Two Perspectives upon the Academic Year

(Excerpts from a report to the Board of Trustees)

As the present session slips away from us, I seem to see it in two somewhat vague perspectives, both of unique significance.

The Incredible Year: The present session has been without parallel in my experience, or in the experience of anybody since the time of General Lee, for confusion, difficulty, and the unbelievable volume of work upon administrative officers. Considered for the moment as a business, the University had to be reconverted from a 10% operating agency back to maximum, with all the attendant problems of the physical, the financial, the materiel, and the personnel; then had to be expanded 20% beyond any maximum known before; then had the unprecedented task of housing 250 student families. All of these things had to be done at a time of fantastic prices and of unparalleled scarcities—scarcity of labor, scarcity of equipment (our first order for scientific supplies brought us about 2% of the supplies ordered), scarcity of text-books (the classes in freshman mathematics have used a grand miscellany of texts, just anything available), of teachers, and of housing and all housing supplies. Three-fourths of our students were registered by and with a governmental agency (the officials have been cooperative, but don't forget the red tape). On top of this comes that avalanche of applications, running possibly twenty for every vacancy—this item alone, in spite of additional secretarial help, would double my personal correspondence. Then, to crown it all, we are launching, or have launched a campaign for $3,000,000.

The Rewarding Effort: But far beyond these details of the turbulent routine, we have deep and satisfying assurance that the University has never done better work.

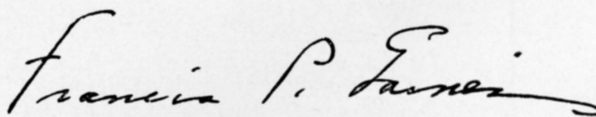

The record of our students is excellent. Certain nameless fears we may have had on the eve of reconversion proved groundless. We do not have "two classes of students, veterans and non-veterans." We do not have a single veteran who represents that predicted group of the young gentlemen who "wanted to spend a pleasant year at the expense of the government." Student activities are being resumed and supported in a reasonably active way. The proportion of "automatics" and "drop-outs" is about normal. Since the overwhelming majority of the veterans—and they are the great majority of all students here—are our own boys who have returned, the essential traditions of campus life have not been materially disturbed.

We have a good faculty. Of the men on permanent status who went into various forms of public service during war years, only three failed to return. Today to my personal knowledge, which is not inclusive, there are twenty-one men on our faculty who could be making much more elsewhere. I am now referring to recent offers, not to the cumulative records of all the lives of our men. These men have stayed with us in some part because of gratitude for fair treatment and in some part because of their love of the task; but they have given a testimony also of their pride in the institution and their faith in its future.

The cohesion of student work and faculty work produces a standard of instruction that meets every test. It is known to you that every division of the University which is subject to rating by an accrediting agency on graduate or professional level, receives top rating. I could also make known to you special recognitions by a dozen or more of the leading universities or highly critical scientific bureaus which confirm the thoroughness of instruction offered on this campus.

When we approach the prospective donor, we can tell him that Washington and Lee has more than a great history; we can tell him that the impact of living alumni is a powerful factor of contemporary life; and we can tell him that the high quality of present performance here on the campus is a guarantee of future worthiness.

President

Herbert Fitzpatrick, rector of the Board of Trustees, President Francis P. Gaines and John W. Davis, general chairman of the Bicentennial, shown during the meeting of the Board of Trustees with bicentennial leaders in Washington, January 18, when a resolution was passed officially opening the Bicentennial Financial Program

The Bicentennial Campaign and The Alumni Fund

Washington and Lee, like every educational institution, has two broad problems—to maintain itself and its services at satisfactory levels, steadily year after year, and, upon occasion, to enlarge its plant, its funds or its facilities when the need arises.

Every individual faces the same problem in his own life—the basic need for regular, year to year support for himself and family, and upon other occasions, the need for a larger or better house, the need to purchase a more adequate piece of property or, in the language of economics, some other “capital” need.

Both needs, it is obvious, are important, whether they occur in the life of the individual or in the life of an institution such as Washington and Lee.

Washington and Lee’s alumni fund is a most important factor in helping the University meet its recurring annual needs. It is one of the strongest annual bonds with its alumni. Their small, modest gifts each year add up to a total that helps in an appreciable way to maintain the high standard of the University.

On the other hand, when those occasions come, as now, for urgently needed “capital” requirements so that Washington and Lee will go forward, the problem arises for each alumnus—shall I—am I expected to—give to the alumni fund, or to the Bicentennial Fund—or to both?

The University's position in the matter is that both the traditional alumni and the Bicentennial Fund mean much to the continued life and progress of the University but that the decision to participate in either fund, or both, is a matter for individual determination. Both are in one real sense merely opportunities provided for alumni to give, voluntarily, according to the generosity of their hearts and the ability of their means.

Washington and Lee has expressed to the Alumni Association its belief that Washington and Lee alumni will clearly recognize the importance of the steady support provided by the alumni fund, and take just pride in it, and that few if any alumni would care to see the fund abandoned, even if temporarily, and its continuity and integrity broken or halted.

It has expressed also the belief that the small but cumulative important gifts called forth by the alumni fund will not conflict in any real way with the larger capital gifts that must be obtained for success of the Bicentennial effort whose purpose is to bulwark the University and safeguard its future in even larger ways.

The University, therefore, expresses the hope that every alumnus continue unimpaired the making of his regular annual contribution to the alumni fund, this spring, through his class agents, and, in the fall, in the growing emergency which faces the University in the area of its capital requirements, will respond with proportionate generosity to their alma mater's greater needs.

The Washington Grant

A financial stimulus administered by George Washington in 1796 to a then tiny, struggling "school in the upper country" continues to this day to provide part payment toward the tuition of every student attending Washington and Lee University.

Now Washington and Lee, which developed from little Liberty Hall Academy, the recipient of Washington's gift of one hundred shares of canal company stock, finds history repeating itself in the university's Bicentennial Financial Program launched just a month ago to bring the institution $3,000,000 for its third century of development.

Today, on the anniversary of the birth of its first donor, America's sixth oldest university announced that its fund campaign has already brought gifts totalling more than $400,000. A substantial proportion of these initial gifts are, like George Washington's, in the form of negotiable securities.

The Washington gift, the first large gift of securities ever made to an American college, and valued at $50,000, has so far yielded a sum almost identical to that contributed to the month-old Bicentennial fund. Despite reductions in investment income and increases in the number of students who share its benefits, in recent years it has continued to pay about three dollars a year toward the education of every Washington and Lee student.

To fulfill a dream of George Washington—the linking of the Atlantic Ocean with the Ohio River by a navigable waterway—the Commonwealth of Virginia in 1784 granted a charter to the James River Company. It was the securities of this canal enterprise, in effect the parent company of the present Chesapeake and Ohio Railway, which comprised Washington's gift of stock to the Lexington school.

In 1785 the Virginia Legislature had awarded the stock to General Washington in recognition of his services to his state and country. Actually he had shared in the engineering of the waterways. Washington refused to accept the gift for his personal benefit, but later agreed provided the Legislature would allow him to turn it over to some worthy purpose. The Commonwealth consented to this, but because the James River Company was spending its capital in building locks and canals and was receiving no revenue, Washington decided to hold the stock until the company began to show profits. That day came, so Washington thought, in 1796.

Having spent most of the preceding years at the seat of the government in Philadelphia, and therefore not being too familiar with Virginia institutions, Washington asked the Legislature to designate a recipient for the gift. Refusing to do this the Legislature did suggest a seminary of learning in the "upper country." Upon hearing of this, General Andrew Moore of Rockbridge County and General Francis Preston of Washington County, representatives in Congress from the "upper country," directed the attention of Washington to Liberty Hall at Lexington. General Moore also wrote the Rev. William Graham, the school's rector, suggesting that the academy apply to Washington for the gift. Graham and the Board of Trustees prepared an address and forwarded it along with a map of the "upper country" to President Washington.

According to one report, General Lighthorse Harry Lee, father of Robert E. Lee, who later became the institution's eighth and greatest president, helped to persuade Washington to pass the securities to the institution which now bears both names.

In considering other educational ventures in the "upper country" as possible recipients, Washington finally decided to endow Liberty Hall because he said he preferred to assist those who had assisted themselves, and other seminaries suggested to him had not become established. He reaffirmed the benefaction in his will.

In March, 1802, the James River Company yielded its first dividend. Through most of the 19th century dividends ranged from 12 to 18 per cent. Up to 1928, when the Commonwealth of Virginia redeemed for $50,000 cash the certificates of indebtedness which it had issued in 1892 in exchange for the stock, Washington and Lee University had received about $350,000 in dividends and interest from the gift.

The principal sum was placed in the general endowment fund of the university in 1928 and re-invested in other securities. Through this medium, George Washington continues to support the school in the "upper country" to which he gave vitality exactly a century and a half ago.

LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY, ALUMNI MEETING

The Louisville, Kentucky, Alumni Chapter held a Founders Day luncheon on January 20 at the Canary Cottage. The following officers were elected to serve for the coming year: Peel Rivers, '33, President; Dick Day, '41, Vice-President, and Tom Nugent, '38, Secretary and Treasurer.

The following alumni were present: Ernest B. Walker, Jr., Tom Tulley, John Davis, Wathen Knebelkamp, Charles Semple, Murrell Klein, Kennedy Helm, Jo Van Zandt, M. R. Nelson, Charles Mercke, Dick Day, Peel Rivers, Robert C. Hobson, Fielden Woodward, Bill Whaley, Jack Hardwick, Lynn Smith, George Burks, Bijur O'Sullivan, Frank Glenn, Oldham Clarke, Ed Rietze, Tom Nugent.

Colonel John H. Tucker, '10, President of the Louisiana Law Institute, will speak to the student-body of the Washington and Lee Law School on March 1, on certain phases of Louisiana law. He is a member of the law firm of Tucker, Bronson and Martin, Commercial Bank Building, Shreveport, Louisiana.

Enrollment at Washington & Lee, 1947

A MESSAGE TO EVERY WASHINGTON AND LEE ALUMNUS:

Washington and Lee, in common with other colleges of limited enrollment, faces a serious problem in the selection of new students that it can wisely admit in September, 1947. It is thought advisable to make a full statement of this situation in this issue of The Alumni Magazine to be sent by the University to every alumnus, to inform the alumni and to welcome their continuing cooperation and help in meeting this problem.

The current enrollment has been increased from a pre-war average of 925 to around 1150 students, in an effort to meet the legitimate demands for education from the returning veterans. It is felt that an increase beyond 1150 cannot be made without jeopardizing the quality of the instructional and institutional life for those students who are in attendance here.

Enrollment at Washington and Lee is no longer simply a question of whether a boy can do satisfactory work and will be an acceptable campus citizen; it involves selecting from many qualified applicants those who have the strongest claims to the limited number of places available. The number to be accepted in September must necessarily be relatively small through the fact that the overwhelming number of veterans as well as non-veterans who began college work in 1946 will remain on the campus for at least three or four years, and thus far fewer places than normally will be opened up through graduation.

In past years, and through 1946, the policy pursued was to accept or decline an application for admission as soon as the papers were complete. Were this policy now in effect an entering class for September, 1947, could easily have been selected by the fall of 1946 from applications already on file. Such action would, however, have excluded a number of better qualified applicants who would have applied later, particularly applicants in their last year of high or preparatory school work. It has consequently been thought advisable to place a dead-line for applications that would be certain to enable the University to secure a large number of highly qualified applicants and that would not be too late a time for applicants not accepted to apply elsewhere.

The entering class for September, 1947, has been fixed at 250, and in making the selection of the strongest class possible we feel that the following statement will be recognized as valid by all alumni:

That there is every desire to give the fullest consideration to recommendations from Alumni as to possible candidates for admission, but it will be essential to have applications completed by 1 April, 1947; and the selection must necessarily be based on the strength of record of the applicant.

It should perhaps be further explained that the 250 applicants to be accepted in September will, practically without exception, include no men who have had previous connection with another college. This action is based on a desire to offer opportunity to as many returning veterans as the facilities permit. It is felt that our first obligation is to our own men who left to enter the armed services. These are being accepted for re-entrance almost regardless of academic or other status. Washington and Lee assumes that other institutions will take a similar attitude toward their own former students, and that our wisest policy is to confine the all too limited number of new men to freshmen, veterans and non-veterans, who will normally be on the campus for four years, and who can have the whole of their college experience here.

It is hoped that alumni will understand the spirit in which this statement is made, in an effort to establish the post-war student body on as strong and as fair a basis as possible.

Ball Foundation Appointments Announced

President Francis Pendleton Gaines has announced the establishment of a group of professorships on the Thomas Ball Foundation at Washington and Lee and the appointment of four faculty members to the professorships.

Named to the new standing were Dr. Robert Foster Bradley, professor of romance languages; Dr. Lucius J. Desha, professor of chemistry; Charles Porterfield Light, professor of law; and Dr. Marcellus Henry Stowe, professor of geology. A fifth professorship included on the Ball Foundation and to be awarded a member of the present university faculty would be announced later. The appointments were made by a special eight-man selection board. The foundation was established through a recent gift of Mrs. Alfred I. du Pont, of Wilmington, Delaware, made in connection with Washington and Lee's Bicentennial program as a memorial to her father, Captain Thomas Ball.

Trustees of the university specified that the posts were to be awarded on the basis of three qualifications, scholarship and scholarly interest, effectiveness as a teacher, and value to the university by influence and general activity, Dr. Gaines said.

Dr. Bradley came to Washington and Lee as head of the romance language department in 1936 after teaching at Georgia Tech, the University of South Carolina and the University of Wisconsin.

Currently acting as dean of the university, Dr. Desha will return to full-time teaching in the science school here after this session. Prior to coming here he was professor of biochemistry at the University of Tennessee College of Medicine and in World War I served in the Chemical Division of Military Intelligence in France. He is the author of two well known textbooks in organic chemistry.

Professor Light, formerly associated with a Washington law firm, first taught in the W. and L. law school in 1926. He served with the judge advocate-general's department during World War II and returned here this session. He is a graduate of the Harvard law school with postgraduate work at Columbia law school and a member of the District of Columbia and Virginia State Bar Associations.

Dr. Stow, a fellow of the Geological Society of America and of the American Association for Advancement of Science, was granted a wartime leave of absence from Washington and Lee to serve as deputy director of the mining division of the War Production Board. He has served as president of the Virginia Academy of Science and as president of the Yellowstone-Bighorn Research Association and has spent a number of field seasons in geologic research in the Rocky Mountains.

On the Campus

JOURNALISM ADDS VISITING INSTRUCTORS

Addition of two part-time instructors to the staff of the department of Journalism for the second semester, announced by Professor O. W. Riegel, head of the department, are William Atkinson, managing editor of the Roanoke Times, and Louis Spilman, editor and publisher of the News-Virginian, Waynesboro, Va. Mr. Atkinson will teach the course in copy editing and make-up, and Mr. Spilman will teach advanced reporting. The two instructors are both leading Virginia professional newspapermen. Mr. Spilman became owner, editor and general manager of the Waynesboro News-Virginian on September 1, 1929. Mr. Atkinson has been managing editor of the Roanoke Times for 22 years.

BRYAN SPEAKS AT JOURNALISM ASSEMBLY

David Tennant Bryan, publisher of the Richmond Times Dispatch and News-Leader, was the speaker at the University Assembly on November 18 before a large gathering of journalism students, faculty and administrative heads, and notables in the field of communications. This was the first of a series of programs planned for the year by the Lee Memorial Journalism Foundation.

* * * * *

"The Petrified Forest," initial Troubadour production of the year, was given on December 10, 11, 12 and 13 in the Troubadour theatre to capacity audiences and was pronounced as a near-professional performance by those who saw it. The cast was composed of Washington and Lee students and student-wives.

PREP AND HIGH SCHOOL NEWSPAPER MEET

The return of Mr. O. W. Riegel, Director of the Lee Journalism Foundation, to the campus after a four-year leave of absence for domestic and foreign service with the Office of War Information, has been the signal for the revival of the University's program of assistance in the scholastic publication field.

Sponsors of Virginia high and prep school publications were invited to Washington and Lee University on November 2 for the first state-wide conference of its type, conducted by the University's Lee Journalism Foundation. This conference was arranged by Mr. Riegel to provide a means for the exchange of ideas and practices in all scholastic publications fields, including newspaper, yearbook and magazine.

CANDLELIGHT SERVICE

The traditional Candlelight Service, under the auspices of the Washington and Lee Christian Council, was held at 11 p.m., December 20 in the Robert E. Lee Memorial Episcopal Church. Dr. Francis P. Gaines was the speaker and the Glee Club, making its first appearance of the year, furnished the music, which included both anthems and carols.

CAVE EXPLORING

Cave exploring on an official basis has been started in Lexington with the formation of the Lexington Grotto, which held its first meeting on November 21. The Grotto, a branch of the National Speleological Society, has as its aim the exploring, study photography, and mapping of the Lexington area caves. One of the principal undertakings of the Lexington Grotto will be the complete exploration and mapping of Cave Spring Cave, two miles west of Lexington.

DR. CRENSHAW PUBLISHES HISTORICAL BOOK

"The Slave States in the Presidential Election of 1860," by Dr. Ollinger Crenshaw, B.A. '25, associate professor of history at Washington and Lee University, has recently been published by the Johns Hopkins University Press. This is a careful analytical study of the trend of Southern thought during the pre-Civil war period. Dr. Crenshaw is currently writing a history of Washington and Lee to be published in the latter part of 1948 or early 1949.

STUDENTS TRANSFER TO UNIV. OF STOCKHOLM

Two Washington and Lee students, Pete Mitchell, of Martinsville, Virginia, and Bernard Dall, of Kingston, North Carolina, have transferred to the University of Stockholm and will sail on the Swedish liner Drottningholm on January 31. While in Sweden their tuition will be paid by the Veterans Administration and they will each receive $65.00 a month. They plan to be quartered in Swedish homes with private families and their information is that all classes will be conducted in English until students learn Swedish.

ALUMNI AND STUDENTS TAPPED BY ODK

Colgate W. Darden, former governor of Virginia, was the speaker at the annual tapping exercises for Omicron Delta Kappa, national honorary leadership fraternity, on December 19.

Darden joined a group of other prominent state and national figures, most of whom are Washington and Lee alumni, and included Governor Clarence W. Meadows, '26, Governor of West Virginia, William M. Tuck, '21, Governor of Virginia, to be honored in company with a number of Washington and Lee student leaders, who were tapped in addition to Darden, Meadows and Tuck.

The group included:

Clarence J. Brown, '16, Congressman from Ohio.

John W. Eggleston, '06, Justice of the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals.

Henry W. Holt, '88, Chief Justice of the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals.

C. Harold Lauck, director of the Washington and Lee Journalism Laboratory Press, former President of the National Graphic Arts Education Association, and one of the nation's foremost printing artists. In 1944 he was winner of the Harry J. Friedman Memorial Gold Medal for outstanding contributions to graphic arts education.

Major-General Richard J. Marshall, superintendent of Virginia Military Institute.

Ben L. Rawlings, Jr., '30, general counsel of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation.

W. Chapman Revercomb, '18, United States Senator from West Virginia.

Clarence R. Avery, '14, President Chattanooga Glass Manufacturing Company and member of the University Board of Trustees.

Milton B. Rogers, '17, former New York and European business executive, now executive director of the Washington and Lee Bicentennial Program.

Abram P. Staples, '08, Attorney-General of Virginia since 1934.

With the exception of Darden, Lauck and General Marshall, the group is composed of Washington and Lee alumni.

Student initiates were; James W. Harman, Tazewell, Virginia; Leo J. Signiago, Jr., Welch, West Virginia; Eugene R. Marable, Jr.; Robert B. Taylor, Lynchburg, Virginia; Jon R. Rugel, Midland, Texas; Marshall S. Ellis, Clarksdale, Mississippi; T. Ryland Dodson, Ringgold, Virginia.

Omicron Delta Kappa, founded at Washington and Lee in 1914, annually honors a small group of alumni and friends of the institution, along with the selected student group, in recognition of attained leadership in their respective fields. Since 1914 the fraternity has developed into a national group with chapters in major colleges and universities throughout the nation.

Counseling and Placement Service Established

By William M. Hinton, '29, Director

In recognition of post war needs and, in line with constructive suggestions from the University Affairs Committee of the Alumni Association and representatives of the Student Body, the university administration has authorized the centralization of placement functions at Washington and Lee under a Counseling and Placement Service. It should be emphasized that it is in no wise the purpose of this service to supplant the excellent work that has been and is being carried on by Schools and Departments of the University and by the many individual members of the faculty and administration. The work of this counseling and placement service will be to integrate and supplement existing efforts and to provide a continuing source of additional information and assistance for students, alumni, administration and faculty.

More specifically this service, under the direction of a permanent director, will be responsible for the administration and interpretation of the University Test Program and will serve as a point of referral for the dean's office and freshman advisors of those cases of academic difficulty in which the desirability of additional objective information is indicated. In addition, it will cooperate with the Office of the Dean of Students and with that of the University Physician as a source of aid to men desiring assistance with personal problems.

Vocational Counseling will be made available to the student by interviews and reference to occupational information on file in the director's office and the library. A full supply of aptitude tests has been procured and will be administered where, in the individual case, it appears that they might prove helpful in aiding the student to see his situation more clearly.

Incidentally, the philosophy inherent in any counseling at Washington and Lee starts with the assumption that counseling should be presented as a way of helping the individual help himself. This service will make every effort to provide a point of reference and an atmosphere in which the student, through utilization of the facilities provided and exploration of his own situation, comes to see his reactions, potentialities, and limitations, in short, to see himself more clearly.

The placement phase of this service is merely the logical extension of the responsibility assumed by the University with the matriculation of any student; that is, to help him in any way during his stay as a student or in his post-college status as an alumnus. The initial emphasis will be placed on making available to the men now in college information which should assist them in their search for employment. This will be accomplished by requesting them to file their credentials and preferences with this office. An effort is being made to obtain all possible information from prospective employers who have regularly employed Washington and Lee men, and from others who will be informed of the availability of Washington and Lee graduates. This information will be on file and accessible to all students at specified hours during each school day. It will take some time to organize the service completely and to collect all desired information, but a consistent development of these contacts should assure Washington and Lee a continuous source of information regarding positions for her graduates.

As soon as possible a systematic canvas of alumni needs will be made. If, however, in the interim, any alumnus wishes to make use of the service he will receive, upon request, registration forms for filing his preferences and pertinent educational and occupational information.

The office of the service will be housed in Room 22, Newcomb Hall, which many alumni will recognize as part of the offices formerly occupied by President Henry Lewis Smith. Office hours will be held regularly from 2:00 to 4:00 p.m., five days a week, during which students may register, read, or discuss any employment problems with the chairman or any members of the staff.

Alumni can render invaluable service at all times, but especially during our organization period, by keeping us informed of any openings that might be available to the men of Washington and Lee University. Your cooperation and suggestions will assure the success of this sincere effort on the part of your Alma Mater to render a greater service.

William M. Hinton, '29

Edgar F. Shannon, Jr., '39, was named among the three winners of Rhodes Scholarships from Virginia, according to Dr. Frank Aydelotte, American Secretary to the Rhodes Trustees.

The son of Mrs. E. F. Shannon and the late Dr. Shannon, world renowned authority on Chaucer and head of the English Department of the University for 24 years, he is now an instructor and graduate student at Harvard University. An A.B. of the Class of 1939, Washington and Lee, he holds a masters degree from Duke University. Entering the United States Navy as a midshipman and discharged as a Lieutenant Commander, he was on the USS Quincy when the cruiser was sunk off Guadalcanal; was awarded ten battle stars, and served on three Admiralty staffs.

ST. LOUIS CHAPTER ENTERTAINS

The St. Louis chapter of Washington and Lee Alumni gave a luncheon for the boys attending Washington and Lee, who were home for the holidays, on December 30, 1946. The following alumni were present: Hugh D. McNew, David F. Crossen, Luther F. Violet, Richard Payne, Jr., William P. Diggs, M. Alexander Jones, James C. Walker, E. H. Bacon, A. C. Brown, C. R. Gunter, William C. Edwards, Douglas Remmers, William McMartin, W. C. Magruder, F. M. Robinson, Jr.

Also the following boys attending the University were present: Roy Johnson, Jr., James F. Brown, Anthony T. Statler, Edward A. Goodrich, William Milne Fittge, Albert M. Hamel, Chadbourne B. Smith, Donald M. Bertram.

Winter Sports at the University

Wrestling

By Warren Merrin

Although Washington and Lee has just returned to inter-collegiate wrestling after an absence of four years, its team is still rated by Virginia sports writers as one of the top contenders in the Southern Conference.

Coach Harry Broadbent was faced with an almost total lack of experienced material around which to build his first team at the University, but with the help of his student assistant, Ed Waddington, a varsity performer before the war, who was forced to withdraw from competition because of a wartime injury, he has turned out a formidable outfit which has already won its first two matches against Loyola and Virginia.

Forming the core of the team are the three returning lettermen: co-captains Charles Steiff, 136 pounder from Baltimore, Maryland, and Bob Crockett of Tazewell, Virginia, who performs in the 155 pound class, and Jim Evans, 145 pounds from Tarentum, Pennsylvania.

Between February 7 and March 1 the Generals meet all of their conference opponents consecutively. The 17 to 9 win over Virginia, an experienced and highly rated team, gave indications of a successful season, but Coach Broadbent pointed out that, even if such teams as North Carolina State, North Carolina, VPI, and Duke are successfully subdued, there will remain the defending conference champions, VMI, to reckon with in the tournament.

Broadbent revealed that interest in wrestling among the students is not as high as it was in the pre-war years, but he added that every effort is being made to stimulate interest. A new Grapplers' Club is being formed for both this purpose and to promote friendly relations between the students of Washington and Lee and those of VMI. At the end of the season a banquet will be given by the club for the wrestling teams of the two schools, and at this dinner two trophies will be awarded to W. and L. matmen.

The first trophy is the Archie Mathis trophy, donated by the beloved mentor in honor of five men formerly on teams under his tutelage who were killed in the war, which will be awarded to the outstanding wrestler on the squad.

The second trophy, to be called the Coaches' trophy, will be awarded to the man selected by the coaches as the most improved wrestler on the team during the course of the current season.

Basketball

By Brent Breedin

Washington and Lee's 1947 basketball team with a record of eight wins in nine starts gives all indications of being the first General athletic squad to challenge the oft times brilliant accomplishments of pre-war predecessors.

Coach Carl Wise appeared dubious concerning the chances of his first W. and L. basketball team at the start of the school year, but the return of lettermen Clancy Ballenger, Harry Harner, Fred Vinson, and Bill Bryan, the enrollment of freshmen Don Hillock, Reggie Crockett, George Pierson, and Steve Ulaki, and the transfer of Bill Chipley from Clemson have put the Generals on a par with any of the power-laden squads of the Southern Conference.

Coach Wise is employing a fast breaking offensive from his man-to-man defense, but for scoring points the Generals work to give set-shot artists Pierson, Harner, Ballenger, and Ulaki opportunities to practice their long range tactics or pivot men Hillock and Crockett occasions to display their large variety of hook and underhand shots. Chipley and Vinson have played outstanding ball in getting rebounds offensively and defensively.

Christmas vacation found Washington and Lee on the undefeated lists, following the injury-riddled squad's victories over Fort Belvoir, 58-56; Quantico Marines, 67-39; Langley Field, 43-38; and Camp Lee, 72-31. Brilliant play by high scoring freshmen Hillock and Pierson and the polished performances of veterans Ballenger and Vinson were highlights of the pre-Christmas stint. Peak play for the season to date was reached in the game with the Marines, as all efforts of the Generals received dividends.

Three days after the return to classes, the W. and L. basketball squad faced the professional House of David aggregation, and by turning in their second best performance of the young season, they easily downed the bearded five, 62-47. Co-captain Harry Harner set a fast pace for his teammates and led the scoring in his first complete trial of the year with 20 points.

A day's rest and the Generals appeared ready for Bridgewater College. This small Virginia quintet proved to be no match for the alert W. and L. players, and the home team walloped their opponents, 88-34. Harner led the way for the second successive time, while Hillock, Pierson, and co-captain Ballenger continued to maintain their better than ten point average per contest.

Monday, January 13, found the traditional rivals from Virginia invading Doremus Memorial Gymnasium, and in what will surely be considered the most exciting game of the year, the "Wahoos" were downed by a 54-52 count in the last three seconds of play. Don Hillock was carried off the court on the shoulders of jubilant spectators, following his two game-winning field goals in the last 30 seconds after Virginia had knotted the score twice in the same period of time. The final Hillock goal was a pivot shot several paces beyond the foul circle.

The Thursday afterwards a visiting Maryland squad's fine play and ability to make 19 out of 25 foul shots good resulted in the Generals' only defeat to date, 65-60. Though fighting all the way, the W. and L. team did not play its best ball against the Terps, and team members are waiting for the second meeting before admitting inferiority.

A 53-46 triumph over VPI, and a 2-0 Big Six record was the outcome of the final contest played at this writing. Participation in their first away game, the Generals showed several spurts of superior skill in downing the home team. Harner led the scoring with 13 points.

Washington and Lee must face important Southern Conference opponents, Duke, George Washington, William and Mary, Richmond, Wake Forest, and Clemson, between now and March 1. The ability and determination of the Generals' squad serve to make this difficult schedule somewhat lighter, and with a few of the important breaks of the game, W. and L.'s basketekers will complete their season at the Tournament in Raleigh.

Swimming

By W. C. Merrin

Warning against high expectations for the coming season, Coach Cy Twombly said that his plans for the W. and L. swimming team were to lay the groundwork for future years and to provide enjoyment for the boys on the team.

Hampered by a slow start, an unusually poor turnout of only fourteen men, and a lack of experienced performers, Twombly has scheduled only three meets. One with VPI, and two during a northern trip with Loyola and Catholic University.

Mehorter and Lynch Christian are the two men with varsity experience who are counted on heavily, along with freshman Charles Pacy who shows promise in the 220- and 440-yard events. Another man expected to display ability is Ray English, 220-yard intramural champion.

In addition to the dual meets, scheduled participation by the more talented individuals in the State Championship at Richmond and the Conference Championship at VMI is being planned.

Squad members include: Bob Mehorter, Maplewood, New Jersey; Bob Kearse, Charleston, West Virginia; Lynch Christian, Lynchburg, Virginia; Ray English, Farmingdale, New Jersey; Charles Pacy, Baltimore, Maryland; Francis Rushton, Jacksonville, Florida; Jim Little, Lorraine, Ohio; Bob Cooleage, New York, New York; Frank Carter, Atlanta, Georgia; Julian Frank, New York, New York; Albert Hamel, Webster Groves, Missouri; Bob Moody, Floral Park, New York; and Bill Garvin, Steubenville, Ohio.

Archie Mathis, former Washington and Lee wrestling coach, was found dead January 4 at his farm in Vienna, Illinois. Coroner E. A. Welch said that the 43 year old mentor had died of bullet wounds which appeared to have been self inflicted.

Mathis greeted Washington and Lee matmen for the first time in the winter of 1925 and during his 18 years here produced some of the finest teams in the school's athletic history. He brought forth nine Southern Conference Championship teams and under his tutelage 45 matmen won individual titles in the conference.

In 1942 Mathis joined the Armed Forces as a Physical Education Instructor and remained in the service until the close of the war. Upon being discharged he centered his attention on an Illinois farm, moving to the Middle West and the University of Illinois.

In the fall of 1946 Mathis expressed his sincere devotion to Washington and Lee by presenting the Mathis Trophy in memory of the five outstanding grapplers killed in the war. The Trophy will be presented annually to the foremost wrestler on the squad at the close of each season.

VETERAN ALUMNUS INVENTS USEFUL GADGET

If you build a better mousetrap the world will beat a path to your door. If you build a gadget that will open sardine and vacuum-sealed cans, lift caps off glass jars, remove beer and coke bottle caps, start catchup flowing in bottles, spear olives, cherries and pickles, the world not only beats a path, it paves a superhighway to the house of its inventor.

That's what Whitt Schultz, '42, a veteran living at 1007 Ridgewood place, Highland Park, Illinois, has done. Today his "Master Key," a handy little item, meant to make life easier for the housewife, is being sold in 16 states and will soon gleam on counters throughout the country.

After spending two years at Washington and Lee, Whitt was graduated from Northwestern University in 1942. Two weeks after graduation he enlisted in the Army. After serving in various public relations departments in this country, he was sent to Honolulu and served as sports editor of Brief magazine, which was distributed to all air force personnel in the Pacific. When he joined the Stars and Stripes staff he was transferred from the air force to the armed guard forces and was appointed a combat correspondent. He was stationed in Stars and Stripes headquarters in Honolulu until the end of the war.

In addition to the above, contributions and legacies amounting to $191,500.00 were received by the University from Alumni through channels other than the Alumni Fund

Report of the 1946 Alumni Fund

THE FIRST APPEAL for the Washington and Lee Alumni Fund was made in 1933. Since that time thousands of loyal alumni have faithfully contributed to the Fund and it has grown to be one of the University's great assets.

This fourteenth Annual Report summarizes another record in the Fund's impressive history and is a tribute to the eighty-six class agents who were responsible for its outstanding success.

To conform with the Association's fiscal year the date set for closing the 1946 Fund was June 30th, but due to unavoidable delays many class agents did not get their letters in the mails in time to receive responses before that date. At the direction of the Alumni Board of Trustees all contributions received by December 31 are included in this report. The records show that 1986 alumni contributed $23,976.82. The 1945 results were 1821 contributors and $23,855.51. It is true the increase in money received was not large but the gain of 165 contributors is encouraging. However, the most encouraging thing about the 1946 Fund does not show in the published figures and that is that contributions were received from 299 alumni who have never before responded. Another gain was in the percentage of contributors. In 1945 we had a 19% response and in 1946, 21%. On the debit side our average contribution dropped from $13.10 to $12.07.

The Academic Class of 1929, Henry Johnston, agent was the leader in the amount of money received, with the Academic Class of 1931, Chan Gordon, agent, a close second. For the second year the class of 1943, Al Darby, agent, led in the number of contributors but 1942 Academic, Dick Spindle, agent, was only one contributor behind. In the percentage column the Law Classes were away out in front, 1916, Selden McNeer, agent, was on top with 68%; 1922, Bleakley James, agent, was a very close second with 67%.

Within a very short time the 1947 Fund will be underway. We must clear the decks for "Operation Bicentennial" by June 30.

Won't you do your part by responding promptly to your Class Agent's letter?

Class Notes

Capt. Greenlee D. Letcher, never failing in his loyalty and helpfulness to Washington and Lee, was the first alumnus to respond in the 1946 Alumni Fund.

W. J. Humphreys, after many years with the United States Weather Bureau, is still much interested in matters intellectual, especially those of a scientific nature, stimulated by daily association with members of the Cosmos Club in Washington, D. C. He has written many scientific articles and books, and—his recollections to date, “in which Washington and Lee University furnishes many that often and lingeringly are recalled.” Address: Cosmos Club, Washington, D. C.

A. K. Bowles has been connected with the Consolidated Coal Company for fifty years. His address has recently been changed from Rockefeller Plaza, New York, to 2000 Koppers Building, Pittsburgh 19, Pennsylvania.

H. M. Heuser, Commonwealth's Attorney for Wythe County, Virginia, has held this office for many years. He has published many pamphlets about local history. His home is in Wytheville, Virginia.

Dr. Leroy C. Barret was a visitor to Lexington during the past summer. He is still teaching in Trinity College, Hartford, Connecticut.

James J. Faulkner, General Counsel of Armour & Company, retired from active duty at the close of the fiscal year, November 2, 1946, after 41 years of service and 29 years as General Counsel. He recently received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from Washington and Lee. He plans to remain in Chicago for several months before reopening his ancestral home, “Boydville,” at Martinsburg, West Virginia.

Colonel Warren W. Whiteside, Redmount Station, Front Royal, Virginia, has two girls and a boy; one girl married to an army colonel and the other to a naval captain, and the boy is a captain in the navy. So at the annual Army-Navy football game they have a house divided against itself.

W. Ross McCain recently received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from the University of Arkansas. He is President of the Aetna Fire Insurance Company, Hartford, Connecticut.

Admiral Charles Philip Snyder was placed

We wish to apologize for any errors in the class notes appearing in this issue. The letters from which these notes are taken were written, for the most part, early last spring. The rapid demobilization of alumni from the several branches of the armed forces of the United States have no doubt rendered some of these notes inaccurate or out-of-date. If so, we apologize. We would like to have more material for class notes in letters to your Class Agent this year.

on the retired list as of August 1, 1943, with the rank of Admiral (four stars). He completed fifty years service in the Navy on May 20, 1946; serving through World War II as Inspector General of the Navy. Home address: 1870 Wyoming Avenue, N. W., Washington, D. C.

Dr. J. A. McClure, class agent for 1899, retired from the active pastorate on June 14, 1946. He has been pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, St. Petersburg, Florida. His son, Tom McClure, B.S. '41, now out of the service, is back as a student in the Law School at Washington and Lee.

1900

J. E. Gish has lived in Roanoke, Virginia, since receiving his LL.B. from Washington and Lee. He has now retired from the practice of law, having received a severe injury to his shoulder in 1944. Home address: 1209 Center Hill Drive, Roanoke, Virginia.

1903

Robert T. Wallace is minister of the Monticello Presbyterian Church, Monticello, Florida. Reports a very successful evangelistic service in his church.

Clement Boaz, manager of W. J. Boaz Estate, Fort Worth, Texas, is proud of having three grandchildren, two boys and one girl. He and his wife, who was Lucilla Booker of Lexington and Hampden Sydney, get back to Virginia for summer visits.

D. V. Guthrie is teaching in the department of physics, Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge, Louisiana. His son, David V., Jr., graduated in June and is now back in school taking graduate work.

Dr. John Henry Day, Class Agent for 1904, is minister of the Seventh Baptist Church, North Avenue and St. Paul Street, Baltimore, Maryland.

1905

Judge Walter G. Riddick, Class Agent for 1905, is Judge of the Eighteenth Judicial Circuit, Little Rock, Arkansas. He received the degree of LL.D. from Washington and Lee in 1944, and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa in 1946.

1906

Milton Herman lives at 500 Hawthorne Drive, Danville, Virginia. He served in World War I with Captain Greenlee Letcher's revived Rockbridge Artillery, which afterwards became a part of the 111th Field Artillery. He says he was an onlooker in World War II. In the last few years he has become interested in gardening and says he has had quite satisfactory results for one who started as an ignoramus.

G. W. Keller is engaged in the natural gas field of West Virginia and Kentucky, serving as General Manager and part owner of the Huntington-Oklahoma Oil Company and the Midway City Gas Company. Their pipeline passes through Lexington, Virginia, so, he says: "In a very small way, we sometimes contribute to the fuel supply which cooks the waffles for the boys attending Washington and Lee." Address: First National Bank Building, Huntington, West Virginia.

W. R. J. Dunn, is Vice-President and General Manager of Dunn Construction Company, Birmingham, Alabama. Both of his sons, W. R. J., Jr., '40, and Claude Cobbs, '41 have returned safely from service.

By the way, who can tell us where to locate William Earl Anthony, last known address: Columbus, Georgia.

Johnny Guerrant, wholesale paper executive, was your class agent last year and did a remarkable job. This year, he is resting on his laurels and wouldn't even write us a letter, although his usual prompt contribution was received with pleasure. Johnny, like most Richmonders, enjoys life greatly. He takes a great deal of pride in his lovely Frances, and his delightful sub-deb daughter, Kitty.

Dr. Joe McMath was in the Navy 3½ years, and is now practicing at 505 Wyoming Avenue, Lockland, Cincinnati 15, Ohio. Joe didn't tell us whether he still retains all of his curly hair. In fact, the only personal information available is that he has two daughters.

John Hendon sent the outstanding letter, because it contained personal information in which we are all interested, and also contained a storehouse of information for the Alumni Office. John owns Hendon's Parking and Service Stations, 1631 Third Avenue, North Birmingham, Alabama. Howard Leake is the General Manager of the organization. Johnny was in the Navy three years, and Howard ran the business while Johnny was away. John was in charge of a Ground Training School for naval aviation cadets. He reports he has gained forty pounds. His fine letter exhibits an active interest in everything and everybody pertaining to Washington and Lee.

(Notes by Class Agent, T. B. Bryant)

John Lancaster wrote me some years ago, when I had the honor to serve as your Class Agent, that he was struggling hard to make a living and was glad to report that some months he almost made it. Information comes to me that he has developed into one of the outstanding young trial lawyers of the great Lone Star State and it is my sincere hope that henceforth his lean months will be scarce.

Harold Osterman, who holds the purse strings for Markel Insurance Company, came to Orangeburg last year and while here tried to talk settlement of some cases I had in which his company was interested. However, while he was here he went over to the Court House and sat with me while I defended a colored man for murder. The colored man was convicted and after Osterman sized up my courtroom ability he withdrew his offer of settlement and left for a fishing trip.

Sometime ago I had the pleasure of seeing Buck Jordan in Richmond. Buck is now Vice-President, Title Officer and just about owns the Lawyers Title Insurance Corporation in Richmond. An insurance man told me that Buck was recognized as the outstanding authority on real estate law in the South. "Skinny" Williams did a good job on him and I regret I was unable to take it in like Buck.

I have recently learned that Rhydon Latham is out of the Navy and back in Jacksonville and will probably be the next mayor. When that comes about I am going to see His Honor the Mayor.

Some time ago I got off at an airport in Louisville and had a short visit with George Clark—he is known in Louisville as Oldham—who at that time was Assistant U. S. District Attorney. I guess by this time he is a Federal Judge and I want him to write and tell me all about it.

Reese Stipes is doing exceptionally well in Flint, Michigan. I do not know whether he represents labor or capital, but in any event, my information is that he should be "in the chips."

Your humble servant is happy to report that he still has one wife, two boys (which constitutes a house full of children), no dogs, no fishing tackle, and very little money since March 15.

Sam J. Thompson is the Commonwealth's Attorney for Campbell County, Virginia. He is married and has four children, three boys and a girl. His home is in Rustburg, Virginia.

Major Collas G. Harris is executive officer of the Analysis and Research Division of Civil Information and Education Section, GHQ, Supreme Commander for the Allied Powers. He is on the staff of the Supreme Commander, who he says is a good solid and staunch Republican, but still will not let this influence his New Deal thinking too much.

Charlie Long is still at his post as Counsel to the Judiciary Committee, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C. He is maintaining his permanent residence at 3716 Stratford, Dallas 5, Texas. He has two sons—the youngest to arrive on February 22, 1946, and hopes they will both go to Washington and Lee.

M. William Adelson has recently severed a partnership with Smith, Barrett and Adelson, and is practicing law at 1816 Baltimore Trust Building, Baltimore 2, Maryland.

Simon M. (Sy) Painter, now discharged from the service, is back at his home in Bedford, Virginia, head coach for baseball at the school where he has been since 1934. He is half owner in a Dairy Corporation.

George Hagadorn, after two years in the Army, is now back with the National Commercial Bank and Trust Company in Albany, New York, doing investment analysis. Address: 849 Park Avenue, Albany, New York.

Bob Morris has been coaching at Ashland, Kentucky, high school for the past three years and is moving on to Ashland Junior College next year.

Robert Kaplan, now out of the service, is active partner again in Interstate Stores Company, Owensboro, Kentucky. He is married and has a young son.

For HOME or OFFICE

After considerable delay, we are delighted to announce that pictures in full color showing the lawn and buildings of front campus are now available and may be ordered from the alumni office in either of two sizes—20 x 15 and 35 x 25 inches . . . Suitable for home or office, these pictures are believed to comprise the most satisfactory art work ever created to capture the familiar loveliness of the Washington and Lee campus . . . Price: Large size $2.50 . . . small size $1.

IMPORTANT

Recently the Alumni Office mailed a questionnaire to all alumni whose addresses are on our files. This information is to be used in an Alumni Directory planned in connection with the Bicentennial celebration in 1949. To date only about one-third of these questionnaires has been returned. You can render a real service by returning the questionnaire immediately. If it has been misplaced, drop us a card and we will send you another one by return mail.
