Servant of the Nation

Geographical analysis of the current student body shows the same wide distribution that we have had during recent years. The percentage for Virginia has risen slightly, since the benefits of the "G. I. bill" permit many boys to come who could not otherwise attend; but the student body is undoubtedly a truly national group.

* * * * *

You will recall that a survey made some years before the war by another institution indicated that we had the most widely distributed undergraduate group on any American campus. That condition, or approximately that condition, still obtains.

* * * * *

I have been interested to know the reason for this interesting fact. I presume that in early years the people of our section who had moved to other states began to send their sons back. I presume that the notable interest expressed by the Father of our country impressed boys in other regions. I presume that the prestige of the college itself has always been inviting.

* * * * *

The influence of Lee was probably the most compulsive reason. Many historical scholars—Woodrow Wilson and Professor Buck of Harvard, to mention only two—have noted that his spirit and his attitude were of immense significance in promoting a true reconciliation of the sections. It was perhaps a by-product of his efforts in this direction that boys from all over the nation, North as well as South, began to attend his college.

The story of wide distribution is sustained, of course, in the record of alumni achievement. I recently made a cursorious study of alumni accomplishment in connection with Bicentennial literature; and even I was amazed to find the number of different states of our country in which—through all fields of human endeavor—our alumni have earned places of authority and of maximum usefulness.

* * * * *

In phrasing a title for these notes, I deliberately used the word servant because I believe that word carries the implication of our noblest history and of our deepest aspiration. Two thoughts in this connection have given us cause for reflection and cause for a renewal of energies.

* * * * *

One of these facts is that, by reason of the enormous increase in enrollment, the American colleges have today on the campus, as never before, almost the total potential of leadership for the next decades. The leadership of our nation, I am confident, will shortly be just what the colleges have ordered.

* * * * *

The other fact is that in the light of world conditions it is now more important than ever before that college students are trained for something more than personal competence or even personal happiness. We must give these excellent young people wider understanding of public problems and a stronger devotion to public duty.

* * * * *

The alumni and the other friends of Washington and Lee may take this assurance, that as far as our wisdom and our tireless effort will effect this result, we shall try to make of our current students, magnificent in their promise, still the "servants of the nation."

Bicentennial Progress Report

With $600,000 cash in the till and another $50,000 definitely promised, the Bicentennial Fund this month entered the stage during which its appeal will be carried to every alumnus, every parent of a student or veteran alumnus, and every friend of the University in the nation. In most communities the campaign will be conducted through personal calls by volunteer members of Alumni Bicentennial Committees.

In 1947 the Fund expanded from a small organization on the second floor of McCormick Library to a going concern with "branch offices" in 127 cities throughout the United States. A few of the committees have opened their drives and report encouraging support, most of them are planning intensive work shortly after the first of the year, a few others will delay their campaigns until Spring, Col. Milton B. Rogers, '17, retiring executive director, announced early in December.

Desha Will Head Bicentennial in 1948

During the coming year the $3,000,000 campaign will be led by Prof. L. J. Desha, '06, and will merge into the Bicentennial Year celebration, which will reach its climax during the 1948-49 school session. Dr. Desha came to the faculty in 1920, and for the past ten years has been Bayly Professor of Chemistry and head of the department. He served as Dean of the University last year and was awarded an appointment on the Ball Foundation. Since September he has been relieved of all his academic duties in order to devote full time to the Bicentennial.

Col. Rogers, who came to the campus in September, 1946,

Colonel Milton B. Rogers
Lexington, Virginia

My dear Colonel Rogers:

At its meeting on November 15, the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees directed me to send to you an expression of appreciation for the work you have done as Director of the Bicentennial Campaign.

Unanimously the trustees of this University entertain admiration for the fidelity and the efficiency with which you have managed an important and somewhat difficult task; and unanimously they feel a strong sense of gratitude for the contribution of lasting importance which you have made. It is the sense of the trustees that results already obtained are the rewarding fruitage of your intelligent and conscientious labors, but we are convinced that the results of your effort will be evident for many years to come both in better understanding of Washington and Lee and in stronger support for its work.

Happily I add my personal sentiments, from the bottom of my heart, to those of the governing board. It has been a joy to all of us on this campus to have you as a member of our official family and as a friend in our academic community. I know, perhaps better than any one else knows, that the help which you have rendered to your Alma Mater is incalculably blessed.

Cordially your friend,
FRANCIS P. GAINES, President

to initiate the campaign, leaves January 1 to return to his business in New York, having already secured a four-month extension of his original year's leave in order to complete the organizational work.

"We are convinced that the results of your efforts will be evident for many years to come both in better understanding of Washington and Lee and in stronger support for its work," President Gaines, speaking for the Board of Trustees, said in his letter accepting Col. Rogers' resignation.

Allen T. Snyder, '39, who served as associate director with Col. Rogers in setting up the Bicentennial organization, returned to his business in Philadelphia September 1, and was succeeded by William Buchanan, '41.

Average Gift to Date Is $820

The Bicentennial Fund made its first analysis of returns on November 11, when $590,952.01 had been received. Of this amount, $288,452.01 had come from 352 contributors—$175,855.01 of it was given by alumni and students, $32,955 by parents and $79,642 by others. The average gift was about $820. Bequests amounted to $200,500, and foundations (including the General Education Board's 25 per cent of all money given for scholarships and endowment) had contributed $102,000. The Fund staff estimates that a tenth of the potential donors to the Bicentennial will have been reached by December 31.

Of the cash receipts, $62,309 had been earmarked for certain of the 132 Memorial Scholarships which will honor the alumni who died in service.

The states from which most contributions have come are Virginia—119 ($35,223.18); Tennessee—40 ($13,097.00); New York—34 ($90,243.33), and Maryland—24 ($3,615.00).

Intensive Drive to Come Next Year

The time schedule for the campaign, which had originally called for an intensive drive during the fall of this year and a follow-up next spring, was revised in September due to unavoidable delays in completing the pre-campaign organization in several regions.

"We are following a policy of leaving the dates of the local campaign as far as possible in the hands of the regional chairmen," Dr. Desha said last week. "Memphis, Chattanooga, Cumberland, Bluefield, Hartford, Savannah, Lynchburg, Jacksonville and a number of other places are already off to a good start. Most cities will have their campaigns started by mid-January. In a few regions along the Gulf Coast, chairmen wisely decided to defer the intensive part of their solicitation until the effects of this fall's storm damage have to some extent been overcome."

Members of the faculty and administration are speaking at opening dinners in every region where there is a large concentration of alumni. Dr. Gaines is now completing a heavy fall schedule in which he toured most of the East, South and Southeast to make addresses in fourteen major cities. Groups in other cities have been addressed by Dean Leyburn, Dean Gilliam, Dean Williams, Col. Rogers and Professors Desha and McDowell.

REPLICA OF THE ANNUAL MEMORIAL SCHOLARSHIP AWARD CERTIFICATE

The form and wording on this facsimile are tentative, and may be changed before the official eight-by-eleven-inch engraved certificates are made. One of these certificates will be awarded each year to each of the 132 students who will receive Memorial Scholarships.

Movie of the Campus Is Popular

The sound-color motion picture of Washington and Lee history and academic, social and athletic life, filmed on the campus last spring, became generally available in October, and four copies have since been kept spinning across the country—from Hartford to Milwaukee, Norfolk to Oklahoma City, Dallas to Miami. They have received an enthusiastic reception wherever they have been shown. It is hoped that the film will be exhibited in every region where there are a dozen alumni or more, before the Bicentennial Year ends.

With regional organizations almost complete in every city with a large number of alumni, the Bicentennial Office is now enlisting chairmen in those cities and towns with four to twelve alumni, parents or friends living in them.

John W. Davis, '92, general chairman of the Bicentennial, recently stated that "the University prizes highly the loyalty of each son and recognizes the importance of maintaining a personal contact. We are convinced that the Bicenennial Fund campaign will achieve largest results, both in good will and in contributions, wherever it is possible to arrange a man-to-man contact through a fellow alumnus."

Through these two interlocking national networks, which cover 41 states and the District of Columbia, about three-fourths of the 10,000 living Washington and Lee alumni will be called upon personally by a committeeman from their own community.

The remainder will either be reached through personal letters from a state or regional chairman or will be contacted by mail from Lexington.

Prepare Bicentennial Alumni Directory

Incidental to their other services, the chairmen are performing a monumental job in bringing up to date through local inquiries the Alumni Association's file of addresses, which was inevitably disorganized by frequent moves during the war. These corrections will serve as a basis of the Bicenennial Alumni Directory, the first complete register of all alumni to be compiled since 1926. Editor of the Directory is Thomas C. Wilson, '43, who has already begun supplementing the lists with information obtained from biographical questionnaires.

By decision of the Alumni Executive Committee, the Class Agent Plan in 1948 will be merged with the Bicentennial campaign. Class Agents are being appointed for the year, and will write their usual letters to gather personal information for alumni notes and to urge upon members of their classes the importance of supporting the Bicentennial Fund.

Expenses of the Alumni Association will be borne in 1948 by the University, and contributions will be made to the Bicentennial through local chairmen rather than through Class Agents. However, each contribution will be credited to the donor's annual record of giving to his Class Fund. Thus, the continuity of his own giving record will continue uninterrupted, and his class total will be increased to the extent of his gift. The totals for each class will be published in the next issue of the Alumni Magazine.

Eight major printed publications, dealing with some phase of the Bicentennial, have been produced during the past year. These included instructions for chairmen and committeemen, special pamphlets dealing with the Memorial Scholarship Plan, a catalogue of opportunities for memorial gifts in buildings and endowment, and a Christmas calendar of views of the University which was sent to every alumnus this month. All but two of these publications, and numerous minor pieces with limited distribution, have been printed at the Journalism Laboratory Press.

Weekly Father-and-Son Dinner

Each Saturday there is a father-and-son dinner for nine Louisville, Kentucky, lawyers, all from one firm—Woodward, Dawson, Hobson and Fulton. For this firm is unusual in that the four senior members all have sons in the firm. These dinners are more than family get-togethers. They are used to bring all the members together once a week to review decisions of higher courts, and to discuss their own cases.

The fathers are Ernest Woodward, Sr., who contributes two sons; Fielden and Ernest, Jr.; Judge Charles I. Dawson, whose son is Richard; Robert P. Hobson, whose son is Robert C.; and Judge Will H. Fulton, who has John D., already in the firm, and Will, Jr., with the Court of Appeals staff getting home finishing touches. Ernest and Fielden Woodward, Jr., are graduates of Washington and Lee, Fielden, B.A. '37 and LL.B. '39; Ernest, B.A. '40. Young Bob Hobson, B.A. '40, LL.B. '42, is the third generation of Hobson lawyers, all graduates from Washington and Lee. No. 1 was Judge John Peyton Hobson, M.A. 1870, of the Court of Appeals, a Chief Justice, and graduated from Washington College while General Robert E. Lee was its president; and a letter from the General, telling of the grandfather's fine record, hangs in the Hobson office. The second Hobson, Robert P., is an A.B. of 1914, and an LL.B. of '17.

W. and L. TRANSPLANTED

The villagers in pretty little Stratford, Connecticut, are adding a bit of Washington and Lee to their picturesque community. The town planning and zoning board has approved a new theatre which, according to Judge R. L. Weldon, who presented the case for the new theatre to the town board, is a "colonial structure to be modelled upon a building on the campus of Washington and Lee University." (Albert M. Pickus, '24, is co-owner of the new project.)

Alumni Represent University

The following alumni represented Washington and Lee at recent presidential inauguration ceremonies:

Dr. Herbert V. Carson, '13, inauguration of Dr. Hardy Liston, president of Johnson C. Smith University, Charlotte, North Carolina;

Edward S. Delaplaine, '13, inauguration of Dr. John S. Keiffer, president of St. John's College, Annapolis, Maryland;

W. Carroll Mead, '13, inauguration of Dr. Lowell Skinner Ensor, president of Western Maryland College, Weston, Maryland;

Marion Junkin, '27, inauguration of Dr. Johnson as president of Fiske University, Nashville, Tennessee;

Joseph R. Long, '23, inauguration of Dr. Franc Lewis McCluer as president of Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Missouri;

H. H. Butler, '28, inauguration of Dr. Merrill J. Holmes as president of Illinois Wesleyan University, Bloomington, Illinois.

ALUMNI APPOINTED BY GOVERNOR TUCK TO FILL STATE OFFICES

Abram Penn Staples, LL.B. '08, Attorney-General of Virginia since 1934, was named by Governor Tuck to succeed the late George Landon Browning as associate justice of the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals; Harvey B. Apperson, '13, member of the State Corporation Commission and former State Senator from Roanoke County, was named by the Governor to fill the unexpired term of Mr. Staples as Attorney-General; Willis D. Miller, '15, was appointed a member of the State Supreme Court of Appeals to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Henry W. Holt, LL.B. '88 and LL.D. '29, who died October 4, 1947.

Highly regarded by State officials and members of the bar for his knowledge of the law and Constitution and for his astuteness as a lawyer, Mr. Staples made his first bid for public office in 1927, in a successful campaign for the State Senate from Roanoke. He won reelection in 1931. As a Senator he served on the legislative commission which planned the State's liquor control system. Judge Staples is the son of the late Abram P. Staples who was professor of law at Washington and Lee University from 1903 to 1913. A Phi Beta Kappa, Mr. Staples also is a member of Phi Kappa Sigma, and Omicron Delta Kappa.

Mr. Apperson, member of the State Corporation Commission for the past two and a half years, is a former State Senator from Roanoke County. Like Mr. Staples, Mr. Apperson is a former president of the Roanoke Bar Association. He is a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, honorary fraternity.

Judge Miller was a student at Washington and Lee for only a short time.

ALUMNI OF W. and L. AND VIRGINIA PLAY SOFTBALL

The Louisville Boat Club was the scene of a fast and furious softball game between alumni of Washington and Lee and the University of Virginia on August 30, when the Washington and Lee team turned back their foe of long standing 14-6. Prominent among the W. and L. players were Norman Iler, Fielden Woodward, Ernest Woodward, Charlie Semple, Dick Day, Bill Whaley, Bill Kinnard, Tom Tuley, Kennedy Helm, John Faulkner, Louis Herrman, Terry Blandford and Ches. McCall. There was beer and cakes and everybody had a good time.

Opening of the 1947-1948 Session

By Frank J. Gilliam, Dean of Students

With the session of 1946-47 characterized as definitely a transition period between war-time Washington and Lee and the post-war era, the current 1947-48 session opened with conditions back to normal patterns except for the differences resulting from increased numbers. This expansion of the student body by approximately one-third has, of course, been felt in many different areas of student life.

The total enrollment of all divisions of the University on 1 November reached 1281, as against an approximate 935 for the several years immediately before the war and against 1160 for the fall of 1946. The most marked proportionate increase has been in attendance in the School of Law, with an enrollment this fall of 239, as against slightly under one hundred as a pre-war average and 157 in 1946. Arts, Commerce, and Science show for this year 1043 compared with 1003 at the same date in 1946 and compared with the pre-war figure of around 850.

Of the total enrollment, around 775 are veterans and the remaining 500 non-veterans. The enrollment in the School of Law is overwhelmingly veteran enrollment, both in old men returning and in new men entering, veterans being 214 of the 239 total. The entering class in Law will probably continue to be largely veteran through at least the 1948-49 entering group. The number of married students in the student body dropped this year to 211 from last year's figure of 220.

The fact that the total increase for this year was not greater was the result of a decision of the Board of Trustees not to permit enrollment to go beyond the point where the quality of instruction would necessarily suffer or inevitable financial deficits be incurred. The enrollment of new students, other than in Law, was consequently set at approximately 300, just about the pre-war figure, with this group comprised almost exclusively of freshmen with practically no transfer students.

The freshman academic class of 295 is the first post-war class in which the non-veteran students are in the great majority, there being only 39 veterans in the group. This fact

ADMISSION POLICY FOR 1948-1949

The continuing flow of applications for admission to Washington and Lee in September, 1948, indicate a situation not differing materially from that of the last several years in the number of applicants far exceeding the places available.

In accord with the general policy of the Board of Trustees, Washington and Lee will move back toward a normal pre-war enrollment, exclusive of Law, of around 850. This goal will again result in a freshman class of approximately 300. With every mail filled with requests concerning admission, the following procedure has been worked out. Interested applicants are urged to submit their formal application blanks this fall, to permit ample time for the full investigation of all records and references. Supplementary records of grades made during the first semester of the current session will be submitted after 1 February. Around the end of April a tentative selection of the class will be made, with a waiting list established from which any vacancies through cancellations will be filled. Applicants whose papers are approved in April, pending, of course, the satisfactory completion of the current session's work, will be asked to pay in advance a reasonable proportion of the first semester's tuition, in order to hold a place on the class roll.

Alumni can render a great service to Washington and Lee in seeing that any boys who they feel would make desirable students here are informed as to the current situation. The fullest consideration will be given to the application of any son, relative, or friend of an alumnus, but the final selection must, of course, be on the relative merits of all phases of the applicants' credentials; and all applications must be completed in time to be given consideration in April when the class will be selected.

represents no discrimination against veteran students, but simply that the over-whelming majority of the veterans who are prepared for college and who might be normal applicants for admission at Washington and Lee are already in college. The great demand for places in colleges that still exists, however, has probably resulted in its being possible to select the best prepared group of men from high schools and preparatory schools that has ever entered Washington and Lee.

The enrollment for all divisions of the University, exclusive of the School of Law, shows approximately 70 per cent from the South, with West Virginia and Maryland included in the South. In the enrollment of the School of Law, not yet tabulated geographically, the percentage from the South is somewhat larger.

The effects of the increased enrollment has been anticipated and solved with relative success in most phases of student life. The greatest difficulty has probably been encountered in the social fraternities. With relatively few men having been graduated since the war, the upper-classes are top-heavy, making it extremely difficult for some fraternities to find facilities for anything like a normal-sized pledge class. The chapters have, however, extended themselves to the utmost, with some chapter rolls reaching into the seventies. The fact still remains that an uncomfortably large number of students are on the campus who wish to join fraternities, who are, in every sense, fraternity material, but for whom adequate facilities do not exist. It is almost certain that this situation will be greatly improved by next session, with the large number of veteran students, who will complete their work before September, 1948.

Student Sons of Alumni

Of the students now registered at Washington and Lee there are 144 sons of alumni, the largest number ever enrolled in the student body. The classes represented by alumni fathers cover a long period, beginning with 1893 and ending with 1928.

Old Landmark Demolished

After careful consultation with various architects and builders it was decided that reclaiming "The Old Blue" was not practicable. The building has now been demolished and the ground on which it stood made a part of the campus of Washington and Lee.

Part of the building was standing in 1819 when the property was purchased by Jacob Clyce who made extensive additions and operated a tavern known as the "Exchange Hotel." It was probably during this time that the lovely front of the building with its double porches supported by slender Ionian pillars and its lunette in the attic above was built. This portion of the building was the English basement type with parlors on the second floor, and in these parlors were handsome hand-carved mantels. The tavern faced the "Great Road" at the bottom of the steep hill leading to the little village of Lexington, and was a convenient stopping place for travelers, up and down The Valley, being a day's journey from Staunton on the north and Fincastle to the south. Records still in existence indicate that the weary traveler could refresh himself with brandy at 25 cents a quart, and a bed "with clean sheets" at 12½ cents a night. The first V. M. I. cadet class was quartered in the hotel in 1839 while the barracks was being built and a hundred years ago it was the center of the "gay" social life of Lexington's Scotch-Irish gentry.

In 1871 Blue Hotel, so named because it was painted a gentle blue gray, was bought by Washington and Lee and for many years was used as a student dormitory. Each room was equipped with a wood-burning stove and an oil-burning lamp, the fuel furnished by the students. In recent years it has fallen into disrepair and was not demolished until it became apparent that it could not be renovated economically.

The "Old Blue" Is No More

Washington and Lee's New Dean

By Bill Bien, '49

Washington and Lee's new dean of the University is a man with cosmopolitan ideas.

Dr. James Graham Leyburn, who was installed here in September, already has demonstrated his dedication to the goal of building Washington and Lee into one of the greatest privately endowed institutions, not only of the South, but of the entire nation, in its third century of educational endeavor.

Respectful of the traditions and heritage which are the bulwark of this sixth oldest University in the United States, Dean Leyburn believes that they should be the basis of his projected plan to adjust the curriculum to fit the problems of these modern years. He feels that it is here, where the faculty and students form a close-knit campus group, that he can best realize his ideal of an institution devoted primarily to educational achievement and stimulation.

Speaking at a recent Faculty Discussion Club meeting, the dean unfolded his plans for enabling Washington and Lee to assume a role of intellectual leadership. His ideas include stepping up the minimum entrance standards, developing a still closer contact between teachers and students, encouraging students with unusual ability to do their major study in a field of education rather than within the narrow confines of a single subject.

He favors breaking the lock-step type of education so prevalent in some higher institutions today through a closer personal student-faculty bond and through increased individual research, for he reasons that the most fruitful learning is that which is the result of "excited conversation," curiosity, and initiative.

As a corollary to this ideal, Dr. Leyburn also favors a realistic type of educational system, wherein students have an incentive to work for comprehension and understanding, rather than for grades as an end in themselves. This, he feels, could be accomplished through comprehensive examinations given at wider intervals tying together various phases of study, in addition to periodical tests of a factual nature. In addition Dr. Leyburn advocates a thesis requirement in every department, to spur private research.

Dean Leyburn believes in his plans because he is cognizant of the increasing tempo and complexity of life today. He asserts that "world problems are so complicated that only university men can cope with them."

Introduced to the entire faculty-student group and a large number of alumni from all parts of the country last April at the Washington-Cincinnati convocation, Dr. Leyburn stressed the global obligation resting upon America's university men—"the aristocrats of the present age"—in all occupational and cultural fields, saying that "the whole world looks to America as it has never looked to any other nation. World peace must rest upon sympathetic understanding.

Who better than a university scholar could promote this understanding?"

At that time, Dr. Leyburn told his audience that he saw no paradox in speaking of an aristocracy in a professed democracy, "for the people of the United States have always readily given their admiration and loyalty to superior qualities of mind and spirit."

Dr. Leyburn's interest in watching Washington and Lee assume the sceptre of academic leadership may be due to his southern antecedents. Born in West Virginia, he was graduated with honors from Trinity College (Duke University), at 18, and a year later completed the course there leading to the master of arts degree.

Speaking in the softly modulated manner of the old South, Dr. Leyburn's words carry a flavor of consequence which impresses visitors to the dean's office. They are surprised to learn that he is only five-foot-ten tall, after an initial impression that he is a man of unusual stature. And they come away marvelling at his youthful enthusiasm, which belies his prematurely grey hair.

Washington and Lee students and alumni have noted with amused interest his teaching appointment to Hollins College, at the age of twenty, following a year at all-male Princeton University. Dr. Leyburn was professor of Sociology for two years at Hollins, then retired to the comparative safety of Princeton again, still single.

Following this stint at Hollins and Princeton, he went to Yale University, where he studied further graduate courses, and where he has taught continuously until last year, except for a leave of absence during the war as principal officer of a lend-lease mission to South Africa. While at Yale, Dr. Leyburn won the John Anisfield Award for the best scholarly book on race relations with his volume, The Haitian People.

His background and knowledge of world affairs would seem to make Dr. Leyburn's assumption of the deanship at Washington and Lee a most auspicious beginning for the University's entrance into its third hundred years. His interest in problems of the modern day, transcending continental limits, has led him to Canada, 10 European, 5 Latin-American, and 13 South African countries. He is a proficient student of six foreign languages.

Completely—one of his proudest possessions is a tiny charm given to him as a member of the Pierson College, Yale, inter-college squash team—Dr. Leyburn is recognized as one of the leading sociologists in the United States. In addition to his prize-winning The Haitian People, he has written many books, including titles ranging from Music Book in Balubu (a Bantu language) for Congo school children, to Handbook to Ethnography. He is also the author of innum-

With the Local Chapters

ATLANTA, GEORGIA

At noon on October 6, Dr. Gaines addressed the Atlanta, Georgia, Rotary Club, speaking to an audience of some 300 of the leading business and professional men of the city, including a goodly sprinkling of Washington and Lee Alumni. An alumnus writes: "Dr. Gaines' address was simply magnificent, and was said by many Rotarians to have been the greatest address ever heard by the Atlanta Rotary Club. He made a tremendous and profound impression on all those who heard him, and is bound to have done Washington and Lee an untold amount of good in this territory."

Dr. Gaines next appeared on a radio program, entitled "Views of The News," sponsored by the Atlanta Journal over its 50-thousand-watt station, WSB. He was interviewed on this program by George Goodwin, an alumnus and a feature writer on the Atlanta Journal. Statewide coverage was thus obtained through this powerful station.

In the evening the local chapter held an alumni dinner at the Piedmont Driving Club, in charge of an Arrangement Committee, consisting of Messrs. Carl Carson Moore, '13, Chairman; George Evans Goodwin, Jr., '39; and Herbert Kelly Garges, Jr., '40. The dinner was attended by close to 100 alumni, wives, and guests, the latter including several non-alumni parents of boys now at Washington and Lee. Honor guests of the occasion were Mr. Harrison Jones, Chairman of the Board of the Coca Cola Company, and Mr. George Biggers, President of the Atlanta Journal, who are the two local members of the National Sponsors Committee of the Bicentennial Program. Immediately after dinner the sound-color movie of the University was shown, which was well received by all, and then Dr. Gaines made an inspiring talk for about twenty minutes.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: Willis Everett, '20, recently returned from the Nazi war criminal trials, President; Herbert K. Garges, Jr., '40 and George Goodwin, '39, Vice-Presidents; and T. Hal Clarke, '38, Secretary-Treasurer.

BALTIMORE, MARYLAND

The Baltimore, Maryland, local alumni chapter held its annual dinner on October 31, with approximately 25 alumni present. Lawrence W. Galloway, '43, was elected president of the chapter for the coming year and David Lewis, '46, secretary-treasurer.

W. Carroll Mead, '25, regional chairman of the Bicentennial drive, outlined the purposes of the campaign and urged the participation of all alumni.

BECKLEY, WEST VIRGINIA

The New River and Greenbriar Alumni Association Chapter held a dinner meeting on October 3 at the Black Knight Country Club, Beckley, West Virginia, the evening before the Washington and Lee-University of West Virginia football game in Charleston. The dinner was given in honor of the Washington and Lee football team which had stopped at Beckley en route to Charleston, for dinner and a short practice. A feature of the dinner was the presentation by the local chapter of a wrist watch to Capt. Dick Smith, Director of Athletics, in appreciation of his twenty-five years of service to Washington and Lee athletics. Harry Moran, '13, president of the chapter, presided.

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA

The Bicentennial campaign of the University got underway in Birmingham on October 7, under auspicious conditions, when 67 alumni and guests enjoyed the privilege of hearing Dr. Gaines and seeing the first showing in Birmingham of the recently completed sound-color motion picture of the Washington and Lee campus. The dinner and meeting were held at the Tutwiler Hotel.

Following the showing of the picture, which was enthusiastically received, Dr. Gaines addressed the meeting. The work of the local campaign committee, headed by Henry P. Johnston, '29, manager of the local radio station WSGN, was thus given an inspirational launching.

Henry P. Johnston, '29, president of the local chapter, presided at the meeting. Distinguished guests of the occasion were President George R. Stuart of Birmingham-Southern College; Major Hartwell Davis, President of Howard College; and out of town alumni C. T. Chenery, '09, of New York and Basil Manly, '06, of Washington, D. C., respectively chairman of the board and vice-president of the Southern Natural Gas Company.

BRISTOL, TENNESSEE

Col. Milton B. Rogers, executive director of the Washington and Lee Bicentennial fund campaign, was the speaker at a meeting of Southwest Virginia alumni at the General Shelby Hotel on November 7. Col. Rogers asked the support of alumni and others interested in the school to take an active part in the campaign. Carl B. Knight, retiring president of the chapter, presided at the meeting, and A. Carter Crymble, of Kingsport, was elected president of the Appalachian chapter for 1948. The technicolor-sound movie "Two Centuries of Service," was shown. Approximately 40 members of the association, their wives and ladies were present.

CHARLESTON, WEST VIRGINIA

The annual fall smoker of the Charleston, West Virginia, alumni chapter was held on the eve of the Washington and Lee-University of West Virginia game, October 4, at the Edgewood Country Club. 100 alumni from Charleston and vicinity were present. Lee Kenna, '40, chapter president, presided. Coach Art Lewis and Cy Young, from the University, addressed the meeting.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

The first fall luncheon meeting of the Chicago area Washington and Lee alumni was held on September 4 in the Merchants and Manufacturers Club in the Merchants Mart. The meeting was hurriedly arranged and only some ten or twelve alumni were present. It was decided to have a regular luncheon meeting every month.

HARTFORD, CONNECTICUT

Dean Frank J. Gilliam was the speaker at an alumni dinner meeting in Hartford, Connecticut, on November 2, at which 35 alumni were present. Chairman Berkeley Cox presided and Honorary-Chairman W. Ross McCain, president of the Aetna Fire Insurance Company, introduced the speaker. One of the high points of the meeting was the announcement that a $2,000 endowment policy made out to Washington and Lee by an alumnus 20 years ago will mature in December, in time to get an extra $500 from the General Education Board.

JACKSONVILLE, FLORIDA

Dr. James G. Leyburn, dean of Washington and Lee, was the speaker at a gathering of alumni and friends of the University at the George Washington Hotel, Jacksonville, Florida, on November 12. Henry W. Dew, '11, regional chairman of the Bicentennial Anniversary, introduced the speaker, who explained the need of the University to maintain the high standards of the school. Local sponsors for the campaign include J. Leroy Dart, Senator Scott M. Loftin, Rabbi Israel L. Kaplan, Mrs. Alfred I. duPont, the Rev. Valentine Lee, D.D., Judge Bayard B. Shields, J. Grover Taylor, George Gibbs, Alfred D. Stevens, Richard P. Daniel and Mainhard H. Meyerson.

The colored sound-motion picture of the University was shown and both the picture and Dean Leyburn's address were enthusiastically received.

NEW YORK, NEW YORK

Ethan Allen, '31, president of the New York alumni chapter, presided at a meeting of the chapter on October 1, held at the Columbia University Club. Over 100 alumni were present, the largest gathering of alumni ever held in New York. The committee on arrangements, headed by Roy J. Grimley, '21, had done an excellent job. Dean Clayton E. Williams, '12, of the Washington and Lee Law School, addressed the meeting, and the sound-color motion picture "Two Centuries of Service," recently completed, was shown. Gossett McRae, '27, was elected president of the chapter for the coming year, and Emmett Poindexter, '20, secretary-treasurer.

RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

Richmond, Virginia, alumni met for luncheon at the Thomas Jefferson Hotel on Saturday, September 27, prior to the Washington and Lee-University of Richmond game, played that night, with sixty alumni present. Dr. A. M. Wash, president of the local chapter, presided. Coach Art Lewis Dyke Norman, acting captain of the football team, and Cy Young were present from the University.

ROANOKE, VIRGINIA

William B. Bagbey, '38, president of the chapter, presided at a dinner meeting of the Roanoke, Virginia, alumni, held at the Hotel Roanoke on November 12, with 60 Washington and Lee alumni present. Charles P. Light, of the Washington and Lee Law School, Coach Art Lewis and his assistant coaches, Carl Wise and John Jaffurs, addressed the meeting. The sound-color motion picture, "Two Centuries of Service," was shown. Officers of the chapter for the coming year were elected as follows: Clifton Woodrum, Jr., '33, president, Tom Martin, '41, vice-president, and Chester Palmer, '38, secretary-treasurer.

ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI

About 65 alumni, wives, and parents of students now in school held a dinner meeting at the Congress Hotel in St. Louis, Missouri, on the evening of December 2. The meeting was arranged and presided over by John L. Patterson. Joe Long, chairman of the Bicentennial Committee for the St. Louis area, discussed plans for the campaign. The movie, "Two Centuries of Service" was shown after dinner, followed by an informal talk by Dean Frank J. Gilliam on the general situation at Washington and Lee at present.

UPPER POTOMAC CHAPTER

On November 21, 25 alumni of the Upper Potomac chapter of Washington and Lee alumni met for dinner at the Y. M. C. A. in Cumberland, Maryland. Billy Wilson, president of the chapter, presided. The sound-color movie, "Two Centuries of Service," was shown.

WAYNESBORO, VIRGINIA

Alumni of Waynesboro and Augusta County held a dinner meeting at Hotel General Wayne, Waynesboro, Virginia, on October 22. Moving pictures of the Washington and Lee-Marines football game were shown to some twenty-seven alumni and their wives. Final action was taken on the consolidation of the Waynesboro and Staunton chapters to form The Augusta County Chapter, but election of officers for the new chapter was postponed for a later meeting.

President Gaines has addressed Bicentennial gatherings this fall in fourteen major cities. Attended by alumni, parents of students now in school here, friends of the University and guests, these meetings signalized the opening of the regional Bicentennial campaign in each area.

Each meeting centered around the President's address, which followed a showing of the Alumni Association's sound-color motion picture of Washington and Lee, "Two Centuries of Service." Most of them were dinner meetings and were arranged by the chairman of the local Bicentennial committee.

Another series of meetings will begin immediately after the Christmas holidays and will continue through the winter.

Among the meetings attended by Dr. Gaines this fall were:

PHILADELPHIA, PENNSYLVANIA

On September 26 about 60 alumni and guests attended a meeting held at the Hotel Warwick in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. I. M. Scott, Regional Chairman, presided, with the assistance of F. P. Crew, president of the local chapter.

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

James R. Caskie was host to about 60 alumni at the Lynchburg Country Club, Lynchburg, Virginia, on October 13. Edward S. Graves, president of the chapter, presided and Dr. Gaines and Samuel H. Williams, Regional Chairman, were the speakers.

BLUEFIELD, WEST VIRGINIA

Ex-Governor George C. Perry, member of the University Board of Trustees, presided at a meeting of about 70 alumni and guests held at Hotel West Virginia, Bluefield, West Virginia, on October 23. Dr. Gaines was introduced by Supreme Court Justice, A. C. Buchanan, and Huston St. Clair, member of the University Board of Trustees and Co-Chairman for the region, was also a speaker.

NORFOLK, VIRGINIA

On November 10, Gilbert Swink, president of the local chapter, presided at a meeting held at the City Club, Norfolk, Virginia, attended by about 90 alumni and guests. Dr. Gaines was introduced by Judge Richard B. Spindle.

DALLAS, TEXAS

Rosser J. Coke was host at a dinner held in the Texas Room of Hotel Baker, Dallas, Texas, on November 17, for 98 citizens of Dallas, including some local alumni. After an invocation by Dr. Humphrey Lee, President of Southwestern Methodist University, Mr. Coke introduced the speaker.

FORT WORTH, TEXAS

About 60 men were the guests of Gaylord C. Stone and Wyatt C. Hedrick at the Fort Worth Country Club, Fort Worth, Texas, on November 18. Mr. Hedrick presided and introduced the speaker.

HOUSTON, TEXAS

Melvin E. Kurth entertained about 60 alumni and friends of the University at the Houston Country Club, Houston, Texas, on November 19. Mr. Kurth, Regional Chairman, presided and introduced Dr. Gaines.

SHREVEPORT, LOUISIANA

On November 21 about 70 alumni and guests met at the Country Club, Shreveport, Louisiana, at which Robert L. Jeter, president of the local chapter, presided.

MONROE, LOUISIANA

Some 85 alumni, their wives and guests, from Monroe, Bastrop, Alexandria, Louisiana, and El Dorado, Arkansas, met for luncheon in Monroe, Louisiana, on November 22. James D. Sparks, Co-Chairman for the area presided.

LEXINGTON, KENTUCKY

On December 1, 82 alumni and guests met at the Lafayette Hotel, in Lexington, Kentucky. Joe Arnold, president of the local chapter, presided. Guests of honor were: President-Emeritus F. L. McVey, of the University of Kentucky, President Raymond McLain of Transylvania, Dr. and Mrs. Cole, Mrs. Mason and Mrs. Parrish.

LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY

At the Brown Hotel in Louisville, Kentucky, on December 2, 90 alumni and guests held a meeting with Peel Rivers, local chapter president, presiding. After an invocation by F. A. Sampson, R. P. Hobson introduced the speaker. President H. L. Donovan, of the University of Kentucky, was the guest of honor.

What Others Say About Us . . .

SERVING THE AMERICAN SPIRIT

Even the brief and casual visitor, turning off for a little time from the Shenandoah Highway in Virginia, senses at once the living power of tradition, the quiet and yet vital strength of spirit, which pervades the campus of Washington and Lee University at Lexington. Seeing the simple, lovely, white-columned buildings, in their setting of sweeping lawn and quiet, encompassing trees, one feels that here indeed is fitting embodiment of a great heritage—a deep and vital spiritual reality.

To this place for generations young men have come to become partakers and bearers of this tradition and spirit.

To it return mature graduates to be renewed in old loyalties and fidelities.

Even passersby are unforgettably touched by the union of undying past and living present which can be so strongly felt here.

It was almost 200 years ago—in 1749—that the little classical school which was to develop into Washington and Lee University was founded at Greenville. It was reestablished in 1776 at Timber Ridge and called Liberty Hall Academy. In 1782 it was moved to Lexington and chartered as a college.

In 1796 George Washington made an endowment equivalent to $50,000 and it was given his name.

Robert E. Lee was its president from 1865 to 1870, and after his death his name was added to its title.

Now, completing its second century, this institution is planning for the future. Great traditions, living institutions, must grow if they are to survive and remain strong.

Washington and Lee is not seeking growth in mere size. Its purpose—which can be served best only by close personal relations—has been and still is to contribute its utmost to the development of men imbued with the ideals and principles of justice, freedom, political, social and religious conscience and individual responsibility. Serving that purpose appropriately in this day requires substantial additions to the University's resources. Devoted alumni and friends of the institution are now seeking $1,000,000 for general endowment, $1,000,000 for memorial scholarships in honor of Washington and Lee men who gave their lives in World War II, and $1,000,000 for necessary buildings.

In Alabama many of these alumni and friends are now uniting in this high endeavor. They who respond will be contributing to the strengthening of a flowing source and a lofty service of the American spirit.

PEACE-SERVING WASHINGTON AND LEE UNIVERSITY

In September, 1949, Washington and Lee University at Lexington (Virginia) will begin its third century. It therefore ranks among the country's oldest continuing higher educational institutions.

Bearing the names of two great Virginia soldiers, who hold honored places in the Nation's history, the University has earned its own distinctive standing in the educational scheme. It has worthy traditions to uphold. Founded originally as Augusta Academy (1749), the school became Washington Academy (1782) when the master of Mount Vernon endowed it with $50,000—a considerable fortune in that day. It became Washington College in 1813, and Washington and Lee University after General Robert E. Lee had served as its president from October, 1865, until his death in 1870.

The University has been distinctive for its emphasis on the humanities, while not neglecting the practical sciences; for pioneering in student self-government and for requiring four years work in hygiene and physical training for graduation.

The University's post-bellum president gave it ideals and

Alumnus Contributes Rare Books

"Russell Sage Foundation: 1907-1946" is the title of two volumes published November 24, covering the first forty years of the Foundation, a gift copy of which has been received by the Alumni Office. The Russell Sage Foundation was established in 1907 by Mrs. Russell Sage "for the improvement of social and living conditions in the United States of America." The senior author of the history, John M. Glenn, served the Foundation as general director from 1907 to 1931, and is now a Trustee.

Mr. Glenn received his M.A. degree from Washington and Lee in 1879, and an LL.D. in 1907. He has recently given to the Cyrus Hall McCormick Library some 225 books from his personal library, consisting for the most part of belles lettres and history. The collection is a very valuable one, as it contains many out-of-print and hard-to-find books, as well as many first editions.

able monographs and magazine articles which have been published in such periodicals as "The Yale Review," American Sociological Review, Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science.

Dean Leyburn has been elected to such honor groups and learned societies as Phi Beta Kappa, Sigma Xi, American Sociological Society, and the American Geographical Society, and has had papers read to the members of these groups. Washington and Lee students will have an opportunity to hear him in classes, since he will take time from administrative duties to conduct courses in the Sociology department here.

Although not completely oblivious to the advantages of married life, Dr. Leyburn enjoys his life as a bachelor in his home on the Washington and Lee campus. He enjoys music tremendously and plays the piano often during leisure hours.

Students of the University are already looking to Dean Leyburn as a respected friend of the campus community—one who is interested in their affairs and also in the University providing them with the essentials of life in the twentieth century.

Thus people are beginning to say that while Washington and Lee has had many illustrious deans, it may have never had a more interested or capable man than Dr. Leyburn.

standards which have been religiously maintained. General Lee held that this Nation and all the nations could build bulwarks against war by cultivating the arts of peace.

If men could only learn to put as much enthusiasm, energy and teamwork into peace-time constructive labors as they put into war-time destruction, an era of good will could be achieved.

It is the University's aim—looking to its new century—Dr. Francis P. Gaines, president, explains, to carry on in that spirit—"to implement the peace with vigor, courage and attractiveness"; to train workers in "all the civilized activities which flourish in peace."

Washington and Lee University holds that a world in which educated men devote their energy and skill co-operatively to the concerns of peace, always seeking lofty objectives, "will be the sort of world which will have the best chance to avoid war."

BOOK BY DR. HENRY LOUIS SMITH

Appearing on book shelves on October 4, was an interesting volume of selected speeches of Dr. Henry Louis Smith, entitled "This Troubled Century," published by the University of North Carolina Press.

Dr. Smith, president of Washington and Lee University from 1912 to 1929, now president emeritus of the University, is living in Greensboro, North Carolina. The book is divided into five sections and covers Dr. Smith's long span of 88 years. The first section is devoted to educational problems and contains a number of his well-known early addresses, including his speech on Robert E. Lee, the educator, and his inaugural address as president of Washington and Lee. The other sections deal with addresses on social and moral problems, "Science and its Influence," religion and "America Today and Tomorrow."

W. and L. HOST TO EDUCATORS

The University was host to the Policy Commission of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, representing 11 Southern states, at a conference August 21-25 at Natural Bridge Hotel.

The delegates were welcomed by Dr. Gaines in an address at Lee Chapel, following which they made a tour of the campus and visited V. M. I.

On the Campus

NEW FACULTY APARTMENTS

The Washington and Lee faculty apartment building located at the corner of Estill and Washington streets is now completed and the eight apartments occupied. The two-story building is constructed of cinder blocks painted a pale yellow. The entrance is of modern design built of brick and glass blocks.

BICENTENNIAL SPEAKER

Ex-Ambassador Alexander W. Weddell, distinguished U. S. career diplomat, was the speaker at the first Bicentennial series at a University assembly on October 20, in Doremus Gymnasium. This assembly initiated a series of addresses by speakers of national importance who will be brought to the campus as a preliminary to the Bicentennial program during the 1948-1949 school year. A native of Richmond, Virginia, Ambassador Weddell entered the foreign service in 1910 and has held many important posts including that of Ambassador to Argentina from 1933 to 1939, and to Spain from 1939 to 1942.

TROUBADOURS

"The Front Page," the first Troubadour production of the current season, began a five-night series on December 9 in the Troubadour Theatre, starring Judy McNeer, Jack Scheifly and Wesley Marsh in leading roles. Lesser parts were taken by Troubadour old-hands Peggy Boykin, Bill Romaine, Everett Easter, Joe Moffatt, Russ Thomes and Jim Brewster. Also appearing in female roles were Lela Nance Moffatt, wife of English Professor, Dr. James Strong Moffatt, Mary Pearson and Jean Moseley.

W. and L. ON THE FREEDOM TRAIN

The letter which General Robert E. Lee wrote the trustees of Washington College in 1865 accepting the presidency of the Lexington school is among the 98 priceless documents being displayed on the Freedom Train.

GLEE CLUB OPENS SEASON

The Glee Club initiated its 1947-1948 season with a concert in Lee Chapel on December 12, the repertoire consisting of popular and classical music as well as a number of negro spirituals. Dean Leyburn was the piano soloist.

Paul E. Meadows, director, has announced that in addition to this concert, the Club will again sing at the traditional Christmas Candlelight Service to be held in the Robert E. Lee Memorial Church on December 19, the day before the beginning of the Christmas vacation. The Club is also expected to repeat its initial performance at one or more of the neighboring towns. During the spring, two concerts, to be joint affairs with nearby girls' schools, have been tentatively scheduled.

ODK INITIATES

Representing practically every phase of student life and six major professions, sixteen Washington and Lee students and ten prominent Americans, including seven alumni, were initiated into the Alpha Circle of Omicron Delta Kappa, following "tapping exercises" in Doremus Gymnasium on November 14. ODK is a national fraternity, founded on the Washington and Lee campus on December 3, 1914.

Thomas J. Watson, president of International Business

Machines, was the speaker. Mr. Watson, Mr. Junius P. Fishburn, president of the Times-World Corporation, Roanoke, Virginia, and Ernest Woodward, member of the Louisville, Kentucky, law firm of Woodson, Dawson, Hobson and Fulton, were the non-alumni initiates.

The seven alumni who were initiated were: Harvey B. Apperson, '13, of Richmond, Virginia, Attorney-General of Virginia; Wyatt C. Hedrick, '10, Architect of Fort Worth, Texas; Dr. T. Brannon Hubbard, '06, of Montgomery, Alabama, head of Hubbard Hospital; Arthur W. McCain, '14, of New York City, President of the Chase National Bank; Philip P. Page, '08, of Chicago, Illinois, Vice-President and Manager of the Chicago Journal of Commerce; Allen Rush-ton, '25, of Birmingham, Alabama, Vice-President of the Birmingham Ice and Cold Storage Corporation; and John H. Tucker, '10, of Shreveport, Louisiana, President of the Louisiana State Law Institute.

Student initiates were: Charles E. Belcher, Joseph E. Blackburn, Ralph J. Davis, Frederick S. Holley, Walter Hanes Lancaster, Jr., Bernard Levin, Charles R. McDowell, Jr., Robert G. Patterson, Walter B. Potter, Charles S. Rowe, Mark W. Saur, Benton C. Tolley, Jr., Fred M. Vinson, Jr., Edward C. Waddington, Jr., Charles Richard Working, and Sheppard W. Zinovy.

PLANS FOR FANCY DRESS

Plans for the Fancy Dress Dance Set, January 29, 30 and 31, are maturing and Ralph Davis, set leader, has announced that Elliot Lawrence, Washington and Lee's favorite post-war music maker, will be on the band stand for the entire three nights. The theme of the Fancy Dress ball will be "Hampton Court Under Charles II." Ralph Davis as Charles II and the Queen, Catherine of Braganya, will reign over what is expected to be a solid 17th century merrymaking in the Doremus version of Hampton Court. R. J. "Cubby" Bear, Jr., will have general supervision of decorations.

OPENING DANCES

The opening dances on the week-end of November 21-22 were well attended. The Friday night dance was highlighted by the annual Sophomore Figure, led by Chris Compton, class president, and on Saturday night the Cotillion Club Figure was led by Set President, Charlie Rowe. Music for both dances was furnished by Bob Chester and his orchestra and the decorations were under the direction of Jake Cheatham, assisted by five upper classmen and pledges from all the fraternity houses on the campus.

JOURNALISM LECTURES

A series of three lectures by visiting speakers, sponsored by the Lee Journalism Foundation, were held during the fall semester. On October 6, B. M. McKelway, editor of the Washington Evening Star, contrasted Russian and American concepts of the freedom of the press, at a meeting in Washington Chapel.

Miss Daphne Dailey, former editor of the Bowling Green Caroline Progress and former president of the Virginia Press Association, compared the large city papers with those published in small towns. She said that "The community paper is not a small edition of the metropolitan daily . . . . Everyday community life has in it the roots of moral courage and leadership, but likewise the seeds of injury and fear . . . . The community newspaper can help determine its direction."

The third lecturer in the series was Russell A. Applegate, advertising executive of the Du Pont Company. He spoke on the practical aspects and problems of Du Pont advertising.

HOMECOMING

One of Washington and Lee's greatest Homecoming celebrations was held on the week-end of October 24-25, with an estimated 1200 alumni in attendance. With Lexington already overcrowded, the congestion was increased by the fact that V. M. I. was also holding its Homecoming. The festivities began with a "pep rally" in Doremus Gymnasium followed by a freshman pajama parade.

Following the football game between Washington and Lee and Davidson, which is covered elsewhere, the Alumni Association served a luncheon in the Student Union Building for 400 alumni and their families. This was the only organized meeting of the visitors.

Those who had not had enough football later attended the Virginia Military Institute vs. Virginia game, while others visited fraternity houses and wandered over the campus and town, inspecting the gaily decorated fraternity houses, the best in many years. The first prize, won by the Phi Gamma Deltas for their lavish creation of the "Fiji Circus" was presented at the informal dance on Saturday night.

Sunday afternoon most of the fraternity houses served buffet meals for those of their alumni who had stayed over and by Sunday night Lexington was again back to its quiet routine.

Success in 1947 Fall Sports

By Don Murray, '48

The Fall sports season has already seen three brilliant milestones in the history of Washington and Lee's athletics. The gridiron Generals have to date compiled the most successful record of any W. and L. football team in over a decade, Coach Harry Broadbent revived cross country as an intercollegiate sport, and for the first time in W. and L. sports history a soccer team has represented the Blue against college opponents...and has walked off with a State Championship.

A word about cross country and soccer before recounting the events of the football season.

Renewing a sport which had lain dormant for five years, Harry Broadbent, whose principal forte is the coaching of W. and L. wrestlers, produced a team in a few short weeks of practice...a team that was able to win two of five meets. After starting the season with a win over Richmond, the harriers entered a three team meet with VPI and Virginia. Lack of practice and practice facilities spelled defeat for the Generals in this and in a subsequent match with Davidson. Journeying next to Ashland, Virginia, the pacers administered a defeat to Randolph-Macon by a sizeable score. The last meet of the season was run in a downpour over the Lexington "Liberty Hall" course against Roanoke College, and here the Blue was beaten in a close race.

Broadbent reported himself well-satisfied with the results of the season which showed him that he has ample material for a good cross country team next year. Pete Mitchell, a red-head from Martinsville, Virginia, captained the harriers. Broadbent expects great things next year from Mitchell's team-mates; Warren Hobson, John Chandler, Buddy Hare, Ellison Gaulding, Bill Flanagan, Gordon Iler, Bill Stillwell, Doc Sharer, Bill Marsh, and Forester Taylor.

Turning now to soccer, and one of the most pleasant surprises of the 1947 athletic scene in Lexington, the observer will find that Washington and Lee holds the Virginia Intercollegiate Soccer Championship for this year. Coached by Norm Lord, who succeeded in generating enough interest in the student body to locate sufficient men for a team, the booters went through a four game schedule with a record of three wins and one tie. The only close competitor was Virginia, the Wahoos being responsible for the tie, a one-one game, but in the final game of the season our Charlottesville neighbors were humbled, 2-0 on Wilson Field. The remaining two victories were gained over Roanoke College by scores of 1-0 and 3-1. Lord hopes next year to field an even better team built around a nucleus of 1947 veterans such as Bruce Parkinson at goalie, Dave Croyder of New Jersey at inside-right, Pete Muhlenberg, John Browning, Russ Thomes, John Schoenfield, and a host of others.

But football occupies the Fall limelight each year, and this year is no exception. The 1947 Generals have one of the most potent aerial attacks in the Southern Conference, and Dick Working, who is quarterback and passer, is, at this writing, the third ranking back in the "pass completed" department of the nation. Throughout the season Working's passes have been the most important single factor in the W. and L. attack. Art Lewis has a much improved team this year, a team that is dominated by freshmen and sophomores . . . long term insurance for any football team. Only two men on the squad, Working and Dyke Norman, the latter being one of the greatest centers ever to play here, are to be lost through graduation this year. The remainder of the team consists of freshmen, sophomores and juniors, with the latter in a minority.

Quantico 0-W. and L. 13

In the season's opener against the Quantico Marines, Art Lewis' Generals experimented with ground and aerial attacks and sent the Devil Dogs down to defeat 13-0. The Marines, led by former Navy great Joe Bartos, brought a heavy team to Wilson Field with a single wing offense built around Bartos and a flashy passer named Rudy Flores. Flores' tosses and Bartos' dashes around end and through the middle kept the servicemen in the game until the Blue attack got under way. Then Harrington, Bell, and Co., began to move. Passes by Mike Boyda and Dick Working sent the Big Blue down the field, and Harrington scored the first touchdown late in the second quarter on a long run. Ed Tenney added the extra point from placement, and the Generals led at half-time, 7-0.

Lewis sent in his reserves in liberal quantities in the second half as it became apparent that the efforts of Flores and Bartos would not be sufficient to pull the Marines from behind. In the final quarter Lewis reinserted his starting lineup into the game, and Harrington again took the ball over the Quantico goal. The extra point was missed, and the game ended a few minutes later with the score W. and L. 13, Quantico 0. Freshmen linemen Tom Ciancutti, John Kay, and Don Fergusson were standouts throughout the game, and Mike Boyda's punting indicated that the big fellow from Iselin, Pennsylvania, would keep many an opponent's attack from locating too close to the Blue goal line this year.

Richmond 3-W. and L. 16

The Richmond game was regarded by many as the first crucial test of the season for the Generals. The Blue had shown little real offensive strength against the Marines the week before, and reports from Richmond were none too encouraging. It will be remembered that Richmond spoiled Homecoming for the Generals last year, and the Spiders fielded much the same outfit this year as that which did the damage in 1946.

The game, played at night in Richmond, was ample proof that the Generals of 1947 are the best to wear the Blue in well over a decade.

The first quarter evolved itself into a kicking duel with neither team being able to organize a sustained drive of any significant length. The second quarter produced the fireworks. The Spiders got under way midway in the second quarter and drove all the way to the General 16, being halted there by tremendous line play on the part of the W. and L. freshmen, flanking center Dyke Norman, a truly great performer. On fourth down Richmond's Thompson booted a field goal from the 16 yard line, and the Spiders took the lead 3-0. They were not to hold this lead for very long. On the kickoff after Thompson's field goal, Brian Bell, the Generals' brilliant halfback from Washington, D. C., grabbed the ball on his own five, picked up blockers, cut to the sidelines, broke into the clear at midfield, and went 95 yards for a touchdown while spectators roared. Freshman fullback Walt Michaels kicked the extra point to make the count W. and L. 7, Richmond 3.

Now the Blue began to roll, pushing the Richmond team back deep into its own territory. Just before the end of the first half, Jim Lukens, who was up for All State honors this year, blocked Jack Wilbourne's punt from the end zone, the ball rolling out of play behind the end zone for a safety. The half ended with the Blue ahead 9-3.

The second half was completely dominated by the Blue as W. and L. sewed up its first Big Six and Southern Conference victory. Bell again scored in the third period on a short buck through the middle after a sustained drive down the field. Michaels added the extra point again. Richmond failed to threaten in the final period, and the final score was W. and L. 16, Richmond 3.

West Virginia 35-W. and L. 6

Traveling to Charleston, West Virginia, with a record of two wins against no defeats, the Blue ran into a tricky and thoroughly rugged Mountaineer team that was "up" for this one. The "T" formation never could get started against the Mountaineers as they seemed to score almost at will and consistently halted Art Lewis' charges throughout the game. Dick Working here began to give evidence that he would shortly rank with the top passers in the nation, as he completed thirteen passes out of twenty-three attempts. Late in the fourth quarter, Working's passes to Lukens, Fahey, and halfback Charley Harrington brought the ball down to the West Virginia one yard line. Here the dependable Brian Bell bucked over for the Generals' only score of the day. Final score, West Virginia 35, Washington and Lee 6.

George Washington 6-W. and L. 15

Returning to Wilson Field for the second home contest of the year, the Blue slogged through rain and mud to a 15-6 victory, their second in two tries in the Southern Conference. Rain which began Friday night and continued intermittently through the game turned Wilson Field into a quagmire, and effectively halted the passes of Dick Working. Forced to resort to a ground attack, the Generals made good use of it against one of the heaviest lines they have faced this year. Midway through the first period, Walt Michaels took the ball on a handoff from Working and dashed fifteen yards for a touchdown, faking the G-W safety man into a mud bath on the three. The extra point was missed. G-W stiffened in the second quarter, and the half ended with the count Washington and Lee 6, George Washington 0.

In the third period, with the Blue attack momentarily stalled on the George Washington twenty-two yard line, Ed Tenney, place kicking specialist from Atlanta, Georgia, came in and booted the ball through the up-rights for three more points.

With less than five minutes to play in the last period and the rain sufficiently abated for an attempt at aerial work, Dick Working faded back to midfield and threw a thirty-yard pass to substitute halfback Gene Bennett who streaked for the goal and the Generals' last score.

Then occurred one of the strangest plays ever seen on Wilson Field. Less than a minute remained in the game when the Blue, this time on their own thirty-four, attempted a line buck. The ball squirted out of Gene Bennett's arms and into the air where it was seized by huge Carl Butkus, 240 pound George Washington tackle. Butkus lumbered the thirty yards to the goal without a hand being laid on him by the astonished Generals. Seconds later the game ended with the score, Washington and Lee 15, George Washington 6.

Virginia 32-W. and L. 7

This was a game that must be regarded as a heartbreaker in spite of the seemingly decisive score. No one who saw the game will ever forget the touchdown that put the Generals back into the game... the touchdown that didn't count, and that broke the heart of a fighting team. The Wahoos were good that day, but for three quarters they weren't quite sure of the fact.

With a beautifully coordinated ground attack that was invincible in the opening quarter the Wahoos moved to a touchdown shortly after the opening kickoff, with Billy Pannel dashing twenty-seven yards for a score. Thereupon the Blue collected itself and stemmed the tide until late in the second period, when the elusive Pannel again scored, this time on a jaunt of forty-two yards. The half ended with Virginia in front, 13-0.

It was the third period that told the story of the game. On the second play of the period, Dick Working, on first down, faded to his own thirty and tossed to Nebraskan Charlie Harrington who shifted and dodged his way into the clear, and went over the Virginia goal line untouched. Walt Michaels kicked the extra point, and the unbelievable seemed about to happen. The Wahoo lead was shaved to six points. Then came the heights of elation and the depths of despair... all in one play. On fourth down, Virginia's Grimes punted to Harrington. The fleet halfback took the ball on his own twenty, and as thousands watched in unbelieving amazement, headed for the sidelines, shaking off would-be tacklers all the way, and then dashed eighty thrilling yards for a touchdown that apparently tied the score. But even as Scott Stadium went wild the officials marched the ball back to W. and L. territory where a fifteen yard penalty for holding was imposed, thus nullifying Harrington's touchdown which would have been his second of the day. From that point on the game was virtually no contest... the Blue's spirit had been broken. Grimes, Papit, and Elliot of the Wahoos scored in the third and fourth quarters, and the game ended with the score at 32-7. Nevertheless, this was a game that will be remembered... had it not been for a penalty, the Wahoos might conceivably have lost this one, and they knew it.

Davidson 0-W. and L. 32

The Generals entered this one in a mean frame of mind; the memory of the previous week was still fresh, and they meant to win for the Homecoming crowd. For the Davidson fan the resulting carnage was not pretty. The Wildcats have a smooth single wing attack; it looked pretty for the first few minutes of the opening period, but that was all. Late in the first quarter Brian Bell ran back a Wildcat punt forty-five yards for a touchdown, and the mayhem was on. The Wildcats tightened up their defense for the second period, and then fell apart in the last half. Harrington scampered forty-one yards for the second touchdown, Gene Bennett, who is becoming something of a "spot" man, scored twice in quick succession in the fourth on dashes of five and twelve yards respectively, and freshman center Joe McCutcheon, a brother of the Generals' big tackle, Andy, intercepted a last minute pass and ran it twenty-five yards for the final tally. Walt Michaels kicked two extra points.

A glance at the season record at this juncture showed the Generals with a record of four wins against two losses, their best record for that many games in many a year. The Homecoming victory was the first for a Blue team in over a decade, and Dick Working had moved up into the ranks of the first ten passers of the nation in pass completions. Finally, and most important, Washington and Lee boasted a record of three victories against no defeats in the Southern Conference to share first place with Duke.

Army 65-W. and L. 13

The Army game was just one of those unfortunate "things." The Blue left for West Point minus two key men... the first time of the entire season that injuries had plagued Art Lewis' ball team. Jim Lukens suffered a separated shoulder in the Davidson game, and Tom Ciancutti, one of the best of the freshman linemen was lost to the team for the remainder of the season with a broken leg, the result of an automobile accident. The bubble of Army had been burst the week before by Columbia, and the Cadets were fighting mad... a bad omen for any team scheduled to play in Michie stadium that Saturday.

The story of the game lies in the score. There were just too many of them, and too many of them were too good. Rowan, Vinson, Gillette and all the rest behind a magnificent line stopped every man in Blue... but one. The New York papers had mentioned Dick Working's passing arm more than once during the week before the game, and the carrot-topped Baltimorean lived up to expectations. After Army had secured a 12-0 lead in the first, Working electrified the crowd with a beautiful pass to Harrington, and Harrington outraced the Army secondary for a touchdown, the entire play covering 67 yards. Walt Michaels' dependable toe added the extra point, and the first quarter ended with Army holding a slim 12-7 lead. The Army machine ran the count to 32-7 at half time, and Art Lewis yanked the entire first team, choosing rather to lose decisively than to risk injuries to key men with two Southern Conference games still to be played. During the second half Pinkie Gillespie, freshman quarterback, Jerry Jack, 280 pound freshman guard, Jim Stark, another freshman and a halfback, and many others performed creditably. Working entered the game in the last quarter and again proved his worth, this time with a pass to Vic Marler, Eddy-stone, Pennsylvania, halfback, and Marler darted for the sidelines and continued on into the end zone for the second W. and L. score. Working completed 20 out of 35 passes thrown.

VPI 27-W. and L. 14

Every team suffers a let down during some part of every season; this year the let down occurred in the VPI game, and caused the Generals to drop their first Southern Conference game. Working's passes accounted for both scores, as he completed twelve out of twenty-one thrown to lift himself to third place nationally in pass completions. His second quarter toss to end Jim Fahey tied the score at seven all, Michaels' point after touchdown making the seventh point, and a last period pass to Harrington with Michaels' aid in the kicking department gave the Blue its fourteen point total. The VPI Hokies were pointing for this one, and they made it good. Their line play was terrific, and their backs are a group of fast young men. The Generals were simply "off" for the VPI game... it could happen to anybody.

William and Mary 45-Washington and Lee 6

In the Generals' final Southern Conference encounter of the season, a powerful William and Mary team unleashed a relentless ground attack aided and abetted by a strategically placed pass offense that ground the Blue into the turf of Roanoke's Victory Stadium by a 45-6 score.

The Indians scored almost at will. From the opening gun the green-uniformed men from Williamsburg were in complete control and surprised everyone witnessing the game, including themselves, by scoring seven touchdowns with ease. The hapless Blue's defense crumpled before the Indians, as Cloud, a great fullback, scored four times, Ed Magdziak twice, and end Lou Hoitsma once. The William and Mary line, led by Knox Ramsey, a second team All-American this year, performed an astonishing feat by holding the Generals so effectively on the ground that the net gain for the men in Blue in the rushing offense column amounted to minus five yards. Harrington, Bell, and Michaels got nowhere through the line.

Passes, too, were ineffective. Dick Working's injured arm... this a result of the Tech game a week previous... kept him from seeing too much action, and the red-head completed only one of four passes. Mike Boyda completed two.

But it was the Generals' "minute-man" who salvaged the game from utter ruination. Gene Bennett, who time and again throughout the season made timely entries into the lineup to break away for needed scores, came through again. With seconds remaining in the fourth and final period, and the Indians once again driving for the W. and L. goal, Bennett leaped high into the air on his own one yard line to intercept a Stan Magdziak pass, and shot through an incredulous William and Mary team for ninety-nine yards and the Generals' only score of the day. Walt Michaels' try for the point after touchdown, attempted after the game was officially ended, was wide.

Washington and Lee 18-Delaware 13

In this, the final game of the year, the Generals went out to make amends for the debacle of the previous week and to secure a .500 average for the season, something no Washington and Lee team had been able to do since 1934. Delaware was known to be no pushover... the Blue Hens still pointed to the thirty-one game winning streak they had achieved before this season and were unbeaten since the third game on their current schedule.

The Generals seemed to upset the dope from the word "go." It required but a few running plays in the first period to send the Blue to the Delaware one yard marker, from which point Brian Bell bucked over for the first score. Walt Michaels, who was to have toe trouble all day, missed the extra point.

The process was repeated in the second stanza. A sustained drive through the middle and around the Blue Hens' ends, with scarcely a pass thrown, again found the Lexingtonians on the Delaware one yard line. Here Hank Mastriann, fullback from Masillon, Ohio, carried the ball over for the second touchdown. Michaels again missed the conversion, and the half ended with the score W. and L. 12, Delaware 0.

The Hens came back in the second half with a vengeance as the Blue suffered an almost fatal relapse. Emulating Washington and Lee, Delaware drove to the Generals' one yard line, and Stalloni went through the middle for the score. The extra point was missed, but the lead had been shaved to six points.

With a tie in sight the rejuvenated Hens went all out. Sparked by Stalloni, they bulled their way down the gridiron once more in the face of frantic efforts by the Blue, stalled momentarily again on the now-fateful one yard line, and the redoubtable Stalloni repeated his previous performance with a short buck for the tying score. This time the extra point was good and Delaware led, 13-12 in the fourth quarter.

This was enough for Art Lewis' men. With amazing ease they now proceeded to run and pass the Blue Hens dizzy. Taking his cue from Dick Working after attaining the Delaware four yard line, Brian Bell tossed a four yard pass to Jim Carpenter in the end zone for the third W. and L. score. Michaels' conversion attempt was once more futile, but the game was sewed up. A few minutes later the 1947 football season was history.

* * * * *

It was not the best of football seasons by any standard... there was good football, mediocre football, and occasionally, bad football. There had been moments of elation and others of deep despair. But the fact remains that the 1947 Generals compiled the best record for a Washington and Lee football team in thirteen years, and had scored more points than any aggregation wearing the Blue in the history of the sport at W. and L. Significant facts, indeed. Especially significant when one considers that of the entire squad, only two men will be absent next year due to graduation. These two, Dick Working, recently named as first string quarterback on the Virginia All-State team (he is also ODK), and Dyke Norman, truly an unsung hero and one of the best centers ever seen in Virginia football, will be sorely missed. However, next year's team will be composed of few seniors and a great majority of sophomores and juniors. Art Lewis has reason to be pleased. His team faces a tough schedule next year, but he goes into 1948 with an experienced and spirited group of football players, all of whom are more than anxious to better this season's record. Mike Boyda will be physically fit for his quarterbacking duties next year, and onlookers will find that Mike throws a potent pass. Harrington, Bell, and Michaels will round out the backfield, with Bennett, Penza, Stark, Mastriann, Holt, Gillespie, and others ready to spell the regulars when needed. On the line, Lukens, Fahey, Carpenter, Goldsmith, and Radulovic will be performing at the ends. Fergusson, Smith, Miller, Andy McCutcheon, Ed Capuano, Jerry Jack, and Buck Conard, will take care of the tackle duties, Kay, George, Tulloh, Wicknick, Gregory, Brooks, and Ciancutti will be in at the guard posts, and Joe McCutcheon, Jack McCausland, and Mark Saur will hold down the middle.

The Generals are out to make 1948 a memorable year. It can be done.

SECRECY Is No Longer Necessary

Therefore, if you have not already done so, please fill out and return to this office the questionnaire you received some time ago. We need that information about you to edit a complete and accurate Alumni Directory—one that will be a fitting publication for Washington and Lee's Bicentennial year. If you have mislaid the questionnaire, a card to that effect will produce another copy for you.

Thank you for your kind cooperation
