THE FRONT COVER

Is there any wonder that statistics show that married collegians are more regular in class attendance than unmarried students? Unlike the "good old days" when a class cut was just a ticklish matter to be explained to the registrar, now it's a major domestic issue. Wives operate effectively around the Washington and Lee campus as "truant officers," and, as illustrated on this month's cover page, playing hookey ain't what it used to be.

The photograph captures the imposing facade of a classical building, showcasing its architectural details and the dramatic play of light and shadow. The columns stand as sentinels, supporting a heavy entablature that frames the entrance. The background structure, with its statue-topped dome, adds to the sense of historical significance and grandeur. The sky's dynamic cloud patterns provide a stark, atmospheric backdrop for the solid masonry.

This image highlights the architectural grandeur of the building, focusing on the classical elements like the columns and the pediment. The lighting creates strong contrasts, emphasizing the textures of the stone and the depth of the shadows. The overall mood is one of timelessness and monumental scale.

Mindful of the Future

The Bicentennial is the most important and significant event in the current history of your University.

* * * * *

We are making plans to celebrate it in a manner that will react to the credit of the University, at the same time signaling the tremendous importance of this date and event.

* * * * *

Only six other institutions of higher learning in the nation can claim so long a history, and none can claim a more impressive one, either by virtue of the names associated with it or the achievements of its graduates.

* * * * *

We are not only celebrating our 200th anniversary. That, by itself, would be vanity. We are planning to go forward into the third century in a position to adapt our methods and techniques to the future, at the same time retaining the ideals and purposes which have governed us in the past.

* * * * *

The creed which is written beneath our crest—"non in cautus futuri"—is capable of several interpretations. At this fateful moment in our history, I am inclined toward one which goes rather beyond the mere literal translation of the Latin to express what might be the watchword of the coming years: "Proud of our past, yet mindful of the future."

* * * * *

Recently we mailed you a copy of Toward Our Third Century, printed in connection with the Bicentennial Fund campaign. In this booklet we made a sincere effort to include other matters—a suggestion of our long history, an interpretation of what we are trying to do now and hope to do later, and something I might term our "confession of faith."

* * * * *

The Fund campaign is going forward successfully entirely because of the interest and the devotion of the alumni who are taking the major part of its responsibility. They are giving without stint of time and effort, to the disadvantage—I sometimes suspect when I see the effectiveness of their work—of personal business interests.

* * * * *

The necessity of every institution on a collegiate level to seek private support to carry on its program has long been recognized, and is being exhibited especially this year by a multiplicity of campaigns for finances. This should be, and is, I am sure, a challenge to Washington and Lee alumni to accomplish as much as our sister institutions, and more.

* * * * *

I know, and you will find as you come in contact with those whose unsuspected interest in Washington and Lee surprises you, that our University has a following that extends far beyond the ranks of its alumni. It was one of these friends of long standing who recently replied to my letter of acknowledgement of his endowment of a memorial scholarship with these words:

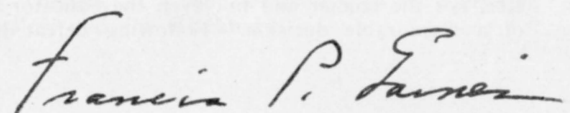

"You don't have to thank me, Dr. Gaines, for I don't look upon it as a contribution or a gift, but an everlasting investment that neither biting rains nor raging storms can destroy... This investment comes from a grateful heart and I know as time goes on these dollars in this everlasting bank will pay this nation great dividends."

* * * * *

With such demonstrations of trust to encourage us, Washington and Lee dares not evade the compulsion to prepare adequately for service in the future.

* * * * *

Because of such expressions of faith and because of the community of interest and devotion of the whole body of our alumni and friends, I know that we cannot fail.

President

Mrs. Du Pont First Woman Honoree

Washington and Lee University ended its 198th session on Friday, June 6, with commencement exercises in Lee Chapel, when four honorary degrees were conferred and one of the university's smallest peacetime graduating classes numbering only 91 received diplomas. The majority of the graduates were veterans.

Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson, of the United States, was awarded the doctor of laws degree; Dr. Thomas Perkins Abernethy, chairman of the department of graduate study in history at the University of Virginia, received the degree of doctor of letters, and the degree of doctor of divinity went to two ministers, the Rev. L. Valentine Lee, rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Jacksonville, Florida; and the Rev. Russell Stroup, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Lynchburg. Dr. Stroup delivered the Baccalaureate sermon at Virginia Military Institute the previous Sunday.

Mrs. Alfred I. duPont was escorted from the audience and awarded the degree of doctor of humane letters. The degree conferred upon Mrs. duPont was the first degree of any nature ever awarded a woman by the university and the award was made without previous announcement of the action. She has for many years been one of the university's most devoted benefactors, and a patron of education in many of its phases.

None of the five recipients are Washington and Lee alumni, although Justice Vinson and Dr. Lee have sons attending school here. Only two other honorary degrees have been conferred by the school during the last five years.

While the number of 1947 graduates, most of whom were interrupted in their studies by war service, is abnormally small for a peace-time group, the class will later be augmented by 55 candidates for degrees who expect to complete academic work in summer school.

Dr. Francis P. Gaines, president of the university, paid particular tribute to John Graham, whose recent death, he said, was a great loss to the university. He commented upon the fact that although Mr. Graham will be greatly missed at all times he will be especially remembered at the commencement exercises, which he had directed. Dr. Gaines also expressed gratitude and praise for the services of Dr. Livingston W. Smith, the Society of the Cincinnati professor of Mathematics who is retiring after having been on the faculty since 1906.

Rodney Mims Cook, of Georgia, who is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and who graduated summa cum laude, delivered the valedictory address, in which he remarked especially on the gratitude his class feels for the high standards and ideals which life at Washington and Lee had given them.

Following a long standing custom, the commencement address was made by Dr. Gaines, who spoke on "Education, the Committal of a Trust." Dr. Gaines remarked that the only criterion of a university is the kind of men it sends into the world. He expressed the hope that Washington and Lee has provided to its graduates basic knowledge by its traditions, the transferable qualities of self-respect, gentleness, courtesy, kindness and honor.

"The supreme tradition of this University is inherent in Lee, not the soldier and not even the educator but the Lee of a memorable decision." Following defeat he faced all roads of a possible future, the road of ease, the road of congenial circumstance, the road of personal profit; but he placed his life in the path of the largest influence, Dr. Gaines said. He stated that he hopes all Washington and Lee men will think of Lee when they are faced with making decisions. "The problem of our country's destiny today is not whether we shall have enough trained personalities, powerful for performance.... The desperate question is whether those personalities will confess their social obligations and discharge faithfully their social responsibility."

Among the outstanding awards made during the day's exercises was the first annual presentation of the John W. Davis Prize, announced for the first time on that day and given to John Lloyd Dorsey, Jr., of Henderson, Kentucky, who was among those receiving the Bachelor of Laws degree. Established by a group of 35 of the leading jurists of New York state in honor of Mr. Davis, class of 1892, former Ambassador to Great Britain and democratic presidential nominee of 1924, the prize went to Dorsey "for general excellence throughout the entire law course." The prize this year was in the form of $200.00 cash, but is expected to take another form in subsequent awards. Mr. Davis is general chairman of the university's forthcoming Bicentennial program to be celebrated in 1948-1949.

CREDIT FOR PICTURES IN MAY ISSUE

The May issue of the Alumni Magazine carried two full pages of pictures, one depicting "A Day With a Veteran Student's Wife," the other, "A Day With a Fraternity House Mother." These were pictures produced for the Journalism course in news photography, the former by John M. Moore, the latter by William M. Barnard. Credit for this work was not given in the May issue.

Alumni Host to Seniors

The "baby" of the alumni family—Old '47—was christened, then acclaimed the "most glamorous class in all W. and L. history" as student-alumni relations reached a post-war zenith on May 14.

The occasion was revival of the annual senior banquet given by the alumni association, the first in five years, and the title conferred was suggested by no less an authority on glamour than Prexy F. P. Gaines who offers as evidence the photographs reproduced at the bottom of this page.

It was a delightful affair which brought the wives of seniors (and, incidentally, the seniors) into the new banquet auditorium of the Natural Bridge Hotel where the Bridge caterers spread the tremendous buffet supper that was rated "no less than terrific" by the gals and gourmets of '47.

In an informal after-dinner talk, Dr. Gaines welcomed the distaff side of the class "not only because they have added glamour to this occasion, but because many of the men wouldn't be here if their girls hadn't first prepared their homework for them." He greeted the wives as "honorary forty-sevensers," and then proceeded seriously to express his foremost "hopes" for the new alumni group, many of whom were transplanted by the exigencies of war from classes graduated several years earlier.

But what the prexy did not know was that the attendance of the wives, while fully worth any price to have them present, had posed a problem wholly unique in Alumni Office annals. When some of the seniors declared their intentions of attending the banquet "only if we can find a baby-sitter," the A.O. opened a brand new service to students. Not exactly anxious to have the banquet changed into a child-care clinic, the A.O. went to work on the problem. As Cy Young later explained, "By golly, we got the baby-sitters, the girls got to the banquet, and everyone had more fun because they did."

Following dinner music by the Southern Collegians, augmented by a pianist from the V. M. I. Keydet orchestra who said that he, too, had "a whale of a time," the men of '47 heard Cy Young outline the pattern of alumni association organization, the class agent plan, and other methodology of alumni operations through which the association and the member may mutually serve each other.

Dick Heard, of Danville, one of the three senior class presidents, made a stirring response to Dr. Gaines' talk, saying that the class of 1947, most of its members interrupted in their undergraduate work by war service, now was more than ready to "fall in line."

Col. Milton B. Rogers, '17 Bicentennial director, and Dean L. J. Desha, '06, also made brief talks to the class.

ALUMNI SMOKER HELD IN CHARLESTON, W. VA.

Washington and Lee University alumni held a smoker in June at the Daniel Boone hotel and elected Lee M. Kenna to succeed W. Goodridge Sale, Jr., as president. Tom W. Moses was elected vice-president and Frank R. Bell, Jr., secretary. The seven new directors are Mr. Sale, Kelley E. Reed, Jr., J. Kay Thomas, D. Boone Dawson, Zeb H. Herndon, Brown Truslow and Joe Blackburn.

Minutes of General Alumni Meeting

JUNE 5, 1947

Alumni President Kirkpatrick, '13 and Secretary Cy Young, '17, flank Sam Williams, '14, recipient of Thomas Nelson Page Alumni Award

1. The meeting was called to order by Alumni President, Thomas S. Kirkpatrick. On motion, the reading of the minutes of the last meeting was dispensed with.

2. Dr. Gaines, in welcoming the "returnees," emphasized that the year just past would go down in history as one of the most fantastic years in Washington and Lee history, and one of the best—with more students than ever dreamed of and under extraordinary conditions, and with twenty-one new members added to the faculty in the 1946-1947 session. However, Dr. Gaines was eager to assure the alumni that the increasing enrollment of students has not been the occasion of mutation of Washington and Lee traditions—one of the University's unique contributions to the world.

The Thomas Nelson Page award is annually a highlight of the general meeting. Dr. Gaines in presenting the 1947 Thomas Nelson Page award to Samuel Haines Williams, Class of 1914, described him as "an alumnus whose character expresses beautifully the high ideals of kindness and faith and honor for which this institution stands; whose capacity for leadership and acceptance of responsibility have brought him into manifold and unique usefulness in his state; whose loyalty to his Alma Mater, never faltering, has found varied and influential forms of service."

3. Mr. Kirkpatrick made the annual report of the president which was a detailed account of the report of the University Affairs Committee and the action taken by the Alumni Board. (See minutes of Alumni Board meeting of October 25, 1946).

4. The report of the treasurer, Dr. Reid White, was read by H. K. Young. This report appeared in the February issue of The Alumni Magazine which was sent to all alumni. On motion duly made, seconded, and carried, this report was accepted.

5. (Report of the Secretary, H. K. Young, will be found on page 10).

6. Report of the Nominating Committee to fill the vacancies occurring on the Alumni Board of Trustees this year: Dr. Reid White and P. C. (Bunny) Whitlock, whose terms have expired. (Mr. John W. Drye, who served one term as a past president of the Alumni Association, is also a retiring member of the Board). The Nominating Committee, composed of Messrs. J. P. Hendon of Birmingham, R. P. DeVan of Charleston, West Virginia; and Frank Bready of New York City, named the following men as their candidates to fill the offices left vacant by Messrs. Reid White and P. C. Whitlock:

Frederick S. Johnson, '11—Wilmington, Delaware
Warren E. (Tex) Tilson, '26—Lexington, Virginia

There were no nominations from the floor and upon motion

Dr. Livingston W. Smith, '96, retiring head of Math Department, and some of his "boys."

duly made and carried these two men were elected to the Alumni Board of Trustees.

7. A number of resolutions were presented:

(a) Mr. William Cox read the following tribute to the late John Alexander Graham, '14, Professor of Modern Languages:

Alumni returning to their Alma Mater have learned with deep sorrow of the recent passing of John Alexander Graham, class of '14, a descendant of the founder and first president of our institution, distinguished teacher of modern languages and music, eminent writer and composer of music, untiring in his interest and effort for the promotion of worth while activities at the university he loved and served so well.

A native of Lexington and son of a long line of ancestors whose names are enrolled at Washington and Lee, as student and later as teacher he gave his many talents without reserve, in directing the musical and dramatic organizations of the campus, in planning many of its social functions, in composing spirited music for its teams and dramatic performances, in designing and obtaining the Washington and Lee commemorative plates, and in a variety of other ways expressing his unflinching devotion to his school; but all this he brought to his primary task, sincere and inspiring teaching and the gifts of superior intellect with which he was so richly endowed.

It is but a small recognition of the unusual contributions of service and personality given by John Graham to Washington and Lee that his fellow alumni pause in silent tribute to the memory of this devoted and loyal son of his Alma Mater.

(b) Mr. Robert Carr read an appreciation of the 25 years of service of Cap'n Dick Smith, '13, to the University:

As Washington and Lee approaches the celebration of its two hundredth anniversary, another event has occurred which deserves to be noted in its annals, marking the completion of twenty five years of loyal and effective service rendered by Captain Dick Smith as director of intercollegiate athletics.

To countless students and alumni, Cap'n Dick is as much a part of the Washington and Lee scene as the statue of George Washington on the main building. Both are ever present and ever vigilant when the honor and welfare of Washington and Lee are at stake; but there the physical resemblance ends, for unlike a silent and immovable statue, Cap'n Dick is never still, but has labored endlessly and untiringly for the welfare of the university, its teams, players, students and alumni.

The embodiment of good fellowship, the soul of good sportsmanship, loved and admired by his friends, liked and respected by his opponents, he has done more than any other to bring to this campus, keen competition, a high type of sportsmanship, and numberless victories snatched from defeat.

As tangible evidence of our appreciation, we deem it fitting and proper that the newly constructed baseball field near Liberty Hall, be hereafter named "Dick Smith Field," and we respectfully request this designation be confirmed by the university.

We rise in tribute to the grand old man of W. and L. sports, and wish for him many more years of happiness and useful service.

(c) Mr. H. K. Young read two resolutions in appreciation of the services rendered by Milton B. Rogers, '17, and Allen T. Snyder, '39, in connection with the Bicentennial Campaign. (See minutes of Alumni Board meeting of June 5, 1947).

8. Mr. F. J. Gilliam spoke briefly with regard to the 30th reunion of the Class of 1917 and listed the schedule of events in which that Class would participate during Finals.

9. Mr. William Hinton, Assistant Professor of Education and Psychology, gave a report on the Counseling and Placement Service recently established in line with constructive suggestions from the University Affairs Committee of the Alumni Association and representatives of the student body. (The work of this counseling and placement service will be to integrate and supplement existing efforts and to provide a continuing source of additional information and assistance for students, alumni, administration and faculty. The initial emphasis will be placed on making available to the men now in college information which should assist them in their search for employment. As soon as possible a systematic canvass of alumni needs will be made.)

10. On motion the meeting adjourned at 2:40 p.m.

Secretary's Report

After 17 years as your secretary I feel certain the past year has been the busiest one the Alumni Office has ever had. This can be accounted for by the many readjustments incident to reconversion from war conditions and in our cooperation with the Bicentennial office in launching their campaign fund. In this undertaking approximately 60,000 pieces of literature have been addressed from the alumni files. In addition many hours have been spent with the Director and Associate-Director in going over lists of alumni for selection of key men in the state and local communities.

As all of you know, the opening of the fall session saw the largest student body in Washington and Lee's history. Included in this number were approximately 450 of our own boys who had been carried on our files as alumni during the war years. It took many long hours of work in our office to readjust them from alumni to student status.

Of great interest to the Alumni Office, and I am sure to you, is the fact that this year there have been 138 sons of alumni in the student-body. This is by far the largest number we have ever had.

The past session was the first since the spring of 1943 that we have been fully represented in intercollegiate athletics. This made it possible for us to have our first Homecoming since the fall of 1942. Other than the results of the football game, this event was most successful. It was perhaps the largest gathering of alumni ever held on the campus. Luncheon was served at the Student Union Building prior to the game.

The year has seen much activity among our local chapters. Approximately 30 meetings have been held at most of which a representative of the University has been present. Several of our chapters have entertained local boys returning home for the holidays as well as prospective students. We recommend this as a most beneficial activity and it is suggested that other chapters might adopt this policy.

The activity among our local chapters is evidenced by the many students now in school from alumni centers such as Charleston, West Virginia, from which city there are now 40 boys in the student-body. Also the chapters have been most helpful and cooperative in connection with the organization of local representatives for the Bicentennial fund.

Last year at this time I reported to you that a sound-colored motion picture would be made of the University. I had hoped at this time to be able to tell you that the picture was completed and ready for exhibition. I am sorry that I cannot do this. The shooting of the picture has been completed, the script is in process of being written and I am advised by Mr. Chapman, of Evanston, Illinois, who is making the picture, that it should be ready for showing by late summer. Extra prints of this picture are being made and will be available for local alumni association meetings or any other gatherings where its showing will be beneficial to the University.

With a full student-body and the revival of all extra-curricular activities, we again instituted our student-alumni relations program. A good many years ago this program was set up, especially for seniors, in order that they might become familiar with the workings of the Alumni Association before becoming active members of the organization. We were able to give financial assistance to several student organizations and include all seniors on the mailing list of the Alumni Magazine.

The Senior Banquet, given annually before the war by the Association, was revived. It was held at the Natural Bridge Hotel on May 14 and was most successful. The invitations to this affair requested a response. We were somewhat puzzled by the slowness of the replies and found out on investigation that so many of these boys were married that a serious domestic problem was involved. The answer of course was that their wives were also included in the invitation to the party. We were delighted to have them and they added considerably to the glamour of the occasion. We get many unusual questions and requests in the Alumni Office but so far have never had it put up to us before to furnish "baby-sitters."

As has been our policy in the past, the February Magazine was mailed to all alumni whose addresses we have. This issue carried a complete report of the 1946 Alumni Fund showing that the fund had again broken all records. 1986 alumni contributed $23,976.82. 21 per cent of the alumni who received class letters contributed. This is also a record. I am sorry that I cannot report to you that this year's fund is going as well as that of '46. We are some $2,000 and 200 contributors behind a corresponding date of last year. We know this can be accounted for, as many alumni have indicated, by the near approach of the Bicentennial fund campaign.

There will not be another Alumni Fund campaign, as such, until 1950 when the Bicentennial anniversary year will have ended. After the close of this fiscal year on June 30, a plan will be evolved to combine the Alumni Fund and the Bicentennial Fund.

Whatever success we have had with the Alumni Fund can be attributed to the unselfish and untiring services of our Class Agents who have given of their time and effort for love of Alma Mater.

Respectfully submitted,
HARRY K. YOUNG, Alumni Secretary

Faculty Changes

PROMOTIONS, ADDITIONS, AND LOSSES IN W. and L. FACULTY PERSONNEL FOR THE FALL TERM, 1947

The appointment of Drs. William Gleason Bean and Robert W. Dickey to professorships on the Thomas Ball foundation, the retirement of Dr. Livingston Waddell Smith as Cincinnati professor of mathematics, six promotions and thirteen new appointments have been announced by the University Board of Trustees.

In addition it was announced that Dean Clayton E. Williams of the School of Law had been named Vincent L. Bradford professor of law. The Bradford professorship had been vacant since the death of Dean W. H. Moreland in 1944.

The board named Dr. Smith emeritus professor of mathematics and addressed to him a letter of commendation and appreciation for his services as professor of mathematics since 1906. Dr. Smith had also served for many years as a member of the university athletic committee.

The elevation of Drs. Bean and Dickey, heads of the history and physics departments, respectively, to the new standing brings to six the number of professorships on the Ball foundation which was established in January through a gift from Mrs. Alfred I. duPont of Wilmington, Delaware, as a memorial to her father, Captain Thomas Ball.

The Washington and Lee trustees also approved the following promotions: Dr. Ollinger Crenshaw to the position of professor of history; Dr. William W. Pussey to be professor of German; Dr. Boyd Ross Ewing, Jr., to be associate professor of romance languages; Dr. Bronson B. Holder to be associate professor of commerce and economics; Dr. Theodore A. Smedley to be associate professor of law; and William A. Jenks to be assistant professor of history, and Allen E. Ragan to be associate professor of political science.

Additions to Faculty and staff for 1947-1948 are:

Felix P. Welch, Ph.D. Cincinnati Society Professor of Mathematics.

George H. Foster, B.A. '34, M.A. '35, Ph.D., Assistant Professor of English.

Thomas F. Walker, M.A., Assistant Professor of Spanish.

John H. Gilmore, B.S., Assistant Professor of Engineering.

William W. Jones, M.A., Assistant Professor of English.

Edmund Berkeley, M.A., Instructor in Biology.

R. Lowell Wine, M.A., Assistant Professor of Mathematics.

Charles R. Warren, Ph.D., Assistant Professor of Geology.

Hugh K. Hawk, Ph.D., Assistant Professor of Economics.

Carter Glass, III, LL.B. '42, Lecturer in Law.

Martin P. Burks, III, LL.B. '32, Lecturer in Law.

Douglas E. Brady, Jr., B.S. '37, Superintendent of Grounds and Buildings.

BY WAY OF EXPLANATION

We regret that this issue of the Alumni Magazine, intended for publication in midsummer, has been so delayed. Shortages of paper and labor and extra-heavy demands on the University Press have held us up this time but we hope to send you the next issue on time.

Local Chapter Meeting Notes

ALUMNI MEET FOR FIRST GATHERING IN MINNESOTA

Some twenty-five alumni, wives, dates and parents of boys in the University, met Saturday evening, June 21, in the University Club rooms in Rochester, Minnesota, for a delightful dinner. Wives of alumni had decorated the table in a blue and white flower color scheme and monogrammed W. and L. place cards. The University was represented by Dr. Ollinger Crenshaw, B.A. '25; M.A. '26, who was the principal speaker of the evening and gave an excellent talk on the highlights of the history of Washington and Lee. Among those present were: Dr. Bill Longan, '41, and date; Dr. Souther Tompkins, '37, and date; Dr. Leonard Posey, '42, and wife; Dr. Albert Pollack, '38, and wife; Edwin Robb, Jr., '43, and Mrs. Robb; Richard Larrick, '39, and wife; Bill McDonough, '29, and wife; Robert Axtell, '37, and Miss Elizabeth Axtell; Dr. Harry Neel, '28; Dr. Bill Broders, '44; Dr. and Mrs. A. C. Broders, Jr., '38; Dr. and Mrs. A. C. Broders, Sr.; and Dr. Ollinger Crenshaw, '25; and Dr. and Mrs. Reverdy H. Jones, V.M.I., '34.

FORMATION OF NEW ALUMNI CHAPTER

An organization meeting of the Southern West Virginia Alumni of Washington and Lee was held at the Black Knight Country Club, Beckley, West Virginia, on June 13, 1947.

Fourteen alumni were present and the following officers were elected: President, Harry E. Moran, '13; Vice-President, Stanley C. Higgins, '37; and Secretary-Treasurer, Dwight A. File, '38.

The president appointed the following alumni as members of the Executive Committee to advise with the officials in the formation and organization of the association: C. R. Hill, '17; C. P. Anderson, '36; A. W. Vickers, '37; Frank Love, '21; and Paul Earwood, '15.

ALUMNI MEET IN CUMBERLAND AND HAGERSTOWN, MARYLAND

Members of the Upper Potomac Chapter, Washington and Lee University Alumni and their guests attended a dinner meeting at Ali Ghan Country Club in Cumberland, Maryland, on the evening of July 30. J. Goodloe Jackson, '14, president of the local chapter, presided and the University was represented by Dr. Francis P. Gaines, President, and H. K. (Cy) Young, Alumni Secretary.

Cumberland Valley Alumni and their guests met for dinner at the Fountain Head Golf Club, Hagerstown, Maryland, on the following evening, July 31, with Omer Kaylor, '11, presiding, and the University represented again by Dr. Gaines and Cy Young.

At both of these meetings Dr. Gaines, the principal speaker, gave a brief historical background of Washington and Lee, explaining how it was named for George Washington, who contributed $50,000 to the school in order to help carry out his dream for the future; and for Robert E. Lee, who rejected many self-benefiting propositions, to take over the task of supervising education at the university in order to teach students that the people and the cause of the south were tightly bound in the national cause. He said: "One of the greatest chapters in the history of American education is in its initial stage today." Briefly recounting the events leading up to the present situation in college education, he said that during the war years Washington and Lee had only one-tenth of its normal student body; about half of the staff of instructors were in the armed forces, and a section of the university was rented to the government for the army school of specialized services. When the war was over, reconstruction set in, followed by expansion. The enrollment doubled and redoubled and to every vacancy at the school from 20 to 30 applicants were on hand. Now, the university is trying to equip itself to meet the demands of expansion and at the same time keep in tact the high standards of student character, always traditional at the school.

However, Dr. Gaines continued, with all its inconveniences, the present expansion is giving American educators an opportunity they have never had before. For the first time in the history of America, the majority of leaders of the coming generation are now on the American Campus, challenging the educators to exert their most influential impact on the leadership and destiny of the country. This in itself "is a great and decisive prophesy of what America is yet to be."

Dr. Gaines stated that at present the university is planning to raise $3,000,000 dollars in connection with its Bicentennial which will be celebrated in 1948-1949. One million dollars is needed as a tuition endowment; one million is needed for an adequate auditorium, a science building and other much needed buildings on the campus, and the other million is needed as a scholarship fund as a memorial for the 133 boys from Washington and Lee who died during World War II. Dr. Gaines said, that, despite the fact that the University is asking for this sum, it is by no means in a state of poverty, because through the depression and the war, it has emerged debt free and has approximately seven and a quarter million dollars in assets. The additional money is needed in connection with the expansion program, to fulfill the dream of the school of tomorrow.

New President of Mary Baldwin

Dr. Frank Bell Lewis, B.A. '32, M.A. '33, professor of Bible and philosophy at Davis and Elkins College, Elkins, West Virginia, has been elected president of Mary Baldwin College, Staunton, Virginia. After graduation from Washington and Lee, Dr. Lewis spent the following three years at Union Theological Seminary in Richmond, Virginia, where he received the degree of Bachelor of Divinity in 1936, and the following year received the degree of Master of Theology. In 1937 he was ordained to the ministry of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, and for the next two years served as pastor at Richlands, Virginia. In 1939 Dr. Lewis studied at New College, University of Edinburg, Scotland, and in 1940 became pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Williamson, West Virginia. In 1942 he became a member of the faculty of Davis and Elkins College. On leave of absence from that faculty in 1944 he was appointed a fellow at Duke University and was awarded the Doctor of Philosophy degree by that institution in 1946. The announcement of Dr. Lewis' election was made by Edmund D. Campbell, '18 president of the Board of Mary Baldwin College.

Generals' Head Man

Art (Pappy) Lewis, now in his second year as head football coach at Washington and Lee, brought a new style of offensive football to the Southern Conference—a high-gear, gamble-filled, wide-open type of play that has caught the fancy of spectators from Baltimore to Miami.

One of the all-time greats in professional football, Lewis has installed a pro-style version of the T-formation at Washington and Lee which produced more points last year than a Blue team has scored since 1929. With all but three of last year's lettermen returning, along with a promising group of freshmen, Lewis expects to improve last season's two and six won-lost record this Fall. Although the team opened their schedule with an impressive 13-0 victory over a formidable Quantico Marine eleven on the 20th of September, the rest of the schedule is probably tougher than any ever played by a Washington and Lee coach.

Still thinking of his first two seasons as training periods with an eye always toward building for the future, Lewis thinks that his young freshman and sophomore-dominated squad will nevertheless give a good account of itself this year.

Edward A. O'Neal, Class Agent for 1898, head of the American Farm Bureau Federation for the past 16 years, told his associates before his reelection last year that he felt it was the last time he could take the nomination. Quoting Mr. O'Neal in a syndicated article, Life's Little Dramas, Bart Hodges tells the following story:

"Since 1931, I've tried to avoid making long-winded speeches.

"That year, at the New York State Fair in Syracuse, I was featured speaker on Farm Bureau Day. At the end of my speech, a band of Indians, from a reservation in upper New York, whisked me away and deposited me on a mound in the center of the Indian exhibit. There they proceeded to beat up the dust in a war dance around me.

"After a few minutes of ungodly whooping and early-American jitterbugging, the Chief crowned me with an elaborate headdress.

"'Now, you, you, you, Chief Talla Mauga'—or some name like that—said the old fellow in a deep voice.

"Well, sir, relief and delight hit head on! By George, I was an Indian chief. I puffed up under my crown of colored feathers like a game rooster and voiced my gratitude at great length. I even lapsed into a dissertation about Indians being truly great Americans, et cetera, et cetera...

"The speech finally over, I turned to the Chief and asked, 'what's my name in English?'

"'you, you,' grunted the old chieftain, 'you Chief Big Wind.'"

1899

George E. Haw writes his class agent: "For your information and for that of the Class of '04 who probably recall a country boy who sailed under the name of G. Haw, you can advise them that I am still doing business at the old stand and so far have succeeded in making a living practicing law." Address: Law Offices of Haw & Haw, 402-3-4 Travelers Building, Richmond, Virginia.

1905

John A. Moore is President of the Biscayne Engineering Company, 2221 N. E. 4th Avenue, Miami, Florida.

D. A. Bradham is Judge of the Chancery and Probate Courts, Warren, Arkansas. In a letter to his class agent he writes; "Not only does the populace as a whole need a rebirth and indoctrination of the ideology of our particular Democratic Government, but, I fear, sometimes some of us who know our traditions and our ideology need a rebirth or indoctrination as badly as the common populace. I think our class letters do some good along that line."

1906

Brent E. Clark is still busy operating his hotel and looking after the interests of his three children and two grandchildren. He still retains connection with his engineering through consulting work. Address: James Hotel, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

James R. Caskie had a month's vacation in Florida in the Spring—his third vacation in thirty-eight years. He is a member of the firm of Caskie, Frost & Watts, Attorneys-at-Law, Lynchburg, Virginia.

Robert P. Ashley is Vice-President Liberty Mutual Insurance Company, 175 Berkeley Street, Boston, Massachusetts.

Robert A. Russell is practicing law in Rustburg, Virginia. He purchased a building about 150 years old and has done a fine restoration job on it. He says that one would almost think that Williamsburg had come to Rustburg.

James E. Greever is practicing law with offices in the Guyan Drug Company Building, Logan, West Virginia. He has not been back to the campus since 1910—did not get to receive his degree, which was mailed to him. A little over two years ago he was "remodeled" at the University of Virginia Hospital, and thinks he will be good for 25 or 30 more anniversaries.

William S. Engleby has been Referee in Bankruptcy since 1927. His law offices are in the Shenandoah Life Building, Roanoke, Virginia. His daughter is married and has two children but he has avoided getting in the "Grandpa" class by teaching them to call him Bill. His son is studying Mechanical Engineering at V. P. I.

Judge William F. Blanton was out of town when Washington and Lee played the University of Miami in the fall. He hopes these games will be continued although it puts him in rather a spot as to whom to root for, but says he will never forsake old W. and L. He says he is still married to the same girl he married thirty years ago and their son Bob is out of the service and studying law at the University of Florida.

H. W. King says he has never gotten very far from By Product Coke and Blast Furnace plants. For the past few years he has been helping build new blast product plants with the Wilputte Coke Oven Corporation of New York. He and Mrs. King have two sons, both now in college after having spent three years in the Service. Address: Westerville, Ohio.

J. T. Gray, Jr., is practicing law in Brownsville, Tennessee. In 1945 he was a member of a commission of seven lawyers to recommend revisions of the Constitutions of the State of Tennessee. He was married in 1926 to Miss Mary D. Pitts, of Roanoke, and they have three children, two daughters and a son.

Bishop Lloyd R. Craighill, American Church Mission, District of Anking, Lion Hill, Wuhu, China. He writes: "You have been reading a lot of rather discouraging things about China in the papers back home of late, but the recent developments have not been a great surprise to those of us who have known China from the inside for some years past. No country could suffer the devastation that China has suffered in ten years of gruelling warfare and not have economic and political problems to face in the post war problems. China will pull through this as she has pulled through countless crises since the old Yangtse started rolling along."

Dr. Edward Lyons retired in 1946 after 26 years as chemist with Parke Davis Company in Detroit and has recently accepted a position as Acting Associate Professor of Chemistry at the University of Florida. His new address is 1331 East Boundary Street, Gainesville, Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McP. Glasgow have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter Grace McPheeters to Mr. George Bobe Dean on August 6, in Charlotte, North Carolina.

(Notes by Class Agent, Ed Lyons)

Harry S. Coffey, Danville, Virginia. "The years have been very kind to me.... I am Superintendent of the Danville District of the Virginia Methodist Conference. My territory covers six counties. I have 100 churches to supervise, and 40 ministers. There are 20,000 members of the Methodist churches in this area."

George L. Coyle, Charleston, West Virginia. "Nothing has happened in the past year except that I am one year older and there are a few more grey hairs." George has two boys at W. and L., and another fine prospect for the near future. That's a fine record of loyalty to Washington and Lee.

Howard A. Doss, Los Angeles, California. "We have had an unusual winter this year... not enough rain and lots of warm weather... everything going along fine. Have been working for this company (Southern Pacific Company) since I came here in 1912."

J. M. Quillen, Commonwealth's Attorney for Southhampton County, Courtland, Virginia, has just completed the building of a modern home, where he expects to spend his "declining years." One of his sons, Franklin Bert is now a student at Washington and Lee.

Howard P. Macfarlane, Macfarlane, Ferguson, Allison & Kelly, Attorneys-at-Law, First National Bank Building, Tampa 1, Florida, thinks that the time will be ripe for a thirty-fifth anniversary reunion of the class in 1948.
