A Scholarly Faculty

Washington and Lee is a teaching institution, whose faculty members are chosen primarily because of their excellence in the classroom, not because of their research and publication. It is well known, however, that a writing faculty is an alert faculty—one which does not rest upon last year's notes or last decade's materials. With steadily increasing frequency the Washington and Lee faculty members have been engaging in scholarly enterprise.

Despite the fact that each teacher has a full classroom schedule considerably more than half of the men on the university's faculty have within the past three years published books, articles in learned journals, critical reviews, and other scholarly essays.

It was noted in the President's 1949 report to the Board of Trustees that "since the war eleven of the staff have written books and thirty-six have published articles." That record is now even more impressive.

A great impetus to scholarly achievement was provided by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching. In 1951 that Foundation generously made available to the university $25,000 to inaugurate a program of grantsin-aid to faculty members over a period of three years.

In the first year of the program, twenty-four of the faculty members—more than a third of those eligible to apply—received assistance from the Carnegie Fund, and in the second (current) year, an additional twenty have been awarded grants. These figures are an indication of the eagerness with which the teaching faculty members pursue research in their chosen fields. The stimulating results have already become apparent in increased publications and in classroom instruction.

Since 1949 six more books have been published under the names of faculty members:

Professor L. L. Barrett, of the Spanish department, has translated from the Portuguese a novel of the great Brazilian author, Erico Verissimo, Time and the Wind (Macmillan, 1951)

Professor R. Foster Bradley, of the French department, together with R. B. Mitchell, has edited a widely used anthology of French literature: Eight Centuries of French Literature (Appelton-Crofts-Century, 1951).

Professor Marshall W. Fishwick, in the field of American Studies, has published Virginians on Olpmpus (1950), a study of hero worship in the Old Dominion; a preliminary checklist of writings about R. E. Lee; and several other useful bibliographies.

Professor William A. Jenks, of the history department, was the author of The Austrian Electoral Reform of 1907 (Columbia).

Professor Edward D. Myers, of the philosophy department, was the editor of a notable collection of essays entitled Christianity and Reason (Oxford).

Professor Marcellus H. Stow, of the geology department, was the editor of a monumental report on The James River Basin: Past, Present, and Future.

Other books are ready for publication or are near completion. Professor L. J. Desha is awaiting proofs of an entirely revised second edition of his textbook on organic chemistry. Professor James Lewis Howe is continuing his definitive bibliography of the platinum metals, of which two volumes are already published. Professor Lewis K. Johnson has almost completed a book on sales management, and Professor M. O. Phillips is currently revising his Industrial and Commercial Geography (in collaboration with J. Russell Smith). Professor Fitzgerald Flournoy is at work upon a volume entitled Hugh Blair Grigsby and His Virginia.

In addition to these, several professors, under the Carnegie grant, have begun work upon projects that will result in books: Professor E. S. Gilreath (qualitative analysis in chemistry); Professor E. C. Griffith (labor problems in a capitalistic economy); and Professor Charles W. Turner (history of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway).

The articles published by faculty members in the learned journals, and the critical reviews written, are too numerous to mention, but 32 such scholarly productions have been reported within the last two years. In addition many members of the staff have presented papers at the annual meetings of scholarly and professional societies.

Members of the Law School have been active in their field. Professor Charles R. McDowell gave a paper at the annual meeting of the Virginia State Bar Association. Professor C. P. Light has prepared an analysis of a Brookings Institute Report on "The Administration of Foreign Affairs and Overseas Operation," which was adopted by the Assistant Secretary of the Army as the Department of the Army's position in this controversial organizational field. Professor C. V. Laughlin prepared the summary of West Virginia Procedure for students preparing for bar examination. Dean Clayton E. Williams is a member of the sub-committee on Qualifications to the Bar, Virginia Advisory Legislative Council.

An outstanding work was that of Professor O. W. Riegel, who compiled a noteworthy 110 page report, "Public Opinion Research Training in Western Germany" for the State Department. To gather first hand material for this report Professor Riegel was sent to Europe during the summer of 1950, where he made a survey in Western Germany and Berlin. In addition to his report Professor Riegel has made several talks on his observations during the trip.

Professor George H. Foster has written several pamphlets on request of the U. S. Navy on aircraft electrical systems, pilot ejection from high-speed, high altitude aircraft, and jet fuel consumption problems.

Two of the more interesting faculty projects concern the fine arts. Professor Marion Junkin, after a special study in Mexico of the techniques of mural painting by the great Mexican artists, is now engaged in the painting of a mural in the University Library. Work on the mural, which is on the subject of man's struggle for intellectual freedom, is attracting much attention from students. Professor B. S. Stephenson, in cooperation with the student Concert Guild, directed and presented an opera by Gian-Carlo Menotti, The Medium.

Aside from the creative work noted, most of the faculty members are engaged in civic enterprises, such as the Red Cross, the Community Chest, and the Tuberculosis Association; while many others are in constant demand for addresses to school and civic groups.

It is notable that practically all of the full professors at the University are listed in Who's Who. The record of the scholarly achievement of the Washington and Lee staff is a remarkable one, probably not equalled by any other institution of its size in the country. The results are discernible in the general air of intellectual stimulation on the campus.

Alumni Named "Men of the Year"

John F. Watlington, Jr., is the Charlotte, North Carolina News' Man of the Year. The Man of the Year Award was established by the Charlotte News in 1944 to honor the citizen who had made an outstanding contribution to the community in that year. Seven Men of the Year have been chosen since that time and this group of seven selected the Man of the Year in 1951.

It was mainly his work in directing Community Chest activities and in doing much as a sort of good-will ambassador for Charlotte over a large adjoining region which prompted the board in selecting Mr. Watlington. He is current president of the Chest, which includes 21 social agencies, but his friend, Stowe Moody, is the presiding officer. Since he became active in Chest work about three vears ago, he has taken off from his duties as senior vice-president of the Wachovia Bank & Trust Company, in charge of the Charlotte office to make many speeches in connection with the organization of Chest drives in communities in his own and adjoining states. The campaign which he planned and directed for Charlotte, as coworker with Mr. Moody, was distributed nationally as an example to other Chests.

Mr. Watlington does not confine his activities to the local chest, which last year went many thousand dollars above the goal of $386,500. He has served for several years on the Advisory Board of the Salvation Army in Charlotte, and from 1945 to this year, was on the Board of Directors of the local Family and Children's Service, being president of that organization in 1949.

Mr. Watlington was born in Reidsville, N. C.; attended the Reidsville public schools, and then came to Washington and Lee, where he was a member of the Beta Theta Pi social fraternity and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa in his senior year. After graduation, he attended the Graduate School of Banking at Rutgers University. Following in the footsteps of his father, who was president of the Bank of Reidsville, he began work in the Winston-Salem branch of Wachovia, was moved to Charlotte, and in a comparatively short time has climbed to the top in business and civic ranks.

Emil C. Rassman '41

Emil C. Rassman, III, was named one of the five "Outstanding Young Men of Texas for 1951," by the Texas Junior Chamber of Commerce. Announcement of the selection was made at a banquet given by the Texas Junior Chamber of Commerce at San Antonio

Monogram Designer Honored

Washington and Lee University and its alumni everywhere are eternally indebted to Thomas Greene (Tubby) Stone, '04, for his achievement in designing the official University monogram. In recognition of this service the Alumni Association of the University, on January 4, 1952, presented to Mr. Stone a handsome plaque bearing the inscription: "Presented to Thomas Greene (Tubby) Stone, designer of the Washington and Lee monogram, worn with pride by the sons of the University throughout the years. In grateful appreciation by the Alumni Association."

The annals of the University show that Mr. Stone, in addition to this accomplishment, was also an outstanding athlete. He played center and was captain of the football team, stroke and captain of on January 19, 1952. Final decision as to the selection of the five outstanding young Texans was made on such achievements as extraordinary talent, initiative and outstanding contributions to their professions and to the general welfare of the people. Rassman has widespread recognition throughout the state in the legal profession, particularly in connection with West Texas water rights. His representation of the State of Texas in the Tidelands controversy in Austin and Washington is termed "outstanding" by Texas lawyers.

In addition to his selection in the state-wide award, Rassman was chosen as the "Outstanding Young Man of 1951" by the Midland, Texas, Junior Chamber of Commerce at its luncheon meeting on December 28. A Midland resident since 1948, he has been active in civic, youth, welfare and church work. He is the immediate past president of the Midland Optimist Club, which had for its major project last year the building and equipping of a boys' workshop. He also has been instrumental in organizing a Boy Scout troop and a Sunday School class at the workshop. He is secretary of the Vestry and has taught in the Sunday School class at Trinity Episcopal Church in Midland; is president of the Midland Scottish Rite Club, and a former vice-president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce,

After graduating from Washington and Lee he received the LL.B. degree from the University of Texas Law School. He enlisted in the service in World War II as a private and was released as a captain; was twice wounded while serving overseas with the 32nd Division, and has eight battle stars.

Rassman is associated with the law firm of Whitaker, Turpin, Kerr, Smith and Brooks in Midland. He is married and has two children, and lives at 1904 Tennessee Avenue, Midland, Texas. the Albert Sidney crew, captain of the track team and an active participant in gymnasium activities.

The monogram, a blue WL in the form of a trident on a white background or vice-versa a white trident on a blue background, the University colors, was designed by Mr. Stone, while a student, and presented to and accepted by the University as its official monogram.

The WL trident has, throughout the years, grown to be far more than a monogram. It is an emblem, a symbol of the high standards of the University. It stands for and represents the teachings of Robert E. Lee, the honor system and all other outstanding and noble characteristics of the University and its student bodies. It was patterned after Neptune's famous trident, his emblem as ruler of the seas and though it cannot assure rulership in the athletic realm, yet, it does stand for, and is symbolic of, honest clean and sportsmanlike conduct in all athletic contests.

Thomas Greene (Tubby) Stone, '04, accepts a plaque from Wilbur R. Hampton, '09, presented by the Alumni Association of Washington and Lee University in recognition of his work in designing the official monogram of the University. The presentation was made Friday, January 4, 1952 at Mr. Stone's home at Union Mills, N. C. Others pictured are (left to right): Mrs. Stone, and Washington and Lee alumni J. Davis Kerr, '24, H. J. Blackford, '17, and H. R. Phillips, '11.

University Has Marching Band

They said it couldn't be done, but it has. Washington and Lee has a marching band.

Under the supervision of Lt. Col. John G. Bowes of the military department, and the student direction of Dave Comegys, the band was formed at the beginning of the school year and has grown to thirty pieces. To date the new organization has played at all pep rallies, all home and two away football games, the annual "Torchlight Parade," the Student War Memorial Fund Committee's "Corn Bowl," and several basketball games. In addition it presented a Christmas concert in Lee Chapel.

The band is now officially known as the Washington and Lee R. O. T. C. Band and is entirely composed of students who have volunteered their services. It contains one flute, one piccolo, five clarinets, four saxophones, six cornets, three trombones, one French horn, one baritone, two sousaphones, six percusion drums, and one glockenspiel. The original complement of instruments was furnished by the Army and at the time of the instrument requisition it was thought that the band would be small so only sixteen instruments were received. But as can be seen, the interest and response has been amazing, the remainder of the instruments being furnished by the students themselves.

Included in the organization are former members of some of the nation's outstanding high school bands. Comegys played four years with the Byrd High School's (Shreveport) Louisiana state championship band while Conrad Mc-Eachern played for the Vivian High School band, another top-flighter in Louisiana. Among others, Forney Daugette played with the Sewanee Military Academy Band.

Football games and pep rallies have been considerably enlivened by the band and school spirit at athletic contests has noticeably improved. The band's biggest success to date was the "Corn Bowl" performance when the organization presented some humorous and tricky marching formations.

The Christmas Concert was surprisingly well attended. A varied program was presented including two John Philip Sousa marches, music by Stephen Foster, The

The Washington and Lee R. O. T. C. Band

Donkey Seranade, a march arrangement of Onward Christian Soldiers, and Christmas music.

High points for the band were two out-of-town trips; to Knoxville for the University of Tennessee football game, and to Richmond for the Thanksgiving tilt with Richmond University. The Tennessee game was the first time the Big Blue had ever carried a band with them on a football trip. The music makers admit they were "just a little scared" when they marched into the huge Knoxville stadium to find themselves alined with the colorful Tennessee band of over 100 pieces, but they re-

Name Your Candidates

In compliance with Article 9 of the By-Laws of the Washington and Lee Alumni, Inc., we are listing below the names of the Nominating Committee for the coming year.

Under the revised By-Laws any member of the Association may submit the names of alumni to fill the vacancies on the Alumni Board of Trustees and for the alumni representatives on the University Athletic Committee.

There are three vacancies to be filled on the Alumni Board of Trustees, and two on the Athletic Committee at the June '52 meeting of the Alumni Association. Members of the Association are urged to submit names of their candidates for these offices. The Nominating Committee will close its report on May 22.

The Committee is as follows: Richard T. Edwards, '33, Chairman, Colonial American National Bank Building, Roanoke, Va.; Charles L. Claunch, '29, 1023 Chattanooga Bank Building, Chattanooga, Tennessee; S. S. McNeer, '16, First Huntington National Bank Building, Huntington, W. Va.

ceived a rousing ovation from the large Washington and Lee delegation.

Now the band is definitely on its feet and an established fact, plans are being formulated for this spring and the coming year. In the near future the membership will be increased to forty. During the spring it will present another concert, play for all ROTC parades, and the annual military government inspection. Next year the band hopes to be included on the Athletic Association's budget which would stabalize it financially. It is hoped that a new band room will be obtained. The organization is now using the old one room building behind the gymnasium and it is proving too small. Plans for next year include a continued increase in membership, to fifty or more, and more trips.

Members wear the regularly authorized ROTC uniform. They practice one or two hours per week, more if something special is on the ledger. All practices are voluntary but Director Comegys says attendance has been remarkably good. To date not one member has dropped from the band of his own accord.

Previous attempts have been made to form marching bands at Washington and Lee but this is the first time that real success has been achieved. University officials state the new organization fulfils a long need and athletic officials are enthusiastic over the band's performance at games. Students were prone to make fun of the organization during its first days but it is without a doubt that the band has now proved itself to all concerned.

University officials give full credit to the ROTC department, and to Colonel Bowes and Captain George L. Brashears in particular, for their interest and cooperation. The interest and work of student director Comegys, the officials add, took the band over the hump. So—from this day forward it's, "There's nothing like a hometown band . . . ."

Outstanding Speakers on Campus

By J. W. BENJAMIN, JR., '54

It is an oddity of student psychology that the undergraduate often learns more while doing things of his own free will than he does when boning on compulsory school work. It is also true that university life is composed of many things in addition to studies and classes. Sports, social life, learning to care for one's personal affairs, extracurricular activities; all are a part of education. In participating in this outside-of-class education the college student can obtain a wealth of learning and understanding by attending the numerous speeches and lectures presented on the campus during the year.

Washington and Lee, conscious of the above facts, is constantly endeavoring to obtain outstanding lecturers. Members of the faculty or other interested persons submit names to a central committee for obtaining speakers. The committee, headed for over fifteen years by Mr. Rupert N. Latture of the Political Science Department, coordinates the scheduling of these guest speakers so as not to interfere with each other, with exams, dance weekends, or other important occasions at the university. It is responsible for correspondence with the speaker, and for the allocation of funds. Many of the departments and organizations handle all arrangements themselves, merely clearing with the committee.

The university has few lecturers who speak before the student body as a whole (although usually the lecture is open to anyone) but rather the speakers are departmental in nature, or talk under the auspices of some university function or group such as the Omicron Delta Kappa tapping, the Southern Interscholastic Press Association Convention or the University Religious Conference.

The ODK tapping always presents one of the outstanding speakers of the year. In 1951 Norman Cousins, editor of the Saturday Review of Literature, spoke on "Communism in the Far East." Other recent ODK speakers include Senator A. Willis Robertson (Va.), and Dr. Oliver C. Carmichael, President of the Carnegie Foundation.

Phi Beta Kappa annually sponsors a guest speaker. In recent years they have had Dr. Sidney Painter, chairman of the Department of History at Johns Hopkins; Dr. Arthur Palmer Hudson, professor of English at the University of North Carolina; and Dr. John E. Orchard, head of the Geography Department at Columbia, and associated with the ECA.

John Temple Graves has talked to the student body several times in recent years.

The university annually has a Religious Conference sponsored by the Christian Council. Among the inspiring lecturers to come to Washington and Lee for this week have been Dr. John Oliver Nelson, Dean at Large, Yale University; Dr. Theodore Greene of Yale; Dr. Raymond Lindquist, 1st Church Orange, New Jersey; and Dr. Elton Trueblood of Earlham College in Indiana.

The Law School brings the John Randolph Tucker lecturer to the campus. Last year John J. Parker, Chief Judge, U. S. Court of Appeals for the 4th Circuit, spoke on the Nurnberg Trials and A World Order Based on Law. In 1949 the speaker was the Honorable John W. Davis, former Ambassador to Great Britain, and former Solicitor General of the United States. The Honorable Arthur T. Vanderbilt, Chief Justice, New Jersey State Supreme Court, spoke in 1950.

Departmental lecturers are more specialized, usually speaking on a topic of specific interest to the sponsoring department. A roundtable discussion usually follows.

The Lee Journalism Foundation has a large and varied program of visiting lecturers. In the past year this department has sponsored, among others, Fielder Cook, New York television director; John Colburn, managing editor of the Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch; Shields Johnson, general manager of the Roanoke (Va.) Times and World News; Joe Ellis, editor and publisher of the Clarksdale, Miss., Press Register; Louis Spilman, editor of the Waynesboro (Va.) News-Virginian; John H. Cline, editor of the Washington Star; Robert Estabrook, editorial writer for the Star; Bill Polk of the Greensboro (N. C.) News; Russell Applegate, assistant advertising director of the duPont Corporation; Dave Breger, famous cartoonist; Leonard Maille, chief of the American Branch, British Broadcasting Corporation; Charles Corddry, United Press correspondent; Dudley White, editor and publisher of the Sandusky Register-Star News: Morgan Beatty of the National Broadcasting Company; and C. B. Houck of the Houck Advertising Agency, Roanoke, Va.

The Commerce Department recently sponsored a series of lectures and demonstrations on modern accounting machines, by Mr. Roy Witte of the Burroughs Company. Other speakers for this school have included Dr. John M. Clark, assistant general manager of the du Pont Company; Dr. Charles W. Williams, vice-president of the Federal Reserve Bank, Richmond, Va.; and Mr. Clem Johnston of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

The English Department has had Dr. Arthur Palmer Hudson (mentioned before as a Phi Beta Kappa speaker) who spoke on Woodworth's poetry, and conducted a round-table discussion on "Influence of Folklore on American Literature." Cleanth Brooks of Yale spoke on Milton. Stephen Spender, well known English poet, lectured on "Trends of Modern Criticism." Robert Penn Warren, writer and lecturer, discussed William Faulkner before a large audience of English students.

Other departments present a similar variety of speakers, lack of space preventing a detailed listing. The Political Science Department recently had Senator Mike Monroney (Okla.) to lecture before its students. The Biology Department brought Dr. Edward McCrady, acting president of Sewanee University, and head of the Biological Department of the AEC at Oak Ridge, to the W. and L. campus. Henry Hatfield spoke on Thomas Mann for the German Department. Dr. Americo Castro of Princeton spoke to the Spanish Department on Cervantes.

Campus organizations are active in obtaining speakers. The International Relations Club has had Dr. Bayard Dodge, President of the American University of Beirut in Lebanon; Mr. Mirko Sedlak, a member of the Czechoslovakian Parliament before its overthrow by the Communists; and Mr. John Gange, head of the School of Foreign Affairs, University of Virginia. The Debate Team had William Rees-Mogg and Richard Taverne of Oxford University to debate the forthcoming Churchill regime in England.

In addition to all of these the members of the faculty occasionally give special lectures outside of class. Dr. Gaines, University President, and one of the country's outstanding public speakers, talks before the student body several times yearly. Last year he gave the commencement address. Professor Riegel of the Journalism Department spoke this fall on "The State of Europe," a talk based upon his observations made during a tour of Europe for Princeton University last summer. Dean Leyburn gave the opening address for the 1951-52 session and teaches a weekly Sunday School class. Mr. Ashley Brown of the English Department spoke on "Recent American Literature"before the Graham-Lee Literary Society last winter.

Naturally this has been only a partial, but representative, summary of Washington and Lee's guest speakers. The parade of outstanding lecturers on campus has been steady for the last three years. However, Mr. Latture says the university has several problems to face in its procurement of lecturers. One difficulty is the lack of a general assembly hall. Lee Chapel and Washington Hall are too small for a speaker with wide appeal, and Doremus Gymnasium is hardly conducive to academic lectures. Another problem is the lack of a ready-made audience. Washington and Lee students have no regulations concerning the attending of special lectures other than University Assemblies. Therefore a special effort must be made to give a speaker advance publicity. However, students and faculty have expressed themselves as being well pleased with the program and further improvement is contemplated.

REPORT

ALUMNI FUND

for 1951

A Message from President Gaines

The gratitude of my heart for the excellent contributions here recorded is paralleled by one other emotion—my sense of the importance of what you have done.

Now that I think about it, I do not see how Washington and Lee could have hoped for anything like a good year if the University had not received this help. I treasure the assistance so greatly in the realm of the spirit, the testimony of love and faith that you have offered, that I regret to descend to the fiscal level Actually, however, the Alumni Fund of last year amounted, roughly speaking, to the income for the time being earned by a million dollars of endowment.

Those of us who are beneficiaries of this generosity, impressive in its dimension and inspiring in its consequence, may lack the words of adequate thanks; but the Alumni Fund takes its place among the forces of heritage. Of that heritage we are immensely proud, for it we offer humble prayers of thanksgiving, and to it we pledge renewals of devotion.

Upon pure generosity and the conviction thus represented, Washington and Lee was founded. Upon the continuance of this largess of love, the University has survived and grown. Its services, we may fairly claim, have been incalculable for God and man, but every one of those services has been possible because somebody loved the school, somebody shared with it.

Through its long history, there is no record of coerced support. For its future there is no promise of compelled money. It will sustain its purpose only through the large souls who believe and who help.

And I add with confidence that there has been no stage in that history when the generosity of friends is more real as help.

President

Francis Peredutor Lines

To Members of the Washington and Lee Alumni Association:

I am grateful for this oportunity to address each one of the members of our Association. I also want to thank those of you who responded last year to your Class Agent's letter.

I have just returned from a two days' visit to our beautiful campus. During this time I had an opportunity to talk with many faculty members and students. I came away convinced that now, more than at any other time in the history of Washington and Lee, our Alma Mater needs our support. As alumni we are bound to the University by the strongest of ties. We instinctively think of Washington and Lee as among the things in life most worth preserving.

In a few weeks you will receive a letter from your Class Agent whose name, by the way, is listed on the inside cover of this magazine. I urge you to reply to his letter promptly. Not only will your Class Agent appreciate your writing him but your response will indicate to the administrative officers, to the faculty, to the Fund workers, and to all others connected with the school that you do appreciate what they are doing for us and for the perpetuation of Washington and Lee.

The 1951 Alumni Fund was a great triumph for the class agent system and the men who make it work. My most sincere thanks to all who have made this possible.

KEN LANE, *President*Washington and Lee Alumni, Inc.

Report of the 1951 Alumni Fund

A generous portion of this issue of the Alumni Magazine is devoted to details on the 1951 Alumni Fund. Also, for the first time we have tried to analyze our Fund through the period of its existence, 1933-1951. I hope alumni will take time to study the lists of contributors and the tables of statistics which tell the full story. You will notice that development has been slow but that progress has been steady. The $40,490.24 received in 1951 exceeds by $12,000 any previous year.

The Alumni Board, at its meeting in June, decided that all money received from the '51 Fund should be handed to the Treasurer of the University and expended at the direction of the University Board of Trustees. The amount turned over to the University this year from the Alumni Fund equals income on $1,000,000 of capital funds. It is clear our Alumni Fund is taking on increasing importance. Last year it enabled the University to operate effectively without a deficit.

In spite of the progress we have made, we are far behind other colleges of similar size in annual giving. The amount of money received last year was most encouraging when we consider that only 1,958 alumni, out of our total of 10,327, contributed to the Fund. You will note from our analysis that a total of 5,468 alumni have contributed to the Fund at one time or another. At a minimum, 4,000 of this number should be responding annually. This is not too much to expect—the percentage of givers to many other college funds far exceeds this number.

By Cy Young

I want to pay real attention here to the work of the agents and their classes in recognition of how much the work of these men has meant. Not only did Charlie Gilmore '39-A lead all classes with his 93 contributors, but this number broke all records for the number of givers to one class since our Fund began. His class is a large one and when he achieved a 34% response, he almost doubled the average.

Paul Murphy '14-A led all classes in the amount of money received. In his total of $3,592, he did receive one or two large gifts. But the most amazing part of his record is that 50% of his class contributed. Elsewhere in this report you will find the five classes leading in several categories. It is most encouraging to see the distribution in each of these listings. Phil Murray '10-A ranked his class fourth in the amount of money received and we find Joe Ellis '43 third in the number of contributors.

Last year 17 classes showed more contributors than ever before in the 19 years of our Fund history, and 49 classes had their best year in money received.

I would like to say something about each class agent, because any credit for our results belongs to them, but you will understand that it cannot be fully said in a report of this kind. They all did a grand job and my experience in working with this fine group was most pleasant. May I here also include my thanks to the several hundred alumni who have served in the past as class agents. To them must go a lot of credit for building the Fund on a firm foundation without which the present structure could not exist.

The financial situation of the University has not changed materially from last year and surveys show that one-half of all our private liberal arts institutions are now operating in the red. Many of them are dipping into their endowment capital. We don't want this to happen at Washington and Lee. The best preventive we know of is concerted annual giving by the alumni through the class agents. Early in April you will receive a letter from your class agent. He is rendering an outstanding service and he deserves a reply, with or without a contribution. Our 1952 goal is 2,500 contributors.

Student Memorial Scholarship Fund

It was the month of December. It was cold and windy but sitting in the stands of Wilson Field were several hundred Washington and Lee students and their dates. A four ring circus was taking place on the field. The Washington and Lee band was parading and forming figures. A Santa Claus was giving out free cigarettes and souvenirs. A comical cross country race was underway. A plane roared overhead dropping leaflets which missed the field by a full mile. And, incidently, there was also a football game-the annual Washington and Lee "Corn Bowl."

Each December twenty-five exhigh school and would-be athletes representing the Red Square fraternities thaw out long unused and undiscovered muscles, and meet twenty-five once-a-year football players representing the remainder of the campus in as brutal a gridiron tussle as can be found in any bowl. Varsity players coach the two teams, nicknamed the "Kernels" and the "Kobs." Uniforms are supplied by the athletic department. This year the Red Square "Kernels" outlasted the "Kobs," 12 to 6.

The "Corn Bowl" is an annual project of the Student War Memorial Scholarship Fund Committee, called SWMSFC for short, which is one of the University's newer student organizations. It was formed in February, 1948, when

Harold N. Hill, Jr., '52

Fred Vinson, Jr., then Student Body President, appointed William Chipley to head up an organization whose purpose was the raising of money for a war memorial to Washington and Lee Alumni killed during World War II. It was decided at this time that a scholarship fund would be the most appropriate memorial, as it would be more lasting, more valuable, and more in keeping with the wishes of those being honored, than a monument. A goal of $10,000 was set for the fund raising committee, the interest to be applied annually to the tuition of some deserving student. The money was to be raised through various student activities and projects, and through individual gifts from interested friends. To date the organization has cleared almost $7,000. Six thousand five-hundred dollars has been given to Mr. Mattingly, University Treasurer, for investment at 4%, and the remainder is in the hands of the committee to be used for operating expenses and for financing of future events.

This new organization, although primarily a money raising one, has proved to be one of the more worthwhile activities on campus. Under the leadership of some of the more able undergraduates the SWMSFC has brought to the campus, humor, an outlet for student expression, and activities which have made W. and L. campus life more well rounded than before.

The "Corn Bowl" game, begun in 1948, is undoubtedly the peak production of the SWMSFC. But it has sponsored innumerable and varied projects. In 1948 it sponsored the first Southern Collegiate Wrestling Beauty Contest in Doremus gymnasium. At intermission of the Southern Conference wrestling tournament, girls from nearby colleges paraded before the students. A ten cent donation to the SWMSF gave a vote to the girl of the student's choice. Another long remembered epoch was a faculty-student baseball game in 1950. The faculty, believe it or not, won the game. Several dances have been sponsored by the Committee, including "Homecomings" and a Cabaret dance in Lynchburg. A book entitled So You're Dating a Mink, was written and published by two students Dick Ballard and Pat Warden, in the spring of 1950. It is still selling to dates, visitors, and parents, all proceeds going to the fund. Prior to each dance set members of the SWMSFC sell flowers. Cigarette machines are now located in fraternity houses, under the sponsorship of the fund raising committee. A horse show has been held. During the Bicentennial members addressed and stamped 20,000 first day envelopes. Proceeds went to the fund. Expenses sometimes run two-thirds of the gross profit, sometimes as low as one-fifth.

Other organizations on campus often help out. The proceeds from the 1948 Homecomings Dance, sponsored by Pi Alpha Nu, (honorary sophomore fraternity) went into the fund. Sigma Delta Chi's (honorary journalism fraternity) "Varsity Show" was for the benefit of the SWMSFC. The White Friars, (another honorary sophomore organization) held a dance for the fund.

Local merchants have taken an interest in the memorial fund. The plane mentioned earlier in the article was financed by a local clothing store. The book So You're Dating a Mink, was financed by advertising sold to local merchants. The flower shop gives a special discount on flowers sold by SWMSF Committee members. Local merchants contributed the gifts for a raffle.

The Committee perpetuates itself, choosing two or three sophomores each year. Thus the organization consists of a Chairman, a senior, and seven or eight members. It is termed an honorary position and entails a great deal of hard work as can be seen from the list of projects entirely run and supported by this organization. Members say it is a great deal of fun, but sometimes not all play. For instance there is the story of the SWMSFC Chairman who was running a dance. All weekend he had been worriedly taking care of little details. His gorgeous date was becoming annoyed. Finally, when the Chairman stopped dancing for a moment to count heads and see whether the dance was making or losing money for the SWMSFC, the young lady decided she'd had enough. She walked off the floor and the conscientious committee chairman hasn't seen her since.

Harold N. Hill, Jr., this year's chairman, has had an outstanding year. To date the committee has sponsored the Homecoming Dance, the "Corn Bowl," cigarette machines, flower sales, movie showings, and a jazz concert (student musicians). The future calls for either a donkey or a faculty student baseball game, a raffle, and a talent show.

Occasionally members come up with some amazing and imaginative suggestions. Recent brainchilds have included lady wrestlers, a big league ball game, and the bringing of the Harlem Globe Trotters or Lily Christine (of Cat Girl fame) to Lexington.

However Chairman Hill says, "We feel that the student should be given something for his money, but at the same time we prefer student produced shows and projects. Incidentally, we willingly accept personal contributions, but we do not solicit them."

The fund is fast approaching its goal. It is expected that the $10,000 scholarship will be available in three more years. The student applying for the scholarship must be submitted to the committee for consideration by an undergraduate or an alumnus who was a student during the years of the fund raising. The student must meet Washington and Lee requirements as stated in the catalogue. Final decision will be made by the University committee on scholarships. The scholarship may be renewed at the end of each undergraduate year if the student's record has been satisfactory.

Football Nostalgia

W. H. Keister, '94, retired superintendent of the Harrison-burg, Virginia Public Schools, is interested in finding out just when and where the first football game was played between the University of Virginia and Washington and Lee.

He recalls that in 1890, his first year at Washington and Lee, a game was played on a field toward the north-west end of the present athletic field, which that year had been planted in corn. The corn had been removed and the stubs of fodder had been rolled down to avoid injuring the players.

Mr. Keister remembers the game well and before the play had proceeded long a University of Virginia man named Whitaker seemed to be severely injured. He was lying under the east goal and writhed and rolled and groaned and squirmed and seemed to be suffering terribly. He was rubbed, water poured on his face and much attention given him. Finally, he got up, limped around a good deal. Play was resumed, the ball given Whitaker, and he ran the entire length of the field for a touchdown. Mr. Keister has forgotten who won the game, but he is sure THEY did.

The next year the field was much further back, near the woods in the rear of the boom Hotel DeHart (since destroyed by fire), near the present residence of Dr. George H. Denny. Mr. Keister played in that game. The place was well sodded but not level and not fenced. A disturbance occurred when a brakeman off a train standing in the C. & O station insisted that he would not pay to see the game. An effort was made to put him out, but he put up a fight and remained to see the game. How dusty and full of corn stalks was that field! The only living member of this team, besides himself, that Mr. Keister knows of is Hiram Martz, '95, who

A New Head Football Coach

Big news from the field of sports at Washington and Lee this winter was the resignation of Head Football Coach George Barclay, who returned to his alma mater, North Carolina, and the appointment of Carl Wise, backfield coach for the last six years, as head tutor.

Wise came to Washington and Lee as head basketball coach and backfield coach for Art Lewis in 1946. He was instrumental in developing the General's fast-opening T-formation play under Lewis for three years. When Lewis resigned to accompany VMI's Slick Morton to Mississippi State in 1949, Barclay, tagged from Maryland where he was line coach, elected to retain the energetic Carl as backfield coach and a collaborating expert in the T-formation.

The new head coach was born in Altamont, N. C., in 1916, and attended Crossnore High School. He was graduated from King College in Bristol, Tenn., in 1937, where he played football and basketball under the late W. S. "Pedie" Jackson. He began his long coaching career in 1937 at Newland, N. C. high school when he was only 20 years old. The next six years saw high school coaching assignments at Gate City and Covington, Va.

Wise entered the Navy in 1942, served as backfield coach for the undefeated 1943 Bainbridge, Md., Navy football team that included several famous pro-stars and an 18-year-old youngster named Charlie Justice.

In 1945, after leaving the Navy, Wise was an assistant and scout for George Munger at the University of Pennsylvania. He left there to join Lewis at Washington and Lee.

Wise is married to the former Jody Tate of Gate City.

The 35-year-old coach is popular with players, students, and the administration. Early reports from spring football practice indicate a 1952 edition of the Big Blue equal to, if not better than, the '51 team.

The Barclay coached Generals had a three year record of 17 wins, 11 losses, and one tie for a .607 average. During his regime Washington and Lee won the Southern Conference championship in 1950, and played in their first bowl game in history, the Gator Bowl.

Barclay brought big time football to Lexington for the first time, and was highly thought of by the University. The student newspaper, The Ring-tum Phi, printed a glowing tribute to Coach Barclay upon the announcement that he had accepted another position, saying in part, ". . . A great man as well as a great football player and coach will be leaving us soon, but his three years at Washington and Lee will long be remembered by the thousands of students and friends who know and respect him."

BASKETBALL

Scotty Hamilton's Generals posted an unimpressive 6-20 season but overshadowing the unhapy record was the individual performance of Jay Handlan. The high scoring forward, with a total of 2,002 points, became the third player in major collegiate basketball history to reach the 2,000 mark. Of the five players who have hit the 1900 mark, Handlan has the best average with 21.5 points per game over a four year span.

MEMPHIS

On Tuesday, January 22, the Washington and Lee Alumni Association of Memphis held a stag dinner meeting preceded by cocktails, at the University Club of Memphis for Washington and Lee Alumni, fathers of students, and friends of the University, in the Mid-South area. The group met at 5:30 for cocktails and a fellowship hour, and at 7:00 o'clock a buffet dinner was served to the ninety-five persons attending.

After the meal, Allen Morgan, '29, acted as toastmaster, welcoming the out-of-town guests and non-alumni members. A nominating committee, composed of Stewart Buxton, '36, and L. V. (Jimmy) Butler, '37, presented a slate of candidates for the Alumni Association officers for 1952, and as there were no nominations from the floor, the men nominated were elected by acclamation. New officers are: Benton M. Wakefield, Jr., '41, President; William B. Morgan, '41, Vice-President; S. L. Kopald, Jr., '43, Secretary; Sam Hollis, '51, Treasurer.

Following the election of officers, Allen Morgan presented Captain Dick Smith, who gave a talk on the University's athletic program and the program of the Generals' Fund. George Barclay was then introduced and after a short speech discussing past and future football prospects, he acted as narrator for a color movie of the Washington and Lee-Virginia game.

This was the first meeting held by the local Alumni in three years, and the meeting was so well received that it was decided to hold more frequent meetings in the future and to organize a trip to Nashville in the fall of 1952 to see Washington and Lee play Vanderbilt.

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

The Lynchburg Washington and Lee alumni met for dinner at The Boonsboro Country Club on Friday, February 22, and heard a report from Dean James G. Levburn on the state of the university. Dean Leyburn was introduced by James R. Caskie, '06, who has the longest record of service on the University Board of Trustees.

After a social hour a delicious dinner was served and attractive favors presented to all the ladies present. The film of the Washington and Lee-Virginia game was shown. ## Football Nostalgia lives near New Market, Virginia.

Mr. Keister does not recall that there were other football fields, but does remember playing one season on the old Fair Grounds, south east of Lexington. Other athletic events were held there and he was the winner in some of the contests.

During those years there were games with V. M. I. In one of these games Mr. Keister played against a cadet named Poindexter, who was called "OLD SOW" and he can still hear them yelling "Root him Old Sow." In this game he broke a knuckle on his right hand, which crippled his right arm for life. He recalls playing a game with Princeton on the V. M. I. Parade Grounds and remembers them as the most gentlemanly team he ever played against.

We quote from Mr. Keister's letter:

"This, as you observe, is going back 61 years, and at my age, 86, plus nearly four months, my memory is only fairly accurate. Even yet, however, I follow every game and rejoice with you when you win and weep with you when you lose. . . . After all the years, I am eternally grateful for what W. and L. did for me and has meant to me; it not only does FOR you, but does IN you that which is helpful every day of your life."
