The Year in Summary

(THE PRESIDENT'S PAGE)

(Introductory Paragraphs of the Annual Report Submitted to the Board of Trustees)

IF I were instructed to summarize the year 1942-44 in a single abstraction, I should choose the term, "uncertainty." There was uncertainty for the students, whether in the reserves or not, as to when and how they might be called upon to relate themselves to active duty in the armed forces; there was uncertainty for many of the faculty who were expecting some kind of summons, and uncertainty for the other teachers who did not know what sudden and drastic adjustment might be made in their instructional loads; there was abiding and distressing uncertainty for the University as an administrative unit, uninformed as to how it would be permitted to undertake one or more of the various training programs sponsored by the Government. Such information as we received during the session was scanty, often the mere gossip of the grape-vines we could swing, and even if authentic, subject to radical change without notice.

To read carefully the reports of my associates is to find in detailed form a synopsis of the academic history. The Treasurer's statistics indicate that in spite of vicissitudes we came to the end of the year with a surplus of income over expenditure; the Registrar's analysis shows that we had a gross enrollment, although a very inconsistent enrollment, of about two-thirds of our normal attendance; the Deans of the Law School and of the Commerce School reveal the shrinkage of enrollment in their divisions; the Dean of the University shows the modifications of class-room work and the heroic efforts at quick response to changed conditions; other messages carry varying implications of change in the face of influences over which we could exercise no control.

The shattering of academic cohesion, if I may put it that way, which has characterized Washington and Lee is reflected in the manner and quantity of our conferring of degrees in these recent months, a departure from our traditional yearly custom: 13 in August 1942; 50 in January 1943; 73 in May 1943; 28 in August 1943.

As I write these words, here in the beginning of the 1943-44 session, we have on our campus three fairly distinct efforts: a group of civilian students, numbering about 120, and including many boys well under the draft age of eighteen; a group of enlisted undergraduates of the Army Specialized Training Program, including approximately 250 men in pre-engineering work, and approximately 50 men in pre-medical work, all taught by members of our faculty; and the Army School for Special Service, a group of approximately 400 commissioned officers, using some of our buildings and facilities on a rental basis, but in no sense under our faculty or our counseling or our social guidance.

The 195th Session Opens

By BRUCE QUAYLE, 1945

WASHINGTON AND LEE has gone to war. G. I. khaki and jeeps have replaced the sports coats and convertibles of former years. The Dutch Inn is an Army mess hall; the freshmen dormitory is a barracks. Drill formations and calisthenic classes tread the soil of Wilson Field where once the Generals' elevens battled.

By both combining and sharing its facilities and professors with the Army, Washington and Lee is handling within its confines three student groups. A small civilian body, numbering 120 students, attends regular classes. A unit of the Army Specialized Training Program, the AST, receives courses similar to the normal peace-time studies of the University, plus extra training in subjects especially for military use. A second army group, the school for Special Service, carries on studies designed for officers of the Army and the WAC.

Regular students are finding conditions very much changed from the University they knew in past years. Hardest hit by wartime demands is the School of Law. The faculty has been reduced to a scant three, while the students number five. The School of Commerce and Administration has also felt the weight of war through the loss of instructors to essential civilian and military posts. Elementary courses are still in existence, but few advanced subjects are being offered. The College of Arts and Sciences has in general maintained the more important advanced and freshmen courses, since a large part of the incoming class is aiming at either a pre-law or a pre-medical degree. Dean Robert H. Tucker has planned the schedule so as to offer what he calls "the fundamental courses" of mathematics, history, language, and science.

Our unit of the Army Specialized Training Program, numbering some 300 men, began operations here on August 9. Each class or contingent receives a period of six months training at Washington and Lee. While they do not attend classes with the regular students, the AST men obtain similar instruction to that offered in the University curriculum and are taught by regular members of the faculty. In addition they attend other classes required by the Army. AST students are barracked in six fraternity houses rented from the now quiescent local chapters. Meals are being served in a newly-constructed mess hall, which is on the back campus immediately adjoining the journalism print shop. Previously they had been forced to march to the VMI mess three times daily.

On December 7 the School for Special Service will mark its first anniversary in Lexington. During this time the SSS, with a normal complement of about 440, has carried through an extensive educational plan, the purpose of which is to train special service officers for both field and combat service. The course of studies deals with four main topics: athletics and recreation, technical training, military tactics, and information and education. The SSS has rented Tucker Hall exclusively for its own use and has classrooms in several other buildings. The freshmen dormitory serves as barracks and the University Dining Hall is the officers' mess. WAC students are quartered in a rented fraternity house. During the past year, the student officers have received some practical experience by conducting several shows and concerts for the people of Lexington.

Naturally, with such a reduced civilian group, the normal extra-curricular and social activities have been forced into suspension. All intercollegiate sports have been dropped for the duration, but a complete program of intra-mural competition is in full swing. The funds and names of all three student publications, the Ring-tum Phi, the Southern Collegian, and the Calyx, have been frozen by the Executive Committee of the Student Body. However a small weekly newspaper, The Columns, still brings the news of Washington and Lee to the public. The Christian Council, the Troubadours, and the Executive Committee of the student body are functioning as usual, although on a reduced scale. All large dances, such as Fancy Dress, are a thing of the past, but several smaller dances are being considered.

All in all, the plan this year is for more emphasis on work and less on play. As President Francis P. Gaines stated in his address to the opening assembly of the student body in regard to a present-day college education, "The icing is gone, but the cake is still here."

This is a new year at Washington and Lee, a harder working, a grimmer year. Every student means business. The outlook is clear, and Washington and Lee has gone to war. . . .

Articles of Historic Value Acquired

WASHINGTON AND LEE University has recently received from Mrs. William Allan of Charlotte, North Carolina, through Miss Mary Barclay of the Alumni Office, several articles of historic value. The following is a list of these articles:

Washington and Lee University Historical Papers, Nos. 2, 4, and 6.

Bound volume of Washington College Catalogues of the years 1853, 1859-60, 1866, 1867, 1868, 1869, 1870, 1871, 1872. These catalogues cover the period of General R. E. Lee's presidency, and contain outlines of the new courses introduced in the college by him.

Catalogue of the Alumni of Washington College from the founding to 1868.

Catalogue of the Alumni from the founding of the College to 1889.

Charter and Laws of Washington College. Revised 1866. Inaugural Address by President George Junkin, D.D., 1849, on Christianity the Patron of Literature and Science. Papers on the Organization of the Lee Monument Association, 1871.

Addresses before the Literary Societies by the following: General Wade Hampton, 1868; Rev. R. A. Holland, 1869; Bishop E. M. Marvin, 1870; Joseph W. Taylor, 1871; B. M. Palmer, D.D., 1872.

Addresses before the Alumni Association by: Colonel Bolivar Christian, 1860, on the Scotch-Irish Settlers in the Valley of Virginia; Rev. C. B. Davidson, 1869; Plan for Endowment of a Missouri Professorship, by R. D. Lilley, 1870.

An Address on The Campaigns of General Robert E. Lee, by General Jubal A. Early, in Lee Chapel, 1872.

An Address before the Survivors' Association of South Carolina, by General Jubal A. Early, 1872.

Howe Portrait Presented to University

THE splendid portrait of Professor James Lewis Howe reproduced on this page was presented to the University by a group of about seventy-five of his former students and admirers among the Washington and Lee alumni.

The sponsoring committee was composed of Jas. A. Lee '17, Julian S. Gravely '08, H. W. Dew '11, J. D. Whetzel '14, and C. M. Switzer '15. The portrait is the work of Miss Hattie E. Burdette of Washington, D. C. Miss Burdette followed the general lines of an excellent photograph made some 18 years ago, supplementing this by her own sketches of Dr. Howe, made last Spring in his office.

James Lewis Howe was born at Newburyport, Massachusetts, August 4, 1859. He received his bachelor's degree at Amherst and his Ph.D. at Gottingen. After teaching in Kentucky for eleven years, Dr. Howe came to Washington and Lee in January, 1894, and served actively as professor and head of the department until 1938, when he was made professor emeritus and Historian of the University. His relation to the chemistry department on this campus is well expressed by the statement that "an institution is but the lengthened shadow of a man"—a statement which needs no amplification to the hundreds of former students who gratefully recognize his influence in their lives.

As one of them (S. C. Lind, 1900) wrote in a chemical journal in 1926:

"From New England to a lifetime Virginia professorship is not a frequent transition, but to know Dr. Howe is to understand it. His universal interest in science, in church, in humanity; his absolute lack of any petty qualities; his unflinching optimism and unflagging energy; his ability to awaken enthusiasm in all of his hearers, linked him indissolubly to students and colleagues alike. With him the spirit of service has always been foremost. This has given to the South for a third of a century one of its most brilliant teachers of chemistry and has brought to Howe that satisfaction which comes when well-rendered service meets its full share of appreciation."

ADMIRAL C. P. SNYDER, '99, reached the official retirement age on July 10, 1943. In accordance with the laws on this subject, he was placed on the retired list as of August 1, 1943. Having been Commander, Battle Force, U. S. Fleet, with the rank of Admiral, (four stars), he was retired with this rank. He is continuing to serve on active duty as the Naval Inspector General with rank of Admiral.

Faculty Members in the Services

FORTY MEMBERS of the faculty and staff of Washington and Lee are serving in the armed forces of this country or are doing important civilian war work for the Government or industry. This number represents almost half of the regular faculty. Of these forty, eighteen have been commissioned by the Navy, nine by the Army, and eleven are serving in civilian occupations.

DR. WILEY D. FORBUS, Professor of Pathology, Duke University, and Pathologist to the Duke Hospital, has recently published "Reaction to Injury, Pathology for students of Disease, based on the Functional and Morphological Responses of Tissues to Injurious Agents," Williams & Wilkins Company, Baltimore, 2, Maryland.

Dr. Forbus took his A.B. degree from Washington and Lee in 1916, and his M.D. from Johns Hopkins in 1923. At Washington and Lee he was a member of Phi Gamma Delta and Phi Beta Kappa.

ANYONE having a Calyx for 1913, who is willing to part with it, please notify the Alumni Office. If located send to: Mrs. S. N. Yonan, 1175 Francisco Street, San Francisco, California.

LIEUT. GARRET HIER'S, JR., B.A. '39, is serving on the staff of the Army School for Special Service at Washington and Lee.

Articles of Historic Value

An Historical Account of the Erection of the Virginia State Capitol, Old Dominion Magazine, 1871.

Catalogue of the Beta Theta Pi Fraternity, 93 pages, published in 1859; 29 chapters; about 1100 names.

The dates of the above papers and College Catalogues fall within the period when Colonel William Allan was Professor of Applied Mathematics at Washington and Lee University, from 1866 to 1873. The papers and Catalogues were probably originally collected by Colonel Allan, and later came into the possession of his son, the late Dr. William Allan, of the Class of 1902.

In addition to the above articles, there was received from Mrs. Allan an ambrotype photograph of the Washington College buildings, as they were about a century ago. The ambrotype is about 4½ by 6½ inches in size, in a folding leather case. An ambrotype is sometimes mistakenly called a daguerreotype. The daguerreotype photographic process was invented by Daguerre about 1839. In this process the photograph is taken on a copper plate, and remains on the metal plate.

Shortly after the invention of the daguerreotype, the ambrotype process was devised. In this process the photograph is taken on a glass plate, and remains on the glass as a positive, and not a negative. No print is made from an ambrotype.

The ambrotype of the Washington College buildings is the original photograph of these buildings as they stood when the picture was taken.

There are in existence several engravings, and pictures of the College buildings, which are historically inaccurate. This is the case of the pictures of the College, in the Treasurer's and Dean's offices, in the Student Union Building, on old College stationery, and on the College China plates.

The ambrotype picture mentioned above is true to life, and it should be the starting point for the writing of a true history of the College buildings.

LESLIE LYLE CAMPBELL, 1887

Leonard Clinton Helderman, 1895-1943

DR. LEONARD CLINTON HELDERMAN, Professor of History in Washington and Lee University, and member of the faculty since 1925, died at his home in Monroe Park, Lexington, July 10, 1943, following a week's illness. His untimely death came as a shock to the University campus, and to Washington and Lee alumni everywhere his passing will bring profound sorrow.

Born at Vincennes, Indiana, in 1895, Dr. Helderman was educated in the public schools, and received his A.B. degree from Indiana State in 1921. Meanwhile, he had served in the United States Army during the first World War, and for a time served as instructor at Camp Grant, Illinois. After graduate study in the Universities of Chicago and Wisconsin, in 1925 he was appointed to the faculty of Washington and Lee University, where he served successively as Assistant Professor, Associate Professor, and Professor of History. In 1929 he received his Ph.D. in history from the University of Wisconsin.

As a member of the faculty at Washington and Lee, Dr. Helderman soon earned distinction in such courses for advanced students as American diplomatic history, recent American history, American Constitutional development, and the old South. In these courses he employed the seminar method with marked success. At the same time, he carried on intensive historical research which resulted in a succession of books, articles, and reviews. His prize winning dissertation was expanded and published in 1931 as National and State Banks — A Study of Their Origins, and in the next year he published George Washington Patron of Learning. Alumni will recall that this volume's appearance coincided with the University's Washington celebration, held in connection with the national bi-centennial of 1932 in honor of Washington's birth.

On two occasions the Social Science Council awarded Dr. Helderman research Grants-in-Aid in recognition of his work. In the mid-1930's he turned his attention to the life and writings of George Tucker, economist and friend of Jefferson, and later investigated the career of George Rogers Clark. He contributed articles to learned journals and to the Dictionary of American History, and his last publication was an article in the spring 1942 issue of the Washington and Lee Law Review, "The Virginia Bill of Rights."

Professor Helderman's concern for the welfare of Washington and Lee University was zealous, and is especially illustrated by his work as Chairman of the Library Committee. When the McCormick Library was planned and built in 1940-1941, he contributed generously of his ideas and time. Repeatedly he served as a member of the Faculty Executive and Advisory Committees.

His colleagues and students recognized in Dr. Helderman a champion of the highest ideals in University life, and they know that in his death Washington and Lee University has suffered an irreparable loss.

FRANK CUNNINGHAM, B.A.'32, is the author of Sky Master, The Story of Donald Douglas, published by Dorrance & Company, Philadelphia, in July, 1943. Douglas is shown against a background of aviation over the world. Not only is the reader given an intimate knowledge of the best-known name in the plane-manufacturing field, but he is shown a picture of aviation's impetus and is made acquainted with many men famous in the development of airplane building. Sky Master is a "must" on the reading list of the air-minded world.

In Memoriam

Additions to List of Alumni in Service

As of October 30, 1943

NOTE: This list of 631 alumni in service comprises the sixth published addition to the list of Washington and Lee men in service, published in the May, 1942, Magazine. Washington and Lee now has 2510 alumni listed in the armed forces.

In compliance with the military and naval authorities, we have refrained from giving information about service men save their class and branch of service, and indicating whether or not they are commissioned officers. However, the Alumni Office is vitally interested in other pertinent data, such as actual rank, station, permanent home address, or other address from which mail will be forwarded, special activities, type of service or training, etc. The permanent home address is most important as service addresses change so rapidly.

It is our policy to keep as close a connection as possible with our alumni in this time of stress, and any information concerning alumni in service will be greatly appreciated by this office.

In the listing below, certain symbols have been used to conserve space. These symbols and their meaning are as follows: A, Army of the United States; AAF, Army Air Force; N, United States Navy; NAC, Naval Air Corps; MC, Marine Corps; CG, Coast Guard; AFS, American Field Service; MMS, United States Merchant Marine Service. An asterisk (*) following the above symbols indicates a commissioned officer.

Alumni Trustees Meet

THE UNIVERSITY BOARD OF TRUSTEES met at the University on October 8, 1943. On the same date the Alumni Board of Trustees also held a meeting. The following members of the Alumni Board were noted as present; Roger J. Bear, '14, President, Ki Williams, '15, J. W. Milner, '15, and John L. Crist, '13. All members of the Board, except Lieutenant Richard T. Edwards, who is in the service, had promised to be present, but unforeseen circumstances made it necessary for last-minute cancellations by R. P. Hobson, '14, and John W. Drye, Jr., '20. A better understanding of the problems facing the University resulted from the joint gathering of the Alumni Board and the University Board of Trustees at the President's luncheon.

Elected to Alumni Board

JOSEPH W. MILNER attended his first meeting as a member of the Alumni Board of Trustees, held at the University on October 8, 1943. Receiving his LL.B. degree from the University in 1915, he made an unusual record as a student as well as an outstanding athlete both in football and baseball. He is a member of the Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity and White Friar. He has served for many years as Mayor of his home town, Gulfport, Mississippi, which office he still holds; President of the Coca-Cola Bottling Company; owner of the Gulfport Military Academy, and a Trustee of Gulf Park girl's school.

Local Association Notes

THIRTEEN Louisville, Kentucky, alumni of Washington and Lee University met for luncheon at the "235" Club on September 23, 1943. Those present were Bill Farmer, Robert Hobson, Henry Hill, Ed Dodd, Greenberry Simmons, Tom Nugent, George Burks, Charles Semple, Ernest Clarke, Bill Jones, Fielden Woodward and John J. Davis, Jr. Fielden Woodward and John J. Davis, Jr., were reelected president and secretary-treasurer respectively.

WASHINGTON AND LEE ALUMNI of Waynesboro, Virginia met September 7, 1943. The following officers were elected: William C. Raftery, President, Ed Moore, Vice President, Woodson Gillock, Treasurer, and Charles Ellison, Secretary.

A MESSAGE From Your Alumni President

FOR some unaccountable reason I was recently prompted to find out what it actually costs to educate a boy at Washington and Lee. I was greatly surprised to learn that the figure is approximately $650.00 per year. It had never occurred to me that endowments — gifts from friends of Washington and Lee unknown to me — had contributed more toward my education than I myself had paid. This knowledge struck me as being so arresting that I thought it would be of interest to all our Alumni. It is chosen as the basis for this message — not to highlight what might appear to be an undischarged obligation — but only as interesting, thought-provoking information.

Undoubtedly many of us have had the feeling that the years spent at Washington and Lee were worth more than the tuition we paid. Possibly that is why many have affiliated with the Alumni Association: why more and more are becoming actively interested in the affairs of their Alma Mater and why the class agent plan has been increasingly successful in procuring contributions to aid in the work the University is doing. Even without any knowledge of the figures quoted herein it is evident that more and more of our Alumni are feeling the urge to contribute to the University in somewhat the degree that they feel Washington and Lee has influenced their lives and contributed to their success as individuals.

It is the hope of your President that the thoughts expressed in this message may bring to every Alumnus the realization of an opportunity which is available — through your Alumni Association — to aid present and future students at Washington and Lee as others in the past have helped each one of us.

Class Notes

JOHN M. GLENN still lives at 1 Lexington Avenue, New York City.

1886

W. J. HUMPHREYS, Cosmos Club, Washington, D. C., received an honorary degree from Washington and Lee in 1942. He is the author of a recently published book, "Ways of the Weather," a cultural survey of meteorology, which is recommended by the Book of the Month Club.

1887

WILLIAM TURNER ARMSTRONG is a member of the law firm of Armstrong, Cranford, Barker and Bedford, American National Insurance Building, Galveston, Texas.

DR. BROWN CRAIG PATTERSON, who served for a quarter of a century as a missionary in China, is now living at Route No. 2, Staunton, Virginia.

JUDGE HENRY W. HOLT, lives in Staunton, Virginia.

CAPTAIN GREENLEE D. LETCHER, Lexington, Virginia has entirely recovered from a recent illness, and is again active and interested in everything pertaining to Washington and Lee.

EDWIN W. KAMINSKI lives in Georgetown, South Carolina. He has never returned to Lexington since leaving college, but has fond recollections of the old campus and the old buildings which are very dear to him.

CARLISLE H. GILKESON lives in Fairfield, Virginia. He is always interested and helpful.

We wish to apologize for any errors in the class notes appearing in this issue. The letters from which these notes are taken were written, for the most part, early last spring. The rapid influx of alumni into the several branches of the armed forces of the United States have no doubt rendered some of these notes inaccurate. We would like to have more material for class notes in letters to your Class Agents this year.

A. K. BOWLES is with Consolidated Coal Company, Inc., 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York City.

DAVID B. MACGOWAN, 106 Madison St., Lynchburg, Virginia, gives us the following concerning the activities of his children: Commander Birkhead Macgowan, M.C., U.S.N.R., at Charleston Navy Yard; Vice Consul Basil F. Macgowan, in detention at Baden Baden, Germany; Private Carrick B. Macgowan, U.S.A.; Miss Everett W. Macgowan, senior civilian clerk, U.S. War Department; Mary, Mrs. Rollin R. Winslow, recently returned from Quebec, Canada. Her husband is First Secretary of Legation at Addis Ababa, Ethiopia. (Note: Mr. Macgowan, Please invite us to dinner when the war is over and your children have returned.)

1891

FRANK A. NELSON has many business and social interests in Chattanooga, Tennessee. He is a frequent visitor in Lexington where he has many family ties. He is the son of the late Professor Alex A. Nelson, who was professor of mathematics at the University for fifty years.

1905

HALE HOUSTON, Professor Emeritus, Washington and Lee University, had a bad fall during the summer which put him in the hospital for several weeks. He is out again and well on the road to recovery.

WILLIAM G. WIGLESWORTH is farming and in the tobacco business in Cynthiana, Kentucky.

DR. E. L. GREEN, Class Agent for 1892, Professor in the Department of Ancient Languages, University of South Carolina, has made a most interesting gift to the library. He has sent 24 textbooks which he used when he was a student at Washington and Lee. He also has given the library his matriculation certificates, pictures of his professors, and many other interesting clippings and documents.

The textbooks and the accompanying material have been placed in the University Archives as a sample textbook collection of the 1890's.

1893

B. A. JUDD, the faithful Class Agent for '93, is still practicing law at 25 Broad Street, New York.

DUDLEY D. PENDLETON is a Sales Engineer with offices in the Bessemer Building, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. He is busy in Defense Plant Corporation projects.

HARRY W. PRATT teaches in the Columbia Bible College, Columbia, South Carolina, in addition to serving as pastor of a Presbyterian Church in the vicinity of Columbia. He drove over 1,000 miles per month, prior to gas rationing. Dr. Pratt was a visitor to Lexington during the summer.

HARRINGTON WADDELL has recently retired as Principal of the Public Schools of Lexington, Virginia.

1894

JAMES N. VEECH returned to Lexington in January 1941, living for nine months with his son Alex M. Veech, who was then a professor at Washington and Lee. Since that time Alex Veech has gone into the service, and his father is now at his old home in Louisville, Kentucky. His address is 551 Barberry Lane.

1895

LYNE S. SMITH, 441 West Seventh Street, Erie, Pennsylvania, writes: "I know the old school will weather the gale, in these most trying times, and in the end when our victory is won, will come out with her colors flying."

1896

SAMUEL D. STOKES has retired from the practice of law in Roanoke and is now farming. His address is R. F. D. No. 2, Roanoke, Virginia.

J. W. LATTOMUS is still practicing law in Wilmington, Delaware. This is the fourth year he has served as Agent for the class of 1896. This unselfish service is greatly appreciated by the Alumni Office and the University.

1897

AVERY H. REED is a consulting mining engineer and geologist, at Marion, Kentucky. He writes: "I am always glad to receive news of Washington and Lee, and I glory with her in the war spirit the times make necessary to embrace and endure."

LEROY C. BARRET and his wife spent a month in Lexington this summer. Dr. Barrett is still teaching in Trinity College, Hartford, Connecticut.

THOMAS H. WEBB has been with the Texas Highway Department for twenty-four years, seventeen years as Assistant State Highway Engineer. He is married and has one daughter. His home is at 1400 Etheridge Avenue, Austin, Texas.

1898

RAN SHIELDS, after serving for many years as a medical missionary in China, is now professor in the Department of Pathology, School of Medicine, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

BORDEN BURR is a member of the law firm of Benners, Burr, McKamy and Forman, Brown-Marx Building, Birmingham, Alabama. He would like to see the class get together for a reunion, with John W. Davis as chaperone, and revive old friendships and dear recollections.

ROBERT W. MAYO is practicing law in Dallas, Texas, with offices in the Kirby Building. He is engaged in sundry duties for civil defense and the production of an extra amount of food for the country. His two sons are in the armed forces. One a lieutenant-colonel in the field artillery; the other a lieutenant in the navy air combat service. The latter was serving on the Wasp when she was torpedoed in the Pacific, but was rescued by a destroyer after some hours in the water.

1899

STEWART L. CREBS is a real estate broker and Vice-President of the Los Angeles Realty Board. He has two children, William J. Crebs and Caswell J. Crebes. His address is 124 South La Brea Avenue, Los Angeles, California.

HARRY ST. G. TUCKER CARMICHAEL, General Manager of the Kentucky Rock and Asphalt Company, Kentucky, is a frequent visitor to the Campus in connection with his position as a member of the University Board of Trustees.

REV. JAMES A. McCLURE, D.D., is Minister of the First Presbyterian Church, St. Petersburg, Florida, which position he has held for nearly nineteen years. His three sons, all graduates of Washington and Lee, are in various branches of the armed services.

SAMUEL RUFFIN HORNE, Class Agent for 1900, is a Pharmacist in Fayetteville, North Carolina.

JOHN RANDOLPH TUCKER is a member of the law firm of Tucker, Bronson, Satterfield and Mays, and General Counsel, Virginia Trust Company, Richmond, Virginia.

WILLIAM R. ALLEN, who has been president of the Chicago local alumni chapter has retired to Ocean Springs, Mississippi, to "... fish a little, golf a little, play a little, practice a little, if I want—I'm taking it easy for awhile."

MATTHEW PAGE ANDREWS, 845 Park Avenue, Baltimore, Md., has a new historical work on the Scribners presses, due for publication next spring, called "The Soul of a Nation" with the sub-title "The Founding of Virginia and the Projection of New England."

JOHN M. COBBETT, Bay City, Texas, says: "I am still practicing law in this country town as I have been for forty-one years." His son, Duncan Corbett, class of '38, is in the United States Army.

ROBERT O. HUFF has been United States Referee in Bankruptcy for the past ten years. He is married and has four sons, one in the armed forces. His address is Federal Building, San Antonio, Texas.

J. WOOD GLASS is practicing law in Nowata, Oklahoma. He writes: "Like President Wilson I am doing my own typing today. The Coast Artillery got my secretary; the infantry got my janitor; Washington took two stenographers in succession; a munitions plant seduced my house-maid at $45 per week, and all I have left is the cook who leaves every other week-end to visit some of her relatives in the army."

W. T. ELLIS, M. D., 1115 Lindley Avenue, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, is interested in defense work and standing squarely behind the fighting men and our government.

R. F. COOPER is Vice-President and head of the Social Science Department at Bellhaven College, Jackson, Mississippi. He has a Victory Garden on the campus.

CARY R. BLAIN, Class Agent for 1903, is a Presbyterian Minister in Ellerbe, North Carolina. He regrets that he cannot serve in this war as he did in World War I, and thinks the government should look into the legal lights, medical talent, teaching and preaching ability and business power exhibited by the members of the Class of 1903, and reconsider.

FREDERICK W. CRAMER is engaged in the fertilizer and stone business under the name York Stone and Supply Company, Roosevelt Avenue, York, Pennsylvania. His two sons were associated with him in the business, but both of them are now in the service.

JAMES W. BAGLEY, Colonel U.S.A., Retired, is connected with the Institute of Geographical Exploration, Harvard University. He says his activities continue as in other years, but at an accelerated tempo, owing to the war. The course he teaches are designed to be of the utmost value in the war service.

W. J. TURNER is Superintendent of the Rancagua Copper Mines, Rancagua, Chile. He makes "flying trips" to this country, but seldom gets back to Lexington. His company is operating at full capacity, in fact beyond what they call normal capacity, in the production of copper, all of which goes to the war effort of the United States. His elder boy is now an Ensign in the Submarine Service of the Navy, and his younger son, who is seventeen, has just entered Harvard.

JOHN MONROE BAHISTER GILL, B.D., was for fifteen years a Missionary in China and founded the Episcopal mission in Nanking. Was decorated by the Chinese Government for rescue work during a rebellion in 1903. Returned to the United States in 1925 and served as General Secretary of the Field Department of the National Council of the Episcopal Church in New York. For thirteen years was Rector of St. Paul's Church, Petersburg, Virginia. P. D. CONVERSE is still in the Department of Commerce, University of Illinois, Urbana, Illinois, at least what is left of it, for he says the staff from the Business Operations Department has left for war services faster than the students. He has tried to keep some research going and three recent projects are; an evaluation of the tobacco auction system (published by the Journal of Business, University of Chicago); an evaluation of citizenship of chain stores (to be published in the Journal of Marketing); and an analysis or delineator of a retail trade pattern in Central Illinois (to be published as a bulletin by the University of Illinois Bureau of Economics and Business research.)

ADRIAN WILLIAMSON is a Colonel in the Air Corps, stationed at Arlington, Virginia. His address is 2820 North Franklin Road. He complains bitterly that he is having to "see America first," when there is a fifty-ring circus under way all over the globe.

WILLIAM A. ("BILLY") WRIGHT, JR., is Chairman of the Virginia Conservation Commission. He wrote in part. "Suffice it to say, my faith in Washington and Lee is abiding and unshakable. Her lofty spirit of sacrifice, her enduring spirit of patriotism and her determined will to carry on in adversity will survive in this war as they have survived in all previous wars. Her grand heritage in name has been an electrifying inspiration to her sons through the succeeding generations of existence. Her sons of today will record in history the same immortal examples of courage, fortitude, patience and endurance that her sons since the days of Augusta Academy have recorded. Washington and Lee will emerge from this devastation, destruction and confusion a better and finer institution, holding high her "torch of principles," for which she has always stood. Through the threatening clouds of disappointment, despondency and despair, we can now almost see a halo of duty well done hovering over our Alma Mater.

'Like mother, like son, is a saying so true,
The world will judge largely of mother by you;
Be sure it will say when its verdict you have won,
She reaped as she sowed, lo, this is her son,' "

JOHN L. CRIST is President of the Southern Dyestuff Corporation, Charlotte, North Carolina. He is a member of the Alumni Board of Trustees. His son JACK, JR., finished his second year at the University in August 1943.

HENRY E. PEEPLES is in the insurance business, under the firm name McLain-Peebles & Morris, Incorporated, 138 Sycamore Street, Decatur, Georgia. He writes: "I have taken a great interest in the Boy Scout movement during the past several years. I was scoutmaster of a fine troop for twelve years and since our local Rotary club has taken over the operation of the Court of Honor for that organization, I am glad to be serving on that committee. My chief interest in life is my family. My wife is still young to me, she is literary and stimulating and keeps in good health. My daughter is now a Senior at the University of Georgia and is close to making Phi Beta Kappa. (I beg anyone of class of 1913 who reads this, not to laugh, she takes after her mother.) My son, Henry, Jr., is now at Pyote, Texas, and is a first pilot of a Flying Fortress in the U.S. Army Air Corps. He expects to be overseas before you read this."

We are sorry to have to add to this note that Henry, Jr., 1943, was reported missing in action since August 17, 1943, while piloting a Flying Fortress in England area. More recently he has been reported as a Prisoner of War.

Written by Class Agent, GOODRICH SALE

Letters this year are noteworthy for the number of our men in the service and the large number who are doing more than one job at home.

Lieutenant-Commander JOE McMATH, Medical Corps, is at Great Lakes Naval Training Station. At present his wife and two daughters live with him near Lake Michigan just north of Chicago.

HOMER ("ROCKY") HOLT is busy practicing law in the same firm of which John Morrison and your Class Agent, Goodridge Sale with others, are members. In the same building here are a good many Washington and Lee Alumni, including Leo Fagan in the general office of the Atlantic Greyhound Lines; Ralph Burch in the insurance business; Andrew Payne, Vice-President and Trust Officer of the Central Trust Company and a director of the Kanawha Valley Bank; and Chapman Revercomb, lawyer and freshman United States Senator. Chapman Revercomb was four or five years before our time at Washington and Lee but had two brothers, Horace, and E.P.G. Revercomb, in our class.

JOE SILVERSTIEN practices law, but devotes most of his time with his father and brother in the scrap business of the Midwest Steel Corporation, which has yards at Charleston, West Virginia and in Nashville, Tennessee. Incidentally, he is a railroad magnate, being president of a short line in East Tennessee.

DORR TUCKER is expeditor for Ford, Bacon, and Davis, construction firm with numerous plant jobs that have kept Dorr hustling around the country recently.

WALTER FLICK and JOHN HIGGINS WILLIAMS continue on the faculty at Washington and Lee, but give us no opinions, even confidential, as to how the co-ed situation last summer and the Army situation since then have affected them.

Captain THOMAS WILSON ("BILL") ERWIN joined the Army in Texas from Waco, where he had been in the moving picture business since graduating from the University of Texas Law School in 1927.

Lieutenant VICKERS WATTS reports that the Army classification system is a remarkable thing; that he enlisted last July as a buck private from civil life, as a lawyer and realtor, and was successively thereafter made an officer and a gentleman, an engineer, and a farmer for his Army camp in Oklahoma.

CAMERON SHROPSHIRE is a Captain in the Army Air Corps.

Lieutenant-Colonel CHARLIE BARRETT is stationed overseas with an airborne division. He is with the Inspector General, and says "Since the last time I reported I have encountered two Washington and Lee officers, Rene Tallichet who was the general's aide and H. L. Little, who took Tallichet's place when he moved on up. As their offices were next to mine we did considerable reminiscing and read the bulletins with interest."

Captain JIMMIE HUFF is Finance Officer located now at Atlanta, Georgia, and reports that he held a two-man reunion with Major Frank Switzer recently.

Major JIMMY SEALS is in India.

"SKEET" FISHER was Deputy Clerk of the Supreme Court of Appeals, but joined the Navy and was back recently on a visit, very much of a gob.

Lieutenant-Commander JERRY LONG, Medical Corps, is somewhere in the Pacific.

Colonel ALEX GATES joined up a couple of years ago and is now with the Army in England.

Captain "BUCK" AVIS was last heard from with the Army in Florida.

JOHN GREEN, class agent for the Law Class of 1924, is practicing law in Knoxville, Tennessee, with offices in the Park National Bank Building.

CHARLES COHEN is now living in New York City at 475 Fifth Avenue.

TURNER MERRITT is acting as Chief Clerk and Signal Property Clerk at the Prisoner of War Camp, Aliceville, Alabama.

GEORGE S. SPRAGINS is manager of the West Arcadia Branch of N.T.S.A., Arcadia, California. He is married and has two children a girl, Virginia, 14, and a boy George, Jr., six. His home is at 1024 Balboa Drive, Arcadia, California.

1925

BRUCE F. GANNAWAY, Class Agent for 1925, has just been returned by his Bishop for his fourth year as Minister of Hendricks Methodist Church, Jacksonville, Florida. In the bulletin which he sent to the members of his class giving a "Digest" of the letters he received, he thanks his class for giving him an increased response in each of the four years he has served as their agent.

Written by Class Agent, BRUCE F. GANNAWAY

Captain E. E. ROSBOROUGH, Officers' Club, Quartermaster School, Camp Lee, Virginia, writes, "I don't believe there are an awful lot of our men in service, at least I don't know of them if they are, but you can rest assured that this member of the class is enjoying this war to the fullest extent, and will enjoy it more so when I get on the other side." "Red" is making the grade, and we know he will give a good account of himself.

Candidate NEWTON R. BLACK, Company 44, 3rd S.T.R., Fort Benning, Georgia, writes that the training is mighty stiff for a fellow his age, but that he expects to complete his Officer's training by July 1. "Newt" enlisted in the Infantry last November.

Major ALLAN P. SLOAN, Box 4114, Atlanta, Georgia, says he doesn't get much army life, since they put him in the Equipment Pool, dealing in construction machinery, the work he has been carrying on for fifteen years.

Allen suggests that we look forward to a reunion on our twentieth anniversary, June 1945. Keep this in mind.

CANDIDATE E. T. MCHENRY, Co. C, Officers' Candidate School, No. 2, Army Administration School, Grinnell, Iowa, expected to receive his commission in May, so we hope all went well, and that he is now a Lieutenant.

LIEUTENANT MARVIN HUMMER, USNR, Utility Squadron Two, Care Fleet Post Office, San Francisco, California, left San Francisco on January 10 and arrived at his post on the 20th. He is happily situated, but that is all we know about his place of duty. Where would you be if you walked, rode, swam, or flew for ten days from San Francisco? That's where Marvin is.

CAPTAIN WILLIAM CARROLL MEAD, Air Regulating Squadron No. 4, Marine Air Corps Base, Camp Kearney, San Diego, Calif., was recently married. His address now is uncertain, but mail will be forwarded to him.

LIEUTENANT WALTON REX, USNR, Care Cadet Regiment, U. S. Naval Air Station, Grosse Ile, Michigan, took his training in Rhode Island, and then was stationed in Michigan all winter. No place for a Florida "Croaker." Walton says he would like to be moved South, where the weather is even hot—But not too hot! That's our wish, too, Walton, and like you, we'll all be happy when the day comes that this "mess" is over, and you and all the rest can get back home, and we can get to work reconstructing this old world.

GIBSON WITHERSPOON, 716 Threefoot Building, Meridan, Mississippi, is still attorney for the United States Fidelity Company and engaged in the private practice of law. He reports the birth of a daughter, Mary Elizabeth, born on February 25, 1943.

JOHN SEYMOUR LETCHER is now a Lieutenant-Colonel, in the South Pacific. The following is an excerpt from a letter received from a former Washington and Lee track captain and a subordinate in Colonel Letcher's command:

"As you may or may not know, Colonel Letcher enjoys an enviable record in Marine Corps artillery circles—is very G. I.—knows his profession thoroughly and has the confidence of his subordinates. He is not just an average American. He won't let his battalion have any beer or liquor, believes in not becoming equipment-heavy, but rather advocates elimination of burdensome gear and the use of few but hard rules. He has the reputation for being able to out-hike his men, and has a ruddier complexion than any of them.

"Frankly, we are mighty lucky to have such a valuable regimental executive. Men must have leaders and just since Colonel Letcher's promotion, though no physical change has been effected, there is a confident spirit permeating the subordinate officer's ranks. So much for "Cappy's" Colonel. He more than lives up to his best heritage."

STANFORD SCHEWEL Class Agent for 1940-Law, writes from the Office of Strategic Services, U. S. Army Forces in the Middle East: "Even over here, thousands of miles away from Lexington, I found evidence of Washington and Lee. Quite often I run into Special Service Officers, and as soon as I tell them I'm a Washington and Lee man they launch into lyrical praise of Lexington and Washington and Lee, and everything about the place. They've all said, 'If I hadn't gone to such or such a school I would certainly have liked to have gone to Washington and Lee.' And if all of them who say they are going to send their sons there actually do, and if they have as many sons as they threaten to have when they get home and have an opportunity to commence working on that worthy undertaking, W. & L. will be full to overflowing for many years to come.

"Aside from these 'pseudo alumni,' the only other Washington and Lee man I've encountered in this part of the world has been Carter Glass, III. I ran into him on the porch of that very famous hotel (name censored) where it is said you run into everybody you know."
