to make them. That's why I stress conditioning, dedication, and desire."

Lyles takes a professional approach to coaching. He has played professional baseball and basketball, baseball with the St. Louis Browns, and basketball against the Harlem Globetrotters during a 1952 tour that touched 48 countries. He got his soccer training in the tough St. Louis municipal leagues, a hotbed of the sport in the United States.

So there is little doubt the Generals will ever suffer too much as long as Lyles continues to guide Washington and Lee's soccer program. The record speaks for itself, a better one than . . . what's that other sport . . . football?
