The Meaning of this Issue

This issue records, at least in part, the making of another chapter in the long history of Washington and Lee, a glorious chapter, a chapter of generosity and of faith. Thus is it a continuation of the same story, for that University is the symbol of generosity and of faith.

* * * * *

To the alumni groups which I have been privileged to address, I have reported that the assets of their Alma Mater now approach eight million dollars. Of this amount, not one penny has ever come from tax sources, the contribution of a political unit as such; not one penny has come from an organized religious body or group; not one penny—well, not many pennies at least—can be traced to the profits of operation.

* * * * *

This sum of money, in practical entirety, is the expression of voluntary giving. These gifts come through all the years, and they have come from a great many people; we may surmise that ten thousand or more donors are here represented. The gifts have come in different forms—here a building, here an endowment of a chair, here a scholarship, here an undesignated benevolence of large dimension, here a gift that is tiny in amount but incalculable in sacrifice represented. The gifts have come from many motives of unselfishness, here a memorial to a dear one of the sweet years gone, here a response to a sudden current need, here a vision of future opportunity.

* * * * *

But all of these benefactions are the concrete expression of the noblest sentiments of which we are capable, of the sacred sentiments of love and of belief in the responding capacity of youth.

* * * * *

Thus the University has been able to offer every student far more than he was called upon to pay for; even if he paid all fees, as most of the boys have done, this student did not pay much more than half of the cost of his education. These donors of the great past have deposited a capital sum, the income to be applied year by year for every student; and that income amounts to almost the charge assessed in terms of tuition.

* * * * *

Talking in these terms of the founders who have given the outward resources, Washington and all of his fellows, I do not forget, of course, the gracious souls of the past who have given their spiritual treasures—Lee and his wonderful company. No statistical estimate can ever be put upon such values.

* * * * *

But in the current moment of what we call the Bicentennial Campaign, we are trying to quicken generosity and faith into a future competence. We are seeking to build for tomorrow as these honored ones of yesterday have built for today.

* * * * *

My conviction is overwhelming that when we invite an alumnus or a friend to share in this building, we do more than ask for a check or a promise; we do more even than to propose election in a distinguished fraternity of those who built in former years. We are providing an opportunity for the purest generosity that bears fruitage in future blessings; and we are suggesting an investment of the finest faith, short of the heavenly assurances, that we can cherish, a faith in the fineness and the promise of our youth.

* * * * *

And as this building of a greater Washington and Lee goes on today, I am moved by some of the profoundest emotions of my life, gratitude for all who have worked and all who have given, joy that in our hands the dream of Washington and the devotion of Lee—and may we say reverently, the purposes of God—shall not suffer neglect.

President

It Won't Be Long Now

"Dear Cy—

"When does the touch come?"

"This suspense is killing me. Last Winter they started telling me about the Bicentennial and the Three Million Dollars. All during the Spring and Summer they sent me little booklets. We had a blowout here in the Fall, and I saw the movie. So I'm convinced . . .

"Now I see in the papers that the Fund has almost a Million in it. And still nobody writes to ask me to kick in. Nobody comes to see me. My small share of the cash is burning holes in my pocket. Please relieve the agony . . ."

"P. S. And who gave the Million?"

IT IS hardly necessary to say that that alumnus got quick service. For others who may feel somewhat the same way, but not strongly enough to write a letter about it, The Bicentennial Office made up the following resume of the current campaign situation:

The Fund now has approximately $955,000 in cash in it. About $340,000 of this came during late November and December, when contributors who had been calculating their margin of tax-exempt giving for 1947 sent in their checks, some through chairmen, others directly to the University.

There is now a chairman in almost every city or town in the nation where more than three alumni reside. In larger cities and in regions where alumni are scattered, these chairmen are being assisted by volunteer committees of, in some cases, more than a dozen members. There are already over 200 local organizations and several more are in process of formation.

Some of these committees have completed their visiting, others are almost through, and a few which have recently been appointed have not yet started.

These chairmen and committeemen are volunteers who have given their own money and are now calling on others who are interested in Washington and Lee. Since they are generally business or professional men of responsibility in their communities, they cannot devote a major part of their time to the Bicentennial. Therefore, it is difficult to complete the campaign in any one region within a short period. However, these committees hope to contact every alumnus to ask, in a personal way, his support and contribution to the Bicentennial.

It was estimated early this month that less than 20 per cent of the 15,000 persons who are alumni, parents of students or of alumni, or friends of the University, had been approached. At that time about $300,000 had been contributed by students and alumni, about $260,000 by parents, and about $380,000 by others (including friends, foundations, corporations and the General Education Board of New York, which had given $150,000 to match $600,000 in gifts by others). The lists of contributors are printed elsewhere in this issue.

The largest individual contributors to the fund have been the estate of Mrs. Martha Menkemeller of Wheeling, West Virginia, $200,000; Mrs. Alfred I. Du Pont of Wilmington, Delaware, whose Bicentennial gifts amount to more than $102,000; and the Lykes Brothers Steamship Company, which has contributed $70,000 to the Fund.

The General Education Board has promised $150,000 more if another $600,000 is raised for scholarships and endowment during 1948.

Among the areas where campaigns were most effectively supported during 1947 were Atlanta, Birmingham, Jacksonville, Hartford, Memphis, Chattanooga, San Antonio, Charlotte, Wheeling, Bluefield, Baltimore, Cumberland, Lynchburg, Lexington and Norfolk. Even in these localities, however, there are many alumni who have not yet been reached.

Four of the 135 memorial scholarships in honor of those who died in World War II have already been completed on a full tuition basis and will be awarded during the spring. The scholarship in honor of Dick Mayo Lykes '45, of Houston was given by members of the Lykes family; the scholarship in the memory of Herbert Grooms Smith, Jr. '43, of Newport News was given by a friend of Judge Herbert G. Smith, and the one in honor of Robert Eugene Ridenhour, III, '45, of Concord, North Carolina, was subscribed by the members of the Ridenhour and John L. Crist families.

The one in the memory of Julian Leroy Dart, Jr., '39 of Jacksonville, was subscribed by 49 corporations and individuals, most of them non-alumni, who made contributions ranging from $5 to $2,500.

Among other scholarships which have been established in connection with the Bicentennial program are a full-tuition scholarship given by John W. Drye, '20, in honor of his mother, the late Mrs. Elizabeth Cave Drye; one given by Samuel O. Laughlin, Jr., and Philip A. Laughlin in honor of their mother, Mrs. Mary Magruder Laughlin; and one given by Henry P. Johnston, '29, in honor of the late Charles Poellnitz Johnston, his father.

1749 THE BICENTENNIAL OBJECTIVES 1949

1. To provide—through Memorial Scholarships honoring our war dead—a full tuition scholarship, each year in perpetuity, for 135 young men who deserve a Washington and Lee education but who cannot otherwise afford it.

2. To compensate by enlarged endowment for the decreased income on investments, so we may hold our present faculty, attract others of sound academic achievement, and thus maintain during a third century our traditional high standard of individual instruction.

3. To provide the additional buildings needed today—an auditorium, another science building, an enlargement of Doremus gymnasium—and more modern facilities for academic, scientific and professional instruction.

This was required to locate one missing alumnus

Lost—1500 Men

By Thomas C. Wilson, Jr., '43
Editor, Alumni Directory

DESCRIPTION—Washington and Lee Alumni
LAST SEEN—In Most of the 48 States
WANTED FOR QUESTIONING

Your University is conducting one of the greatest "man hunts" in history, the size of which would stagger the imagination of any bureau of missing persons, for we are not tracking down merely a few men, but 1500. Some of them have been unlocated for as many as twenty years.

Although our work is that of a private detective on a mass production scale, our equipment is not of the conventional magnifying glass type, but rather consists of telephone directories, legal, medical and other professional directories, various Who's Who publications, personal files, university and fraternity directories, newspapers, etc. Our contacts are not underworld characters, but mayors, city clerks, secretaries of chambers of commerce, bar and medical associations, Army, Navy and government officials, ministers, friends, classmates, and many others. Our employer is the Alumni Directory, which must locate these men for interrogation purposes.

For the benefit of those alumni who have expressed an interest in our approach to this undertaking, let me present two "case histories" for illustration:

I. Mr. Reuben B. Armistead

Last known address—Hopkinsville, Kentucky

We had a note on his file card that he was believed to be a preacher living somewhere in Texas. Checked his application and found that he was a Methodist—therefore he must be a Methodist minister. Called the local Methodist minister to see if he had a national directory. He hadn't, but recommended that we write to the "Christian Advocate" in Chicago, as they have records for the whole country. They suggested that we write to a Texas minister, which we did. This man replied "never heard of him." Then we learned that Mr. Armistead attended the University of Kentucky, and we wrote to that Alumni office. They sent us an address for him in Atlanta, Georgia. We sent him a questionnaire which he returned with a note on the bottom "I wonder how you got my present address." It seems that since he left Washington and Lee he has lived in 8 different towns and cities in four states, including a stay of a few months in California.

II. Mr. F. S. C. Pomeroy

Last known address—Mission, Kansas

We found a letter from a Mrs. F. C. Pomeroy, who was the wife of an alumnus, and sent a tracer to her. She replied that she had never heard of the man for whom we were looking. We checked our files and found that we have both an F. C. Pomeroy and an F. S. C. Pomeroy. We learned that at one time the latter's mother lived in Media, Pennsylvania. We could not find her listed in the suburban Philadelphia telephone book, but did find a Dr. J. Pomeroy, who lived in that town. We sent him a tracer card. He forwarded it to the alumnus' mother, who sent it to her son, who returned it to us and told us he was now living in Cambridge, Maryland.

Strangely enough, these cases are extremely typical of hundreds of others: the alumnus unlocated for 20 years whom we discovered in the phone book of a city far removed from his last known address; the elusive man in that same city for whom we received four different "new" addresses in the space of three months, all erroneous; and the alumnus last known to reside in San Francisco fifteen years ago, whom we found to be a vice-president of a well-known airline and living in Washington, D. C. Only the space limitation of this article prevents us from including many others.

All of these cases were terminated successfully, as have been 640 others at this writing. What of the remaining 800-odd? Tracer proceedings are being instituted whenever a lead of any sort is obtained, but we are rapidly exhausting the source of supply. In fact, only one remains untapped—a general appeal to all alumni—and we are in the process of resorting to that. We have enlisted the support of the class agents, who will include in their letters (which will reach every located alumnus) a list of all their lost classmates. If, upon receipt of this letter from your class agent, you find that you may be able to shed light on the present whereabouts of any of these alumni, please contact this office immediately. Your University will be as indebted to you as it is to the many others whose splendid cooperation has made our present achievement possible.

Unfortunately, these unlocated alumni are not the only obstacle in the path toward an accurate and complete directory. Another is the failure of many alumni to fill in and return the questionnaires which we know they have received. The quality of any publication of this sort is directly proportional to the cooperation of each alumnus in furnishing us with the information about himself which will complete his entry in the directory. If we do not obtain this data from the individual himself, we shall be forced to use whatever information we now have—and that is, in many cases, inevitably erroneous and out-of-date.

So if you are among those who have overlooked returning the questionnaires, please remedy this situation at your earliest convenience. In that way, you will do your part in making the Washington and Lee Alumni Directory 1749-1949 a fitting publication for our Bicentennial celebration.

BULLETIN

Every Washington and Lee man will be interested in the April issue of HOLIDAY Magazine, appearing on newsstands March 17. The issue features a "Virginia Portfolio" including three pages of pictures and prose on Washington and Lee. The W. and L. layout occupies the lead position in the story's treatment of Old Dominion schools, and will contain a sterling endorsement of the University's standards and traditions. Bicentennial committeemen should find the magazine especially useful.

Also, a piece on the 1948 Fancy Dress Ball is scheduled for LOOK Magazine's issue of April 13, appearing March 30.

On the Campus

Elliot Lawrence at Fancy Dress Broadcast

FANCY DRESS

Washington and Lee's Fancy Dress Ball, now the South's premier college social affair, had its beginning on Shrove Tuesday, February 12, 1907, when Miss Annie Jo White, president of the campus Dramatic Club, used the profits from a play, amounting to $44.00 to finance a "Bal Masque," as a reward for students appearing in the play. The costumes, then as now, were furnished by Van Horn of Philadelphia.

The 1948 Fancy Dress theme, based on Hampton Court under Charles II, with five hundred collegiate couples, led by Ralph Davis, President, as Charles II, and Miss Jane Harp, of Hillsville, Virginia, as Queen Catherine of Braganza, was the high spot of a week-end of festivities including the Junior Prom on Thursday, the band concert in Doremus Gymnasium on Saturday afternoon and the Omicron Delta Kappa formal Saturday night; together with many fraternity and private parties in the intervals.

With beautiful and elaborate decorations, the unexcelled dance music, by Elliot Lawrence, a nation-wide broadcast from 12:05 to 12:30 over the Columbia Broadcasting System, the beautiful girls and their handsome escorts in exquisite costumes, demonstrated that from its infancy in 1907, Fancy Dress had developed into a lusty maturity. A postcard notice of the CBS Broadcast was mailed to all alumni from the Alumni Office, and many former participants in past Fancy Dress Balls were, in spirit, among those present.

Look Magazine of April 13, appearing on the news stands on March 30, will carry a picture of Fancy Dress.

STUDENT COOPERATION IN THE BICENTENNIAL PROGRAM

Student Body President Fred Vinson has announced the appointment of Bill Chipley to head the student War Memorial Scholarship Committee. The committee plans to raise the sum of $10,000, representing one of the memorial scholarships.

In preparation for a student Bicentennial publication next Fall, many outstanding cartoonists and prominent journalists have been approached and have indicated their willingness to contribute. H. C. "Bud" Fisher and Milton Caniff, nationally known American cartoonists, are among those who have accepted the invitation to contribute their talents. The publication is being sponsored by Sigma Delta Chi, journalism fraternity, with Art Wood, manager.

PRE-BICENTENNIAL ASSEMBLY

Dr. Harold C. Urey of the University of Chicago, Nobel Prize winner, was the speaker at the University Assembly on February 21, continuing the series of Pre-Bicentennial Year exercises.

Speaking from the standpoint of one whose work had made important contributions to the development of the atomic bomb. Dr. Urey deplored the inadequacy of the United Nations and pled for a World Federal Union as the only real safeguard against world destruction.

Before presenting the speaker, President Gaines conferred upon Dr. Urey the honorary degree of Doctor of Science from Washington and Lee University.

Winter Sports Resumé

By Don Murray, '48

Wrestling, basketball and swimming dominate the winter sports program for 1947-1948, and while basketball fortunes have suffered in comparison to last year's successes, General swimmers and wrestlers have heaped honors on themselves.

Carl Wise's 1947-1948 Blue Comet basketeers, with only three veterans on hand from the team that went to the Southern Conference tourney in Durham last winter, were able to compile only seven victories over the course of the season. Hampered early in the season by injuries, the Blue Comets got off to a shaky start from which they failed to recover. Newcomer Joe Auer, who played with West Virginia's 1945 team in Madison Square Garden, was sidelined just before Christmas vacation after a collision with an opponent, and Captain Fred Vinson was lost to Wise's charges with a leg injury until the second half of the season. Steve Ulaki, only other veteran besides George Pierson and Vinson, spent part of the season on the bench with injuries.

Despite injuries and lack of experience (six of the Blue Comets are freshmen, and seven were brought up from last year's Junior Varsity team) W. and L. fans were treated to some good basketball in Doremus Gymnasium during the course of the season. Notable triumphs were registered over Maryland, George Washington and William and Mary, and "heartbreakers" were dropped to the Quantico Marines, George Washington and VPI. Several of the latter games were one, two and three point affairs.

Outstanding performers for the Blue Comets were freshman Bob Goldsmith, of Beckley, West Virginia, sophomore George Pierson, of Charleston, West Virginia, Joe Auer, of Rich Creek, Virginia, Fred Vinson (Captain), of Washington, D. C., and Don Fergusson, of Richmond, Virginia. Goldsmith stood fourth in State scoring standings at the end of the season, the 6' 2" freshman became recognized as one of the best centers in the state and Conference.

Trainer Doc Boyd takes care of the boys

Cy Twombly produced the surprise of surprises in Doremus Gymnasium's swimming pool, this year when he presented the University with an undefeated swimming team. The Blue natators breezed through a spotless schedule, with the narrowest margin of victory being a 42-33 triumph over William and Mary's Norfolk Division. Roanoke College was sunk decisively twice, and the Generals splashed to wins over George Washington, VPI, and William and Mary. Prospects for next season are good, for Twombly expects to have all of this year's team on hand next winter.

Brightest light of the swimming team was freshman "Yutch" Stolz, who swam the 220 and 440 yard events throughout the tank season without a defeat. Ed Rushton, a medley and 150 yard backstroke specialist, was another mainstay in all of the Generals' six meets. Other outstanding members of the team were Frank Carter, and Bruce West, the latter handling the dive events.

But the winter sport of greatest expectations (and, to date, fulfillments) is wrestling. Not since the days of Archie Mathis's mat teams has a Washington and Lee wrestling squad enjoyed such a season as has the present edition. Under the tutelage of Harry Broadbent, who revived the sport here last year, the General Grapplers have swept through an eleven match schedule like avenging furies. Beaten only once, and then by Franklin and Marshall college of Pennsylvania . . . a school almost perennially acknowledged to be one of the nation's wrestling powerhouses, Broadbent's matmen have bowled over ten opponents with consummate ease. In Southern Conference competition the Generals are undefeated.

As this magazine goes to press Washington and Lee is preparing to play the role of host to the Southern Conference Wrestling Tournament, held this year in Doremus Gymnasium, March 8 and 9. Seven teams (Duke has refused to enter a team in the tournament) will compete for the Conference championship won last year by the University of North Carolina. Earlier this season, the Tarheels roared into Doremus Gymnasium and then tiptoed out several hours later... beaten, 21 to 3. The Conference crown might conceivably change hands this year and wind up in Lexington. It hasn't been here in several years.

There can be no doubt that Broadbent's wrestling team is a formidable combination. On only two occasions have the Blue grapplers been held to less than twenty points in a match. The early-season loss to Franklin and Marshall was by a score of 17 to 9, the last bout being the deciding factor, and the final match of the season, this time against West Virginia, was won by the Generals, 17 to 8. In this match, Broadbent moved each wrestler up one weight, with the result that the W. and L. 128 pound wrestler was opposed by a West Virginian weighing 136 pounds; the W. and L. 136 pound wrestler was opposed by a West Virginian weighing 145 pounds, and so on down the line. There can be little doubt that without the juggling the final outcome would have been much more decisive. Coach Broadbent, however, is not an unreasonable man. As a further example, it may be noted that several times throughout the season, Broadbent used Junior Varsity wrestlers in several weights to give varsity men a rest!

In the season opener in December, Loyola University of Baltimore was downed, 31 to 5. The following evening, at Lancaster, Pennsylvania, the Generals suffered their only loss of the season as Franklin and Marshall squeezed out a victory, 17 to 9. Just after Christmas vacation, the Generals journeyed to Charlottesville and smothered the University of Virginia's matmen, 26-4, two draw matches preventing a shutout over the Wahoos.

With the victory string under way, the Blue grapplers turned to the Southern Conference and began to batter Conference opponents with awesome ease. Maryland went down, 25 to 3. North Carolina and North Carolina State were beaten in consecutive matches, 21 to 3 and 25 to 3. The Gobblers from Virginia Tech were roughly treated, 26 to 6. A "breather" match with the Norfolk Naval Apprentice School was inserted in the Generals' schedule, and the Blue sank the mariners, 20 to 8. In this match junior varsity men predominated; only one varsity wrestler was used.

Returning to the Southern Conference wars the Blue whipped Davidson, 22 to 6, and then followed this victory with a 25 to 5 lashing of Duke, last SC opponent on the schedule. The final match of the season saw West Virginia go down, 17 to 8.

Nor must this article close without mention of the Junior varsity team which completed an undefeated ten-match schedule. Like the varsity, the J-V grapplers were held to less than twenty points only twice in the course of the season. Among opponents defeated by the junior Generals were J-V teams of Virginia, Virginia Tech and Navy. Granby High School, noted for its fine wrestling teams, was decisively trounced, 23 to 15. Broadbent has few worries about possible replacements for varsity men should the occasion arise, for he sometimes finds it difficult to choose between varsity and J-V men for use in matches.

Going into the Southern Conference tournament the Generals have three undefeated varsity wrestlers, all of whom must be counted on as potential Southern Conference champions. At 175 pounds is freshman Bob Mahoney, of Merrick, Long Island. In eleven matches Mahoney has demonstrated skill that stamps him as the Conference's top man in his weight. At 145 pounds, Ken Finley, scholastic champion of the state of Indiana last year is undefeated in eleven matches. Finley, another freshman, is one of the best "take down" men in Southern Conference wrestling. The third of the Generals' trio of undefeated wrestlers is another Long Islander, Cal Guest. Guest, at 121 pounds, went undefeated in eleven matches. He, too, is a freshman.

Leading scorer of the Blue grappling team is Ted Lonergan, of Flanders, New Jersey. Lonergan leads his mates in the number of falls gained by individual team members. He is the fourth of seven freshmen on the starting team.

Three more freshmen, Irvin Wicknick (155 pounds), Joe Sconce (136 pounds), and ponderous Jerry Jack (heavy-weight) have turned in creditable roles as varsity wrestlers. Sconce, a Tulsa, Oklahoma, champion, has been beaten once this season, and has twice been held to draws. Wicknick is one of Broadbent's proudest achievements. The Johnstown, Pennsylvania, freshman started out the year as a beginner in wrestling circles, and finished up the season winning more than half his matches. Jerry Jack, who when not wrestling carries a lot of weight (280 pounds or so) around Art Lewis' football field, has improved a lot since the season's start, although he is the lowest scoring member of the team. Dan Boone, of the J-V squad, has spelled Jack several times this year, and both Boone and Jack may be expected to be most valuable to the varsity next year.

The only upperclassman on the Generals' mat squad is eccentric, genial Ken Lindell, a letterman on last year's team. Lindell, another Long Islander (Lindell, Mahoney, and Guest all prepped at Mephram High School, Merrick, Long Island) is a sophomore, and has been beaten only once this season.

Mr. Big and Mr. Little: Jerry Jack, 300 pounds; Tiger Townsend, 117 pounds.

At "Derwent"—The Touch of a Vanished Hand

AT THE CLOSE of the Civil War, General Robert E. Lee joined his wife, his son, General Custis Lee, and his daughters at the home on Franklin Street, in Richmond, Virginia, now called the Lee Home, and owned and occupied by the Virginia Historical Society.

General Lee had had many offers of high paying positions, but he had refused them all, and in a letter to General Long, he said: "I am looking for some little, quiet home in the woods, where I can procure shelter and my daily bread."

Mrs. Elizabeth Randolph Preston Cocke, the sister of Colonel J. T. L. Preston, of Lexington, Virginia, lived at the beautiful home, "Oakland," on the James River, some forty or fifty miles from Richmond, Virginia. She came to Richmond, and invited the Lees to stay with her at "Oakland." Her kind invitation was accepted, and in June, 1865, the Lees left Richmond for "Oakland." General Lee, his wife and daughters went by canal boat, and General Custis Lee rode Traveller, to "Oakland."

General Robert E. Lee's berth on the canal boat had been prepared for him, but he preferred to spend the night on the deck of the boat, under his military cloak.

In a letter from "Oakland," written by Captain Edmund Randolph Cocke, he says: "No doubt that was the last night he ever spent under the open sky." No, it was not. On September 17, 1865, on his way to Lexington, Virginia, General R. E. Lee and Traveller spent the night at Rock Fish Gap, near Afton, under the autumn sky, General Lee on the ground, under his military cloak, and Traveller tethered nearby.

"Oakland" had been in the Cocke family for more than

"Derwent"

175 years. It was a large estate of several hundred acres, and lay partly in Cumberland County, and partly in Powhatan County, Virginia.

The large home building was situated in a forest of primeval oaks, some many feet in diameter and more than a century old.

Mrs. Cocke wished the Lees to continue to stay at "Oakland" but General Lee wanted "a little, quiet home in the woods."

On the Powhatan portion of the large estate of "Oakland," there was a plain tenant's house, two stories of two rooms each.

This home was called "Derwent." After a week at "Oakland," the Lees were settled at "Derwent."

The "Derwent" house is surrounded by trees, but not so large and imposing as those around "Oakland."

For food, as well as for shelter, the Lees were dependent upon their neighbors.

About ten miles from "Derwent," and a mile or so from Powhatan Court House, there lived a Presbyterian minister, Rev. William Addison Campbell, pastor of the Mount Carmel Church. He spent much of his time during the war preaching to soldiers at various points, and he doubtless had met General Lee. This preacher had his home, "Campo Bello," on a seventy-five acre farm, in a beautiful forest. Much of the land was cultivated for him by a Negro family that lived on the place.

Shortly after General Lee's arrival at "Derwent," the preacher and his wife drove over to "Derwent," and took General Lee a bag of meal and a ham of bacon. In the buggy with them was their very young son, Leslie.

General Lee met the visitors at the front door. After shaking hands with the father and mother, he turned and put his hands on the shoulders of the little boy in plain calico kilts, and wanted to take the boy up in his arms, but the little one clung to his mother's skirt. The General softly placed his hand on the boy's head, and with a gentle word won the little one's confiding smile.

The mother preserved, until her death, fifty-three years later, the little plain kilt and jacket that she had made, and that General Lee's hands had touched.

In June, 1883, I served as an usher at the unveiling of the Lee recumbent statue in the Washington and Lee University Chapel. The memorial addresses were all made out of doors, on a platform at the northwest corner of the Chapel. After the attending crowd had been seated, I climbed into a large nearby elm, still standing in 1948. I well remember hearing Father Ryan repeat his poem, "The Sword of Robert Lee." Now for over sixty years, the boys in the elm had heard the soft, reverent voice of the poet.

At the close of the out-of-doors exercises, with others, the boy walked into the Chapel, and stood with bowed head at the side of the Great Chieftain. The boy was again at "Derwent." He saw the same gentle gleam in the eye, and felt again the soft touch of the hand that had once rested on his head.

"Oakland" now lies in ashes. But the monarch oaks still bow in reverence, as the Spirit of Lee walks beneath them.

"Derwent" still stands. The "little, quiet home in the woods" is almost forgotten. Under its humble roof still lives the Gentle Spirit, and "the touch of a vanished hand" rests upon a reverent head.

FRANCIS PICKENS MILLER

Colonel Francis Pickens Miller, A.B. '14, was recently awarded the Cross of a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor. The award was made at the office of the Consul General of France by Major General Billotte, ranking French officer in the United States. Present at the ceremony was Colonel Gilbert Renault who brought the medal to this country in the course of a trip connected with the forthcoming publication of his book, "Memoirs of a Secret Agent of Free France" (Whittlesy House). Colonel Miller was on General Eisenhower's staff at SHAEF G-2 (Intelligence division). He and Colonel Renault served as the French and American members of a three man French-British-American team concerned with some of the underground operations that preceded D-Day. The intelligence network organized by Colonel Renault, who is better known by his pen name Remy, produced among other items of vital information the German Army's own plan of defense of the beaches involved in the D-Day landings.

As the operation proceeded, Col. Miller was so impressed by Remy's skill as a raconteur that he urged him to write down the story of his "silent company." The resulting book, which bears Colonel Miller's preface in the American edition, won the Prie Victoire in Paris last year.

Colonel Miller, whose other decorations include the Legion of Merit with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Order of the British Empire, The Order of Leopold I, and Croix de Guerre from the French and Belgian Governments, has been active in Democratic politics in Virginia. He is "contributing editor" of the new magazine called "Presbyterian Life" and published by the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. Address: Box 1757, University Station, Charlottesville, Virginia.

Report of the 1947 Alumni Fund

THIS REPORT records the generosity of 1856 Alumni who contributed $24,916.38 and the loyal and unselfish service of the Class Agents whose combined efforts made it possible to report the best year the Alumni Fund has ever had.

In view of the approach of Washington and Lee's Bicentennial in 1948-49, the fact that the Alumni Fund has again broken all previous records came as a most agreeable surprise to everyone connected with the Alumni Office. It might have been expected that many alumni, bearing in mind that in the immediate future they would wish to make their best expression of loyalty and affection for Alma Mater, would not contribute as generously as usual in this annual appeal.

It is significant that the Academic Class of 1917, which celebrated its thirtieth anniversary at Finals this year, Dr. R. Glenn Craig, Agent, should lead all classes in the amount of money contributed, $1070.00, with the Academic Class of 1913, William T. Hanzsche, in second place. The combined Law and Academic classes of 1943, Albert D. Darby, Jr., Agent, for the third successive year, was the leader in number of contributors.

BICENTENNIAL AND ALUMNI FUND MERGED FOR 1948

Until March, 1949, the Alumni Fund will be merged with the Bicentennial Fund campaign without any sacrifice of the continuity of the present Class Agent Plan. The Class Agents will make the normal contacts with members of their class, partly to secure the information desired for Alumni Office records and for class notes in the Magazine, but primarily to encourage support of the Bicentennial campaign.

All alumni contributions to the Bicentennial Fund will be listed by classes and will be counted as contributions to the Alumni Fund. In published reports the records of each class will be indicated in terms of the number of contributors and the total amount contributed.

Bicentennial Contributions Received

FOLLOWING is the list of donors to the Bicentennial Fund who sent cash contributions prior to January 1, 1948. This does not include the considerable number who have made promises for 1948 and 1949—some of which have now been paid. In fairness to the class competition for 1948, all checks dated since December have been deferred for listing at the end of this year.

We have made such consolidations as were necessary to avoid disclosing the amounts of individual contributions. Alumni and current students are shown by classes. Gifts by parents and other friends, and by corporations are in separate lists. Where it is known that an alumnus is directly involved in a corporation gift, his name is given under his class as a contributor, but the amount of the gift is not included in the class total. Wives have been listed only if they sent separate checks or when the gift was specifically marked as coming from "Mr. and Mrs."

The absence of many names to be expected in the lists is explained by the fact that up to the end of December a large majority of the alumni, parents of students and alumni, and other friends of the University had not been visited by Regional Chairmen and committeemen.

Dr. Gaines, in receiving the report that the Bicentennial had passed the $900,000-mark at the beginning of the year, said, "To every contributor and to every committee member who has taken this task to his own, my heart confesses a great debt and pays a sincere and happy tribute. We are encouraged to believe that with this kind of support we shall write a bright and promising chapter in the story of Washington and Lee."

"DEAR FOLKS"

Letters of Lt. Deverton Carpenter

The letters of Deverton Carpenter, A.B. '37, written during the war to his parents Senator and Mrs. J. C. Carpenter, Jr., of Clifton Forge, Virginia, have recently been published by Bruce Humphries, Inc., under the title "Dear Folks." There could be no better way to perpetuate the memory of an outstanding war hero.

Lieutenant Carpenter lost his life in a jeep accident on March 23, 1945, in Germany, while General Patton's third army was crushing the final German resistance on the Western Front. He was attached to General Patton's Headquarters as Signal Corps officer.

Possessing literary talent far beyond that of the average soldier and even of the average newspaper reporter, the manner in which the letters were written forms an interesting account of a typical soldier's part in the war. He minimized his heroism which brought the award of the Bronze Star, by saying that others deserved it more than he.
