

THE
WASHINGTON
AND LEE

ALUMNI MAGAZINE

SPRING, 1966

Reunions Open
Alumni House

Class of 1916

Among the anniversary reunion classes honored this year was the class of 1916 and among its members returning for the reunion activities were these Washington and Lee men. Seated, l-r, are L. B. BAGLEY, C. H. MILLER, M. C. HORNER, E. S. MARSHALL, A. L. BENNETT, HUNTER SHUMATE, and W. B. SULLIVAN. Standing, l-r, are L. J. DESHA, R. N. LATTURE, J. W. MAY, G. D. SHORE, E. B. SHULTZ, R. B. MCDUGLE, H. P. MAGRUDER, J. B. MOORE, and R. K. KISER. For other reunion photographs and news of the first alumni events to be held in the new Alumni House, please turn to Page 2.

THE WASHINGTON AND LEE

ALUMNI MAGAZINE

Editor

WILLIAM C. WASHBURN, 1940

Managing Editor

FRANK A. PARSONS, 1954

Editorial Associate

MRS. ROBERT STEWART

Volume XLI

Number 2

June, 1966

Memories of the campus in Springtime are special for each alumnus, but one that all share is the beauty of the dogwood in full blossom along the campus walks.

THE WASHINGTON AND LEE ALUMNI, INC.

President

FRANCIS W. PLOWMAN, '24

Vice-President

ROBERT A. FULWILER, JR., '25

Secretary

WILLIAM C. WASHBURN, '40

Treasurer

THOMAS C. FROST, JR., '50

THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES

WILLIAM C. BAKER, '38
 FREDERICK BARTENSTEIN, JR., '41
 GEORGE CRADDOCK, M.D., '30
 JACK L. CRIST, JR., '45
 H. TYNDALL DICKINSON, '39
 WARREN H. EDWARDS, '39
 THOMAS C. FROST, JR., '50
 ROBERT A. FULWILER, JR., '25
 JOHN M. JONES, III, '37
 THOMAS W. MOSES, '39
 JAMES W. PRIEST, M.D., '43
 FRANCIS W. PLOWMAN, '24

EDITORIAL BOARD

PAXTON DAVIS
 FRANK J. GILLIAM, 1917
 FRANCIS W. PLOWMAN, 1924
 WILLIAM C. WASHBURN, 1940
 JAMES W. WHITEHEAD

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Class Reunions Open New Alumni House . . . . .	2
President Nuckols Reports on Alumni Self-Study . . . . .	6
Alumni Board Occupies New Board Room . . . . .	8
New Members of the Alumni Board . . . . .	10
Reports on the Alumni and House Funds . . . . .	11
CONTACT: A Student Symposium . . . . .	12
Alumni Sons Honored by Phi Beta Kappa . . . . .	15
Lewis F. Powell, Jr., Is Tucker Lecturer . . . . .	16
Three Alumni Tapped by ODK . . . . .	17
The Southern Collegian Loses Its Endorsement . . . . .	18
A Special Comment on the Special Supplement . . . . .	20
World War I Hero Honored by SPE Fraternity . . . . .	21
Herbert G. Jahncke Reigns as Rex . . . . .	23
Class Notes . . . . .	24
In Memoriam . . . . .	37
Chapter News . . . . .	39

Published quarterly by Alumni Incorporated, Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Virginia.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Post Office at Lexington, Virginia, September 15, 1924. Printed at the Journalism Laboratory Press of Washington and Lee University under the supervision of C. Harold Lauck.

The doors of the new Alumni House were open to welcome alumni who returned for the 1966 anniversary class reunions.

New House Open . . .

ON FRIDAY, MAY 13TH, the new Alumni House opened its doors to the members of six anniversary class reunions, and thus began what is expected to be many years of useful service to Washington and Lee alumni and the University.

There was none of the bad luck usually associated with a Friday the 13th. Rain threatened most of the day, but it held off, and the hundreds of visitors to the new house were able to spill out onto the flagstone terraces which surround the house on three sides.

There was landscaping still to be done, the exterior brick revealed the pointing up of the masons and would need the customary coat of red paint, and the alumni offices on the second floor were vacant as yet. But the downstairs parlors were ready, tastefully decorated and furnished, and the more than 300 alumni and faculty guests who attended the opening reception were pleased with the appearance.

It was a fine kick-off for one of the busiest alumni weekends ever on the Washington and Lee campus.

A fifteenth anniversary class was added to the reunion roster for the first time, and this helped swell the total of individual reunion class members to 152 and the total of alumni and wives to 264. This was the largest attendance ever for the class reunion weekends which began as a regular part of the association's program in 1955.

Among the reunion classes was the largest individual class attendance recorded so far. The class of 1941 reunion included fifty-five alumni and forty wives. With Washington and Lee alumni dispersed as they are across the entire nation, reunion planners were delighted with this kind of response.

There were more than reunion class members on campus for the weekend, however. As a result of an amendment to the association's by-laws, enacted at the meeting of the Alumni Board of Directors on October 15, 1965, the date for the annual business meeting of the association was changed from its customary time at Commencement—when it was seldom well-attended—to some other more flexible date that could coincide with a sizeable gathering of alumni. The annual meeting was scheduled for May 14th, and this drew some alumni to the campus who were not a part of the reunions.

One of the largest reunion classes for 1966 was this happy group of alumni from the Class of 1911.

... for Reunion Classes

The Alumni Board of Directors held its spring meeting prior to the general meeting, and coincidental with all this, the University's Board of Trustees was in regular session elsewhere on the campus.

The Alumni Board met for the first time in the new board room on the second floor of the Alumni House. Attendance at the board meeting was also high, with only two members of the twelve-man body absent.

The reception in the Alumni House, where Association President E. Marshall Nuckols, '33, acted as official host, was the start of a busy program for the reunion classes.

The Troubadours staged a special showing of The Three Cuckolds for alumni on Friday evening, and after the play alumni returned to the Alumni House for refreshments.

On Saturday, President and Mrs. Cole were hosts to alumni for coffee in the President's Home, prior to the annual meeting at Lee Chapel. All alumni and guests and many members of the faculty joined for luncheon in Evans Hall where they heard a special report to alumni by President Cole. Class agents for reunion classes were special guests, and sat together for recognition by Alumni Secretary Bill Washburn.

In his remarks to the nearly 400 luncheon guests, President Cole praised alumni for their devotion and concern for the progress of their Alma Mater, but he cited the limiting factor of alumni communications brought by the wide dispersion of former students across the country.

"Your willingness to work and share in the progress of the University is directly related to the degree that you know and understand the purposes and goals of your University today," he said.

MR. and MRS. E. MARSHALL NUCKOLS, '33, welcome MR. and MRS. MEYER LU GOODMAN, '26, to the opening of the Alumni House. NUCKOLS, as president and a director of the association, was a leader in the planning of the new facility.

Upper above, PROF. EDWARD TURNER, '50, with back to camera, greets CHARLES BOWIE, JR., '61; THOMAS A. COURTENAY, III, '51; and MR. and MRS. MARK B. DAVIS, '56. Lower above, NELSON LAKE, '26, right, with MR. and MRS. GEORGE HILL, '26. Below, I. L. TWYMAN, '13, left, and WM. B. SULLIVAN and HUNTER SHUMATE, both '16. P.S.—it didn't rain.

President Cole reviewed ways in which the University hopes to improve its communications with alumni, including an improved Alumni Magazine, a better system of chapter visitations by representatives of the faculty and administration, and a more effective programming of reunion and homecoming events.

President Cole praised the work of the Alumni Board of Directors 1965-66, and he announced plans for a special three-day program in November when the Board will take part in a special series of meetings with administrators, faculty members, and student leaders.

"I hope all this suggests to you how important we consider our alumni relations," he said.

Afternoon activities included a golf tournament, where everyone was winner according to rules laid down by tournament director Coach Lee McLaughlin. Some alumni played tennis, and some took a bus tour to Natural Bridge.

Saturday evening class banquets were held for the classes of 1916, 1926, 1941, and 1951, and a joint banquet was held for the classes of 1956 and 1961.

Robert B. McDougle presided over the 50th anniversary banquet, where President Cole presented each alumnus with a souvenir picture of the campus. Special souvenir booklets containing members' biographical sketches prepared by the alumni office were also distributed, and class members wore special armbands for identification during the weekend.

More reunion scenes: above, ALUMNI SECRETARY WILLIAM WASHBURN, '40, right, with MR. and MRS. JAMES JETER, '56; upper left, l-r, KEN VAN DEWATER, HERB VAN OAST, and MR. and MRS. SAM HIDEN, all '41; left, JETER WILKINS, '41, and left, CHARLES TOLLEY, '39; below left, HARRISON MAGRUDER, left, and MR. and MRS. A. L. BENNETT, both '16; and below right, WILLIAM J. MCLEOD, '41, right, with PROF. ALLEN MOGER.

Almand R. Coleman was toastmaster at the 40th anniversary banquet, and Alvin T. Fleishman presided over the big 25th anniversary affair where Dean Frank J. Gilliam was a special guest.

The 15th anniversary banquet was hosted by Sam Hollis. Part of the program here was a lively discussion on the merits of conventional dress, with Dean of Students Edward C. Atwood participating.

The 10th and fifth anniversary classes joined for their banquet with John K. Jennings of the 1956 class presiding.

After the banquets, many alumni returned to the Alumni House where refreshments and musical entertainment helped extend the reunion far into the night. Even so, some 100 alumni and wives were on hand for Sunday morning breakfast in Evans Hall.

The entire reunion weekend was planned by the faculty alumni committee, composed of ten alumni members of the faculty and staff at Washington and Lee, under the chairmanship of Dr. Edward F. Turner, '50, professor of physics.

In the week following the reunions the Alumni Office made its move into the new quarters on the second floor of the Alumni House, and now the new facility is an established center of alumni interest and activity on the Washington and Lee campus.

Every alumnus will find a warm welcome waiting for him there, whether he is part of a class reunion or just a casual vacation visitor.

Outgoing President E. MARSHALL NUCKOLS, JR., '33, who has contributed unusually energetic and forward-looking leadership to the association in 1965-66, introduces his successor for 1966-67, shown on facing page. NUCKOLS is vice president of Campbell Soup Company of Camden, N. J.

The Annual Meeting of Alumni Hears President Nuckols Tell of a Busy Year

THE LARGEST ATTENDANCE in recent years marked the success of the annual meeting of the Alumni Association in Lee Chapel on May 14. An amendment to the By-Laws, made earlier in the year, provides flexibility for the Directors to set the date for the meeting other than at commencement. The decision to conduct the annual meeting so as to coincide with the Anniversary Class Reunions was a happy choice. By so doing there was not only a larger attendance of alumni but also a very much wider range of class and geographic representation.

There were ten members present from the twelve-member Board of Directors, and after introducing the officers and the directors, President E. Marshall Nuckols complimented the Board, stating "this is indicative of the exceptionally fine spirit and cooperation which your directors have shown throughout the year." A special word of thanks was made to James Clark and Sherwood Wise who with Nuckols were retiring from the Board of Directors at the end of their terms this year.

By WILLIAM C. WASHBURN
Executive Secretary

Treasurer Robert A. Fulwiler, Jr., '25, reporting for the interim ten-month period ending April 30, 1966, said the financial structure was sound and that an official audit would appear in the Alumni Magazine following the close of the fiscal year on June 30th.

In his president's report, Nuckols cited an exceptionally active and fruitful year, including the accomplishment of the Alumni House. He paid highest tribute to H. Graham Morison, '30, national chairman, and his committee of area vice chairmen and expressed the Association's appreciation to the University Trustees and administration for their thoughtful and generous cooperation. Adding that some chapters had not fully completed their fund raising campaign for the house, he urged each alumnus to return to his home area and to assist in the chapter's work.

The major project of the Alumni Board this year was a study of ways and means by which the Alumni Association could become a stronger and more meaningful organization. Although the annual alumni fund has almost tripled in the past decade and is on its way to setting a new record this year, "the Alumni Directors," Mr. Nuckols stated, "have a strong belief that Washington and Lee should do even better and that more can be done to strengthen alumni interest and loyalty."

The new president of Washington and Lee Alumni, Inc., FRANCIS W. PLOWMAN, '24, acknowledges the applause of fellow alumni as he is introduced to the annual meeting of the association in Lee Chapel. PLOWMAN is vice president of the Scott Paper Company of Philadelphia.

To this end a thorough self-study program was initiated and a survey conducted of the alumni organizations at twelve other universities, among them Amherst, Bowdoin, Dartmouth, Davidson, Princeton, Williams, and Yale. The survey showed, among other things, that most of these school raised substantially more in their alumni funds than does Washington and Lee.

"Admittedly, we picked the leaders," President Nuckols said, "but if you are trying to improve your own operation you want to compare yourself with the leaders, not second best."

He pointed out that these other schools, even with adjustments for size of alumni membership, have larger staffs in their organization and each has at least one person primarily devoted to annual alumni giving. Accordingly, Nuckols said, the Alumni Board of Directors had voted that the alumni office staff be enlarged by one experienced assistant who would devote his entire time to the alumni fund campaign and fund raising activities. Nuckols said the Board is continuing to study the survey and will make other firm recommendations in the next year.

President Nuckols reminded alumni of the countless other activities which the Association does in its year's work. "Though perhaps routine in nature," he stated, "they are nevertheless most significant parts of the work of your association. The keeping of records; the alumni chapter relations and activities; student relations; the Alumni Magazine; Homecoming and Reunions—all of these and many more make the work of your alumni office most demanding. It's no wonder that our studies have indicated our office is understaffed" he added.

Director James Priest, '43, in the absence of chairman Sam Ames, '42, of Norfolk, made the report of the nominating committee. Those elected to the Board of Directors for a term of four years are: Fred Bartenstein, Jr., '41, John M. Jones, II, '37, and Judge Warren H. Edwards, '39. Thomas W. Joynes, Jr., '52, was named as alumni representative to the University Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics.

It was announced that the new officers for the Association for the coming year will be President Francis W. Plowman, '24; Vice-president Robert A. Fulwiler, Jr., '25; Treasurer Thomas C. Frost, Jr., '50; and Executive Secretary William C. Washburn, '40.

Before adjournment Plowman presented a plaque to Nuckols, commenting he had never seen "a man do as much in one year in stirring up the Association. A strong vital Alumni Association can be of great value to Washington and Lee. I present this plaque to Marshall Nuckols for the magnificent service he has rendered the Alumni Association."

Alumni Directors Inaugurate New Board Room with Long Sessions

MEETING FOR THE FIRST TIME simultaneously with the anniversary class reunions, the Alumni Board of Directors also put into first use the Board Room of the new Alumni House.

Ten of the Board's twelve members were present to hear special reports from President Cole on the state of the University, from Assistant to the President James W. Whitehead on the progress of the University's Self-Study and how this relates to the self-study project of the Alumni Board, and from Executive Secretary William C. Washburn on the Alumni Fund, the house fund, and the annual budget.

Board President E. Marshall Nuckols reported on the results to date of the self-study of the association's organization and relationships with the University. Upon recommendation of the Executive Committee which conducted the self-survey, the Board adopted resolutions that would provide for:

An assistant to the alumni secretary, experienced in fund-raising, to devote full time to the organization, planning, and execution of the Alumni Fund; also, additional clerical help to support the fund-raising activities.

An invitation to the University Board of Trustees for one of its members to attend subsequent meetings of the Alumni Board, with the purpose of improved communication and understanding.

Plans for a special three-day meeting of the Alumni Board in November were announced. Members will get a comprehensive report from faculty, students, and administration.

Members of the Alumni Board of Directors occupy the new Board Room of the Alumni House for the first time.

THOMAS C. FROST, '50

H. TYNDALL DICKINSON, '39

WILLIAM C. BAKER, '38

DR. JAMES W. PRIEST, '43

THOMAS W. MOSES, '39

Admissions Director JAMES D. FARRAR presented a report to the Alumni Board of Directors that was, despite the expressions shown, a highly favorable summation of the admissions situation at Washington and Lee.

FRANCIS W. PLOWMAN, '24

Three New Members Of the Alumni Board

■ JUDGE WARREN H. EDWARDS, '39 B.A., is judge of the Criminal Court of Record of Orange County, Florida. He has been associated with the Orlando, Fla., law firm of Edwards & Hoequist as a senior partner, and he is a past president of the Orange County Bar Association. A 1947 LL.B. graduate of the University of Florida, Judge Edwards is a past lieutenant governor of the Florida District of Kiwanis International. In 1955-56 he served as a regional agent for the Alumni Fund, and in the 1958-60 University Development Campaign he was chairman for the Orlando area. He resides now in Orlando.

■ FREDERICK BARTENSTEIN, JR., '39 B.A. and '41 LL.B., is administrative vice-president of Merck & Co., Inc., nationally known pharmaceutical and chemical firm. He has served in several capacities for the Merck firm and has been active in the company's general public relations activities. Bartenstein is a member of the Virginia State Bar Association and a member of the Board of Trustees of The Pingry School of Elizabeth, New Jersey. He holds memberships in Phi Beta Kappa, Omicron Delta Kappa, and the Order of the Coif. In 1964-65 he served as an Alumni Fund class agent. He lives in Mendham, New Jersey.

■ JOHN MARTIN JONES, III, '37, B.A., is president of the Greeneville Publishing Co., publishers of the Greeneville, Tenn., Daily Sun, and the Newport Publishing Co., publishers of the Newport, Tenn., Plain Talk and Tribune. He is editor and general manager of the Daily Sun and resides in Greeneville. In addition to his publishing interests, Jones serves as an officer and director of a number of other business interests, including the Agricultural Lime Company, Tennessee Electro-Minerals Corp., the First National Bank of Greeneville, Sweetwater Hosiery Mills, and the Downtowner Corporation of Memphis. A member of the Great Smoky Mountain National Park Commission and the State Armories Commission, Jones is also active in Boy Scout, Chamber of Commerce, and Democratic Party activities.

The Alumni Fund Appears Headed Toward New High of Over $180,000

A FINAL AUDIT of receipts by the 1965-66 Alumni Fund was not available as this issue of the Alumni Magazine went to press, but it was apparent that the annual campaign had established a record total of alumni support for Washington and Lee.

Contributions from 3,693 alumni amounted to $179,312.60, with the possibility that late collections could push this amount past the $180,000 mark for the first time ever.

The Alumni Fund fell short of its announced goal of $225,000, and the number of contributors was 273 less than in the previous year. Nonetheless, members of the Alumni Fund Council looked on the success of the year-long effort as an extraordinary achievement.

During 1965-66, the Alumni Fund campaign was conducted simultaneously with a separate drive to solicit funds for the new Alumni House. Some 1,446 contributors supported this latter drive in the amount of $72,000, and while the majority of contributing alumni supported both campaigns, there were some who responded to only one, including some who had previously been regular donors to the annual fund.

The Fund Council, under the chairmanship of George M. Persinger, '51, of Lexington, chose to eliminate one important phase of the annual fund this year—the regional agent solicitation which is a vital follow-up to the primary solicitation by class agents. Because the House Fund involved personal regional calls by workers, it was felt that the Regional Agent campaign might introduce confusion and possibly reduce the effectiveness of both drives.

Thirteen classes achieved 100 per cent of their class quotas. These include 1912A, H. Gray Funkhouser, class agent; 1922A, Dewey Reynolds; 1925L, Clarence Hinkle; 1926L, Judge Earl Cadmus; 1937A, Everett A. Martin; 1937L, Edward E. Stover; 1938L, Samuel A. Martin; 1943A&L, A.B. Conley, Jr.; 1951A, Sam Hollis; 1952L, Thomas R. McNamara; 1956A, Charles R. Beall; 1960A, Richard J. Aberson; and 1964A, E. H. Hollman.

---

Contributions for the Alumni House Fund Campaign Continue to Come In

WITH THE ALUMNI HOUSE now a reality, housing the offices of Washington and Lee Alumni, Inc., and serving as a campus hospitality center for all visiting alumni, the end of the campaign for financial support of the House is in sight.

A final mailing is planned for all alumni who have not contributed to the House Fund thus far, so that everyone who wishes can have a final opportunity to be listed among the Washington and Lee men who helped make the fine new facility possible.

As of July 1, 1,466 contributors had given $72,000, with a substantial number of campaign workers still to report from among the various chapters. The chapter solicitations, around which the fund campaign was organized, were officially terminated on June 30.

Among the chapters, only one—the Mid-South Chapter at Memphis—realized 100 per cent of its announced goal. The Mid-South goal of $5,000 was the fourth highest among all of the chapters. Several chapters have nearly three-quarters of their goals subscribed.

The House Fund was conducted under the leadership of H. Graham Morison, '30L, of Washington, D. C., as national chairman, with assistance from ten regional vice-chairmen.

A full, final report on the House Fund is scheduled for a subsequent issue of the Alumni Magazine.

“CONTACT”

Current Issues, Controversial Participants Are Part of a New Student-Conducted Symposium That Is Now an Annual Event

By HOWARD EPSTEIN, '67, and JOHN GRAHAM, '67

A TUESDAY MORNING telephone call in the spring of 1964 assured the birth and subsequent success of Washington and Lee's first intellectual symposium on public issues—CONTACT.

Conceived and developed by students and approved by the Interfraternity Council, the plan lacked only official sanction from the University. On a Tuesday morning in March a telephone call to President Fred C. Cole, on business in Washington, obtained his approval, and CONTACT was born.

Each February CONTACT focuses upon an area of intellectual concern. To provide a view wider than the classroom, CONTACT sponsors a three-day series of lectures, seminars and panel discussions conducted by a number of outstanding visiting speakers with knowledge of or opinion on the topic under discussion.

The program aims at a certain unity, a fusing of diverse and sometimes contradictory positions espoused by the speakers. It stresses a broad spectrum of views rather than any particular philosophy.

Underwritten and financed solely by voluntary contributions by the Interfraternity Council, the student-initiated and managed forum has succeeded in capturing the respect and enthusiasm of both faculty and students. Professor of History, Dr. William A. Jenks, '39, has called the symposium, "the most promising evidence since World War II of student involvement in problems that truly matter. This year there was tremendous interest in the basic subject and in the provocative guests who appeared."

He concludes "... our own students can guarantee the kind of academic infusion Washington and Lee must have by support of CONTACT."

Blain Brownell, '65, of Birmingham, headed the 1965 CONTACT. Henry Quekemeyer, '65, of Roanoke and Phil Claxton, '67, of Washington, D.C., were assistant chairmen. Their first action was the selection of a national advisory council, led by Dean Acheson, Secretary of State from 1949 to 1953. Brownell also received significant aid from Dr. Marshall Fishwick, Philander P. Claxton, and Colonel Francis Pickens Miller, '14, of the State Department, and Dr. James W. Silver of the University of Mississippi. Colonel Miller, a Washington and Lee Rhodes Scholar and currently Foreign Affairs Officer in the Department of Cultural and Educational Affairs, and Dr. Silver also spoke at the forum.

The chairmen and advisors selected six speakers to convey varied viewpoints on the overall theme "The American Experience: Its Implications for the Individual Citizen, the American Nation and the World."

The opening speaker, James R. Echols, Cultural Affairs Advisor to the United States Information Agency, explained how the "American Image" is presented abroad. Silver, the author of Mississippi, the Closed Society, addressed the second session concerning the conditions in Mississippi and the general attitude toward civil rights in the South.

Philander Claxton, discussed the broad perspective of foreign policy, while Tom Wicker, the New York Times Washington Bureau Chief, pointed up the growing power of the American presidency and its implications. Presidential assistant Douglas Cater characterized Lyndon Johnson, the man, and elaborated on the Great Society.

On CONTACT's third day, Associate Editor of the Baltimore Sun, C. P. Ives, spoke on "Operation Un-check" and the breakdown of the system of checks and balances. Concluding the first CONTACT on a Sunday night, Colonel Miller discussed, "Americans Abroad and Their Tasks."

DR. JAMES W. SILVER drew large attendance at a Lee Chapel CONTACT assembly, above, and at a seminar session. Other 1965 speakers at left included, top to bottom, COL. FRANCIS PICKENS MILLER, '14; New York Times Washington correspondent THOMAS WICKER; and special presidential assistant DOUGLAS CATER.

Co-chairmen of the 1966 CONTACT were PHIL P. CLAXTON, III, left above, and ROGER SENNOT, lower left. Leaders for 1967 at right are STAFFORD KEEGIN and LARRY FELLMAN. Speakers for 1966 included author MICHAEL HARRINGTON, below center, and BERNARD E. NORWICH, below right, city planner.

Completion of the first symposium elicited considerable faculty and student comment. Dr. Jenks reflected that "Many faculty members who were not a part of the planning of the first year's program had initial doubts . . . In the course of the first sessions, we were quickly disabused of that concern and impressed by the first committee's astute use of its resources and of the advice that came its way . . . it was clear that there was sufficient interest for continuation of the project."

An editorial in the Ring-tum Phi, although critical of several weaknesses of the symposium, stated that "the planning and presentation of CONTACT deserves the applause of the entire University. Yet, the overall impact of the symposium leaves much to be desired."

CONTACT '66 set out to overcome these shortcomings. In response to the criticism that the first forum overemphasized political matters, new co-chairmen Roger Sennott, '66, and Phil Claxton chose to focus on the city and its problems—urban renewal, city planning, slum conditions, financial problems and racial strife. The co-chairmen selected as faculty advisors Dr. Edward L. Pinney, Political Science; Dr. Archibald Robertson, Law; Mr. John Gunn, Economics; Dr. Lewis Hodges, Religion, and Dr. Charles Turner, History.

In early December, prominent men in urban affairs were invited to speak on the February 10-12 weekend. Michael Harrington, a Norman Thomas socialist and author of The Other America, opened the program on a Thursday night with a criticism of present urban poverty programs. The former editor of Manhattan's social conscious Catholic Worker, Harrington challenged society to create, "a society in which everybody eats." The recent tax cut and poverty programs, he stressed, have failed to reach the families that need them.

Bernard E. Norwich, Director of Advertising and Public Relations for Reston, a planned community for 75,000 in Fairfax County, Virginia, examined the science of city planning. Norwich emphasized the problems of aesthetic beauty and functional efficiency in the first totally planned community in the United States. He supplemented his address with slides of Reston.

Urban personality was the subject of Professor of Social Philosophy Ernest Van den Haag of New York University on Friday evening. The frequent contributor to the National Review emphasized the evolution of the city dweller toward an anonymous existence. The city dweller's insatiable desire for excitement and inability to be excited, Van den Haag said, drives him to alcohol and drugs. Aggravating this problem, he pointed out, is the separation of business and residential areas.

Dr. Jay T. Wright, consulting psychologist from Pittsburgh, condemned higher education in society as the creator of conformity and mediocrity. He recommended that small colleges such as Washington and Lee should strive for a diversified faculty.

Sunday afternoon, Claude Brown, author of Manchild in The Promised Land, illustrated from first-hand experience, the disillusionment in Harlem. Not even, the "black bourgeoisie" comprehend the plight of the Negro in the ghetto, Brown declared. The Negro is "no longer willing to accept his situation passively," he said.

A student body poll taken the following Monday indicated overwhelming support for the symposium. Nearly 62 per cent of the students attended, and 83 per cent favored continuation. CONTACT had proven itself.

CONTACT for 1967, under the direction of Stafford W. Keegin, Law School, '68, Chairman, and W. Lawrence Fellman, Assistant Chairman, will examine some of the revolutionary forces caused by the rising expectations and discontinuity produced by a new affluency, witnessed not only by the citizens of the United States, but the World community as well. The scope of the program will be broad, bringing into focus some of the new hopes and disintegration of old patterns in the churches, education and the college campus, public morality, politics, both domestic and foreign, the arts, and the business community.

The first business of the new CONTACT Committee, however, was far more basic than the determination of a topic for the 1967 program. Because students themselves, through the IFC, are the sponsors of the program and no admission is charged for participation in the seminars and lectures, and because the CONTACT program for 1966 failed to break even financially, the committee set out to revamp its internal structure in order to be in compliance with the Internal Revenue Code sections on non-profit associations, thereby making all contributions by interested parties tax deductible. While the committee has not, as of this writing, received a ruling from IRS, they do not anticipate difficulty in this regard. Because of the overwhelming support of CONTACT on the campus and off, the committee is confident that the financial difficulties it now faces can be overcome and that CONTACT for 1967 will be as exciting an intellectual experience as it has been in the past.

Assistant Professor of Economics John M. Gunn, Jr., evaluated CONTACT as giving "a sense of reality to a student's work, to make it more vital, and to stimulate and inspire. CONTACT thereby has made a large addition to the collegiate experience at Washington and Lee."

Alumni Sons Among Those Earning PBK

Bill Washburn's Son and Cy Young's Grandson
Receive Coveted Keys

THE GRANDSON of a former alumni secretary and the son of the present alumni secretary were among three alumni sons who were selected for membership in Phi Beta Kappa in April.

M. Neely Young, II, '66, son of M. Neely Young, '43, of Richmond, and grandson of Harry K. "Cy" Young, '17, the University's alumni secretary for thirty-three years, was honored for academic achievement, as was William C. Washburn, Jr., '66, the son of the present alumni secretary, William C. Washburn, '40, who succeeded Young in 1958.

Another son of an alumnus, Charles G. Walker, III, '66, son of C. G. Walker, Jr., '40, of San Antonio, Tex, also was elected to membership in the national honorary society.

In all, twenty-two new members of Phi Beta Kappa were initiated in ceremonies on April 12. Included were three law students, fourteen seniors, four juniors, and one student participating in the 3-2 cooperative engineering program with Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.

Among the law students was Donald W. Huffman, remembered by many recent alumni as the owner of the College Town Shop in Lexington. Huffman has been a part-time student in the School of Law since 1961.

Speakers at the annual convocation in Lee Chapel for Phi Beta Kappa initiates was Dr. James S. Coles, president of Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me.

NEELY YOUNG, III, left, grandson of the former alumni secretary, CY YOUNG, '17, and WILLIAM C. WASHBURN, JR., son of the present alumni secretary, WILLIAM C. WASHBURN, '40, admire their new Phi Beta Kappa keys following their initiation into the national honorary fraternity.

Speaker at the annual Phi Beta Kappa Assembly in Lee Chapel was DR. JAMES S. COLES, president of Bowdoin College.

Another alumni son, CHARLES G. WALKER, III, son of CHARLES G. WALKER, JR., '40, of San Antonio, spoke for the new initiates at the Phi Beta Kappa banquet.

The Law School's former dean, PROF. CLAYTON E. WILLIAMS, '12, in the right foreground, has the attention of three of his former students prior to the 1966 Tucker Lecture. In the left fore is Tazewell attorney ALBERT G. PEERY, '32; behind him are Roanoke attorney EARL FITZPATRICK, '29, left, and Martinsville attorney STATE SENATOR WILLIAM F. STONE, '33.

Trustee Lewis F. Powell, Jr., '31L, Former ABA President, Delivers 1966 Tucker Lecture

CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE—the doctrine by which individuals claim the right to determine “just” laws from “unjust” laws—has come under the critical appraisal of the distinguished Washington and Lee law alumnus who headed the American Bar Association in 1964-65.

In delivering the 1966 John Randolph Tucker Lecture in Law in Lee Chapel on April 16, Lewis F. Powell, Jr., '29, called civil disobedience “a heresy which could weaken the foundations of our system of government under law.”

Powell was critical of lawyers who have remained silent in denouncing civil disobedience as “fundamentally inconsistent” with the rule of law.

“History has demonstrated that once a society condones organized defiance of law and due process, it becomes increasingly difficult to protect its institutions and to safeguard liberty,” he declared.

Said Powell, a member of the University's Board of Trustees, “There may be real doubt whether the forces and passions already set in motion can be reversed short of grave damage to basic values of a free society.”

LEWIS F. POWELL, JR., '31L

Powell addressed an audience of several hundred law students, law alumni, and guests in a noon assembly. The Tucker Lecture coincided with the School of Law's observance of Law Day and the annual meeting of the Law School Association.

Fred M. Vinson, Jr., '51, of Washington, D. C., was elected to succeed Willis M. Anderson, '52, of Roanoke, as president of the association. Other officers chosen include Thomas R. McNamara, '52, of Norfolk, vice-president; Robert E. R. Huntley, '50, secretary-treasurer; and Miss Louise Moore, assistant secretary-treasurer. Andrew M. McThenia, Jr., '58, of Alexandria, was elected to the association's council.

Three Alumni Are Tapped for ODK

WASHINGTON AND LEE'S Alpha Circle of Omicron Delta Kappa honored three alumni in March at its annual "tap day" assembly.

Chosen were A. Linwood Holton, '44, Roanoke attorney and the Republican gubernatorial candidate in Virginia in 1965; Roger H. Mudd, '50, well-known television correspondent for CBS News; and Col. Charles R. Stribling, Jr., '17, superintendent of the Missouri Military Academy in Mexico, Mo.

Also chosen for membership, in addition to twenty student initiates, was Dr. Charles F. Phillips, president of Bates College, Lewiston, Me., who delivered the ODK convocation address.

Dr. Phillips, a noted economist and the father of Washington and Lee's associate professor of economics, Dr. C. F. Phillips, Jr., talked about the nation's economic strength in his address. He called for further tax reductions as a boost to economic growth.

While unsuccessful in his bid for the Virginia governorship, Holton polled more than 200,000 votes in opposition to the Democratic party "Byrd machine."

Mudd has risen to the forefront in CBS News' organization serving as an anchor man for the Democratic National Convention in 1964 and in subsequent key roles as a TV newsman.

Colonel Stribling has been president of Missouri Military Academy since 1933. He has won recognition as an outstanding civic leader, and he served with distinction in two World Wars.

Above, COL. CHARLES R. STRIBLING, JR., '17. At left, A. LINWOOD HOLTON, JR., '44, left, and DR. CHARLES F. PHILLIPS read of their new ODK membership in the student newspaper. Below left, the nationally familiar ROGER H. MUDD, '50; and below right, DR. PHILLIPS in one of many characteristic speaking gestures.

THE SOUTHERN COLLEGIAN—whose origin dates from General Lee's administration a century ago—is apparently through as an officially-sanctioned student publication at Washington and Lee.

Without a dissenting voice, the faculty endorsed a resolution at its March meeting in which it opposed "continuation of the payment of funds from the comprehensive tuition fee to support the Southern Collegian."

The faculty action stemmed from a recommendation from the University's Self-Study Committee which cited the magazine's poor taste in content, the embarrassment suffered by the University as a result, and the committee's opinion that the magazine served no useful educational purpose.

Student reaction, as expressed in the Ring-tum Phi, was indignant, charging the faculty, administration, and Self-Study committee with a "sneak attack" upon student tradition without proper consultation or notification. The student body executive committee gave its official support to a Publications Board request of President Cole to delay action on the faculty resolution until students could present arguments why the magazine should continue to receive University funds.

Reacting to the student petitions and resolutions, President Cole referred the matter to the newly-created Student Affairs Committee—itsself an outgrowth of the two-year Self-Study process—for its study and recommendation. The ten-man Committee, which includes four students as voting members, recommended that the faculty permit the president of the Publications Board to appear before the faculty to argue the merits of continued Southern Collegian support. The committee also recommended that the Library make available back issues of the magazine for faculty perusal.

The faculty agreed, and at its

May meeting, senior Drew Baur, a former editor of the Southern Collegian and current Publications Board president, presented the magazine's case. He said the faculty's action had come just at a time when the Publications Board itself was going to study the Southern Collegian, and he promised a new look in the magazine with a heavy emphasis on satire in the future. And, he said, compared with humor magazines at other schools, the Collegian wasn't so bad.

Many professors said they were impressed by the way in which Baur made his presentation, but as a group they were unimpressed by his arguments. Although no further action was necessary for the faculty, it was moved that the faculty go on record with an emphatic reaffirmation of its previous March resolution. Baur apparently had persuaded one person, for in the vote on this motion, there was one dissenting nay.

The Collegian Loses Its University Endorsement

Initial student charges of faculty-administration subterfuge and secrecy proved difficult to support, including the allegation that the Self-Study Committee had failed to seek student opinion on the Southern Collegian.

Throughout the 1965-66 school year a series of open meetings were conducted by the Self-Study Committee to elicit faculty and student comment and question on all phases of University activity. Separate meetings for faculty and students were held for each phase of the Self-Study process, with student publications introduced in the section on student life, one of the lengthiest and most comprehensive of the Self-Study projects.

Prior to each meeting, a summary of the content and scope of the Self-Study in a given area was circulated to every faculty member, to members of the student body executive committee, to fraternity presidents, and the editors of the Ring-tum Phi. Copies were made available through the Self-Study office to any student who wanted one.

The summary distributed on student life included this mention of the Southern Collegian in the form of questions which had arisen in the Self-Study Committee and the committee's preliminary reaction:

"Can Washington and Lee afford the luxury of a subsidized humor magazine?"

"Does the Southern Collegian serve any educational purpose to justify its forced subscription by all enrolled students?"

"Should Washington and Lee remove its sponsorship of this publication?"

"The Faculty Advisory Committee should study whether the value of this publication justifies its cost. If it is determined that Washington and Lee should remove its sponsorship of the Southern Collegian, the best means of accomplishing this objective should be ascertained (withholding of funds?) and recommendations made to the President for possible presentation to the Board of Trustees."

Prior to the meeting conducted by Assistant Dean of Students Lewis G. John, '58, an editorial appeared in the Ring-tum Phi under the title "A Lament: Traditional Apathy." The editorial commented on the lack of student attendance at previous Self-Study open sessions on the College and the School of Commerce and Administration. It mentioned the Self-Study Committee's disappointment in the student attendance (just one student attended the hearing on the College and its entire academic program). Said the editorial:

"This afternoon and tomorrow evening the report to students on the progress of the Self-Study section on student life will be presented in Newcomb Hall. This report deals with student government, publications, athletics, discipline, and several other topics pertaining to student life at Washington and Lee. Dean John, analyst for this section, will be available not only at these public meetings but also for individual discussion of the report.

"Quite obviously the student life discussions are potentially the most appealing meetings, but it is doubtful if the attendance will undergo any significant change. The Ring-tum Phi, however, wishes to urge students to take part in these meetings for the simple reason that the faculty may not provide similar outlets for student opinion in the future. We will agree with the faculty's present feeling that the student response thus far does not warrant continued effort in this area. In spite of this disenchantment with attendance, the meetings are continuing, and more will be scheduled following the holidays. Certainly our obligation to the University requires firm support of this program."

The upshot of this urging by the student newspaper was that no students attended the first student open session, and four showed up for the second. The possible demise of the Southern Collegian was discussed, but Dean John reported to the Self-Study committee that no particular objection was raised by the four students, and that interest centered on whether funds withdrawn from the Collegian could be applied to Ariel, an independent student literary magazine.

Actually, the Southern Collegian has been under increasing criticism—including student criticism—for far longer than the two-year course of the Self-Study. With the publication of each issue the President's office and the Dean of Students would receive letters of protest from parents of students and from the parents of students' dates, criticizing the University for permitting such a magazine to be published. Faculty dissatisfaction with the magazine was widespread and vocal.

In March, 1964, Dean of Students Edward C. Atwood appealed to the president of the student body to introduce a resolution before the Executive Committee that would remove the Southern Collegian from the support of the Student Body Fund. A similar resolution was presented to the Executive Committee by a student, acting independently of Dean Atwood.

Financial support of the Collegian at that time involved the student body constitution and the right of the EC to allocate funds for various publications. As it turned out, the EC ruled that it could not act on the Collegian without a student referendum, and the matter never came to a vote.

Meanwhile, Dean Atwood continued to seek some way to remove University endorsement and support of the magazine through the student activities fee, a charge made of all students and turned over to the Student Body Fund. According to Dean Atwood, he would meet with each new editor of the Southern Collegian and warn him point blank that he was going to try to get rid of the magazine.

The problem of the Southern Collegian came up early in the Self-Study and was discussed at length. Then in 1965-66, the University's Board of Trustees authorized the adoption of a comprehensive tuition fee that would eliminate the student activities fee as a separate charge. The Student Body Fund would continue to receive University support, but this support would be given on the basis of submitted budgets for each activity. This, in the view of the Self-Study Committee, provided the means by which support of the Southern Collegian could be withdrawn without conflict with the student body constitution. The Committee approved a recommendation calling for faculty action that would end official recognition of the Southern Collegian and bring about the withdrawal of financial support.

The Southern Collegian is expected to continue as a student publication, but it won't have help from the University. In the past the University subsidy has made up about half of the $3,000 annual costs of publication. The magazine will have to depend on subscriptions and advertising, and its future is doubtful.

The magazine is no longer printed on campus in the Journalism Laboratory Press, and one commercial printer produced just one issue last year before disassociating itself with the magazine on the basis of its content and emphasis.

For many alumni and faculty members, the decline of the Collegian is regrettable for it once was an excellent outlet for student talent. Even though specific issues in the past would occasionally be banned by the Publications Board, there was cleverness in its humor and imagination in its content.

Many students say they still think the Collegian is great and that it will thrive independently. But at least some students and many others share the view of one senior who wrote in the Ring-tum Phi at the height of the controversy last March:

"Let's admit it, the Southern Collegian is garbage."

*Some Comments on the Special Supplement
And Its Relevance
To Washington and Lee University*

THE PAGES THAT FOLLOW are a comprehensive commentary on an impressive and significant development that is taking place generally across our nation, one that is being felt most particularly on the college campuses of America.

This development is simply change.

Recognizably, change is inevitable. Indeed, it would be distressing for changes not to take place. And when change comes to a college or university, its accomplishment often brings the passing of many attitudes, practices, and traditions that are held most warmly in the hearts of loyal alumni.

Today's climate of change does not affect every college or university in the same way, but all are affected one way or another. The article and views presented here offer a remarkably full conception of what is happening on the college campuses today. It is an article that can be read with benefit by every member of a college family—trustees, faculty, students, and, perhaps most particularly, alumni, who are generally the most removed from the scene of actual campus change.

The undersigned editors and member of the Alumni Magazine editorial board urge every alumnus to read this article. But one comment is pertinent and demanded:

The trend of change here presented is felt at Washington and Lee, although not every aspect of change mentioned in the article has manifested itself at our University. Change has come to Washington and Lee in many forms, and it will continue to come, as it should. It has not been change for the sake of change, but necessary adjustment required if Washington and Lee is even to keep pace with progress in American higher education, let alone exert a degree of leadership.

Not all of us will agree as to the desirability of specific changes, nor perhaps to the direction of general change. Some of us, with justification, genuinely regret the passing of certain customs and traditions that are unchanging in their importance to us and our memories of Washington and Lee.

But if each alumnus could return to this campus, and spend time enough here to become wholly familiar with the Washington and Lee of 1966, to understand its special problems, its challenges, and its opportunities, then we believe he would agree that our University is a far better, a far stronger institution than it has ever been before in its 217 years of existence.

And above all, he would agree—you would agree—that there are some vital characteristics of the University that have not changed, and hopefully will never change. Personal honor and integrity, the dignity of every individual, a concern for every student and professor as a unique and sensitive person—these eternal verities still abide.

WILLIAM C. WASHBURN, '40, Editor

FRANK A. PARSONS, '54, Managing Editor

FRANK J. GILLIAM, '17, Member of the Editorial Board

*No memory of Alma Mater older than a year or so is likely to bear much resemblance to today's college or university.
Which, in our fast-moving society, is precisely as it should be,
if higher education is . . .*

To Keep Pace with America

W

HAT ON EARTH is going on, there?

Across the land, alumni and alumnae are asking that question about their alma maters. Most of America's colleges and universities are changing rapidly, and some of them drastically. Alumni and alumnae, taught for years to be loyal to good OLD Siwash and to be sentimental about its history and traditions, are puzzled or outraged.

And they are not the only ones making anguished responses to the new developments on the nation's campuses.

From a student in Texas: "The professors care less and less about teaching. They don't grade our papers or exams any more, and they turn over the discussion sections of their classes to graduate students. Why can't we have mind-to-mind combat?"

From a university administrator in Michigan: "The faculty and students treat this place more like a bus terminal every year. They come and go as they never did before."

From a professor at a college in Pennsylvania: "The present crop of students? They're the brightest ever. They're also the most arrogant, cynical, disrespectful, ungrateful, and intense group I've taught in 30 years."

From a student in Ohio: "The whole bit on this campus now is about 'the needs of society,' 'the needs of the international situation,' 'the needs of the IBM system.' What about my needs?"

From the dean of a college in Massachusetts: "Everything historic and sacred, everything built by 2,000 years of civilization, suddenly seems old hat. Wisdom now consists in being up-to-the-minute."

From a professor in New Jersey: "So help me, I only have time to read about 10 books a year, now. I'm always behind."

From a professor at a college for women in Virginia: "What's happening to good manners? And good taste? And decent dress? Are we entering a new age of the slob?"

From a trustee of a university in Rhode Island: "They all want us to care for and support our institution, when they themselves don't give a hoot."

From an alumna of a college in California: "No one seems to have time for friendship, good humor, and fun, now. The students don't even sing, any more. Why, most of them don't know the college songs."

What is happening at America's colleges and universities to cause such comments?

Today's colleges and universities:

IT BEGAN around 1950—silently, unnoticed. The signs were little ones, seemingly unconnected. Suddenly the number of books published began to soar. That year Congress established a National Science Foundation to promote scientific progress through education and basic research. College enrollments, swollen by returned war veterans with G.I. Bill benefits, refused to return to “normal”; instead, they began to rise sharply. Industry began to expand its research facilities significantly, raiding the colleges and graduate schools for brainy talent. Faculty salaries, at their lowest since the 1930's in terms of real income, began to inch up at the leading colleges. China, the most populous nation in the world, fell to the Communists, only a short time after several Eastern European nations were seized by Communist coups d'état; and, aided by support from several philanthropic foundations, there was a rush to study Communism, military problems and weapons, the Orient, and underdeveloped countries.

Now, 15 years later, we have begun to comprehend what started then. The United States, locked in a Cold War that may drag on for half a century, has entered a new era of rapid and unrelenting change. The nation continues to enjoy many of the benefits of peace, but it is forced to adopt much of the urgency and pressure of wartime. To meet the bold challenges from outside, Americans have had to transform many of their nation's habits and institutions.

The biggest change has been in the rate of change itself.

Life has always changed. But never in the history of the world has it changed with such rapidity as it does now. Scientist J. Robert Oppenheimer recently observed: “One thing that is new is the prevalence of newness, the changing scale and scope of change itself, so that the world alters as we walk in it, so that the years of a man's life measure not some small growth or rearrangement or modification of what he learned in childhood, but a great upheaval.”

Psychiatrist Erik Erikson has put it thus: “Today, men over 50 owe their identity as individuals, as citizens, and as professional workers to a period when change had a different quality and when a dominant view of the world was one of a one-way extension into a future of prosperity, progress, and reason. If they rebelled, they did so against details of this firm trend and often only for the sake of what they thought were even firmer ones. They learned to respond to the periodic challenge of war and revolution by reasserting the interrupted trend toward normalcy. What has changed in the meantime is, above all, the character of change itself.”

This new pace of change, which is not likely to slow down soon, has begun to affect every facet of American life. In our vocabulary, people now speak of being “on the move,” of “running around,” and of “go, go, go.” In our politics, we are witnessing a major realignment of the two-party system. Editor Max Ways of Fortune magazine has said, “Most American political and social issues today arise out of a concern over the pace and quality of change.” In our morality, many are becoming more “cool,” or uncommitted. If life changes swiftly, many think it wise not to get too attached or devoted to any particular set of beliefs or hierarchy of values.

busy faculties, serious students, and hard courses

Of all American institutions, that which is most profoundly affected by the new tempo of radical change is the school. And, although all levels of schooling are feeling the pressure to change, those probably feeling it the most are our colleges and universities.

AT THE HEART of America's shift to a new life of constant change is a revolution in the role and nature of higher education. Increasingly, all of us live in a society shaped by our colleges and universities.

From the campuses has come the expertise to travel to the moon, to crack the genetic code, and to develop computers that calculate as fast as light. From the campuses has come new information about Africa's resources, Latin-American economics, and Oriental politics. In the past 15 years, college and university scholars have produced a dozen or more accurate translations of the Bible, more than were produced in the past 15 centuries. University researchers have helped virtually to wipe out three of the nation's worst diseases: malaria, tuberculosis, and polio. The chief work in art and music, outside of a few large cities, is now being done in our colleges and universities. And profound concern for the U.S. racial situation, for U.S. foreign policy, for the problems of increasing urbanism, and for new religious forms is now being expressed by students and professors inside the academies of higher learning.

As American colleges and universities have been instrumental in creating a new world of whirlwind change, so have they themselves been subjected to unprecedented pressures to change. They are different places from what they were 15 years ago—in some cases almost unrecognizably different. The faculties are busier, the students more serious, and the courses harder. The campuses gleam with new buildings. While the shady-grove and paneled-library colleges used to spend nearly all of their time teaching the young, they have now been burdened with an array of new duties.

Clark Kerr, president of the University of California, has put the new situation succinctly: "The university has become a prime instrument of national purpose. This is new. This is the essence of the transformation now engulfing our universities."

The colleges have always assisted the national purpose by helping to produce better clergymen, farmers, lawyers, businessmen, doctors, and teachers. Through athletics, through religious and moral guidance, and through fairly demanding academic work, particularly in history and literature, the colleges have helped to keep a sizable portion of the men who have ruled America rugged, reasonably upright and public-spirited, and informed and sensible. The problem of an effete, selfish, or ignorant upper class that plagues certain other nations has largely been avoided in the United States.

But never before have the colleges and universities been expected to fulfill so many dreams and projects of the American people. Will we outdistance the Russians in the space race? It depends on the caliber of scientists and engineers that our universities produce. Will we find a cure for cancer, for arthritis, for the common cold? It depends upon the faculties and the graduates of our medical schools. Will we stop the Chinese drive for world dominion? It depends heavily on the political experts the universities turn out and on the military weapons that university research helps develop. Will we be able to maintain our high standard of living and to avoid depressions? It depends upon whether the universities can supply business and government with inventive, imaginative, farsighted persons and ideas. Will we be able to keep human values alive in our machine-filled world? Look to college philosophers and poets. Everyone, it seems—from the impoverished but aspiring Negro to the mother who wants her children to be emotionally healthy—sees the college and the university as a deliverer, today.

Thus it is no exaggeration to say that colleges and universities have become one of our greatest resources in the cold war, and one of our greatest assets in the uncertain peace. America's schools have taken a new place at the center of society. Ernest Sirluck, dean of graduate studies at the University of Toronto, has said: "The calamities of recent history have undermined the prestige and authority of what used to be the great central institutions of society. . . . Many people have turned to the universities . . . in the hope of finding, through them, a renewed or substitute authority in life."

THE NEW PRESSURES to serve the nation in an ever-expanding variety of ways have wrought a stunning transformation in most American colleges and universities.

For one thing, they look different, compared with 15 years ago. Since 1950, American colleges and universities have spent about $16.5 billion on new buildings. One third of the entire higher education plant in the United States is less than 15 years old. More than 180 completely new campuses are now being built or planned.

Scarcely a college has not added at least one building to its plant; most have added three, four, or more. (Science buildings, libraries, and dormitories have been the most desperately needed additions.) Their architecture and placement have moved some alumni and students to howls of protest, and others to expressions of awe and delight.

New responsibilities are transforming once-quiet campuses

The new construction is required largely because of the startling growth in the number of young people wanting to go to college. In 1950, there were about 2.2 million undergraduates, or roughly 18 percent of all Americans between 18 and 21 years of age. This academic year, 1965-66, there are about 5.4 million undergraduates—a whopping 30 percent of the 18-21 age group.* The total number of college students in the United States has more than doubled in a mere decade and a half.

As two officials of the American Council on Education pointed out, not long ago: "It is apparent that a permanent revolution in collegiate patterns has occurred, and that higher education has become and will continue to be the common training ground for American adult life, rather than the province of a small, select portion of society."

Of today's 5.4 million undergraduates, one in every five attends a kind of college that barely existed before World War II—the junior, or community, college. Such colleges now comprise nearly one third of America's 2,200 institutions of higher education. In California, where community colleges have become an integral part of the higher education scene, 84 of every 100 freshmen and sophomores last year were enrolled in this kind of institution. By 1975, estimates the U.S. Office of Education, one in every two students, nationally, will attend a two-year college.

Graduate schools are growing almost as fast.

*The percentage is sometimes quoted as being much higher because it is assumed that nearly all undergraduates are in the 18-21 bracket. Actually only 68 percent of all college students are in that age category. Three percent are under 18; 29 percent are over 21.

Higher education's patterns are changing; so are its leaders

While only 11 percent of America's college graduates went on to graduate work in 1950, about 25 percent will do so after their commencement in 1966. At one institution, over 85 percent of the recipients of bachelor's degrees now continue their education at graduate and professional schools. Some institutions, once regarded primarily as undergraduate schools, now have more graduate students than undergraduates. Across America, another phenomenon has occurred: numerous state colleges have added graduate schools and become universities.

There are also dramatic shifts taking place among the various kinds of colleges. It is often forgotten that 877, or 40 percent, of America's colleges and universities are related, in one way or another, with religious denominations (Protestant, 484; Catholic, 366; others, 27). But the percentage of the nation's students that the church-related institutions enroll has been dropping fast; last year they had 950,000 undergraduates, or only 18 percent of the total. Sixty-nine of the church-related colleges have fewer than 100 students. Twenty percent lack accreditation, and another 30 percent are considered to be academically marginal. Partially this is because they have been unable to find adequate financial support. A Danforth Foundation commission on church colleges and universities noted last spring: "The irresponsibility of American churches in providing for their institutions is deplorable. The average contribution of churches to their colleges is only 12.8 percent of their operating budgets."

Church-related colleges have had to contend with a growing secularization in American life, with the increasing difficulty of locating scholars with a religious commitment, and with bad planning from their sponsoring church groups. About planning, the Danforth Commission report observed: "No one can justify the operation of four Presbyterian colleges in Iowa, three Methodist colleges in Indiana, five United Presbyterian institutions in Missouri, nine Methodist colleges in North Carolina (including two brand new ones), and three Roman Catholic colleges for women in Milwaukee."

Another important shift among the colleges is the changing position of private institutions, as public institutions grow in size and number at a much faster rate. In 1950, 50 percent of all students were enrolled in private colleges; this year, the private colleges' share is only 33 percent. By 1975, fewer than 25 percent of all students are expected to be enrolled in the non-public colleges and universities.

Other changes are evident: More and more students prefer urban colleges and universities to rural ones; now, for example, with more than 400,000 students in her colleges and universities, America's greatest college town is metropolitan New York. Coeducation is gaining in relation to the all-men's and the all-women's colleges. And many predominantly Negro colleges have begun to worry about their future. The best Negro students are sought after by many leading colleges and universities, and each year more and more Negroes enroll at integrated institutions. Precise figures are hard to come by, but 15 years ago there were roughly 120,000 Negroes in college, 70 percent of them in predominantly Negro institutions; last year, according to Whitney Young, Jr., executive director of the National Urban League, there were 220,000 Negroes in college, but only 40 percent at predominantly Negro institutions.

THE REMARKABLE GROWTH in the number of students going to college and the shifting patterns of college attendance have had great impact on the administrators of the colleges and universities. They have become, at many institutions, a new breed of men.

Not too long ago, many college and university presidents taught a course or two, wrote important papers on higher education as well as articles and books in their fields of scholarship, knew most of the faculty intimately, attended alumni reunions, and spoke with heartiness and wit at student dinners, Rotary meetings, and football rallies. Now many presidents are preoccupied with planning their schools' growth and with the crushing job of finding the funds to make such growth possible.

Many a college or university president today is, above all else, a fund-raiser. If he is head of a private institution, he spends great amounts of time searching for individual and corporate donors; if he leads a public institution, he adds the task of legislative relations, for it is from the legislature that the bulk of his financial support must come.

With much of the rest of his time, he is involved in economic planning, architectural design, personnel recruitment for his faculty and staff, and curriculum changes. (Curriculums have been changing almost as substantially as the physical facilities, because the explosion in knowledge has been as sizable as the explosion in college admissions. Whole new fields such as biophysics and mathematical economics have sprung up; traditional fields have expanded to include new topics such as comparative ethnic music and the history of film; and topics that once were touched on lightly, such as Oriental studies or oceanography, now require extended treatment.)

To cope with his vastly enlarged duties, the modern college or university president has often had to double or triple his administrative staff since 1950. Positions that never existed before at most institutions, such as campus architects, computer programmers, government liaison officials, and deans of financial aid, have sprung up. The number of institutions holding membership in the American College Public Relations Association, to cite only one example, has risen from 591 in 1950 to more than 1,000 this year—including nearly 3,000 individual workers in the public relations and fund-raising field.

Many professors are research-minded specialists

A whole new profession, that of the college “development officer,” has virtually been created in the past 15 years to help the president, who is usually a transplanted scholar, with the twin problems of institutional growth and fund-raising. According to Eldredge Hiller, executive director of the American Association of Fund-Raising Counsel, “In 1950 very few colleges and universities, except those in the Ivy League and scattered wealthy institutions, had directors or vice presidents of development. Now there are very few institutions of higher learning that do not.” In addition, many schools that have been faced with the necessity of special development projects or huge capital campaigns have sought expertise and temporary personnel from outside development consultants. The number of major firms in this field has increased from 10 to 26 since 1950, and virtually every firm’s staff has grown dramatically over the years.

Many alumni, faculty members, and students who have watched the president’s suite of offices expand have decried the “growing bureaucracy.” What was once “old President Doe” is now “The Administration,” assailed on all sides as a driving, impersonal, remote organization whose purposes and procedures are largely alien to the traditional world of academe.

No doubt there is some truth to such charges. In their pursuit of dollars to raise faculty salaries and to pay for better facilities, a number of top officials at America’s colleges and universities have had insufficient time for educational problems, and some have been more concerned with business efficiency than with producing intelligent, sensible human beings. However, no one has yet suggested how “prexy” can be his old, sweet, leisurely, scholarly self and also a dynamic, farsighted administrator who can successfully meet the new challenges of unprecedented, radical, and constant change.

One president in the Midwest recently said: “The engineering faculty wants a nuclear reactor. The arts faculty needs a new theater. The students want new dormitories and a bigger psychiatric consulting office. The alumni want a better faculty and a new gymnasium. And they all expect me to produce these out of a single office with one secretary and a small filing cabinet, while maintaining friendly contacts with them all. I need a magic lantern.”

Another president, at a small college in New England, said: “The faculty and students claim they don’t see much of me any more. Some have become vituperative and others have wondered if I really still care about them and the learning process. I was a teacher for 18 years. I miss them—and my scholarly work—terribly.”

THE ROLE AND PACE of the professors have changed almost as much as the administrators’, if not more, in the new period of rapid growth and radical change.

For the most part, scholars are no longer regarded as ivory-tower dreamers, divorced from society. They are now important, even indispensable, men and women, holding keys to international security, economic growth, better health, and cultural excellence. For the first time in decades, most of their salaries are approaching respectability. (The national average of faculty salaries has risen from $5,311 in 1950 to $9,317 in 1965, according to a survey conducted by the American Association of University Professors.) The best of them are pursued by business, government, and other colleges. They travel frequently to speak at national conferences on modern music or contemporary urban problems, and to international conferences on particle physics or literature.

In the classroom, they are seldom the professors of the past: the witty, cultured gentlemen and ladies—or tedious pedants—who know Greek, Latin, French, literature, art, music, and history fairly well. They are now earnest, expert specialists who know algebraic geometry or international monetary economics—and not much more than that—exceedingly well. Sensing America's needs, a growing number of them are attracted to research, and many prefer it to teaching. And those who are not attracted are often pushed by an academic "rating system" which, in effect, gives its highest rewards and promotions to people who conduct research and write about the results they achieve. "Publish or perish" is the professors' succinct, if somewhat overstated, way of describing how the system operates.

Since many of the scholars—and especially the youngest instructors—are more dedicated and "focused" than their predecessors of yesteryear, the allegiance of professors has to a large degree shifted from their college and university to their academic discipline. A radio-astronomer first, a Siwash professor second, might be a fair way of putting it.

There is much talk about giving control of the universities back to the faculties, but there are strong indications that, when the opportunity is offered, the faculty members don't want it. Academic decision-making involves committee work, elaborate investigations, and lengthy deliberations—time away from their laboratories and books. Besides, many professors fully expect to move soon, to another college or to industry or government, so why bother about the curriculum or rules of student conduct? Then, too, some of them plead an inability to take part in broad decision-making since they are expert in only one limited area. "I'm a geologist," said one professor in the West. "What would I know about admissions policies or student demonstrations?"

Professors have had to narrow their scholarly interests chiefly because knowledge has advanced to a point where it is no longer possible to master more than a tiny portion of it. Physicist Randall Whaley, who is now chancellor of the University of Missouri at Kansas City, has observed: "There is about 100 times as much to know now as was available in 1900. By the year 2000, there will be over 1,000 times as much." (Since 1950 the number of scholarly periodicals has increased from 45,000 to 95,000. In science alone, 55,000 journals, 60,000 books, and 100,000 research monographs are published annually.) In such a situation, fragmentation seems inevitable.

Probably the most frequently heard cry about professors nowadays, even at the smaller colleges, is that they are so research-happy that they neglect teaching. "Our present universities have ceased to be schools," one graduate student complained in the Harvard Educational Review last spring. Similar charges have stirred pulses at American colleges and universities coast to coast, for the past few years.

No one can dispute the assertion that research has grown. The fact is, it has been getting more and more attention since the end of the Nineteenth Century, when several of America's leading universities tried to break away from the English college tradition of training clergymen and gentlemen, primarily through the classics, and to move toward the German university tradition of rigorous scholarship and scientific inquiry. But research has proceeded at runaway speed since 1950, when the Federal Government, for military, political, economic, and public-health reasons, decided to support scientific and technological research in a major way. In 1951 the Federal Government spent $295 million in the colleges and universities for research and development. By 1965 that figure had grown to $1.7 billion. During the same period, private philanthropic foundations also increased their support substantially.

At bottom, the new emphasis on research is due to the university's becoming "a prime instrument of national purpose," one of the nation's chief means of maintaining supremacy in a long-haul cold war. The emphasis is not likely to be lessened. And more and more colleges and universities will feel its effects.

BUT WHAT ABOUT education—the teaching of young people—that has traditionally been the basic aim of our institutions of higher learning?

Many scholars contend, as one university president put it, that "current research commitments are far more of a positive aid than a detriment to teaching," because they keep teachers vital and at the forefront of knowledge. "No one engaged in research in his field is going to read decade-old lecture notes to his class, as many of the so-called 'great professors' of yesterday did," said a teacher at a university in Wisconsin.

The push to do research: Does it affect teaching?

Others, however, see grave problems resulting from the great emphasis on research. For one thing, they argue, research causes professors to spend less time with students. It also introduces a disturbing note of competitiveness among the faculty. One physicist has put it this way:

"I think my professional field of physics is getting too hectic, too overcrowded; there is too much pressure for my taste. . . . Research is done under tremendous pressure because there are so many people after the same problem that one cannot afford to relax. If you are working on something which 10 other groups are working on at the same time, and you take a week's vacation, the others beat you and publish first. So it is a mad race."

Heavy research, others argue, may cause professors to concentrate narrowly on their discipline and to see their students largely in relation to it alone. Numerous observers have pointed to the professors' shift to more demanding instruction, but also to their more technical, pedantic teaching. They say the emphasis in teaching may be moving from broad understanding to factual knowledge, from community and world problems to each discipline's tasks, from the releasing of young people's minds to the cramming of their minds with the stuff of each subject. A professor in Louisiana has said, "In modern college teaching there is much more of the 'how' than the 'why.' Values and fundamentals are too interdisciplinary."

And, say the critics, research focuses attention on the new, on the frontiers of knowledge, and tends to forget the history of a subject or the tradition of intellectual inquiry. This has wrought havoc with liberal arts education, which seeks to introduce young people to the modes, the achievements, the consequences, and the difficulties of intellectual inquiry in Western civilization. Professor Maure Goldschmidt, of Oregon's Reed College, has said:

DRAWINGS BY ARNO STERNGLASS

"The job of a liberal arts college is to pass on the heritage, not to push the frontiers. Once you get into the competitive research market, the demands become incompatible with good teaching."

Another professor, at a university in Florida, has said:

"Our colleges are supposed to train intelligent citizens who will use knowledge wisely, not just intellectual drones. To do this, the colleges must convey to students a sense of where we've come from, where we are now, and where we are going—as well as what it all means—and not just inform them of the current problems of research in each field."

Somewhat despairingly, Professor Jacques Barzun recently wrote:

“Nowadays the only true believers in the liberal arts tradition are the men of business. They really prefer general intelligence, literacy, and adaptability. They know, in the first place, that the conditions of their work change so rapidly that no college courses can prepare for them. And they also know how often men in mid-career suddenly feel that their work is not enough to sustain their spirits.”

Many college and university teachers readily admit that they may have neglected, more than they should, the main job of educating the young. But they just as readily point out that their role is changing, that the rate of accumulation of knowledge is accelerating madly, and that they are extremely busy and divided individuals. They also note that it is through research that more money, glory, prestige, and promotions are best attained in their profession.

For some scholars, research is also where the highest excitement and promise in education are to be found. “With knowledge increasing so rapidly, research is the only way to assure a teacher that he is keeping ahead, that he is aware of the really new and important things in his field, that he can be an effective teacher of the next generation,” says one advocate of research-cum-instruction. And, for some, research is the best way they know to serve the nation. “Aren’t new ideas, more information, and new discoveries most important to the United States if we are to remain free and prosperous?” asks a professor in the Southwest. “We’re in a protracted war with nations that have sworn to bury us.”

THE STUDENTS, of course, are perplexed by the new academic scene.

They arrive at college having read the catalogues and brochures with their decade-old paragraphs about “the importance of each individual” and “the many student-faculty relationships”—and having heard from alumni some rosy stories about the leisurely, friendly, pre-war days at Quadrangle U. On some campuses, the reality almost lives up to the expectations. But on others, the students are dismayed to discover that they are treated as merely parts of another class (unless they are geniuses, star athletes, or troublemakers), and that the faculty and deans are extremely busy. For administrators, faculty, and alumni, at least, accommodating to the new world of radical change has been an evolutionary process, to which they have had a chance to adjust somewhat gradually; to the students, arriving fresh each year, it comes as a severe shock.

The students react to "the system" with fierce independence

Forced to look after themselves and gather broad understanding outside of their classes, they form their own community life, with their own values and methods of self-discovery. Piqued by apparent adult indifference and cut off from regular contacts with grown-up dilemmas, they tend to become more outspoken, more irresponsible, more independent. Since the amount of financial aid for students has tripled since 1950, and since the current condition of American society is one of affluence, many students can be independent in expensive ways: twist parties in Florida, exotic cars, and huge record collections. They tend to become more sophisticated about those things that they are left to deal with on their own: travel, religion, recreation, sex, politics.

Partly as a reaction to what they consider to be adult dedication to narrow, selfish pursuits, and partly in imitation of their professors, they have become more international-minded and socially conscious. Possibly one in 10 students in some colleges works off-campus in community service projects—tutoring the poor, fixing up slum dwellings, or singing and acting for local charities. To the consternation of many adults, some students have become a force for social change, far away from their colleges, through the Peace Corps in Bolivia or a picket line in another state. Pressured to be brighter than any previous generation, they fight to feel as useful as any previous generation. A student from Iowa said: "I don't want to study, study, study, just to fill a hole in some government or industrial bureaucracy."

The students want to work out a new style of academic life, just as administrators and faculty members are doing; but they don't know quite how, as yet. They are burying the rah-rah stuff, but what is to take its place? They protest vociferously against whatever they don't like, but they have no program of reform. Restless, an increasing number of them change colleges at least once during their undergraduate careers. They are like the two characters in Jack Kerouac's On the Road. "We got to go and never stop till we get there," says one. "Where are we going, man?" asks the other. "I don't know, but we gotta go," is the answer.

As with any group in swift transition, the students are often painfully confused and contradictory. A Newsweek poll last year that asked students whom they admired most found that many said "Nobody" or gave names like Y. A. Tittle or Joan Baez. It is no longer rare to find students on some campuses dressed in an Ivy League button-down shirt, farmer's dungarees, a French beret, and a Roman beard—all at once. They argue against large bureaucracies, but most turn to the industrial giants, not to smaller companies or their own business ventures,

The alumni lament: We don't recognize the place

when they look for jobs after graduation. They are critical of religion, but they desperately seek people, courses, and experiences that can reveal some meaning to them. An instructor at a university in Connecticut says: "The chapel is fairly empty, but the religion courses are bulging with students."

Caught in the rapids of powerful change, and left with only their own resources to deal with the rush, the students tend to feel helpless—often too much so. Sociologist David Riesman has noted: "The students know that there are many decisions out of their conceivable control, decisions upon which their lives and fortunes truly depend. But . . . this truth, this insight, is over-generalized, and, being believed, it becomes more and more 'true'." Many students, as a result, have become grumblers and cynics, and some have preferred to withdraw into private pads or into early marriages. However, there are indications that some students are learning how to be effective—if only, so far, through the largely negative methods of disruption.

IF THE FACULTIES AND THE STUDENTS are perplexed and groping, the alumni of many American colleges and universities are positively dazed. Everything they have revered for years seems to be crumbling: college spirit, fraternities, good manners, freshman customs, colorful lectures, singing, humor magazines and reliable student newspapers, long talks and walks with professors, daily chapel, dinners by candlelight in formal dress, reunions that are fun. As one alumna in Tennessee said, "They keep asking me to give money to a place I no longer recognize." Assaulted by many such remarks, one development officer in Massachusetts countered: "Look, alumni have seen America and the world change. When the old-timers went to school there were no television sets, few cars and fewer airplanes, no nuclear weapons, and no Red China. Why should colleges alone stand still? It's partly our fault, though. We traded too long on sentiment rather than information, allegiance, and purpose."

What some alumni are beginning to realize is that they themselves are changing rapidly. Owing to the recent expansion of enrollments, nearly one half of all alumni and alumnae now are persons who have been graduated since 1950, when the period of accelerated change began. At a number of colleges, the song-and-revels homecomings have been turned into seminars and discussions about space travel or African politics. And at some institutions, alumni councils are being asked to advise on and, in some cases, to help determine parts of college policy.

Dean David B. Truman, of New York's Columbia College, recently contended that alumni are going to have to learn to play an entirely new role vis-à-vis their alma maters. The increasingly mobile life of most scholars, many administrators, and a growing number of students, said the dean, means that, if anyone is to continue to have a deep concern for the whole life and future of each institution, "that focus increasingly must come from somewhere outside the once-collegial body of the faculty"—namely, from the alumni.

However, even many alumni are finding it harder to develop strong attachments to one college or university. Consider the person who goes to, say, Davidson College in North Carolina, gets a law degree from the University of Virginia, marries a girl who was graduated from Wellesley, and settles in Albuquerque, New Mexico, where he pays taxes to help support the state university. (He pays Federal taxes, too, part of which goes, through Government grants and contracts, to finance work at hundreds of other colleges and universities.)

Probably the hardest thing of all for many alumni—indeed, for people of all loyalties—to be reconciled to is that we live in a new era of radical change, a new time when almost nothing stands still for very long, and when continual change is the normal pattern of development. It is a terrible fact to face openly, for it requires that whole chunks of our traditional way of thinking and behaving be revised.

Take the standard chore of defining the purpose of any particular college or university. Actually, some colleges and universities are now discarding the whole idea of statements of purpose, regarding their main task as one of remaining open-ended to accommodate the rapid changes. "There is no single 'end' to be discovered," says California's Clark Kerr. Many administrators and professors agree. But American higher education is sufficiently vast and varied to house many—especially those at small colleges or church-related institutions—who differ with this view.

What alumni and alumnae will have to find, as will everyone connected with higher education, are some new norms, some novel patterns of behavior by which to navigate in this new, constantly innovating society.

For the alumni and alumnae, then, there must be an ever-fresh outlook. They must resist the inclination to howl at every departure that their alma mater makes from the good old days. They need to see their alma mater and its role in a new light. To remind professors about their obligations to teach students in a stimulating and broadening manner may be a continuing task for alumni; but to ask the faculty to return to pre-1950 habits of leisurely teaching and counseling will be no service to the new academic world.

In order to maintain its greatness, to keep ahead, America must innovate. To innovate, it must conduct research. Hence, research is here to stay. And so is the new seriousness of purpose and the intensity of academic work that today is so widespread on the campuses.

Alumni could become a greater force for keeping alive at our universities and colleges a sense of joy, a knowledge of Western traditions and values, a quest for meaning, and a respect for individual persons, especially young persons, against the mounting pressures for sheer work, new findings, mere facts, and bureaucratic depersonalization. In a period of radical change, they could press for some enduring values amidst the flux. In a period focused on the new, they could remind the colleges of the virtues of teaching about the past.

But they can do this only if they recognize the existence of rapid change as a new factor in the life of the nation's colleges; if they ask, "How and what kind of change?" and not, "Why change?"

"It isn't easy," said an alumnus from Utah. "It's like asking a farm boy to get used to riding an escalator all day long."

One long-time observer, the editor of a distinguished alumni magazine, has put it this way:

"We—all of us—need an entirely new concept of higher education. Continuous, rapid change is now inevitable and normal. If we recognize that our colleges from now on will be perpetually changing, but not in inexorable patterns, we shall be able to control the direction of change more intelligently. And we can learn to accept our colleges on a wholly new basis as centers of our loyalty and affection."

---

The report on this and the preceding 15 pages is the product of a cooperative endeavor in which scores of schools, colleges, and universities are taking part. It was prepared under the direction of the group listed below, who form EDITORIAL PROJECTS FOR EDUCATION, a non-profit organization associated with the American Alumni Council.

Naturally, in a report of such length and scope, not all statements necessarily reflect the views of all the persons involved, or of their institutions. Copyright © 1966 by Editorial Projects for Education, Inc. All rights reserved; no part may be reproduced without the express permission of the editors. Printed in U.S.A.

DENTON BEAL
Carnegie Institute of Technology

DAVID A. BURR
The University of Oklahoma

DAN ENDSLEY
Stanford University

MARALYN O. GILLESPIE
Swarthmore College

CHARLES M. HELMKEN
American Alumni Council

GEORGE C. KELLER
Columbia University

ALAN W. MAC GARTHY
The University of Michigan

JOHN I. MATTILL
Massachusetts Institute of Technology

KEN METZLER
The University of Oregon

RUSSELL OLIN
The University of Colorado

JOHN W. PATON
Wesleyan University

ROBERT L. PAYTON
Washington University

ROBERT M. RHODES
The University of Pennsylvania

STANLEY SAPLIN
New York University

VERNE A. STADTMAN
The University of California

FREDERIC A. STOTT
Phillips Academy, Andover

FRANK J. TATE
The Ohio State University

CHARLES E. WIDMAYER
Dartmouth College

DOROTHY F. WILLIAMS
Simmons College

RONALD A. WOLK
The Johns Hopkins University

ELIZABETH BOND WOOD
Sweet Briar College

CHESLEY WORTHINGTON
Brown University

*

CORBIN GWALTNEY
Executive Editor

JOHN A. CROWL
Associate Editor

---

An honor guard of VMI cadets stands at attention as CLARENCE B. MANNING, '67, tells of the heroic World War I service of KIFFIN YATES ROCKWELL, '13. In the background are, l-r, COL. PAUL AYRES ROCKWELL, '12, brother of the late pioneer airman; COL. ROLAND CHARLES of the French Embassy staff; and President FRED C. COLE.

Kiffin Rockwell, '13, Is Honored At Sigma Phi Epsilon Anniversary

By STEVEN R. SAUNDERS, '68

A SOLEMN AND COLORFUL tribute to one of the first Americans to die in World War I was offered by the Washington and Lee chapter of Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity at special ceremonies in Lee Chapel on Sunday afternoon, April 24. Over 100 alumni, students, and faculty attended.

A memorial plaque honoring Lt. Kiffin Yates Rockwell, '13, one of the original fighter pilots in the famed Lafayette Escadrille, was rededicated in the presence of representatives of Washington and Lee University and Virginia Military Institute. Rockwell was a VMI cadet before transferring to Washington and Lee, where he was a member of the class of 1913 and a brother in Sigma Phi Epsilon. He was killed in a 1916 aerial dogfight over Alsace, France, the second known American to die in the war.

Colonel Roland Charles, assistant air attache to the French Embassy in Washington, D. C., delivered the eulogy to Lt. Rockwell in behalf of the Republic of France. Praising Rockwell's courage and stubborn determination, Colonel Charles said: "His ideals were of the finest and most noble kind, and he died for them in the service of France. We acknowledge with gratitude our debt to him." Charles commanded the Free French Lafayette Air Squadron in World War II.

An honor guard from Virginia Military Institute flanked the podium during the ceremonies. Clarence B. Manning, a junior from Manakin-Sabot, Va., and fraternity president, spoke on the life of Kiffin Yates Rockwell, noting the many military decorations awarded to the flyer, including the French Legion of Honor and the Croix de Guerre with four palms.

President Fred C. Cole participated in the ceremonies, as did VMI Chaplain Robert Wilson.

Colonel Paul Ayres Rockwell, '12, of Asheville, N. C., Kiffin's older brother, joined with Colonel Charles to place a wreath at the plaque, which is set into the northeastern wall of the Chapel, concluding the program. Colonel Rockwell attended Washington and Lee and, like his brother, was a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon and an early volunteer with the French forces in World War I.

Colonel Rockwell made an equally glorious name for himself, winning a score of decorations from the United States, France, and Spain, including the French Legion of Honor, and three Croix de Guerre. Colonel Rockwell fought in both World War I and the 1925 Rif War in Morocco with the French Foreign Legion, and then took part in World War II with the U.S. Army Air Forces. He is now 77 years old and retired.

The Rockwell plaque was originally placed in Lee Chapel by the SPE fraternity in the spring of 1917. Thomas M. Stubbs, '19, and the late Henry J. Blackford, '17, penned the inscription. Only a handful of people attended those ceremonies, at which Stubbs' mother, the late Mrs. Lillian Hoyt Stubbs, of Sumter, S. C., unveiled the plaque.

The rededication ceremonies were part of a busy weekend program commemorating the 60th anniversary of the founding of Sigma Phi Epsilon's chapter at Washington and Lee. Beginning on Saturday afternoon, April 23, with an open house and cocktail party in the chapter residence at 110 West Preston Street, the anniversary celebration ran through Sunday afternoon.

A banquet for alumni, undergraduates, and guests was held in Evans Dining Hall on Saturday night. Andy D. Smith, a senior from Chase City, Va., and former chapter president, served as master of ceremonies. Smith and Donald J. Lineback, a senior from Winston-Salem, N. C., were co-chairmen for the weekend.

Three speakers addressed the ninety persons present on the theme of commemoration, "Virginia Epsilon: Yesterday, Today, and Tomorrow," which was also the title of a 5,000-word chapter history printed in conjunction with the 60th anniversary observance. Colonel Rockwell commented on the chapter as it was "Yesterday"; William Hartman, a junior from Honolulu, Hawaii, and chapter vice-president, spoke about "Today"; and freshman James C. Hamill, Jr., an outstanding debate team member from Oklahoma City, Okla., addressed himself to the prospects for "Tomorrow."

C. Maynard Turner of Cincinnati, national grand president of the fraternity, also spoke. He presented the chapter with its original 1906 charter, which had been lost in 1940 and was uncovered recently in the attic of the fraternity's national headquarters in Richmond. Andy Smith delivered a brief talk about the chapter's David L. Dunlap Scholarship Fund, named for the W&L law student who sparked the reactivation of the chapter in 1958 after it had been absent from the campus for eighteen years. Alumnus Harvey Smith, '24, of New Orleans concluded the banquet with a few remarks.

An initiation ceremony was presented for the alumni later that night, at which Howard L. Boetsch, Jr., a freshman from Philadelphia, was initiated into the fraternity. Wives and other guests were entertained at a reception by Mrs. Jo D. Brett, the fraternity's house-mother, during the initiation rites.

Planning for the weekend started in October 1965, when Andy Smith was chapter president. All arrangements were handled by undergraduates. The committee consisted of sophomores Ulric C. Berard, McLean, Va.; J. Coleman Blake, Richmond, Va.; D. John Godehn, Hendersonville, N. C.; James H. Lowe, Towson, Md.; and Steven R. Saunders, Elmont, N. Y.

The University was represented at the banquet by Dr. Edward C. Atwood, Dean of Students, and Mrs. Atwood, who also attended the Lee Chapel ceremonies. Dr. William W. Pusey, Dean of the College, and Mrs. Pusey, and President and Mrs. Cole also attended the plaque rededication as did Alumni Secretary William C. Washburn.

Founded at the University of Richmond in 1901, Sigma Phi Epsilon established its Virginia Epsilon chapter at Washington and Lee in 1906. The chapter had its start as the "Saturday Night Club" which met in the University-operated dining hall on Washington Street, "The Inn." The building is now privately owned and, with the dining hall divided into student apartments, is operated as a rooming house called "The Dutch Inn."

Insolvency caused by the Depression and competition with other fraternities forced the chapter out of existence in 1940. It was reactivated by six law students in 1958, led by the late David L. Dunlap, and the charter was returned in 1960. Last year it was chosen the outstanding chapter among Sigma Phi Epsilon's 162 chapters nationwide.

The chapter has occupied its present residence on Preston Street since September 1963, after three years at 109 Myers Street. Built originally for Colonel John Preston, one of the founders of Virginia Military Institute, the historic home is over 130 years old. Colonel Preston was married to the second daughter of Washington College President George Junkin, whose other daughter married a devout young engineering instructor at VMI named Thomas Jonathan Jackson, latter to be dubbed "Stonewall."

H. G. Jahncke Reigns as Rex At Mardi Gras

THE ONCE-IN-A-LIFETIME honor of reigning as Rex, King of Carnival at New Orleans' world famous Mardi Gras, came to Herbert Grant Jahncke, '30, an honor graduate of Washington and Lee and a distinguished New Orleans businessman and civic leader.

For twenty-four hours, Jahncke was 1966 "Monarch of Merriment" for several hundred thousand New Orleans residents and visitors that newsmen said was the greatest Mardi Gras throng ever.

Jahncke's reigning day fell on February 22, and brought to a close the annual pre-Lenten revels of Mardi Gras. As Rex, Jahncke led the 23-float Rex Parade through downtown New Orleans and later ruled over the Rex Ball that ended the Mardi Gras season.

Pie Dufour, popular columnist in New Orleans' States-Item, described Jahncke's Rex in these words:

"And what a Rex! Herbert Jahncke carried his natural gentility and charm of private life into his royal duties as 'King for a day.' . . . For many years, Rex has been genial, warm, friendly, animated no matter what his name was. Herbert Jahncke as Rex of 1966 followed in this tradition. The crowd loved him because he clearly showed that he loved the crowd. When he had public utterances to make, he made them gracefully and graciously."

The role of Rex is the most coveted of all at Mardi Gras. The "Krewe of Rex" annually selects one of its members on the basis of his popularity, his social and business prestige, and his contributions of time and effort to improve the City of New Orleans.

Jahncke, the 95th Rex to wear

His Majesty Rex, HERBERT G. JAHNCKE, '30, acknowledges the acclaim of the Mardi Gras throng in New Orleans in the photo above, while below, he sits in regal splendor on the throne at the gala Rex ball. His queen was MISS CHRISTINE PHILLIPS WESTFELDT of New Orleans.

the carnival crown, said the experience was one of the "most memorable and glorious days of my life."

When he was chosen king, Jahncke had to keep his selection a complete secret from all but his wife and secretary, who assisted him in preparing for the arduous day-long reign. He wanted far-flung members of his family to be on hand, so he called them to New Orleans on the pretext of a family business conference. "I didn't fool them one little bit," he said.

Among those who joined in honoring Jahncke was Herbert G. Jahncke, Jr., '63, of Palo Alto, Calif., who, like his father, is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Washington and Lee.

Class Notes

1892

Two Washington and Lee classmates and members of the American Bar Association were honored at a luncheon on March 21st at the Everglades Hotel in Miami, Florida. Inscribed gold certificates were presented to FREDERICK H. HUDSON, '90 B.A. and '92 LL.B., and JOHN M. WOODS, '92 LL.B. In presenting the awards ABA President, Edward W. Kuhn of Memphis, said, "Few in our profession are able to achieve such exemplary record of long service to the bar and public." The veteran lawyers are among only 199 in the nation qualified for the award based upon a half century or more of membership in the legal profession. Judge Hudson, said to be the oldest member of the Dade County Bar, is still in active practice. He was a member of the Florida State Senate from 1905 to 1919 and President of the Senate from 1909 to 1911. Mr. Wood, because of ill health, was unable to be present for the occasion. He, too, has been a member of the ABA for 53 years.

1902

DR. WILLIAM THOMAS ELLIS retired in 1960 as Chief Surgeon of Stetson Hospital in Philadelphia after fifty-one years of service. He is now Emeritus Surgeon. In a recent note, Dr. Ellis comments that he received his medical degree from the University of Pennsylvania exactly sixty years ago this June, 1966.

Now over 85 years old, RICHARD P. DANIEL still goes to his office each morning and remains active in his business.

1903

BERNARD BOBBS SHIVELY, a Marion, Indiana, attorney, has just published a book entitled The Thorns of Pleasure, by the Parthenon Press. The book is a story of Rome and Alaric the Great. Much of the contents is in the form of dialogue which contributes greatly to its readability.

1904

At the age of eighty-two A. DAWSON TRUNDLE is still active as a real estate broker handling farms and estates in Maryland and Virginia. He makes his home in Bethesda, Maryland.

1909

CROWELL T. DAWKINS is hale and hearty. He wrote in February that he is playing the Florida State Seniors Golf Tournament in Tampa.

The General Assembly in Virginia has named JUDGE H. LESTER HOOKER for his eighth term on the State Corporation Commission. He is presently serving under his twelfth governor.

1910

JOE R. BLACKBURN, long time public servant and resident of Charleston, West Virginia, will retire in June, 1966, from the State Road Commission.

1913

After more than 50 years in the practice of law, MOREY DUNN has retired and lives in Palm Beach, Florida. Forty years of his practice was in Palm Beach.

1914

DR. DANIEL C. BUCHANAN, retired Presbyterian minister and also a man of wide experience working with the United States government, has written a book entitled, Japanese Proverbs and Sayings. Dr. Buchanan has a rare understanding of the Japanese people. The book pictures the philosophy of the East and Dr. Buchanan shows how many oriental views are similar to those of the West. The book is published by the Oklahoma University Press. Shortly after graduation, Dr. Buchanan went to Japan to teach. He returned in World War I and volunteered for service in the Army. Following the Armistice he went to McCormick Theological Seminary. In 1921 he was commissioned a missionary to Japan and was active in this field for 20 years. After World War II he returned to this country and became assistant pastor of the Tacoma Park Presbyterian Church and in 1958 retired. His book is priced at $5.95.

1915

DR. L. NELSON BELL from Montreat, N. C.,

has been awarded the George Washington Honor Medal from the Freedom Foundation. The award was made at the 17th awards ceremony at Valley Forge, Pennsylvania. Dr. Bell, retired surgeon who served 25 years as a medical missionary in China, was cited for an editorial entitled "Danger Signals." He received an honorary LL.D. degree from Kings College. His newest book just published by Wm. B. Erdmans is entitled "Convictions to Live By."

1916

After leaving W&L, JOHN B. MOORE served with the National Guard 1916-17 on the border. After WW I he went back to the University of South Carolina where he received a B.A. degree in 1927 and an M.A. degree in 1932. Moore has taught for forty-three years with the major time at Richmond Academy, Georgia State College, Georgia Tech, and other public and private schools. At present he is doing private tutoring.

In 1920 JOHN W. MAY, JR., left the practice of law and went into the laundry business. In 1940 he began selling products and equipment to the laundry and dry cleaning trade. He still continues in this business in Indianapolis, Indiana.

1918

The Roanoke Gas Company has won top honors for the best advertising campaign in community service. E. V. BOWYER, vice-president for sales, accepted the award on behalf of the company. The award is made by Southern Gas Corporation after competition among 100 member companies.

RICHARD BRADFORD, '67, left, president of Delta Upsilon, presents a special plaque to EMMETT W. POINDEXTER, '20, in recognition of his many years of dedicated service to Washington and Lee and to the fraternity's chapter there. The plaque will be placed on the wall of the chapter library named in honor of POINDEXTER. MRS. POINDEXTER smiles her approval of the entire affair.

1919

A recent visitor to the campus was THOMAS M. PITTS who was on his way to a convention of the National League of Cities in Washington. Mr. Pitts is Mayor of Indianola, Mississippi.

1923

Ferrum College in Virginia announced the formation of a new division of social science and education and the appointment of FRANKLIN B. HURT as its chairman. Mr. Hurt taught at Ferrum College from 1927 to 1929 and was a member of the Western Maryland College faculty for thirty years before his retirement in 1965. The new post involves direction of instructions in history, political science, sociology, psychology, and education.

1924

In April 1965, CHARLES A. TUTWILER, was appointed and is now serving as a member of the Board of Law Examiners of the State of West Virginia.

While on a recent visit to campus, DORR TUCKER reminisced about the football series between the Generals and V.P.I. and particularly the game played in Lynchburg in the fall of 1920. Tucker had come to W&L from West Virginia, and it was his first college football season. The 1920 game with V.P.I. was the eighteenth of the series and ended with the score of 13-0 for the Generals. Tucker scored both touchdowns—one on a run from his left halfback position, the second by receiving a pass from M. B. Mattox.

1925

Presently the Transportation Assistant in the Operating Department, KENNETH A. GOODE will retire from the C. & O. Railway effective July 1, 1966. He has devoted forty-one years of services to the company. He makes his home in Chagrin Falls, Ohio.

EARLE T. ANDREWS, president of the Pennsylvania Glass Sand Corporation, has been designated official nominee for President of the American Society of Civil Engineers, the oldest national engineering professional society in the country. Mr. Andrews joined his business firm in 1925 as a civil engineer and in 1963 became president of the corporation. In 1963 Mr. Andrews was named "Centennial Engineer" by the West Virginia Society of Professional Engineers. He has served on numerous national committees of ASCE, related professional organizations, and is director of the West Virginia Manufacturers Association. He is a past president of the West Virginia Section of ASCE.

1926

MEYER LU GOODMAN has been practicing public accounting for the past forty years. Receiving his C.P.A. in 1927, he is now the senior partner in the firm of Goodman, Norman, Goldmeir, & Ritter of Norfolk, Virginia.
SPRING 1966

DR. E. S. BERLIN is now living in Oakland, California, where he is employed by the Veterans Administration.

WILLIAM F. SMITH has been national treasurer of Phi Sigma Iota Society, an honorary Romance Language Society, since 1955. Between 1956-59 he was Editor of the South Central Modern Language Association Bulletin and a member of the Executive Committee of this organization. Bill served SCMLA as vice-president in 1962-63 and its president in 1963-64. From 1961-64 he was a member of the Executive Committee of the American Association of Teachers of Spanish and Portuguese. Bill is now a full professor of Spanish at Tulane University.

1928

Still an active rancher in Wichita Falls, Texas, VIRGIL A. FISHER boasts three grandsons and two granddaughters.

DR. HARRY B. NEEL is serving this year as president of the Minnesota Surgical Society.

1929

J. E. "BUCK" BAILEY writes that he and V. A. FISHER, '28, of Wichita Falls plan to do a lot of fishing at the Lake of Pines the end of March.

HARRY E. GODWIN is District Manager, Memphis, Tennessee area, for the Herzig Company of Jacksonville, Florida. He is still a jazz enthusiast and is Director of the New Orleans Jazz Museum. He has issued two new albums and has had seven songs published.

EARLE T. ANDREWS, JR.

WALTER H. WILCOX, president of the S. D. Warren Co., advised the stockholders at a recent meeting in Boston that the company's sales were at a high level. Sales of the office copy machine paper, first marketed by S. D. Warren in 1965, are expected to show marked gain this year.

1930

Enjoying good health and a fine community, EARL T. JONES lives in Raleigh, N. C., where he is president of Jesse Jones Sausage Company. He is very active in civic affairs holding memberships in the Lions Club, and directorship in the Y.M.C.A., the Rescue Mission, and the Chamber of Commerce. Jones has a close connection with the operation of the professional baseball team in Raleigh, a club affiliated with the Pittsburgh Pirates. He is a member of the first Presbyterian Church where he is presently a member of the Board of Deacons.

HERBERT G. JAHNCKE was Rex for Mardi Gras in New Orleans this year. The King of the 1966 Carnival is president of Jahncke Services, Inc., of New Orleans. Mr. Jahncke has also been named to the Board of Governors of the Ochsner Foundation Hospital. He is president of the New Orleans Parks and Parkway Commission and chairman of the Cultural Attractions Fund. He has been or is presently an officer of the Delgado Museum of Art, the Tulane Forward Fund, the United Fund, the Bureau of Governmental Research, and the TB Association of New Orleans.

1931

SAMUEL A. MILLINER, JR., was appointed secretary of the Executive Committee of the duPont Company April 13, 1966. He will continue as assistant secretary of the company. Sam began with duPont in 1931 as a stenographer in the Explosives Department, advancing to become office manager in 1945. The following year he was transferred to the Secretary's Department and was elected assistant secretary of the company in 1950.

FRANK B. LEVERETTE has recently taken the position of Secretary and General Manager of the Red Arrow Products, Inc., a manufacturer and international distribution firm for automotive repair equipment. He lives in Tallahassee, Florida.

ARTHUR W. PHELPS is an exchange professor at the University of Exeter, Devon, England, for the 1966-67 term. He will be teaching in the Law School.

1932

JUDGE CHARLES E. LONG, JR., has completed thirteen years as Judge of the 134th District Court of Texas, a court of general trial jurisdiction, and he has been renominated without opposition for another four-year term. Judge Long's son, CHARLES E. LONG, III, graduated this past June from Washington and Lee and another son, DAVID B., will be in his third year at W&L this next September. Judge Long is serving as vice-president of the Parents' Advisory Council.

In April of this year JOHN ROBERT HORNOR was elected Chairman of the Eastern District, Division of Production, of the American Petroleum Institute. His area comprises all the oil and natural gas producing states east of the Mississippi.

1933

T. DEALE BLANCHARD is treasurer of the Robertson Hardware Company, Inc., in Portsmouth, Virginia. There is never a dull moment in the Blanchard home with a college son and two daughters, one in mental in getting the sport of wrestling included in the secondary school system. The City of Bristol now has the Regional Meet and has produced some State champions. Charlie's oldest son graduated from W&L in 1965; a second son is at Cornell, and a third son, David, is starting high school.

A member of the Council for the West Virginia State Medical Association, DR. KENNETH G. MACDONALD, SR., is now the Treasurer of the Association. He is also on the budget committee for the United Fund Campaign in Charleston, West Virginia.

1937

A professor of European history at The will be charged with the responsibility of recommending sources of revenue for the cities public schools including ways of raising money for the fiscal year. Mr. Scott is a former manufacturer who currently directs a cooperative drive for a new children's hospital. He has been very active in civic affairs in Philadelphia.

Since 1940, EDWIN M. MARKS has been with Goldsmiths, Memphis's leading department store. In June, 1965, he was named executive vice-president.

THEODORE M. PLOWDEN is residing with his family this year in Bombay, India, where he is establishing a new corporate affiliation of his company, the Richardson-Merrill, Inc., of New York City.

DR. HARRY M. PHILPOTT, '38, right, receives the medallion emblematic of the office of president of Auburn University from Gov. GEORGE C. WALLACE at inaugural ceremonies held on the Auburn campus in May. DR. PHILPOTT assumed his new duties last September.

college and the other a freshman in high school.

DR. EDWARD E. FERGUSON is president of the Middle Atlantic section of the American Urological Association.

JEROME FRAMPTON, JR., is serving on the Maryland State Board of Education. He was vice president from 1952 to 1959 and since then has served as president. Another W&L man, WILLIAM L. WILSON, JR., '39, is now president.

1935

EUGENE EARL KREWSON has been elected secretary and member of the board of National Plate Grainers, Inc., Rockville, Maryland.

1936

While chairman of the Athletic Committee of Bristol's (Connecticut) Board of Education, CHARLES A. SWEET was instru-

Pennsylvania State University, KENT FORSTER is the author of two books in the past year: Recent Europe: A Twentieth Century History, is published by the Ronald Press; Man and Civilization, written together with another professor, is published by Lyons and Carnahan.

WILLIAM C. WILBUR is professor of history and chairman of the History and Social Sciences Division of Florida Presbyterian College in St. Petersburg, Florida. He has received a grant for a sabbatical leave for the second semester of the 1966-67 school year. He plans to take his family, wife and two children, with him to England and Scotland where he will be doing research from February to August of 1967.

The School Board President of Philadelphia has named ISADORE M. SCOTT, a prominent lawyer and civic leader, the chairman of a citizens' committee to study school financial needs. The committee

1938

DR. HARRY M. PHILPOTT was formally invested as the 11th president of Auburn University on May 6, 1966, when Gov. George C. Wallace presented a medallion, emblematic of the office of president, to the 49-year-old educator. Over 1,500 delegates, representatives, faculty and friends of Auburn witnessed the ceremony. Dr. Philpott assumed his duties last September.

On December 9, 1965, ARTHUR L. BICE celebrated the 25th anniversary of his ordination. He is presently the rector of Emmanuel Episcopal Church in Little Falls, New York.

GERALD M. LIVELY, a representative of the Kansas City, Missouri, agency of the National Life Insurance Company of Vermont, has earned membership in the firm's tenth Presidents' Club. He is also eligible to attend the Club's educational conference in Miami Beach on March 16-20. Lively is active in estate planning. He is a member of the Kansas and Missouri Bars and a former bank trust officer.

Celanese Plastics Company has announced the appointment of SETH N. BAKER as Director of Personnel, with headquarters in Newark, New Jersey. Baker joined Celanese in May, 1965. Previously he had been associated with The Monsanto Chemical Company, Plax Corporation, and Merck, Sharp & Dome in various personnel, industrial and public relations capacities. He was also a former newspaper man, having worked on the New York Daily News and Newsday.

1939

ROY S. THOMPSON, JR., is president and a member of the Board of Directors of the American Southern Insurance Companies. The company was formed in 1936 and has been under the present management since 1953. The American Southern Insurance Group, Inc., is a holding company owned by fifty stockholders. They hold the American Southern Insurance Company and the American Southern Life Insurance Company. The operation is chiefly in the State of Georgia and six South-eastern states.

After ten years in public relations with the First National Bank of Atlanta, GEORGE E. GOODWIN, JR., joined Bell and Stanton, Inc., a public relations firm with principal offices in New York and branch offices in Atlanta, Chicago, and London. In 1965 he was made vice president in charge of the Atlanta office and in January, 1966, was named director of the firm.

CRAIG W. NEWMAN, part owner of a construction firm, writes of some of the advantages of bachelorhood. His hobbies are raising quarter horses and fishing the gulf stream off the Florida keys.

DR. ARTHUR E. NIELSEN is practicing dentistry in Hackensack, New Jersey. He and his wife have three children, all in college.

1940

REID BRODIE, JR., took the position of Personnel Director at the Lakeland General Hospital in Lakeland, Florida, in April, 1965. A present construction project will give the hospital a 750-bed capacity. Reid has a son, Steve, who is in the Navy and a daughter, Mary Louise, who is a sophomore in college.

FRANKLIN ALLEN NICHOLS who is with the 833rd Air Division at Seymour Johnson AFB in North Carolina has just been selected for promotion to Brigadier General.

HAL B. WATTERSON will complete 25 years service with duPont Company in August,

SPRING 1966

SETH N. BAKER, '38

1966. The Wattersons have a son and daughter.

LOU PLUMMER is the new Pacific Coast Regional Sales Manager for Fruehauf Trailer Corporation of Orinda, California. Lou has been closely associated with the trucking business for most of his career, serving at Fruehauf's Atlanta, New Orleans, Sacramento and Oakland branches. He will now be available to all Fruehauf customers in the Pacific Coast area to help them improve their sales and service.

RALPH HAUSRATH is on sabbatical leave this year doing graduate work on his Ph.D. in education at the University of North Carolina. Ralph is a teacher in the Bay Shore, Long Island, schools.

THEODORE A. BRUINSMA, '41

At present GALE C. BOXILL is the Director of Toxicology at the Warner-Lambert Research Institute in Morris Plains, New Jersey.

In addition to his executive position with Smith Transfer and Storage Company in Washington, D.C., ARTHUR C. SMITH, JR., has just recently been elected Treasurer of the Montgomery Federal Savings and Loan Association of Kensington, Maryland.

Recently EDWARD FRANZE, JR., was promoted to the rank of associate professor of English at Georgia State College in Atlanta.

RALPH EDWARD KEEHN is a practicing attorney and the municipal judge of Seguin, Texas. He is also known as "Mr. Banjo" of the Alamo City Jazz Band of San Antonio, Texas, one of the finest "Dixieland" groups in the nation.

THEODORE A. BRUINSMA, formerly executive vice-president of Capital for Technical Industries, has joined Packard Bell Company of Los Angeles, California, in the newly created position of executive vice-president. Since 1961, Ted has represented major corporations in financial planning and fiscal control, acquisitions and mergers. Previously, he was president, owner, and executive officer of Systematics, Inc., an East Coast electronics company; general counsel and secretary of McCall Corporation; and an attorney with the New York firm of Whitman, Ransom and Coulson.

Since last July, 1965, RICHARD M. HERNDON has been assigned to the U.S. Embassy in Seoul, Korea.

1942

BORN: MR. and MRS. SAM CIENER, JR., a daughter, Samantha, on March 3, 1966, in Helena, Arkansas.

HOWARD W. DOBBINS has been named to join Morton L. Wallenstein as general counsel of Wards Co., Inc. Both men are partners in Wallenstein, Goode, Adamson & Dobbins.

DANIEL C. LEWIS has been elected vice president of the Chesapeake Corporation of Virginia. He is also a director of the Chesapeake Bay Plywood Corporation.

Formerly an Executive Vice-President, ROBERT C. WALKER has been elected President of the Peninsula Bank & Trust Co. of Williamsburg, Va.

VERNIE GUY CLATTERBAUGH is the sales manager for the Philadelphia Branch of the Panama Beaver Carbons and Ribbons. The Clatterbaughs and their seven children live in Springfield, Pennsylvania.

DR. ROBERT L. PINCK, Director of the Department of Radiology of the Long Island College Hospital, is the recipient of two recent honors: induction as a Fellow of the American College of Radiology and appointment to the Executive Committee of the Medical Board of the Long Island College Hospital. The fellowship degree is conferred on the basis of outstanding contribution and service to radiology. Dr. Pinck is the first radiologist to be appointed to the LICH Executive Committee since its formation in the mid-forties. In addition, he was appointed early this year to the Executive Committee of the North Atlantic Life Insurance Company. One of the original incorporators, Dr. Pinck has been a member of the Board of Directors since the inception of the company in 1962.

DR. ROBERT L. PINCK, '42

1943

MORRISON R. NELSON is president of Tobacco Processors, Inc., of Wilson, North Carolina, and is vice-president of Southwestern Tobacco Company of Lexington, Kentucky. Both concerns are subsidiaries of Universal Leaf Tobacco Company of Richmond, Virginia.

BEVERLY T. FITZPATRICK was elected president of the Association of Judges of County and Municipal courts of Virginia. He serves as president of the parents council for Ferrum Junior College. Bev is in his twelfth year as Chief Judge of Roanoke's Municipal Court and is particularly interested in young people's problems, especially traffic safety education.

RICHARD E. BASILE has been named director of development for the Slater School and Hospital Food Management divisions of Automatic Retailers of America, Inc. He will be responsible for establishing new programs for recruitment, training and development of ARA management personnel in the educational and health care food service fields. Mr. Basile left the post of administrative dean at Paul Smith's College in Paul Smith, New York, to join the ARA organization. He was previously Operations and Personnel Manager for the American Management Association Academy in Saranac Lake, New York.

RICHARD E. BASILE, '43

DR. R. FRANCIS JOHNSON became Vice-Dean of the Episcopal Theological Seminary of the Southwest of Austin, Texas, last September. In January he was installed as dean of the newly completed chapel at the Seminary when the Presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church was present for the consecration of the chapel.

1944

The new president of CBS-TV is JOHN T. REYNOLDS, JR., a native of St. Louis. John left Washington and Lee at the end of his sophomore year to join the Army Air Corps during the War. He served with distinction as a pilot and instructor on B-25's. After the war, Reynolds settled in Southern California where he joined General Advertising, Inc., as production manager. In 1947 he returned to St. Louis to join KXOK radio and a year later went with Don Lee Broadcasting systems in Los Angeles. Mr. Reynolds first went with CBS in 1951 when the Corporation bought the Don Lee station. He has held several positions and was most recently brought to New York as Senior Vice-President. At 44 years of age, the new CBS President seems as trim as an athlete though he says he misses the surfcasting, sail boating and the sun of Hollywood. His two hobbies are painting and antique collecting.

Living in Highland Park, Illinois, HOWARD GREENBLATT is General Counsel for Hart Schaffner and Marx of Chicago.

In September, 1966, WILLIAM GUTHRIE will become chairman of the English Department in Richmond College, the men's division of the University of Richmond. There are fourteen members in the department.

Recently resigning as vice-president of the Security Trust Co. of Miami, Florida, PAUL D. BARNS, JR., has now resumed private practice of law with offices in the Biscayne Tower.

GEORGE T. WOOD is the Manager of Consumer Products Sales, of the Royal Division, De Sota Chemical Coatings, Inc., of Chattanooga, Tennessee. He is married to the former Mimi Etheridge and they have one daughter at the University of Georgia, another daughter in prep school, and a son in the eighth grade.

1945

ELLIOTT S. SCHEWEL, prominent community leader of Lynchburg, Virginia, has been re-elected to the Young Leadership Cabinet of the United Jewish Appeal. In addition to serving on the Lynchburg Jewish Community Council, Mr. Schewel also served as Finance Chairman for the Memorial Hospital; local chairman for the United Negro College Fund, and as a Board member of the Fine Arts Center. He was the 1952 "Outstanding Young Man of the Year" for Lynchburg, selected by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

In February, PAUL R. BYRD, moved from Stamford Connecticut, to Marion, Virginia, where he is the Field Sales Manager for American Screw Co., a Textron Division in Wytheville, Virginia. He and his wife, Peggy, have two children.

In May, F. W. (RICH) KIENDL retired as president of the National Flexible Packing Association. He was a vice-president in charge of sales for Arkell and Smith, a manufacturer of paper bags and flexible packaging. He and his wife, Ceryl, have a daughter and a son and live in Forest Hills, New York, where Rich is also president of the Forest Hills Gardens Taxpayers Association.

1946

JAMES H. BALDWIN is an "internal auditor" for Eastern Air Lines. Though based at the Miami office, he travels throughout the entire Eastern Airline system.

In August, BEN M. BROWN, JR., became associated with the First National Bank of Sullivan County in Kingsport, Tennessee. He is in the business development division.

In recent months, FREDERICK S. HOLLEY was made assistant chief of the copy desk at the Los Angeles Times, a position he held with the Virginian Pilot in Norfolk before he moved west in 1963. The Holleys and their children, three boys and a girl, live in Fullerton, California.

BRENT BREEDIN, '47

1947

BRENT BREEDIN joined the staff of the national headquarters of the American College Public Relations Association in April. With headquarters in Washington, D.C., he is in charge of the ACPRA publications program, with specific responsibility for editing the regular issues of the College and University Journal and Educational Abstracts. Brent brings a background of college public relations work to his new position. He was associate director of public relations at Clemson University in 1952-55, and he served as university editor at Clemson in 1964-66.

The March, 1966, issue of Social Service Review carries an article by LEE SILVERSTEIN entitled "Thoughts on the Legal Aid Movement." Sponsored by the Office of Economic Opportunity, Lee is working on a study of legal services for the poor at the American Bar Foundation.

1948

Winning in competitive written and oral examinations, FREDERICK G. GILLETTE was appointed County Welfare Director for Santa Clara County, California. Fred began with the department in 1965 and prior to that time had seen nine years of service as Executive Assistant to the County Executive. Formerly he had been in various county government capacities and was also an instructor in Federal and State Taxation at Carroll College. During World War II he was a captain in the Army in the China-Burma-India Theater. During the Korean conflict he was recalled to service in the Pentagon. Fred lives in Sunnyside, California, with his wife, Jean, and twin seventeen-year-old daughters and is the Director of the

FREDERICK G. GILLETTE, '48

Council of Social Planning of Santa Clara County.

GLENN TOOTHMAN was elected Judge of Greene County, Pennsylvania, in November, 1965. He has been practicing law in Waynesburg, Pennsylvania, for sixteen years. He has served the county for two terms as its district attorney. Judge Toothman has been an instructor in government and constitutional law and from 1950 until his election has taught business law at Waynesburg College.

GORDON A. FOX is Director of Financial Planning for Lone Star Cement Corp. with offices in New York City.

Since 1962 RUTLEDGE H. DEAS, JR., has been in Lafayette, Louisiana, where he is an independent oil and gas producer. The Deas have five children, two boys and three girls.

LEWIS H. MCKENZIE has been elected mayor of Montezuma, Georgia.

1949

For the past five years RAY HILL has operated a manufacturers' representative agency for the sale of hospital and laboratory equipment in the seven South-eastern States.

In January, JOHN S. R. SCHOENFELD was elected Chairman of the National Association of Securities Dealers' Committee on Business Conduct. John is a partner in the firm of Ferris and Company in Washington, D.C. He and his wife, Florence, have two sons and a daughter.

1950

BORN: MR. and MRS. R. DABNEY CHAPMAN, a son, John McArthur Chapman, on December 15, 1965. Dabney was Cultural Officer at the American Embassy in Kabul, Afghanistan, last year. He is now at USIA headquarters in Washington, D.C., and expects to be assigned to an Army School of Advanced Russian in Southern Germany preparatory to going to the U.S. Embassy in Moscow.

MITCHELL I. LEWIS is the National Director of Advertising and Public Relations for McLandon Stations, a system of radio stations in Dallas, Houston, Buffalo, Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco. Television applications are pending in some of these stations. Mitch is also in motion picture promotion and production. He is under an exclusive contract to United Artists to create broadcast campaigns for six major features a year. Mitch and his wife, the former Marie Robert, have three children.

DR. ROBERT S. MENDELSON is in the practice of internal medicine and hematology in St. Louis. He and his wife have four children.

Selling his interest in the Gilliam Furniture, Inc., THOMAS D. GILLIAM, JR., joined Drexel Furniture Co. of Drexel, N. C., on January 1, 1966. He lives in Morganton, N. C., where he is Director of Merchandising Upholstery. He and his wife have three daughters.

Since 1959 FRANCIS A. HARE has been Chief Probation Officer for Henrico County Juvenile Court. He has a masters in social work. Francis and his wife have five children.

ERNEST PLEASANTS GATES has been appointed Circuit Court Judge for Chesterfield County, Virginia. He was formerly commonwealth's attorney for that county.

CLIFFORD C. THOMAS, JR., has been admitted as a general partner in Hoppin Brothers & Company of New York City, member of the American Stock Exchange.

WALTER ROY HOFFMAN, JR., is now associated with Andresen and Company of Birmingham, Alabama, investment banking and securities. The Hoffmans have three children—a girl, thirteen; a boy, eleven; and a girl, four.

1951

BORN: MR. and MRS. ROBERT H. BROWN, a son, Robert, Jr., in November, 1964. Hayes is the head of the Applied Mathematics group at Tennessee Eastman Company and as parttime work, he teaches statistics at the University of Tennessee division in Kingsport, Tennessee.

BORN: MR. and MRS. NORMAN R. LEMCKE, JR., announce the birth of a son, Norman Rohde, III, on February 23, 1966. The family lives in Washington, Connecticut.

Effective September, 1966, ROBERT H. SALISBURY obtained the rank of full professor in the political science department at Washington University in St. Louis, Missouri. Next fall he is scheduled to become chairman of the department.

HOWARD BRATCHES is manager, Personnel Administration, for General Foods Corporation. The family lives in Rye, New York.

W. VANCE RUCKER, JR., has been promoted to Assistant Director of Purchasing of Burlington Industries, Inc. He has been with Burlington since 1952.

FONTAINE J. GILLIAM has been promoted to Commander in the US Naval Reserve. Fontaine is associated with Deering, Milliken Corporation in Gaffney, South Carolina.

Martinsville (Va.) attorney, FRANK I. RICHARDSON, JR., has been unanimously endorsed by the Martinsville-Henry County Bar Association for appointment as judge of the city's newly created Corporation Court. The Governor will be asked to name him to the bench until he receives official appointment by the 1968 General Assembly. Frank is president of the local Bar Association and as Corporate Court Judge would relieve the Circuit Court Judge of part of the area's judicial burden.

ROBERT C. CAREY is engaged in many civic activities in Brooklyn, New York. He is president of the community organization, Brooklyn Heights Association, Inc. Bob is also vice-president of the Brooklyn Home for Children; a member of the Board of Directors for the Brooklyn Eye and Ear Hospital; a member of the Committee on Child and Family Welfare, and a member of the Federation of Protestant Welfare Agencies.

THE REVEREND JAMES C. FENHAGEN has made two trips to Japan this year to do Leadership Training for the Episcopal Church. He expects to return from Tokyo to Washington, D.C., in May.

After having been in the Legal Department of the National Broadcasting Company in both New York and Los Angeles for the past fourteen years, SCOTT SHOTT returned to Bluefield, West Virginia, to accept the position of station manager for station WHIS-TV.

ERIC C. HUBERT, for the past seven years business administrator for Trinity Episcopal Church in Tulsa, Oklahoma, will become the Administrator for St. Paul's Episcopal parish and director of the program for St. Paul's Towers in Oakland, California, one of the largest parishes in the Bay area. The Towers, a suburban retirement home, was recently constructed in keeping with the growing trend of churches to provide homes for retired persons. Eric will direct the cultural and educational events for the residents of the home. Hubert, a former Dallas banker, has been active in local, state and national work of the National Association of Church Business Administrators. He serves as a national director and as editor of NACBA. Eric is a director of the Broadway Theater League of Tulsa, the American Guild of Organists, and a member of the English Speaking Union.

R. E. WHITSON, JR., still travels extensively in the United States and Canada for the Ceramic Division of Georgia Kaolin Company and writes that he meets a number of W&L men. Dick lives in Elizabeth, New Jersey.

The prominent young businessman and community leader, RICHARD A. PIZITZ, has been named to the Young Leadership Cabinet of the United Jewish Appeal. Mr. Pizitz, a Birmingham, Alabama, resident and businessman, is a Director and former General Chairman of the United Jewish Fund. He is a former president of the Better Business Bureau of Birmingham and the Alabama Council of Retail Merchants. Mr. Pizitz is a vice president and assistant to the president in a family business which includes department store management and realty.

1952

BORN: MR. and MRS. HELMUT H. HUBER, a son, FRANZ JOSE, on May 8, 1966. The family lives in Colonia El Carmen, Guatemala.

BORN: MR. and MRS. EDWARD MATZ, JR., a daughter, Elizabeth, on February 1, 1966. Ed is Vice President of Kurly Kate Corp. in Chicago, and he recently purchased a Colorado business, the Allied Wood Products, Inc.

ROBERT M. BAYLER is sales manager for Fruehauf Trailer Corporation in Richmond, Virginia.

DONALD K. WILLIAMS is supervisor of programming for Hartford Federal Savings and Loan Association of Hartford, Connecticut. Don is a section leader of the John Birch Society. He and his wife have two children.

JOEL B. COOPER has been reelected President of the Norfolk (Virginia) Child and Family Service which is a community adoption and family counseling agency. Also the board of visitors of the Richmond Professional Institute has elected Joel as chairman of "Advisory Committee" to the School of Social Work. While still practicing tax law, Joel has also been elected to the Board of Directors of WAVY-Radio and T.V., an N.B.C. affiliate.

HORACE W. DIETRICH, JR., is married to the former Miss Nancy Kelly of Philadelphia. The couple have a daughter and live in Baltimore. Horace has been promoted to the rank of Commander in the U.S. Naval Reserve.

In the Republican Primary of Ohio on May 8, F. STEWART ELLIOTT, an attorney in Lima, sought election as Judge of the Court of Appeals.

The Carolina Forge Co. of Salisbury, N. C., has elected WILLIAM H. LYON to its Board of Directors. He has served as sales manager since the company was formed. Bill and his wife have three daughters.

The Wise County Chamber of Commerce selected KENT RIGG as "Wise County's Outstanding Citizen of 1965."

BOYD H. LEYBURN has been living in Nashville, Tennessee, since June, 1965, where he is a group merchandising manager with Sears, Roebuck & Company.

JAMES R. VINSON has joined the Washington head-quartered National Association of Wholesalers as director of services. Most recently he has been with the Ashland Oil and Refining Company.

ERNEST H. CLARKE has been elected junior warden of St. Francis in the Fields Episcopal Church in Louisville, Ky.

THOMAS R. WARFIELD was transferred on January 1, 1966, from Los Angeles to the New York headquarters of Blyth & Company as assistant to the president.

One of the five awards made by the Public Relations Society of America went to the National Right to Work Committee. The Director of Information for the NRWC is HUGH C. NEWTON. The committee was honored for its 1965 public affairs program to preserve Section 14 (b) of the Taft-Hartley Act.

JOHN J. SCHUMACHER is Sales Manager of Structural Stoneware Company, a brick manufacturer in Minerva, Ohio. He travels all over the country. His wife and three children live in Canton, Ohio.

PAUL D. WEILL has been named supervisor, field management training, by Aetna Life & Casualty Insurance Company of Hartford, Connecticut. Paul joined Aetna in 1959. He is a member of the National Association of Life Underwriters.

1953

H. WILLIAM HOFFMAN, author and resident of Charlotte Court House, Virginia, has written another novel—his fifth—entitled "Yancey's War." The book is published by Doubleday & Company, Inc. Other novels by Hoffman are: "The Trumpet Unblown," "Days in the Yellow Leaf," "A Place for My Head," "The Dark Mountains."

DR. T. KYLE CRESON, JR., is practicing internal medicine and hematology in Memphis. Also he is teaching at the medical branch of the University of Tennessee in Memphis. Kyle and his wife, Jane, have two sons.

In February, CHARLES SCOTT MAY left St. Paul's church in Newport, Arkansas, to become assistant rector of Trinity Church in Columbia.

JAROSLAV A. DRABEK plans to visit Czechoslovakia with his wife and young son, Jan. They will make the trip this summer.

Next summer DR. HARRY A. FOZZARD will move to Chicago to be in the Cardiology Department of the University of Chicago Medical School.

1954

MARRIED: HAROLD JOSEPH QUINN, JR., and Judith Crow were married in Shreveport, Louisiana, on June 3, 1965. Harold is practicing otolaryngology in Shreveport.

BORN: DR. and MRS. WILLIAM B. INABNET, a son, William Barlow, III, on August 4, 1965. The family lives in Greensboro, North Carolina.

BORN: MR. and MRS. JAMES R. TRIMM, a daughter, Nancy Suzanne, on March 9, 1966. The family lives in Silver Spring, Maryland.

Having produced two motion pictures in Italy, PAUL M. MASLANSKY is in Rome as production executive with United Artists. He is currently working on preparation of a new Fellini picture, "Anyone for Venice," with Rex Harrison and Susan Haywood.

After spending 1961 in Great Britain doing research work for his dissertation, DR. HENRY P. PORTER, JR., served as an instructor in history at Miami University (Oxford, Ohio). He returned to Duke University in 1964-65 to complete his dissertation and received a Ph.D. in history. The dissertation is entitled Strategy, Speculation, and Capitulation: The Background to British East Africa 1873-1890. Receiving an appointment as a fellow in International Studies, Dr. Porter was sent by Duke to the Makerere University College of East Africa as a visiting lecturer. After traveling widely in East Africa last year, he returned to Miami University as Associate Professor.

S. T. PIERPOINT is in Cristobal, Canal Zone, where he is operating an import and export business for W. Andrews and Company.

RICHARD R. ROSS is product manager for Andrew Jergens Co. of Cincinnati.

JOHN D. HANNON, together with a group of employees including A. C. HUBBARD, 59-A, '62-LL.B., and WILLIAM B. THOMPSON, '54, has recently purchased control of T. Rowe Price & Associates, investment counsel of Baltimore and New York. The firm has had successful growth and now has an international clientele.

JACK A. SITES has been promoted by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company from a staff assignment in the home office in Akron to be assistant manager of a new distribution center outside Baltimore. He will handle the East Coast for Goodyear, from Philadelphia to Richmond.

ROBERT E. BRADFORD, '54, with former VICE-PRESIDENT RICHARD NIXON.

NICHOLAS G. MANDAK is an attorney in Clifton, New Jersey. He was married in May, 1964, to the former Lorraine Petrek and the couple have a son, Jeffrey Scott Mandak, born July 9, 1965.

JAMES D. BONEBRAKE of Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company is president of the Cleveland Life Underwriters Association, a non-profit service organization representing almost all of the major life insurance companies in Cleveland and more than 1250 life insurance agents. Jim has been a member of the Million Dollar Round Table for six of the last eight years.

JAMES D. BONEBRAKE, '54

Former Vice President Richard Nixon is shown with ROBERT E. BRADFORD during a recent visit by Mr. Nixon to Washington. He spoke at a luncheon of the Bull Elephants, assistants to Republican Senators and Congressmen, of which Bradford is president. Bradford is the administrative assistant to Congressman Richard Poff of Virginia.

1955

BORN: MR. and MRS. EUGENE B. SIEMINSKI, JR., a son, Jason, on November 11, 1965. Gene continues his studies for the Ph.D. at American University, Washington, D.C., in the field of management technology, where he is a research associate with the real estate department of the university. In addition he is the editor of Washington Real Estate Letter and has started a market and economic research firm, Market Metrics.

GUY P. METCALFE, JR., is president of Metcalfe and Company of Louisville, Kentucky. He and his wife, Barbara Ann, have a son, Guy, III.

At the University of Maryland DOUGLAS E. RITCHIE, JR., is a faculty research assistant at the Chesapeake Biological Lab of the Natural Resources Institute. He is assisting in research of striped bass and flounder in Maryland's tidewater of Chesapeake Bay and tributaries. He was also recently appointed a registered representative of Financial Programs, Inc.

JOHN T. HUDDLE, attorney in Lancaster, Pennsylvania, has been elected to his fourth successive term as Law Director for the City of Lancaster.

ROLAND CROCKER DAVIES, JR. started the practice of architecture in Philadelphia in December, 1965. He lives with his family in Society Hill which is a historical area in Philadelphia now being restored and Roland is restoring his own house. The Davies' second son, Eric Seuel, was born June 28th, 1965.

1956

MARRIED: JAMES B. LUNGER and Janet Corbin were married August 14, 1965. Janet is a math teacher in Waynesboro where Jim is the Science Supervisor in the Waynesboro (Va.) Public Schools.

Formerly the Teacher Education Director and Chairman of the Social Studies Department at North Carolina Advancement School, DR. SAMUEL A. SYME, JR., has been named Assistant Professor of Education at Wake Forest College in Winston-Salem, North Carolina, effective September 1, 1966.

JAMES W. MARVIN, JR., has recently been elected vice president of the Philadelphia Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The Gordon Woodside Gallery of Seattle and San Francisco will present the art work of FORREST LEE MOSES, JR., in San Francisco April 22-May 12. Pete received his art training at Washington and Lee, Pratt Institute in New York, and independent study in Europe. He has shown in group exhibits in Virginia, New York and Texas, and has had one-man shows at the David Gallery in Houston.

RUPERT F. CHISHOLM, JR., is now the employee relations administrator for Esso research and is headquartered in Brussels, Belgium. This company is a recently formed organization established by Esso to conduct research and technical service activities in the chemical field.

JOHN W. DUNCAN has returned from his Swiss Dental Practice and is opening his practice in Richmond, Virginia.

EDGAR LEVAN GROVE has bought Shenk Bros., a sporting goods business in Lancaster, Pennsylvania. The store is one of the oldest established businesses in Eastern Pennsylvania, and it will continue to operate under the name of Shenk Bros. For the past seven years Grove has been employed in the Public Relations and Public Affairs Department of Armstrong Cork. He makes his home in Lancaster where he is active in civic and church work, particularly the United Fund Campaign.

1957

BORN: MR. and MRS. CHARLES M. DRUM, a daughter, Amy Nielsen, on April 13, 1966. There are two other little Drums in the family. Charles is employed as a member of the technical staff at Bell Laboratories and they live in Allentown, Pennsylvania.

GEORGE S. GEE, JR., is a real estate broker in Dallas, Texas. He and his wife announce the arrival of a second daughter, Karen, on July 9, 1965.

JOEL H. BERNSTEIN has been appointed Assistant Professor of Art at Mary Washington College effective September, 1966. He plans to write his Ph.D. thesis while teaching. He will teach American Art and Architecture in the 19th and 20th century.

JAMES M. BOSWELL and his wife, June, are currently living in South Charleston, West Virginia, where Jim is Division Sales Promotion Manager for Kroger Company. The couple has two sons.

CAPTAIN ALFRED J. MAGOLINE, JR., is in his third year of residency training at Walter Reed U.S. Army Hospital specializing in ear, nose, and throat.

DONALD C. SPANN and his brother, Henry, own and operate Village Galleries, a home furnishing concern in Greenville, South Carolina. The sales territory is the entire Eastern Seaboard and Dan covers much of it in the company's plane.

CHARLES B. RICHARDSON is a pilot trainee with United Airlines in Denver, Colorado.

CHARLES R. THOMPSON is now associated with the brokerage and investment banking firm of Tucker, Anthony and R. L. Day of New York City.

DR. ROBERT C. TOLLE is working in Cincinnati with the "Project Headstart." He has a private practice of dentistry.

ROBERT A. CAIRNS moved to Winter Park, Florida, in 1966. He is manager of one of the largest sales offices of the Consolidated Electrodynamics Corporation.

WALTER C. CREMIN, JR., has become a partner in Woodrow Mann & Company of Houston. The firm is in the business of insurance and financial security planning.

CHARLES KANNAPELL has been appointed Manager of the Kansas City Branch Office of American Air Filter Company. He joined this company after graduation and completed the firm's technical training school before being assigned to the Washington, D.C., branch office. For the past several years he has been eastern regional supervisor for the Air Filter Division in Louisville and in 1961 was the recipient of the Robert W. Nelson Award which is presented annually to the firm's outstanding young salesman of the year.

A. JACKSON MASON has added the duties of Executive Secretary of the Eastern Shore of the Virginia Chamber of Commerce to his real estate business. The Masons and their three sons live in Accomac, Virginia.

1958

MARRIED: WILLIAM B. WISDOM, JR., and Helen Hauser Mitteer were married February 19, 1966. Bill is practicing law in New Orleans.

ROSS G. PICKUS has been elected president of Postgraph Corporation, a manufacturer of specialty envelopes.

THOMAS F. KING, JR., was recently named a vice-president of Charter Commercial and Investment Loan Co. of Jacksonville, Florida. The firm, a subsidiary of the Charter Co., specializes in the financing of commercial and income producing properties.

In March 1965, JOHN C. BINFORD moved from Dallas to Albuquerque, New Mexico, to become manager of Goodbody & Co., a member of the New York Stock Exchange. He and his wife, Julie, have two children.

JAMES J. CRAWFORD, JR., is a geologist with Sunray DX Oil Company of Tulsa, Oklahoma. He presently lives in Columbus, Ohio. Since joining Sunray he has done research to find oil and gas supplies over the central part of the United States.

AVERY B. JUHRING is presently enrolled at the Goethe Institute in Rotenburg O. T. Germany. Later he plans to work for Singer Company in Germany before enrolling at the European Institute of Business Administration in Fontainebleau next September.

CHARLES P. CORN is teaching American literature at American University in Washington, D.C. He and his wife, the former Katherine Hayes, have one son and the family has been spending summer vacations in Mexico. They live in Bethesda.

DR. WATSON G. (WAT) WATRING is presently in his second year of obstetrics and gynecology at Indiana University. He expects to join the Army Medical Corps in March, 1966, and to be stationed at Fort Devens, Massachusetts.

The feature editor for Training in Business and Industry, a Gellert-Wolfman publication, is SIDNEY SCOTT WHIPPLE.

CHARLES DAVID HILDRETH is a full time student at Georgetown College where he plans to major in English with expectations of teaching in high school.

THE REV. JAMES LEWIS is curate at St. Anne's Episcopal Church in Annapolis. Jim is also a volunteer coach with the Navy team of lacrosse and is credited with greatly improving the husky goalie's game which resulted in 76 saves for the first eight contests. Jim finds a dual purpose to his partime lacrosse coaching: "I minister to a lot of these midshipmen. I also keep in good shape while getting to know them better."

JAMES E. LIPSCOMB of Greenville, S. C., has been nominated to the coveted Million Dollar Round Table for insurance salesmen. He will attend a national meeting in Boston in June.

PHILIP H. WEEKS, JR., has been appointed district manager of the Connecticut General Life Insurance Company's Wilkes-Barre office, a district of the company's Philadelphia office. Phil joined Connecticut General in 1964 as a brokerage consultant in the Philadelphia office. He recently attended a seminar held in Hartford, Connecticut. Phil was among a select group from the Company's agencies throughout the country who met to exchange ideas at the seminar. He and his wife, Ann, have two daughters and they make their home in Bear Creek, Pennsylvania.

C. PARKHILL MAYS, JR., and his wife, Mason, are now living in Lakeland, Florida, where Parkhill is a partner in the law firm of Holland, Bevis, Smith, Kibler and Hall. The couple have a son.

ALLAN JOHN MEAD, formerly with the Chemical Bank and Trust Company for six years, has been named an assistant vice-president of the First National Bank of Maryland. He assumed his new duties in the Baltimore bank's loan and investment department in March.

THEODORE G. RICH, JR., travels in Europe for Gimble Company. He and his wife have a one-year-old daughter.

1959

MARRIED: JOHN C. FAY, JR., and Miss Mary Lyons were married April 16, 1966, in Sylacauga, Alabama. John is with the United States Pipe & Foundry Company in Birmingham, Alabama.

MARRIED: MURRAY M. WADSWORTH and Miss Mary Madison were married April 30, 1966, in Miami, Florida. Murray is assistant U.S. Attorney in Tallahassee.

WILLIAM H. PIXTON has been teaching freshman English at the University of North Carolina since September, 1965. Bill expects to complete his Ph.D. requirements in 1968.

JOHN WORSHAM has accepted an appointment as intern psychologist at Bellevue Psychiatric Hospital in New York City.

Captain ROBERT C. KETCHAM is in Fort Riley, Kansas, after three years on active duty in Paris, France. He is currently serving in a Reserve Officer capacity. The Ketchams have two children.

EUGENE GIRARD, II, is in Colombia, South America, with the Medellin Branch of the First National City Bank of New York. He expects to be in the States for a vacation this summer.

IRVIN EBAUGH is Eastern sales manager for Bruning Paint Company. He works out of Baltimore, Maryland, where he and his wife, the former Julia Scott Todd, live with their two children.

In February RALPH M. EVANS became a member of the New York Stock Exchange and a partner in the firm of M. H. Silver & Company.

PHILIP H. WEEKS, '58

C. ROYCE HOUGH is assistant cashier of the Wachovia Bank & Trust Company in Winston-Salem. He and his wife, Harriet, have three sons.

After receiving his Ph.D. in Chemistry from Cornell University in the fall of 1963, JOHN C. KOTZ and his wife, Katie, went to England on a post-doctoral fellowship from the U.S. National Cancer Institute. After a year in Manchester doing research at the Manchester College of Science and Technology and the addition of a son, David, born July 1964, the family returned to the States and went to Indiana University. In 1965 John started his career at Kansas State University as assistant professor in the chemistry department. In addition to his course work, he directs the Ph.D. research of four graduate students.

JAMES A. WOOD, '59

RICHARD A. POWELL is teaching at the Woodbridge School at the RAF station in Suffolk, England. The school is for American Air Force dependent children.

CHARLES R. SPENCER, JR., has been promoted to Assistant Vice-president of Mason & Company, Inc., member of the New York Stock Exchange with headquarters in Newport News. Charles is active in the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Peninsula United Fund, the YMCA Board of Directors. He is married to the former Ann Douglas Scott of Lynchburg and the couple have a young son.

In San Juan, Puerto Rico, JOHN H. ESPERIAN is head of the English Department at St. John's Prep School and a part time English instructor at the University of Puerto Rico.

LEWIS HENRY LARUE is Trial Attorney, Civil Rights Division, U.S. Department of Justice, Washington, D.C.

EDGAR MILLER BABER is a representative for the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States in the Richmond, Virginia, office. The Babers have a year-old son, E. Miller, Jr.

Following fourteen months in military duty in Korea and the Republic of Vietnam, DR. DAVID M. BAKER returned to the States in January, 1966. He is presently assigned to Walter Reed General Hospital in Washington, D.C.

JOHN K. DAUGHTREY, JR., has settled in Richmond, Virginia. Jack is a registered representative with the stock brokerage firm of Abbot, Proctor & Paine.

ROBERT EDWARD SHEPHERD, JR., has become a member of the new law firm in Richmond, Virginia, Smith and Shepherd, with offices in the Mutual Building.

JAMES ROBERT LOWE is a captain in the Army and is presently attending the Ordnance Corps Career Class at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Maryland. In May he will begin a tour in Vietnam. The Lowes have two children—Bill, who is five, and Kathy, who is three.

Leaving Newport News where he has been Humble's oil heat sales supervisor, JAMES A. WOOD has been moved to Norfolk and promoted to Dealer Sales Supervisor for the Eastern Esso Region of Humble Oil Co. Jim joined Humble in 1959 in Roanoke; advanced to general salesman at Covington in 1961; and Newport News in 1963.

1960

MARRIED: SANFRED LARSON and Katherine Laqueur were married on April 30, 1966. The couple resides in Washington, D.C., where Sandy devotes a great deal of time to painting and drawing. His wife sits as his model. He also teaches at St. Albans School for Boys.

MARRIED: After graduation in 1960 GORDON E. ROUNTREE and Laura Lee Wickersham of Jacksonville, Florida, were married. Gordon then served two years with the U.S. Army in Berlin and upon his release from duty entered the L.S.U. Law School in September, 1963. Being graduated in May, 1966, he was second in his class, editor of the Law Review, a member of the Order of the Coif, and O.D.K. Gordon and Laura live in Baton Rouge, La.

MARRIED: CHARLES EDWARD DOWMAN, IV, and Marlys Elaine Paxman were married March 21, 1966, in Norwalk, California. The new couple spent their honeymoon in Hawaii.

MARRIED: ALLEN MEAD FERGUSON and Mary Rutherford Mercer were married April 23, 1966, in Richmond, Virginia.

BORN: DR. and MRS. JOSEPH E. RINGLAND, a daughter, Judith Masters, on November 5, 1965. The family lives in New York City.

BORN: MR. and MRS. J. OWEN WISE, a daughter, Beth, born Oct. 30, 1965. Owen was admitted to the Maryland Bar Association in December, 1965, and is now in private practice with his father. He and his family live in Denton, Maryland.

BORN: MR. and MRS. JAMES P. BOLDRICK, a son, James Miles, on November 6, 1965. The family lives in Midland, Texas.

BORN: MR. and MRS. WALTER C. FOULKE, a son, Kenton, on December 7, 1965. The Foulkes live in Union Springs, New York.

FRANK GLASER is a securities analyst with Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith in New York City.

Admitted to the Louisiana Bar in August, 1963, HARLEY B. HOWCOTT, JR., is in private practice in New Orleans. He received his law degree from Tulane.

THOMAS R. OAKLEY, JR., has recently gone into business for himself as a concrete contractor primarily in Northern Virginia. He is active in the National Association of Home Builders. He and his wife, Marta, have three children and they live in a new home in Annandale, Virginia.

PHILIP B. ROBERTSON is on the research staff of the University of Miami at the Institute of Marine Science. He expects to have his Ph.D. in the summer of 1966.

JOHN C. HISLEY is a resident doctor in obstetrics and gynecology at the University Hospital in Baltimore, Maryland.

CHARLES S. CHAMBERLIN is working in the Mortgage Loan department of the Aetna Life Insurance Co. in Hartford, Conn.

J. FRANK SURFACE is practicing law with the firm of Mahony, Hadlow, Chambers, and Adams in Jacksonville, Florida. He and his wife have a two-year-old son.

CHARLES W. SPRINGER is employed by Manufacturers Hanover Trust Company in their International Division, Far Eastern Territory.

WALTER G. THOMPSON is an executive assistant to IBEC. The International Basic Economy Corporation is a Rockefeller founded private enterprise principally interested in investments in under-developed nations, thereby assisting economic growth. He and his wife and daughter live in Sao Paulo, Brazil.

DR. MERVYN F. SILVERMAN is a physician with the Peace Corps. He and his wife, Debbie, with daughter Lauren, have been in Thailand for the past six months where Merv has approximately 375 volunteers under his care. The Silvermans expect to be on this assignment until June, 1967.

JOHN M. BRADFORD is Director of Customer Service for Plantation Patterns, Inc., of Birmingham, Alabama.

NATHAN C. CLAUNCH received his Ph.D. degree in Psychology from Princeton University in 1964. He is now on the staff of the Merrill-Palmer Institute in Detroit and is also staff psychologist for the Detroit Orthopedic Clinic. His wife, Carolyn, is doing biochemical research at Wayne University in Detroit.

JAMES RANDOLPH HICKMAN is at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute working on his Ph.D. degree in electrical engineering. He and his wife have a son, Thomas Kelly, born in April, 1965.

JOHN R. PLEASANT, JR., is an instructor of freshman and sophomore English at Southeastern Louisiana College in Hammond, Louisiana.

1961

BORN: MR. and MRS. WILLIAM T. BUICE, III, a daughter, Merrill Stuart, on May 9, 1966. The family lives in New York City.

BORN: MR. and MRS. WILLIAM N. MARTIN, a daughter, Rebecca Dunn, on February 21, 1966. The new arrival joins a sister, Cynthia, and the family lives in Hartford, Connecticut, where Billy is with the Aetna Life Insurance Company.

With the rank of lieutenant (j.g.) RICHARD L. KUERSTEINER is a law specialist after completion of the Navy Justice School in Newport, R. I. He expects to be assigned to Manila in the Philippines.

EDWIN B. BOATNER is presently a student in the School of Sacred Music at Union Theological Seminary in New York City. At the Seminary Edwin was pianist for their winter musical review, "Exodus and Easter." He is also organist in a five-member Baroque chamber ensemble which he organized in 1965. Edwin was conductor of a performance of the Faure Requiem at the First Presbyterian Church in Forest Hills in April, 1966, and is scheduled to give an organ recital at St. James' Episcopal Church, New York City, in May.

For the next two years, CHARLES S. WASUM, III, will be assigned to the University of Washington Hospital as a resident physician in pediatrics.

The Standard Oil Company of California has named THOMAS H. ALEXANDER as its Associate Specialist in their Special Products Division.

In the forestry graduate school at V.P.I., DWIGHT D. CHAMBERLAIN has been initiated into Phi Sigma, a national honorary biology fraternity and also into Xi Sigma Pi, a national honorary forestry fraternity. Dwight has been elected president of the V.P.I. Student Chapter of The Wildlife Society.

After finishing medical internship at the University of Oklahoma this year DAVID V. EAKIN will be assigned to an Air Force Base in Turkey.

After four years in sales with Thelmany Pulp and Paper Company, JOHN F. SANDERS resigned to go into farming. He acquired a 90-acre farm outside of Troy, Ohio, where he is primarily in the cattle feeding operation.

JACK H. BREARD, JR., sold his magazine subscription agency to EBSCO of Birmingham. In the transaction Jack became the general manager of the company for the Southwest Area. EBSCO is the world's largest diversified subscription agency with offices throughout the United States, in Tokyo, and in Frankfurt, Germany.

HOWARD W. ZIMMERMAN received his master's degree from N.Y.U. in June, 1965, and is now a Ph.D. candidate.

HAYWOOD BALL for the past two years has been practicing law in Jacksonville, Florida, with the firm of Ulmer, Murchison, Kent, Ashley & Ball. He and his wife, Anna, have a young son, Haywood, Jr., born October 3, 1965.

WALTER J. CRATER, JR., employed by Atlantic Research Corp., is working on his master's of Engineering Administration at George Washington University.

Since March, 1965, PETER G. SCHMIDT has been sales and product development manager for the Mexican subsidiary of Bata Shoe Organization of Toronto, Canada. This subsidiary, Sandak, S.A., is the largest shoe manufacturer in Mexico.

J. CARTER FOX has been promoted from project accountant to staff assistant to the manager of woodlands of The Chesapeake Corporation of Virginia in West Point, Virginia. He will assist in preparing reports and staff projects relating to forest resources and their utilization by the pulp and paper company.

In February FLEMING KEEFE was transferred by Humble Oil Company to the Newport News Area. He will make his home in Hampton, Virginia.

1962

MARRIED: ROBERT PATRICK CARROLL, JR., and Gladys Fagelson were married on June 18, 1966, in Annandale, Virginia.

MARRIED: THOMAS B. SHERWOOD and Miss Rebecca Talbot Whitfield, a graduate of Queens College and from Moultrie, Georgia, were married April 16, 1966. Among the groomsmen were PAUL PLAWIN, '60, and DR. WILLIAM J. FIDLER, '61. The new couple lives in Ahsokie, North Carolina, where Tom is employed by Columbian Peanut Company.

MARRIED: LESLIE H. PEARD, III, was married February 12, 1966, to the former Helene C. Johnson of Tulsa, Oklahoma. He is employed by the United California Bank in San Francisco.

MARRIED: In June 1965, JAY C. GREEN married Miss Luida R. Karlan of Springfield, Ohio. At present Jay is a senior at the Dental School of the University of Maryland. He is in the Navy Dental Corps and will go on active duty after graduation from school.

BORN: DR. and MRS. HENRY D. HOLLAND, a daughter, Kathryn Lynette, on March 21, 1966. Henry received his M.D. degree from the Medical College of Virginia in June, 1966, and he is now serving a rotating internship at the Norfolk General Hospital.

BORN: MR. and MRS. WILLIAM L. ROBERTS, JR., a daughter, Elizabeth Lock, on January 4, 1966. Bill is with the international division of the First National City Bank of New York and is presently assigned to their branch in Beirut, Lebanon.

BORN: MR. and MRS. ALLYN D. KANTOR, a second daughter, Rebecca Jean, on March 11, 1966. The family lives in Harrogate, England, where Allyn is a first lieutenant with the U.S. Army. He expects to return to the States in October, 1966, and will join the law firm of DeVere & Devine in Ann Arbor, Michigan.

BORN: MR. and MRS. STANLEY A. WALTON, III, a daughter, Katherine Mary, on May 5, 1966. Sandy received his law degree from Washington and Lee in 1965 and is currently associated with a law firm in Chicago.

THOMAS L. FEAZELL is with the Ashland Oil and Refining Co. serving in the legal department. The family, wife Gigi and two children, live in Ashland, Kentucky.

SPRING 1966

After graduating from the University of Virginia Law School in June, 1965, R. WILLIAM IDE, III, was law clerk in the office of the judge of the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta, Georgia. In the fall of 1966 he started practicing in Atlanta with the law firm of King & Spaulding.

STEVE SUTTLE is clerking for Judge Leo Brewster, U.S. District Judge, in Fort Worth, Texas. Steve received his law degree from the University of Texas.

PHILIP D. SHARP, JR., is with the First Marine Division at Chu Lai, which is about forty miles south of Da Nang. He is in the Legal Headquarters and writes that approximately fifteen cases are processed each month. Phil expects to be assigned to State's duty in September.

At a December, 1965, meeting the stockholders of Underwood Builders Supply Company of Mobile elected M. WILLIAM MYERS as a director.

Continuing his work begun two years ago, VERNON LANCE TARRANCE, JR., is the Research Director of the Texas Republican Party with state headquarters in Austin. At the same time Lance is attending the University of Texas where he is working toward a master's degree in government.

GEORGE A. CRUGER is assistant city editor of the Portchester (New York) Daily Item.

RICHARD ALAN RADIS has opened offices in Ft. Lauderdale, for the general practice of law.

WILLIAM CLARENCE BOYD, III, is practicing law in Columbia, S. C., with the firm of Boyd, Bruton, Knowlton and Tate.

MICHAEL A. HENRY received his law degree from the University of Texas. He has recently become associated with Thomas J. Lykos in the practice of law in Houston.

JAMES A. GWINN, JR., is senior salesman for Scott Paper Co. in New Orleans. Jimmy saw Army duty in Panama and while there met Miss Dorothy Moses who later became his wife. The couple live in Metairie, Louisiana, and have a seven months old son, James III.

Following graduation, WILLIAM B. JORDON, JR., entered the Institute of Fine Arts at N.Y.U. and received a master's degree from that institution in June, 1964. His field is Spanish XVIIth century painting. By October, 1965, he passed his major and minor examinations for the Ph.D. To complete his dissertation, Bill will spend two or three months in Spain this spring. While at the Institute of Fine Arts, Bill was president of the student body, a member of the Board of Editors of Marsyas, and Editor-in-Chief of the Institute of Fine Arts News. When he returns from Spain he expects to rejoin the staff of Rothrock, Reynolds and Reynolds, a management consultant firm in New York as a consultant in their department of museums and cultural institutions.

1963

MARRIED: ALLAN NEIL CRAWFORD, JR., and Margaret Pidcock Pippin were married on November 21, 1965. The new couple lives in Atlanta, Georgia, where Allan is an underwriter with Life Insurance Company of Georgia.

MARRIED: A. JUDSON BABCOCK and Patricia Greene were married on November 27, 1965, in New Jersey. Judson is a senior financial analyst at Manufacturers Hanover Trust Company.

MARRIED: JAMES L. PETERS and the former Miss Frances Carey of Jacksonville, Alabama, were married June 12, 1965, at Ft. McClellan, Alabama. After release from army duty in October, 1965, Jim joined the firm of Peters and Peters in Atlanta.

MARRIED: DAVID F. PETERS and Jane Catherine Witherspoon were married August 21, 1965. The bride is a graduate of St. Catherine's School in Richmond and Duke University. Dave expects to finish Duke Law School this June. He will be associated with the law firm of Hunton, Williams, Gay, Powell and Gibson in Richmond.

BORN: MR. and MRS. E. PHILIP McCALEB, a daughter, Sara Woodward, on February 6, 1966. The family lives in Craddockville, Virginia, where Phil is a volunteer coach of the undefeated Central High School J.V. football team.

BORN: MR. and MRS. BRUCE H. ROBERSON, a son, David Bruce, on April 17, 1966. The father graduated in June, 1966, from the Virginia Law School and will be associated with the firm of Morris, Nichols, Arsh & Tunnell in Wilmington, Delaware. Bruce expects to enter military service in early 1967.

BORN: MR. and MRS. JOHN P. COVER, a daughter, Anne Randolph Cover, on October 14, 1965. John is with the market research department of Procter and Gamble.

As a lieutenant (j.g.) in the Navy, H. MICHAEL WALKER serves as navigator aboard the U.S.S. Aldebaran (AFIO) whose home port is Norfolk. Mickey will be discharged from the Navy in July, 1966, and plans to enter the graduate school of business at the University of Virginia.

After finishing his third year at Medical School at the University of Maryland, EDWARD B. OSTROFF spent the summer of 1965 at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minnesota. He plans to spend the summer of 1966 in Israel at Hadassah Medical hospital in Jerusalem.

NICHOLAS MONSARRAT is an airman stationed at Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines. He is practicing journalism in the department of Public Relations. He and his wife have one son.

After working for Hayden, Stone, Inc., New York City, J. M. GORE FRIEDRICH has opened an office for the New Orleans firm of Howard, Weil, Labouisse, Friedrichs & Co., a Louisiana based investment banking firm. He is the manager of the New York office doing general securities business.

EDWIN P. GARRETSON, JR., is working on his Ph.D. degree at the University of Chicago.

ROBERT M. AUBURN will graduate from Duke Medical School in January, 1967, and he has an internship at Duke for 1967-68. He then plans to specialize in obstetrics and gynecology.

After receiving his law degree from the University of Richmond in June, 1965, G. ANDREW NEA, JR., became the law clerk for Justice H. F. Snead, Virginia State Supreme Court of Appeals.

DONALD S. CAMPBELL is now on the University of Delaware faculty as an instructional technologist. This involves producing educational television material.

W. LEWIS LEIGH, JR., has joined the law firm of Leigh, Kincheloe & Swart in Fairfax, Virginia.

Released from Army duty February, 1966, with the rank of First Lieutenant, ANDREW A. SMITH, JR., is back at work at the Wilmington Trust Co. in Wilmington, Delaware.

CHARLES S. (CHUCK) LANE, former star athlete at Washington and Lee, has been named publicity director of the Green Bay Packers. Chuck has been in the promotion business for the last three years and has handled promotion for the Harlem Globetrotters and the Minnesota Vikings.

H. KIRKLAND HENRY, JR., reports he is in the accelerated training program of Household Finance Corp. in Chicago, Illinois.

CLARENCE RENSHAW is serving as Assistant Information Officer with the Army's 1st Logistical Command Headquarters, Saigon, Vietnam. He arrived in Vietnam in January after serving with the information office at Ft. Dix. He holds the rank of 2nd Lieutenant.

1964

MARRIED: E. RANDOLPH WOOTTON, JR., and Susan H. White of Baltimore were married February 12, 1966. Randy received his master's degree in Business Administration from Columbia University and is now employed by Arthur Anderson & Company of New York City.

MARRIED: JOHN P. RAY and Marion Harcourt were married September 18, 1965, in Louisville, Kentucky. John is employed by Carter Paint Co., Industrial Sales Division, out of Nashville, Tennessee.

MARRIED: WILLIAM H. MARMION, JR., and Miss Jane Ross Lemon were married December 28, 1965. The couple lives in Cambridge, Mass., where Bill is completing work on his master's degree in teaching. Next year he plans to study at the Episcopal Theological School in a program designed to test one's vocation for the ministry.

BORN: LT. and MRS. ROBERT E. LEE, their second child, a daughter, Brandy Lynne, on November 17, 1965. Lt. Lee is serving with the 101st Airborne Division stationed in Viet Nam. He is due to return in July, 1966, after a year's service.

EDWARD S. CROFT, III, is a lieutenant assigned with the 155th Army Transportation Company at Camp Raub Bay in Viet Nam.

Following graduation from Harvard Business School in June JUSON P. REIS and his wife, Judith, will move to New York City, where Jud is to begin work with Morgan Stanley Company, investment bankers.

In his third year as a bachelor of divinity student at Yale Divinity School, ROGER W. PAINE, III, is editor of Reflections, Yale's journal of religious opinion. He was the recipient of the TEW prize for academic excellence as a first-year student. His wife, Judy, teaches English in the New Haven junior high School.

Having completed his graduate work in Columbia School of Business, BURTON B. STANAR is starting work for Colgate-Palmolive Company.

FREDERICK J. (RICK) KRALL graduated from Harvard Business School in June and expects to enter the Army for a two-year tour of duty. Following this military duty, Rick will be with the General Foods Corporation in their product management.

JOHN MILTON McDANIEL, III, has finished his work for an M.A. at the University of Pennsylvania and intends to go on toward his Ph.D. degree in anthropology.

JOHN MICHAELSEN graduated in February with a master's in Business Administration from Columbia Business School. He is now working for Union Carbide Company in New York City. He expects to start Naval OCS program soon.

BRICE R. GAMBER is serving as a 2nd Lieutenant in the Ordnance Corps assigned to the 4th Infantry Division at Ft. Lewis, Washington. He was married in the summer of 1965 to Miss Carol Evergam of Baltimore. JIM BOARDMAN, '65, BOB LATHROP, '59, JOHNNY McDAN-IEL, '64, JOHN MICHAELSON, '65, and SAM PIPES, '64 were ushers.

PETER H. ALFORD is enjoying his first year of teaching French, and coaching club soccer, varsity squash and tennis at Berkshire School. He will return to France this summer as leader of a group of students.

BRITAIN H. BRYANT became associated with the law firm of Dudley and Brown in Christainsted, St. Croix, Virgin Islands, in March 1966. He and his wife, the former Peyton Greshorn of Louisville, Kentucky, reside in St. Croix permanently. In addition to being admitted to the Virgin Island Bar, he is also a member of the Bar of the State of Kentucky.

CHARLES B. ROWE practiced law with F. BERT PULLEY, '51, in Courtland, Virginia, during the summer of 1964 and then entered active duty with the U.S. Army, Fort Polk, Louisiana, commissioned a first lieutenant in the Judge Advocate General's Corps. In December, 1965, he was promoted to captain.

During the summer of 1965, HARRY L. PARLETTE, III, served on active duty with the U.S. Navy's Experimental Deep-Sea Diving Unit. He is an Ensign in the U.S. Naval Reserve. Presently he is finishing his second year at Georgetown University's School of Medicine.

LT. SMITH HICKENLOOPER, III, is stationed at Qui Non in Viet Nam.

JOHNNY P. EDWARDS is at the American University of Beirut, in Lebanon, on a Rotary Foundation Fellowship for 1965-66. He expects to return to the Law School at the University of Texas.

JOHN Z. HEINZERLING has graduated from Officer's Candidate School and commissioned an Ensign in the U.S. Navy. After additional training at the Naval Air Station in Glyco, Georgia, he is to report to the Aircraft Carrier, Bennington, the latter part of June. The Bennington is operating in the West Pacific.

RICHARD T. SPENCER is Staff Supervisor with the Long Line Department of American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

1965

Stationed at Fort Ord in California, an army infantry training center, RICHARD N. CARRELL is expecting assignment in Korea.

WILLIAM H. DELAVAN, JR., after transferring to the University of Illinois, graduated from there in 1965 with an A.B. degree in Economics. He is presently enrolled in the television-radio graduate sequence at Syracuse University.

In the annual Moot Court competition for the first-year law students at Cornell University, RICHARD K. KNEIPPER, representing the defendant, won in the case of Tideway Transport, Inc. v. The Kingdom of Utopia. Recognition means the winner's name will be placed on a gold plaque along with such distinguished law alumni as Joseph Weintraub, chief Judge of the New Jersey Supreme Court, and the current Law School professor, W. David Curtiss, Jr. Kneipper and the other winner beat out a first-year class of 150 students.

In addition to carrying a full schedule at night graduate school, VICTOR R. GALEF is holding down a full time job with J. L. Galef & Son, a manufacturer and distributor of firearms. Victor is seeking his master's degree in Business Administration.

STEPHEN T. HIBBARD has been elected one of two first-year representatives to the Cornell Law School Association.

1892

JUDGE JOHN MITCHELL WOODS, formerly of Martinsburg and later of Charleston, West Virginia, died in Coral Gables, Florida, on May 5, 1966. While at Washington and Lee Judge Woods was one of the outstanding athletes and has been recognized through the years as one of the University's all-time "greats." He was first elected judge of the 18th Circuit of West Virginia in 1912, after nearly twenty years of private practice. As a jurist he gained national attention in the early 1920's while presiding over treason trials in Charles Town involving members of the United Mine Workers charged with inciting insurrection, one of the few treason trials in the history of the nation up to that time. He retired in 1956 and made his home in Florida. (See class notes for the year 1892.)

1894

LESLIE MILTON CROUCH died January 22, 1966. He was licensed to practice law in the State of Missouri for more than seventy-one years. His son, Leslie, Jr., continues in the law firm, Crouch, Crouch, Spangler & Douglas, of Harrisonville, Missouri. Mr. Crouch was admitted to the bar in Cass County in 1895 and had practiced there continuously during his entire legal career.

1904

DAVID BRIGHTWELL FIELDER of Dallas, Texas, died on October 28, 1965. Mr. Fielder was a retired lumber and cattle man.

SPRING 1966

1906

DR. FRANCIS RANDOLPH CRAWFORD, a retired physician and surgeon, died in Farmville, Virginia, on March 3, 1966. Dr. Crawford was a former medical missionary to China, serving as the superintendent and surgeon of the Kashing Christian Hospital in Kashing, China, from 1915 to 1932. He was then associated with the Southside Community Hospital in Farmville. Dr. Crawford was also a past president and past campaign chairman of the Prince Edward County Community Chest, an elder in the Presbyterian Church, and a past president of the Farmville Lions Club.

1910

WILLIAM CURRELL VANCE of Washington, D.C., a former lawyer with the U.S. Court of Claims, died September 25, 1965.

1912

DR. LEROY HAVARD SCOTT of Shreveport, Louisiana, died on April 4, 1966. Dr. Scott had practiced medicine and surgery in Shreveport for forty-one years, serving on the staff of most of the hospitals in the Shreveport area. He was active in the alumni affairs of the Kappa Alpha Order and at the time of his death was serving as Preceptor of the H. H. White Court of Honor. He was also a member of all the Masonic bodies and was one of the area's earliest amateur radio license holders and held a private pilot's license.

JOHN ALEXANDER LANCASTER died on April 5, 1966, in Farmville, Virginia. Mr. Lancaster made his home in Farmville where he had been in the private practice of law since graduating from Washington and Lee.

1914

JUNIUS L. POWELL died at home in New York City on April 30, 1966. He was a native of Wytheville, Virginia, where he began a long friendship with Dr. Francis P. Gaines and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson. During World War I he served overseas in the American Army as lieutenant of Infantry. He was vice-president of Chubb and Sons, insurance underwriters, and director of the United States Guarantee Company, Vigilant Insurance Company, Compagnia de Seguros Federal de Cuba, and had other business interests. He was a most loyal and enthusiastic alumnus.

ROBERT P. HOBSON, a Louisville, Kentucky, attorney for more than forty-five years, died April 26, 1966, at the Kentucky Baptist Hospital. Mr. Hobson was a member of the local, state and national bar associations and in 1965 was nominated for a three-year term on the board of governors of the American Bar Association. He was a member of the American College of Trial Lawyers and the House of Delegates of the ABA. The Hobson family originated in Virginia and several generations have attended Washington College and Washington and Lee University. Mr. Hobson's son ROBERT C. HOBSON, '40, is a partner in the Louisville law firm. Mr. Hobson was active in all community and church affairs and was a former trustee of the University of Kentucky.

WALTER SAMUEL PHLEGAR of Johnson City, Tennessee, died on March 21, 1966, at his home in Johnson City.

1915

FRANK JENNINGS BECKWITH, prominent attorney of Charles Town, West Virginia, died on March 5, 1966. Mr. Beckwith served as a member of the West Virginia House of Delegates in 1921 and in the same year was a member of the state executive committee of the American Legion. He was a member of the West Virginia and American Bar Associations, had been on the Democratic executive committee for his congressional district since 1936, and was a member of the Jefferson County Board of Education from 1937 to 1942. He was widely known throughout the state of West Virginia for his many state and civic activities.

1920

MURRAY JOSEPH O'BERRY of Tampa, Florida, died on September 22, 1965. Mr. O'Berry had been connected with the Exchange National Bank of Tampa at one time and had also been in the insurance business. For a number of years prior to his death he had been affiliated with the Maas Brothers department store.

1921

ROY JEFFERSON GRIMLEY died on May 4, 1966, in Ridgewood, New Jersey. Mr. Grimley had practiced law in Ridgewood since 1922 and at one time was counsel to the Commissioner of Banking and Insurance for the State of New Jersey. During World War II he served as Government Appeal Agent assigned to Bergen County Local Draft Board. In 1929 he was one of the founders of the North Jersey Trust Company in Ridgewood and since that time had served as director and counsel. Mr. Grimley was responsible for the issuing of the Washington and Lee Bi-Centennial stamp, a commemorative issue honoring the University.

1923

DONALD F. MIOTON, former financial editor of the New Orleans Item and later in the investment business in Biloxi, Mississippi, died in Biloxi on May 1, 1966. While with the New Orleans newspaper, he handled the commercial page, commodity markets, and real estate matters. After moving to Mississippi he served on the staff of former Governor Ross Barnett as an honorary colonel.

JOHN BRUCE GORDON died on February 10, 1966, in Murphy, North Carolina. Mr. Gordon had for many years been in the lumber business, dealing in all phases of timber and timber products in North Carolina.

1924

JOHN DOUGLAS BASSETT, JR., head of Bassett Furniture Industries, Inc., died on May 24, 1966. Mr. Bassett was chairman of the board, chief executive officer, and treasurer of the furniture empire founded by his father shortly after the turn of the century, a business now operating seven plants and recognized as the leading bedroom and dining room producer in the world. His death ended one of the most successful and outstanding business careers in Virginia, the South, and the nation. He also served a multitude of other interests in top capacities—president of the First National Bank of Bassett; chairman of the board for a number of furniture corporations; a director for various furniture marts and expositions. In educational and civic fields Mr. Bassett was a member of the board of trustees of the Virginia Foundation for Independent Colleges, a trustee of Roanoke College, a member of the Advisory Committee for the University of Virginia in Martinsville, and a trustee of the Martinsville General Hospital.

JAMES BURRIS PRUITT, circuit judge of the Tenth Judicial District of South Carolina, died on April 21, 1966, in his home town of Anderson. Before his judgeship he had been for many years one of the most effective members of the South Carolina Senate, particularly as vice-chairman of the powerful Judiciary Committee of the Senate. He helped to draft the state's election law which gave South Carolina wholesale election reforms. As a judge he made many important contributions to the cause of equal justice for all people regardless of station.

1925

HENRY FRANCIS (BO) McMILLAN, prominent business, civic and church leader of Athens, Tennessee, died unexpectedly at his home on May 20, 1966. As a student at Washington and Lee he excelled as an athlete in football and baseball. Mr. McMillan was owner of the McMillan Coal Company in Athens and was president of McMillan Oil Company. He had served on the County School Board, as president of the Kiwanis Club, the Athens Chamber of Commerce, and on the board of trustees of the Bachman Presbyterian Home and of Tennessee Wesleyan College.

1926

DAVID CLARK MARCUS of Beaumont, Texas, died on February 27, 1966.

1927

FRANK W. URMEY, a manpower analyst for the Department of the Army, died in Washington, D.C., on March 21, 1966. Mr. Urmev, a native of Bloomington, Indiana, moved to Washington as a boy of twelve years of age and became a Senate page. In World War II he served in the European theater and was an active reservist until his retirement in 1963. He was a member of the Board of Directors of the American Peace Society and treasurer of the Foundation for Religious Action, private societies which work for peace and religion.

CHARLES HARRISON WILSON, one-time mayor of Crewe, Virginia, died on January 12, 1966, in Crewe.

ROY G. NICHOLS died on March 9, 1966, in Huntington, West Virginia. He was nationally known as a grower of roses and was a former operatic baritone. For many years he lived in Norfolk where he grew more than 1,000 rose plants and where his gardens were a state show place. He studied voice after his graduation from Washington and Lee both in Boston and at the Juilliard School of Music and sang the major roles in the world premieres of two operas and a leading role in the Broadway operetta "Hansel and Gretel." After many years of radio, concert and vaudeville tours, he returned to Norfolk and was director of music at Blair Junior High School for twelve years.

1928

JEROME WARNER SCHWABE, president of Schwabe-May, men's clothiers in Charleston, West Virginia, died February 16, 1966, in Palm Beach, Florida, while vacationing with Mrs. Schwabe. He had been in ill health since major surgery two years ago, but death came suddenly. Mr. Schwabe was active in many civic affairs, particularly the United Fund. He was a former president and member of the Board of Directors of the Charleston General Hospital and former president of Temple Israel.

J. DAVIS REED, JR., died of a heart attack on January 15, 1966. Mr. Reed made his home in Virginia Beach, Virginia, but he had practiced law in Norfolk since 1931. Since 1942 he had also been Trial Justice for Princess Anne County, Virginia.

CHARLES EDWARD BRANHAM died in Atlanta, Georgia, on December 10, 1965. Mr. Branham was vice-president and director of The Branham Company, a newspaper advertising sales representative. During World War II he served 42 months in Military Intelligence in foreign countries, and he received several foreign military decorations: The Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, The Order of the Cloud Banner conferred by the Chinese Ambassador, and the Medaille de la Reconnaissance conferred by France.

1932

MARION WADE MACDONALD of Flouertown, Pennsylvania, died on December 22, 1965.

1935

WILSON FERGUSON MILLER, an attorney in Lexington, Virginia, died in Lexington on May 20, 1966. He had been in the private practice of law in Lexington since 1936 and at one time was substitute trial justice of Rockbridge County. During the period of World War II he taught in the Washington and Lee Law School.

1939

JOHN S. MEHLER, formerly of Waynesboro, Virginia, died in Spottswood, New Jersey, on February 18, 1966. At the time of his death he was librarian in Trenton, New Jersey. John had formerly been librarian at the University of Alaska in College, Alaska. Burial was in Arlington National Cemetery.

1943

DR. JOHN F. M. KEIGHLEY, JR., died on April 25, 1966, at Woonsocket, Rhode Island. Dr. Keighley graduated from the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery in the class of 1945. For the past seven years he had been the resident dentist at the Zambarano Memorial Hospital at Wallum Lake, Rhode Island.

1945

HENRY BRECKENRIDGE VANCE, well known attorney in Buena Vista, Virginia, died in an automobile accident on April 27, 1966. A native of Lexington, Kentucky, Mr. Vance received his law degree from Washington and Lee in 1951. A past-president of the local bar association, Vance was city attorney for Buena Vista from 1956 through February, 1963. He was a member of the American Legion, the Lion's Club, and past-president of the P.T.A. He is survived by his wife and five children.

ROBERT JOHN STEPHENSON, III, of Greenville, South Carolina, died on April 2, 1966, after a brief illness. After leaving Washington and Lee he attended the Philadelphia Textile Institute and was later employed by the Southern Bleachery and Print Works in Greenville.

1958

DR. EDWARD WARREN NOEL died March 9, 1966. He was an assistant professor at the University of Tulsa in Tulsa, Oklahoma.

1960

RONALD SMITH GEORGEHEAD of Louisville, Kentucky, died in an automobile accident on October 9, 1965.

A good-size crowd was on hand for the chapter program in Newport News. Above are officers of the Peninsula Chapter, l-r, SECRETARY-TREASURER VOSS NEAL, '51; PRESIDENT DAN W. WILKINSON, '38; and PAST PRESIDENT I. LEAKE WORNOM, '50. At right, above, RICHARD HUGGINS, '55, and PHILLIPS M. DOWDING, '52; below, VERNON T. STRECKLER, '38, and DENNIS EDWARDS, '24.

News of the Chapters

PENINSULA

■ ALUMNI of the Peninsula Chapter and their wives and dates gathered for an interesting and entertaining meeting at the King James Motel in Newport News on May 6.

The reception-banquet was held in the Queen Anne Room, and the guests for the evening were Dr. Edward L. Pinney of the Political Science Department of Washington and Lee and Bill Washburn, executive secretary of the Alumni Association.

I. Leake Wornom, Jr., '50, outgoing president, presided as master of ceremonies. Douglas M. Smith, '51, chairman of the nominating committee, proposed the following slate of officers who were unanimously elected: Dan W. Wilkinson, Jr., '38, president; Dr. Frank Beazlie, '40, vice-president; and Dr. Voss Neal, '51, secretary-treasurer.

In his remarks Dr. Pinney, a member of the Admissions Committee, gave an up-to-date review of the admissions policy and a profile of the freshman class. A film strip about admissions, especially designed for use in high schools, was shown and was monitored by Dr. Pinney.

Bill Washburn reported on the Alumni House and appealed to the chapter to complete its campaign as soon as possible. After a period of questions and answers, the meeting adjourned.

JACKSONVILLE

■ UNDER THE DIRECTION of chapter officers Archie Jenkins, '58, Frank Surface, '60, and Haywood Ball, '61, the Jacksonville, Florida, Chapter held a very successful spring meeting on April 29th at the Florida Yacht Club. A delightful social hour was enjoyed by fifty-two persons including wives, dates and prospective W&L students and their parents. Afterwards, the club's famous fried-shrimp dinner was served.

Chosen unanimously as the speaker for the occasion was Dean Edward Atwood whose well received discussion highlighted the evening. His topic, evolution of the Washington and Lee student over the last several years, was enjoyed by many of his former students who were present in the group.

Those in attendance were especially encouraged over the enthusiastic support given this most recent meeting of the Jacksonville Chapter. Of special interest was a brief report concerning the progress made by the members in behalf of the Alumni House Fund Campaign since its inception in 1965.

RICHMOND

■ THE ANNUAL business meeting of the Richmond Chapter was held Tuesday, June 14, 1966, at the Rotunda Club. The membership elected the following officers for the coming year: Lee A. Putney, '53, President; Robert J. Smith, '46, Vice President; William H. Abeloff, '57, Secretary; Tyson L. Janney, '53, Treasurer.

Mark Saur was named chairman of a committee to propose for consideration a program of recognition in honor of the Washington and Lee members of the General Assembly.

The recent meeting of the Piedmont Chapter brought out these alumni and guests: l-r, Mrs. LARRY WILSON; W. E. LATTURE, '42; Mrs. LATTURE; FRANK SMITH, '32; ROYCE HOUGH, '59; Mrs. JOHN DAVIS; and Mrs. HOUGH.

A resolution was adopted to express grateful appreciation on behalf of the chapter to the outgoing president, Walter J. McGraw, '55, for his outstanding leadership and service to the chapter.

■ ORIGINALLY planned for January 29th but postponed because of a record snow storm, the fifth annual Washington and Lee formal Dinner Dance was held at the Rotunda Club on May 14th.

The gala occasion once again saw the revelers dancing to the strains of the Washington and Lee Swing. President Wally McGraw represented the chapter as host and many guests were on hand.

PIEDMONT

■ ROYCE HOUGH, '59, president, introduced Dean Edward Atwood as guest speaker at the spring meeting held May 20th, at the Town House Restaurant.

Dean Atwood compared the student today with his counterpart twenty-five years ago. Alumni Secretary Bill Washburn accompanied Dean Atwood and reported on the Alumni House Campaign both on the national level and on the Piedmont Chapter's portion.

A full discussion period followed the meeting, with the alumni putting many questions to Dean Atwood about the spirit and attitude of the student of today.

FLORIDA WEST COAST

■ THE ALUMNI of Tampa, St. Petersburg, Clearwater, Sarasota and the surrounding area joined for a dinner meeting at the St. Petersburg Yacht Club on Wednesday, June 15. A cocktail reception preceded the smorgasbord banquet at which Bill Washburn was guest speaker. An up-to-date report on the University and a discussion of the chapter's campaign in the Alumni House Fund drive were topics of the speaker. Outgoing president Joseph H. Chumbley, '55, presided. A series of colored slides depicting scenes of the campus and of individual members of the faculty and administration were shown. In the short business session which took place, the following new officers for next year were elected: John R. Lawson, Jr., '52, of Tampa, President; Hugh E. Reams, '46, of St. Petersburg, Vice-President; John M. Faison, '55, of Clearwater, Secretary.

ROANOKE

■ ROANOKE alumni, their wives and guests were pleased to have as their guest speaker Dean Lewis G. John, Assistant Dean of Students and Director of Student Financial Aid on May 25 at the spring meeting of the Roanoke chapter at the Holiday Inn.

Presiding over the banquet was Robert E. Glenn, '51, president of the chapter.

Bill Washburn, alumni secretary, preceded Dean John on the program with a brief report of the Alumni House Fund. He paid high compliments to the Roanoke chapter for their fine record under the chairmanship of Martin P. Burks.

Dean John's talk centered around the admissions situation and how an alumni chapter might be of service in this area. A new and interesting film strip, designed for use in recruiting high school seniors, was shown.

In the short business session, the chairman of the nominating committee, Robert S. Goldsmith, Jr., '53-L, presented the following slate which was unanimously elected:

President, William J. Lemon, '57; Vice-president, William S. Hubard, '50-L; and Secretary-Treasurer, H. Bennett Meador, Jr., '56.

WASHINGTON AND LEE

Commemorative Plates

(Wedgwood)

Sold only in sets of eight different scenes

Price, $27.00 per set, f.o.b. Lexington, Virginia

Available in blue color only

WASHINGTON AND LEE ALUMNI, INC.

Lexington, Virginia

PLAN NOW!

HOMECOMING

Saturday, November 5, 1966

Washington and Lee vs. Sewanee

Wilson Field

Official Opening of the Alumni House

ALUMNI LUNCHEON

Torchlight Parade and
Pep Rally

Fraternity House
Decorations

Homecoming Queen

Post-Game Reception