

The Alumni Magazine

of Washington and Lee University

LIBRARY OF
WASHINGTON & LEE UNIVERSITY
LEXINGTON, VA

March 1935

Vol. X—No. 4

$2.50 a year

Orchids or Garlic?

IF we're not afraid to ask you, you shouldn't be afraid to tell us. Tell us what? Tell us whether you would toss orchids to The Alumni Magazine because of what it is, or whether you would cast garlic.

We want to know how you like our efforts because we want you to show this to another alumnus and tell him what he is missing by not subscribing.

Get someone else to invest in news of the affairs of his alma mater.

Pass this copy along, or show it to a friend. And drop us a line saying how you like the publication, with any suggestions you want to make. We'll take them to heart and do our best, just as we're doing now.

Get a New Subscriber to The Alumni Magazine!

THE ALUMNI MAGAZINE

Published by Washington and Lee Alumni, Incorporated
Drawer 897, Lexington, Virginia

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Post Office at Lexington, Virginia, September 15, 1924

Vol. X

MARCH 1935

No. 4

Editor.....HARRY K. ("CY") YOUNG, 1917

Managing Editor...RICHARD POWELL CARTER, 1929

THE WASHINGTON AND LEE ALUMNI, INC.

President.....DR. J. W. CLAUDY, 1909

Vice-President.....HERBERT JAHNCKE, 1930

Secretary.....HARRY K. ("CY") YOUNG, 1917

Treasurer.....M. W. PAXTON, JR., 1918

THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS

LEWIS F. POWELL, 1929

EDWARD W. LEE, 1913

H. ST.G. T. CARMICHAEL, 1899

WALTER A. MACDONALD, 1910

Contents for March 1935

	PAGE
Forty-Two Years on the Tulane Faculty.....	3
Justice Louis S. Epes, 1882-1935.....	5
Eighteen Washington and Lee Senators	6
Finals, 1935—A Change In Dates.....	12
Winter Sports at the University.....	13
The New Law Building and a More Beautiful Campus.....	16
He Saw Tut-ankh-Amen's Coffin Opened	18
Fancy Dress Broadcast Wins Praise.....	20
Local Alumni Association Notes.....	22
Class Notes.....	25

- Appalachian Association
Hagan Minnich, 318 Park Street, Bristol, Tenn.-Va.
- Arkansas Association
Leighton McKinney, 1100 Prospect Ave., Little Rock.
- Atlanta, Georgia
Ewing S. Humphreys, Healey Building.
- Baltimore, Maryland
L. W. Milbourne, 3204 St. Paul St.
- Birmingham, Alabama
L. R. Hanna, First National Bank Building.
- Charleston, West Virginia
C. W. Hall, Kanawha Valley Bank.
- Chicago
John Culley, 422 Hamilton St., Evanston, Ill.
- Cincinnati
Roger J. Bear, Kroger Grocery Co.
- Charlotte, North Carolina
Philip F. Howerton, 523 Fenton Place.
- Cumberland Valley Association
C. Wells Little, Negley Building, Hagerstown, Maryland.
- Dallas, Texas
A. A. Lander, 803 Marvin Building.
- Detroit, Michigan
Dr. Edward Lyons, Parke Davis Co.
- Florida West Coast Association
K. I. McKay, Citrus Exchange Building, Tampa, Fla.
- Fort Worth, Texas
E. S. McCord, Neil P. Anderson Building, Ft. Worth.
- Gulf Stream Association
Lewis Twyman, Security Building, Miami, Fla.
- Jacksonville, Florida
Rhydon Lathem, Greenleaf and Crosby Bldg.
- Lynchburg, Virginia
Thos. W. Gilliam, Lynchburg Nat'l Bank Bldg.
- Louisville, Kentucky
Edward Rietze, 2063 E. Parkway.
- Memphis, Tennessee
John K. Speed, 1159 Linden Avenue.
- New York
Edward W. Lee, 1350 Broadway.
- New Orleans, Louisiana
Norton Wisdom, 1515 Marengo St.
- Norfolk, Virginia
Walter E. Hoffman, Seaboard Bank Bldg.
- Northern Louisiana Association
C. C. Hutchinson, Jr., Shreveport.
- Philadelphia, Pennsylvania
E. W. Wilson, 1419 Land Title Building.
- Piedmont Association
Larry W. Wilson, Greensboro, N. C.
- Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania
C. P. Robinson, 802 Park Building.
- Pocahontas Club
A. L. Tyree, Bluefield, West Virginia.
- Roanoke, Virginia
Earl A. Fitzpatrick, State and City Bank Bldg.
- Richmond, Virginia
Otto Stumpf, Mutual Building.
- San Antonio, Texas
Albert Steves, Jr., Steves Sash and Door Co.
- Southern California
Bryan Bell, Assoc. Press, 1243 Trenton St.
- St. Louis, Missouri
John L. Patterson, 552 Pierce Building.
- Tri-State Association
Joe W. Dingess, First Huntington National Bank Building, Huntington, W. Va.
- Washington, D. C.
Woodson P. Houghton, Southern Building.

A New Washington and Lee Hymn

Words & music by
Lawrence E. Watkin

Tenors 1
1. We have seen thy columns gleaming In the autumn light, And in mys-te-
2. May the time that seems the granite Use thee like a friend; May the men that Melody m.
Bass 1
Bass 2
3. In the pride of great tradition Keep thy flag un-furled, Tho in-glo-ri-

Pianoforte or mixed chorus.

-ry lie dreaming Thru the winter night; When the spring comes up the valley are thy children Thy fair name de-fend; Blue and white hues are the right hues
-ous am-bi-tion O-ver-whelm the world; If tomorrow brings its sorrow

Touching ev'ry tree --- Loveli-est thy beauty, Wash-ing-ton and Lee.
To be-to-ken thee --- Honor to thy colors,
There will always be --- Shining thru the darkness, Washington and Lee.

Here is a new Washington and Lee song which the editors believe you will like very much. Larry Watkin, professor of English at the University, who is well known among alumni for his work in dramatics, wrote the words and the tune, first arranged by Professor Henry Shelley. The present arrangement for glee club, piano and mixed chorus is by Professor John Graham. This arrangement was used in a Washington and Lee broadcast from radio station WSM, Nashville, June 26, 1934.

Forty-Two Years on the Tulane Faculty

A Biographical Sketch of DR. DOUGLAS S. ANDERSON, Class of 1890

BACK IN 1890 Douglas Smith Anderson received his Bachelor of Arts degree from Washington and Lee University, then went down to Tulane to do graduate work. He liked it there and in 1892 acquired his Masters degree from the far-south school and in October of the same year was appointed instructor in physics in what Tulane then described as the academic colleges, composed of the colleges of arts and sciences and technology.

Since that appointment Dr. Anderson has served continuously on the Tulane University faculty, with the exception of two sessions. His first absence from Tulane was in 1900, when he accepted an appointment at the University of Mississippi. However, he remained at Mississippi only one year, returning to the school of his choice the following term as associate professor of electrical engineering.

Dr. Anderson's second period of absence from Tulane's faculty came when he went to the University of Berlin and the Polytechnic School at Zurich to study electricity and magnetism.

In 1907 Tulane advanced this son of Washington and Lee and native of Lexington to the rank of professor of electrical engineering, and in 1919 appointed him to the enviable position he now holds, that of dean of the college of engineering. His advancement in the field of electricity was steady—in 1893 he had become assistant professor of physics, and in 1898 associate professor of physics and electrical engineering.

That in brief has been the career of Dr. Douglas S. Anderson. Tulane has honored him often and he has become a tradition at the university, holding a secure place in the life of that institution and exerting a steadily increasing influence on the affairs of the school.

Here is what the Tulane News Bulletin has to say about this Washington and Lee alumnus:

"Dr. Anderson received his first appointment to the faculty just eight years after the old University of Louisiana had been reorganized and renamed the Tulane University of Louisiana. This was during the administration of the first president of Tulane, Colonel William Preston Johnston, and the 'campus' of those days consisted of a half square of ground bounded by Dryades, Common and Baronne streets, on which stood just four buildings, which have long since been demolished and their places taken by the Roosevelt hotel, the two theatres, and the theatre arcade: These four buildings housed the academic, medical and law departments, as they were called at that time.

"He has had the interesting experience of having served under every Tulane president, Dr. William Preston Johnston, Dr. Edwin A. Alderman, Dr. Edwin B. Craighead, Dr. Robert Sharp, and Dr. A. B. Dinwid-die. During Dr. Dinwiddie's illness last year he served as acting president of the university. In recognition of this service to the university the board of trustees adopted unanimously the following resolution:

"RESOLVED: That the board desires to express to Dr. Douglas Anderson its sincere thanks and appreciation of the valuable and efficient service rendered by him as acting president of Tulane University during the illness of President Dinwiddie. His zeal, ability and sympathetic co-operation have been of inestimable value in solving the many problems of the University, and have won for him the gratitude and hearty commendation of the board."

"Dr. Anderson was a graduate student and assistant professor closely associated with the early development of instruction in engineering subjects in Tulane. This development came through the interest of certain professors of physics and chemistry in the practical applications of the sciences in which they specialized, and who began voluntarily to offer courses with the engineering point of view. Notable among these men were Dr. Brown Ayres and Professor John M. Ordway.

"Dr. Anderson has also had the interesting experience of observing and being closely associated with the growth of athletics at Tulane during all this time.

"Though never himself a very active participant in athletics, he has been since 1890 a member of practically every board of control of intercollegiate sports in the University from that day to the present time.

"He also has taken an active part, as Tulane's representative, in the affairs of the S. I. A. A., the Southern and the Southeastern conferences respectively.

"During the World War he was director of the electrical division of Tulane's war training school for radio operators and automobile mechanics. He is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, past vice-president and director of the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education, member and past president of the Louisiana Engineering Society, member of Phi Beta Kappa, honorary member of the Tulane chapter of Sigma Phi Delta, and charter member of Alpha Sigma Epsilon, honor society of the Tulane College of Engineering. In recognition of his extra-curricular activities he has been elected to Phi Phi and Omicron Delta Kappa membership.

"In June of 1933 Dean Anderson's alma mater, Washington and Lee University, bestowed on him the honorary degree of Doctor of Science."

And that is the story of Dean Douglas Smith Anderson of Tulane University.

Alumnus Decorated in Chile

WILLIAM J. TURNER, who received his A. B. degree from Washington and Lee in 1903, recently was decorated by the government of Chile for meritorious service to that country.

The story of his deeds is told in the following dispatch from El Mercurio, daily newspaper published in Santiago:

"Yesterday afternoon the government of Chile granted two high decorations: one of them to a distinguished Uruguayan diplomat; and the other to an engineer who has resided in Chile for more than 25 years, and who has contributed in many ways to the well-being of the working class and to the increase of foreign trade.

"The Chancellor, in consideration of the merits, so manifest in don Enrique Buero, distinguished Uruguayan statesman and diplomat and president of the Brazilian-Uruguayan Boundary Commission, presented him with the Grand Cross of the Order of Merit.

"At the same time he decorated with the order "Al Merito" with the rank of "Comendador" the general manager of the Braden Copper company, Mr. William Joel Turner, civil and metallurgical engineer, who has been employed in Chile for many years. In the course of his professional work, he has initiated many movements of importance. He has founded schools and by his own ruling established for the children of the workmen obligatory primary instruction, many years before the corresponding Chilean law was enacted.

"Also, he founded in Chile "el Salario Familiar" and other social regulations which shortly after were incorporated in the social laws of Chile. He has caused the Braden Copper company to purchase in the country all the supplies which could be obtained here for its diversified technical operations which represents the distribution in Chile of several million pesos annually, which formerly went abroad. The company which he directs has not had a single strike for higher wages for it has been the constant policy of Mr. Turner to adjust wages to the cost of living."

BOB SPESARD of Roanoke, Va., freshman, should have little trouble helping out Cy Young in basketball next year. Spessard stands six feet, seven inches tall, and with a little more experience there won't be a basketball player in the east who can outreach him. He played center on the freshman quintet this season.

Justice Louis S. Epes, 1882-1935

LOUIS S. EPES, justice on the Virginia state supreme court of appeals since 1929 and a trustee of Washington and Lee University since that same year, died unexpectedly of a heart attack in Richmond on February 14.

The University thus lost one of its most interested and useful trustees, and the state of Virginia one of its most capable and respected jurists.

Justice Epes, who was 53 years of age, received his appointment to the state supreme court from Governor Harry Flood Byrd in November, 1929, filling a vacancy created by the death of Justice Jesse F. West. At that time, he was a member of the state corporation commission, and his place on that body was filled by George C. Peery, now governor of the Old Dominion and himself an alumnus of Washington and Lee.

Justice Epes was a member of a family long prominent in southside Virginia, and was the son of the Rev. Theodore Prior Epes and Mrs. Joane Spence Epes. He was a native of Prince William county.

He was graduated with the highest honors in his class at Hampden-Sydney and again at Washington and Lee, where he took his law degree in 1908, after an intermission in his school life during which he taught school for five years.

Taking up the practice of law in Blackstone, Virginia, Justice Epes specialized in corporation law and after serving in the army was elected to the state senate in 1919. In that year he served on the finance, education and auditing committees and after being re-elected to the senate decided to run for the state corporation commission, which at that time was an elective honor.

After winning election to the commission Justice Epes took up his work as a member of the body prematurely by filling the unexpired term of Judge William F. Rea.

He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and of Omicron Delta Kappa.

Numerous state dignitaries paid high tribute to this alumnus, some of which follow:

Governor Peery: "I am shocked and deeply grieved at the sudden death of Justice Louis S. Epes. As a member of the Virginia Senate he took high rank. His industry, independence and high idealism won for him great respect and many friends. His service as a member of the state corporation commission was equally distinguished. It was a fitting climax to his splendid career that he should serve the state as a member of its highest court.

"His legal ability, untiring industry and fine judgment won him high place among Virginia's great judges. His death in the prime of life is a great loss to the state. I feel a distinct loss. He was my friend. I shall greatly miss him."

Justice Edward W. Hudgins: "He was a profound student of law and a keen observer of the trend of current thought. He was well versed in Virginia's past and zealous in maintaining her best traditions. He rendered her conscientious and able service as a legislator, as an administrator on the corporation commission and as judge.

"His associates on the bench will sadly miss his wise counsel and the result of his careful investigation of the history of legal principles.

"Virginia has lost an able jurist and I a warm personal friend."

Chief Justice Preston W. Campbell: "Judge Epes came to the bench magnificently equipped for the work. He had youth, experience, ability and ambition. His was a rare devotion to the public service and he gave himself wholly and unstintedly to his duties as a member of the court. His associates bore him a deep and an abiding affection.

"An outstanding Virginian has passed in the prime of life and the court has lost one of its ablest members. My deepest sympathy goes out to his loved ones."

United States Senator Harry F. Byrd: "Virginia never had a more patriotic, earnest and conscientious official than Justice Epes. From the day he was elected to the senate twenty years ago he has dedicated himself unreservedly to the highest type of public service. He has been my close associate and intimate friend. No one realizes more than I do the loss Virginia has suffered. I have never known a more loyal friend or man with higher ideals."

Dr. Robert H. Tucker, dean of Washington and Lee University: "Judge Epes' death has brought a feeling of shock and distress to this community. He was a distinguished graduate of Washington and Lee,

(Continued on page eleven)

Eighteen Washington and Lee Senators

By F. JAMES BARNES, II

Assistant Professor of Political Science at Washington and Lee

A TOTAL OF one hundred and sixty-five Senate years has been amassed by Washington and Lee alumni who have served their states in the important capacity of United States Senator. Sons of Washington and Lee have gone to Capitol Hill from eleven states. Three have represented Kentucky, three Mississippi. Two each have gone from Florida, Louisiana, and Virginia; and one each from North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Oklahoma, Oregon, and Washington.

Their period of service has ranged from the less than one year of Mississippi's Robert H. Adams, to the very nearly twenty-five years of Kentucky's John J. Crittenden. First Washington and Lee Senator was John Brown, chosen to represent Kentucky in June, 1792. Present defender of the Washington and Lee senatorial tradition is Tennessee's Nathan L. Bachman, appointed to the Senate on February 28, 1933, to fill the unexpired term of Cordell Hull; elected to the post at the last election.

There follows a series of biographical sketches of these men in the order in which they were elected or appointed to serve in the Senate.

JOHN BROWN, U. S. Senator from Kentucky
1792-1805

Born in Staunton, Virginia, on September 12, 1757; attended Washington College (now Washington and Lee University), Lexington, Virginia, and Princeton College; enlisted in the Revolutionary army and served until the close of the war; completed his studies at William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Virginia; taught school for several years; studied law, was admitted to the bar in 1782, and commenced practice in Frankfort, Kentucky; member of Virginia Senate from the District of Kentucky 1784-1788; member from the Kentucky district of Virginia to the Continental Congress in 1787 and 1788; elected from Virginia to the First and Second Congresses, and served from March 4, 1789 to June 1, 1792, when that part of Virginia which is now Kentucky was admitted as a state into the union; elected on June 18, 1792 to the United States Senate from Kentucky for the term ending March 3, 1793; re-elected on December 11, 1792 and again in 1799, and served from June 18, 1792, to March 3, 1805; elected president pro tempore of the Senate on October 17, 1803, and January 23, 1804; member of the local board of war for the district of Kentucky in 1791; resumed the practice of law; died in Frankfort, Ky., August 29, 1837, being the last survivor of the Continental Congress; interment in Frankfort Cemetery, Frankfort, Ky.¹

JOHN BRECKENRIDGE
U. S. Senator from Kentucky
1801-1805

Born near Staunton, Augusta county, Virginia, December 2, 1760; educated at Augusta Academy, near Staunton (now Washington and Lee University) and at William and Mary at Williamsburg, Va.; elected a member of the House of Burgesses in 1780 when only 19 years old; but being under age was not allowed to take his seat until elected for the third time. Served as Sub-altern in the Virginia Militia in latter part of Revolutionary war; studied law, admitted to the bar in 1785 and commenced practice in Charlottesville, Virginia; elected as a Democrat, a representative to the third congress, but resigned in 1792 before the commencement of the Congressional term; moved to Kentucky in 1793 and resumed practice of law in Lexing-

The Alumni Magazine presents the second of a series of articles by F. James Barnes, II on Washington and Lee men who have become famous in public life. The author has spent more than a year preparing these articles, the first of which appeared in the last issue of the Alumni Magazine, and dealt with sons of the University who became governors. Every effort has been made here to include all Washington and Lee men who have been to the United States Senate, but Mr. Barnes will welcome letters concerning any who may have been omitted, or will be glad to have additional information on the men listed. The third article of this series will appear in the next issue, and will describe Washington and Lee alumni who have been or still are members of the House of Representatives.

ton. Unsuccessful candidate for election to U. S. Senate in 1794; appointed attorney general of Kentucky in 1795 and served until November 30, 1797, when he resigned; member of the State House of Representatives 1798-1800; and served as Speaker from 1799-1800; member of the state constitutional convention in 1799; elected as a Democrat to the U. S. Senate and served from March 4, 1801, until August 7, 1805, when he resigned to accept the position of Attorney-General of the United States in the cabinet of President Jefferson; served in this capacity until his death at "Cabell's Dale" near Lexington, Kentucky, December 14, 1806; interment on his estate, "Cabell's Dale"; reinterment in Lexington Cemetery, Lexington, Kentucky.²

ANDREW MOORE, U. S. Senator from Virginia
1804-1809

Born at "Cannicello" near Fairfield, Rockbridge county, Virginia, in 1752; attended Augusta Academy (now Washington and Lee University), Lexington, Virginia; studied law, was admitted to the bar in 1774, and practiced; served in the Revolutionary War; Lieutenant under General Gates at the battle of Saratoga and was present at the surrender of Burgoyne; resigned in 1779 with the rank of captain and was Commissioner Brigadier General of the Virginia Militia; Major general in 1808; member of the State house of delegates 1780-1783 and 1785-1788; delegate to the Virginia Convention that ratified the Federal Constitution in 1788; elected to the first, second, third and fourth Congresses (March 4, 1789-March 3, 1797); served in the State Senate in 1800 and 1801; successfully contested the election of Thomas Lewis to the Eighth Congress, and served from March 5 to August 11, 1804, when he was appointed to the United States Senate to fill the vacancy in the term beginning March 4, 1799, caused by the resignation of Wilson C. Nicholas; while holding the office of Senator designate he was elected on December 4, 1804, to fill the vacancy in the term beginning March 4, 1803, caused by the resignation of Abraham B. Venable, and served successively in the two classes from August 11, 1804, until March 3, 1809; resumed the practice of law; again a member of the state house of delegates in 1799 and 1800; died in Lexington, Virginia, April 14, 1821; interment in Lexington Cemetery.³

JAMES BROWN, U. S. Senator from Louisiana
1813-1817, 1819-1823

Born near Staunton, Virginia, September 11, 1776; attended Washington College (now Washington and Lee University), Lexington, Virginia, and William and

Mary College, Williamsburg, Virginia; studied law, was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Frankfort, Kentucky; commanded a company of sharpshooters in the expedition against the Indians in 1789; secretary to Governor Shelby in 1792; soon after the cession of the Territory of Louisiana moved to New Orleans and served as secretary to the Territory; United States District Attorney; elected to the United States Senate on December 1, 1812, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of John N. Destrehan, and served from February 5, 1813, to March 3, 1817; unsuccessful candidate for re-election; again elected to the United States Senate in 1819, and served from March 4, 1819, until December 10, 1823, when he resigned; appointed United States Minister to France and served from December 10, 1823, to June 28, 1829; returned to the United States and settled in Philadelphia, Pa., where he died April 7, 1835.⁴

JOHN J. CRITTENDEN, U. S. Senator from Kentucky
1817-1819, 1834-1841, 1842, 1848, 1855-1861

Born near Versailles, Woodford county, Ky., September 10, 1787; completed preparatory studies, attended Pisgah Academy, Woodford county, Ky., and Washington College (now Washington and Lee University), Lexington, Virginia, and was graduated from William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Virginia, in 1806; studied law and was admitted to the bar, and commenced practice in Woodford county, Kentucky, in 1807; Attorney General of Illinois Territory in 1809 and 1810; served in the War of 1812 as aide to Governor Shelby; resumed the practice of law in Russellville, Kentucky; member of the state house of representatives 1811-1817, and served as speaker the last term; elected to the United States Senate and served from March 4, 1817, to March 3, 1819, when he resigned; moved to Frankfort, Kentucky, in 1819; again a member of the state house of representatives in 1825 and 1829-1832; appointed United States District Attorney in 1827, but was removed by President Jackson in 1829. Again elected to the U. S. Senate, and served from March 4, 1835, to March 3, 1841; appointed Attorney General of the United States by President Harrison and served from March 5 to September 13, 1841; appointed and subsequently elected to the U. S. Senate to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Henry Clay, and served from March 31, 1842, to June 12, 1848, when he resigned; elected Governor of Kentucky in 1848, and served until July 22, 1850, when he resigned; again appointed Attorney-General, this time by President Fillmore; and served from July 22, 1850, to March 7, 1853; again elected to the U. S. Senate and served from March 4, 1855, to March 3, 1861; elected as a Unionist to the Thirty-Seventh Congress (March 4, 1861-March 3, 1863); was a candidate for re-election at the time of his death; died in Frankfort, Kentucky, July 26, 1863; interment in the State Cemetery, Frankfort, Kentucky.⁵

POWHATAN ELLIS, U. S. Senator from Mississippi
1827-1832

Born at "Red Hill," Amherst county, Virginia, January 17, 1790; was graduated from Washington Academy (now Washington and Lee University), Lexington, Virginia, in 1809; attended Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pennsylvania, in 1809 and 1810; studied law at William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Virginia, in 1813 and 1814, and was admitted to the bar and commenced practice in Lynchburg, Virginia; moved to Natchez, Mississippi, in April, 1816, and continued the practice of law; Judge of the State Supreme Court, 1823-1825; appointed as a Democrat to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of David Holmes, and served from September 28, 1825, to January 28, 1826, when a successor was elected and qualified; unsuccessful candidate for election to fill the vacancy; elected to the United States Senate for the term commencing March 4, 1827, and served until July 16, 1832, when he resigned to accept a Judicial position; judge of the United States court for the district of Mississippi, 1832-1836; appointed by President Jackson charge d'affaires of the United States to Mexico January 5, 1836, and closed the legation December 28, 1836; U. S. Minister plenipotentiary to Mexico from February 15, 1839, to April 21, 1842; moved to Richmond, where he died March 18, 1863; interment in Shockoe Cemetery.⁶

ROBERT H. ADAMS, U. S. Senator from Mississippi
1830

Born in Rockbridge county, Virginia, in 1792; apprenticed to cooper's trade; was graduated from Washington College (now Washington and Lee University), Lexington, Virginia, in 1806; studied law, was admitted to the bar, and began practice in Knoxville, Tennessee; moved to Natchez, Mississippi in 1828; member of the State House of Representatives in 1828; elected as a Jackson Democrat to the United States Senate to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Thomas B. Reed, and served from January 6, 1830, until his death in Natchez, Mississippi, on July 2, 1830; interment probably in Natchez City Cemetery.⁷

WILLIAM C. PRESTON, U. S. Senator from S. C.
1833-1842

Born in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, on December

27, 1794; studied under private tutors; attended Washington College (now Washington and Lee University), Lexington, Virginia, and was graduated from South Carolina College (now University of South Carolina) at Columbia in 1812; traveled and studied in Europe for several years; studied law at the University of Edinburg, Scotland; returned to the United States in 1819; was admitted to the bar in Virginia in 1820 and practiced; moved to Columbia, South Carolina, in 1822; unsuccessful candidate for election in 1828 to the Twenty-Second Congress; member of the state House of Representatives, 1828-1834; elected as a Calhoun Nullifier to the United States Senate to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Stephen D. Miller; re-elected in 1837, and served from November 26, 1833, until his resignation in December, 1842; resumed the practice of law in Columbia, South Carolina; President of South Carolina College from 1845 until 1851 when he resigned on account of ill health; trustee of the same college 1851-1857; founded the Columbia Atheneum; presented his library containing nearly 3,000 volumes to the institution and served as president of the board of directors; died in Columbia, South Carolina, May 22, 1860.⁸

ROBERT STRANGE, U. S. Senator from N. C.
1836-1840

Born in Manchester, Virginia, on September 20, 1796; attended private schools in Virginia, the New Oxford Academy, and Washington College (now Washington and Lee University), Lexington, Virginia; was graduated from Hampden-Sydney College, Virginia; moved to Fayetteville, North Carolina, in 1815; studied law, was admitted to the bar, and practiced in Fayetteville; member of the State House of Commons, 1821-1823 and in 1826; Judge of the superior Court of North Carolina, 1827-1836; elected as a Democrat to the United States Senate to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Wollie P. Mangum, and served from December 5, 1836, to November 16, 1840, when he resigned; resumed the practice of law in Fayetteville, Cumberland county, North Carolina; Solicitor of the Fifth Judicial District of North Carolina; engaged in literary pursuits; died in Fayetteville, N. C., on February 19, 1854; interment in the family burial ground at "Myrtle Hill," near Fayetteville, North Carolina.⁹

RICHARD ELLIOT PARKER, U. S. Senator from Virginia
1836-1837

Born in Rocky Spring, Westmoreland county, Virginia, on December 27, 1783; attended the public schools, and was graduated from Washington College

(now Washington and Lee University), Lexington, Virginia, in 1803; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1804; and practiced in Westmoreland county; member of the State House of Delegates, 1807-1809; served as colonel of the Twenty-Fifth Virginia Regiment, 1812-1814; returned to practice in Westmoreland county; for many years judge of the General Court and Circuit Court of Virginia; elected as a Democrat to the United States Senate to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Benjamin W. Leigh, and served from December 12, 1836, to March 13, 1837, when he resigned; elected by the legislature of Virginia one of the judges of the court of appeals to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Dabney Carr; declined the position of Attorney General tendered by President Van Buren in 1840; died on his estate, "The Retreat," near Snickersville (now Bluemont, Loudoun county), Virginia, September 6, 1840; interment in the family cemetery near Warsaw, Virginia.¹⁰

H. S. FOOTE, U. S. Senator from Mississippi
1847-1852

Born in Fauquier county, Virginia, February 28, 1804; pursued classical studies; was graduated from Washington College (now Washington and Lee University), Lexington, Virginia, in 1819; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1823 and commenced practice in Tuscumbia, Alabama, in 1825; moved to Mississippi in 1826 and practiced his profession in Jackson, Natchez, Vicksburg and Raymon; presidential elector on the Democratic ticket of Polk and Dallas in 1844; elected as a Unionist to the United States Senate, and served from March 4, 1847, until January 8, 1852, when he resigned to become governor; governor of Mississippi from 1852-1854; while serving in the latter capacity was unsuccessful candidate for U. S. Senator; lacking but one vote necessary for election; moved to California in 1854, and unsuccessful candidate of the Reform Party for election to the U. S. Senate in 1856, again lacking but one vote; returned to Vicksburg, Miss., in 1858; member of the Southern Convention held at Knoxville in 1859; moved to Tennessee and settled near Nashville; elected to the First and Second Confederate Congresses; afterwards moved to Washington, D. C., and practiced law; supported the Republican presidential ticket of Hayes and Wheeler in 1876; appointed by President Hayes as Superintendent of the Mint at New Orleans and served from December 18, 1878, until his death; author of several books; died in Nashville, Tennessee, May 19, 1880; interment in Mount Olivet Cemetery.¹¹

JACKSON MORTON, U. S. Senator from Florida
1849-1855

Born near Fredericksburg, Spotsylvania county, Virginia, on August 10, 1794; attended the common schools, and was graduated from Washington College (now Washington and Lee University), Lexington, Virginia, in 1814, and from William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Virginia, in 1815; moved to Pensacola, Florida, in 1820 and engaged in the lumber business; member of the Florida Legislative council in 1836 and 1837; president of the council in 1837; delegate to the constitutional convention of Florida in 1838; Navy agent at Pensacola, 1841-1854; presidential elector on the Whig ticket of Taylor and Fillmore in 1848; elected as a Whig to the United States Senate and served from March 4, 1849, to March 3, 1855; was not a candidate for re-election to the Thirty-Fifth Congress; again became engaged in the lumber business; deputy to the Provisional Congress of the Confederate States in Montgomery, Alabama, in February, 1861; member of the Confederate Congress, 1862-1865; died at his country home, "Mortonia," near Milton, Santa Rosa county, Florida, November 20, 1874; interment in the private cemetery at "Mortonia."¹²

MURPHY J. FOSTER, U. S. Senator from Louisiana
1901-1913

Born in Franklin, St. Mary Parish, Louisiana, January 12, 1849; received his education under private tutors and attended a preparatory school at White's Creek, near Nashville, Tennessee, and Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Virginia, 1867 and 1868; was graduated from Cumberland University, Lebanon, Tennessee, in 1870, and from the law school of the University of Louisiana (now Tulane University) at New Orleans in 1871; was admitted to the bar in 1871 and commenced to practice in Franklin, Louisiana; member of the John McEnery Democratic legislature in 1872, but owing to the fact that this government was never recognized by the Federal Government and the Kellogg Government was, he did not take his seat; member of the state senate, 1879-1895, and served as president pro tempore, 1888-1890; was leader of the anti-lottery fight in the State Legislature in 1890; was nominated by the anti-lottery convention as a candidate for Governor of Louisiana; was elected and re-elected and served from May 18, 1892, to May 21, 1900; elected as a Democrat to the U. S. Senate in 1901; was re-elected in 1907; and served from March 4, 1901, to March 3, 1913; appointed by President Wilson as Collector of the Port of New Orleans, and served from August 1, 1914, until his death at Dixie plantation near Franklin, St. Mary Parish, Louisiana, June 12, 1921; interment in Franklin Cemetery.¹³

ROBERT LATHAM OWEN, U. S. Senator from Oklahoma
1907-1925

Born in Lynchburg, Campbell county, Virginia, February 3, 1856; attended private schools in Lynchburg, Virginia, and Baltimore, Maryland; was graduated from Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Virginia, in 1877; studied law, was admitted to the bar in 1880, and commenced practice in Lahlequah, Indian Territory (now the state of Oklahoma); moved to Salina, Oklahoma, in September, 1879; member of the Democratic National Committee, 1892-1896; organized the First National Bank of Muskogee in 1890 and was its president for ten years; interested in cattle raising and engaged in agricultural pursuits; delegate to the Democratic National Conventions at Chicago in 1892 and 1896 and at New York City in 1924; vice-chairman of the Democratic Campaign Committee in Oklahoma in 1906; upon the admission of Oklahoma as a state into the Union was elected as a Democrat to the United States Senate for the term ending March 3, 1913; re-elected in 1912 and again in 1918, and served from December 11, 1907, to March 3, 1925; declined to be a candidate for re-nomination in 1924 and retired from public service; resumed the practice of law in Washington, D. C., retaining his legal residence in Muskogee, Oklahoma.¹⁴

G. E. CHAMBERLAIN, U. S. Senator from Oregon
1909-1921

Born on a plantation near Natchez, Adams county, Mississippi, on January 1, 1854; attended private and public schools in Natchez; clerk in a general merchandise store in Natchez, 1870-1872; was graduated from the literary and law departments of Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va., in June, 1876; moved to Oregon in December, 1876; taught school in Linn county; Deputy Clerk of Linn county from 1877 to 1879, when he resigned; was admitted to the bar in 1879 and commenced the practice of law in Albany, Linn county, Oregon; member of the State House of Representatives, 1880-1882; district attorney for the Third Judicial District, 1884-1886; appointed and subsequently elected Attorney General of Oregon, and served from 1891-1894, with residence in Portland; continued the practice of law in Portland; district attorney for the Fourth Judicial District, 1900-1902; elected Governor of Oregon in 1902 and re-elected in 1906; resigned as governor after serving two years of his second term, having been elected senator; elected in 1908 as a Democrat to the United States Senate; re-elected in 1914, and served from March 4, 1909, to March 3, 1921; was chairman of the Senate Committee on military affairs during the entire period of the war; unsuccessful candidate for re-election to the Senate in 1920; member of the United States Shipping Board from June 13, 1921, to June 30, 1923, when he resigned; engaged in practice of law in Washington, D. C., and died there on July 9, 1928; interment in Arlington National Cemetery, Fort Meyer, Virginia.¹⁵

NATHAN P. BRYAN, U. S. Senator from Florida
1911-1917

Born near Fort Mason, Orange (now Lake) county, Florida, April 23, 1872; attended the common schools; was graduated from Emory College, Oxford, Georgia, in 1893, and from the law department of Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Virginia, in 1895; was admitted to the bar in 1895 and commenced practice in Jacksonville, Florida; Chairman of the Board of Control of Florida State institutions of higher education, 1905-1909; appointed on February 22, 1911 (the legislature having failed to elect) and subsequently elected as a Democrat to the United States Senate and served from March 4, 1911, to March 3, 1917; unsuccessful candidate for re-nomination in 1916; appointed Judge of the United States Court of Appeals of the Fifth Judicial Circuit in April, 1920, in which capacity he is now serving; is a resident of Jacksonville, Florida.¹⁶

MILES POINDEXTER, U. S. Senator from Washington
1911-1917

Born in Memphis, Tenn., April 22, 1868; attended the Fancy Hill Academy, Rockbridge county, Virginia, and the academic and law departments of Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Virginia, graduating in law from the university in June, 1891; settled in Walla Walla, Washington, October 10, 1891; was admitted to the bar and began the practice of law; prosecuting attorney of Walla Walla county in 1892; moved to Spokane, Washington, in 1897, and continued the practice of law; assistant prosecuting attorney for Spokane county, 1898-1904; judge of the Superior Court, 1904-1908; elected as a Republican to the Sixty-First Congress (March 4, 1909-March 3, 1911); elected to the United States Senate in 1910; re-elected in 1916, and served from March 4, 1911, to March 3, 1923; unsuccessful candidate for re-election in 1922; appointed by President Harding ambassador to Peru on February 19, 1923.¹⁷

NATHAN L. BACHMAN, U. S. Senator from Tennessee
1933—

Born at Chattanooga, Tenn., Aug 2, 1878; son of Dr. Jonathan Waverly Bachman and Eva D. B.; student Southwestern, Central, and Washington and Lee Universities; LL.B., U. of Va.; LL.O. U. of Chattanooga; married Pearl Mannen Duke, January 7, 1904; one daughter, Mrs. Thomas A. McCoy; city attorney Chattanooga, 1906-1908; circuit judge, 1908-1912; associate justice Supreme Court of Tennessee, 1918-1924; appointed U. S. Senator, February 28, 1933, to fill unexpired term of Cordell Hull. Democrat. Home, Chattanooga, Tennessee.¹⁸

REFERENCES

- ¹ Congressional Directory, pp. 746.
American Cyclopaedia of American Biography, V. 6, pp. 43.
- ² Congressional Directory, pp. 733.
- ³ Congressional Directory, pp. 1327.
- ⁴ Congressional Directory, pp. 745.
- ⁵ Congressional Directory, pp. 861.
- ⁶ Congressional Directory, pp. 942.
- ⁷ Congressional Directory, pp. 625.
- ⁸ Congressional Directory, pp. 1431.
- ⁹ Congressional Directory, pp. 1579.
- ¹⁰ Congressional Directory, pp. 1386.
- ¹¹ Congressional Directory, pp. 977.
- ¹² Congressional Directory, pp. 1340.
- ¹³ Congressional Directory, pp. 983.
- ¹⁴ Congressional Directory, pp. 1378.
- ¹⁵ Congressional Directory, pp. 799.
- ¹⁶ Congressional Directory, pp. 753.
- ¹⁷ Congressional Directory, pp. 1419.
- ¹⁸ Who's Who in America. V. 18, pp. 216.

A Note From Far Away

"I left Washington, where I had been chief of the visa division, Department of State, for several years, and proceeded with Ambassador Bullitt from New York on February 15, 1934, for Moscow, U. S. S. R., with orders to stop en route at Berlin and Riga and remain at the latter place, Riga, Latvia, until ordered to proceed to Moscow at such time as the consulate general at Moscow will be ready to begin the issue of immigration visas in Russia. Due to lack of space this work has not been commenced there as yet and I have remained in Riga. In October, after the sudden death of the American consul at Riga, I was appointed as American consul at Riga—this position I still hold. This office does the immigration work for the whole of Russia.

"With pleasure and pride I read of the achievements of the football team of Washington and Lee. My congratulations to the team and my confidence in the spirit of Washington and Lee which has inspired this team and all other teams who have and who will represent our Alma Mater.—A. Dana Hodgdon."

Justice Louis S. Epes, 1882-1935

(Continued from page five)

a loyal alumnus and an interested and useful member of its board of trustees. The high quality of his work led in 1919 to his being offered a professorship in the school of law, a position which he declined in order to remain in the service of the state.

"Judge Epes leaves a distinguished public career beginning in 1920 and extending to the time of his death. He was noted for devotion to his work and for the keen power of his mind. His death is a great loss to this institution as well as to the people of the state."

A Diary, 1860-1895

"A Diary with Reminiscences of the War and Refugee Life in the Shenandoah Valley, 1860-1865" will be published by Hunter McDonald about February 1. Mr. McDonald, who attended Washington and Lee in 1878 and 1879, has spent many years working on the book, which promises to reveal some interesting comments on General R. E. Lee along with rare bits of history of the War Between the States.

Alumni interested in the diary can address Mr. McDonald, who lives in Nashville, Tennessee. The book will contain a memoir of General Lee by the author as one of its interesting features, and will be concluded with a genealogical sketch of the McDonald and several related families.

State's Attorney

LAYMAN J. REDDEN, class of 1927, is one of the youngest men ever to hold a state's attorney job in Maryland. He was sworn in recently at the age of thirty. Democrats in the primary of last September nominated him for the position, and he was elected in November by a majority of 1,344 votes, one of the largest majorities ever received by a candidate for an elective office in his county. Mr. Redden studied law at both Washington and Lee and Maryland.

JACK BAILEY, of Maysville, Kentucky, captain of the Washington and Lee football team for next fall, tried his hand at boxing this year. He lost a close decision to the Maryland light-heavyweight, and battled an experienced heavyweight to a draw in the Hampden-Sydney meet in Lexington.

Finals, 1935—A Change in Dates

By JIM BROWN, 1935

THE ANNOUNCEMENT of the change in dates for Finals this year will be of unusual interest to all alumni. Instead of the Friday-Saturday and Monday-Tuesday arrangement of the set, the dances will be shortened to three days, beginning Wednesday evening and culminating with the Final Ball Friday night, the dance lasting until dawn.

The dates have been set for June 5, 6, and 7, and this will eliminate the yawning void of the Sunday between dances, which was always a period of inertia and general let-down. Another advantage of the new arrangement is that the three-day set will enable a greater number of alumni to attend who hitherto have been unwilling to take off five days from their business or occupation. The Finals set of dances, of course, belongs peculiarly to the alumni, and for both sentimental and social reasons most graduates who can possibly do so try to attend the Senior Alumni ball.

Lewis W. Martin, of Richmond, is president of Finals this year, and he is already working hard on preparations and the selection of an orchestra. A student poll will be conducted in two weeks containing the names of five nationally known orchestras from which the most popular one will be selected. Jan Garber has played for the last two sets of Finals. Other officers include: John Dean, of Tribbett, Miss., and George McGeory, of Yonkers, N. Y., vice-presidents; Joe Magee, of Texarkana, Ark., secretary; Billy Wilson, of Owensboro, Ky., business manager; and James E. Brown, of Middletown, Conn., publicity director.

In order to fit in with the new schedule, the graduation exercises will be held Friday morning, June 7. The speaker for the occasion has not yet been selected.

The executive committee for the dances includes: Stewart Buxton, Memphis, Tenn.; Thomas Sparks, Crossett, Ark.; Grier Wallace, Charlotte, N. C.; Les Helmer, Cumberland, Md.; Edward Chappell, Urbana, Va.; John Thomas, Charleston, W. Va.; Harry Rhett, Huntsville, Ala.; Alexander Harwood, Williamsburg, Va.; Charles Davidson, Lexington, Va.; Robert Mayo, Washington, D. C.; Don Wallis, Bedford, Indiana; and Edward Marks, Brownsville, Tenn. Because of the omission of one night of dancing, it is probable that the Interfraternity ball will be combined with the Sigma German on Thursday night. The P. A. N.-White Friar dansant will be held Thursday afternoon.

For the past three years, this writer has looked upon Finals as just a marvelous week-end, but this year we are almost afraid to think of it because it is our last one. Sitting here, our memory brings back nostalgic pictures of other June days and of friends who have graduated. We recall a warm spring breeze—swaying trees in full bloom—the tramp of feet along the walks at noon—"glad those exams are over"—the air of celebration—"she gets in some time this evening"—and along about twilight she and countless others sweep into town from all directions in a symphony of gaiety and laughter—that night, fleecy clouds shade a silvery moon—listening once more to genial Jan Garber—beneath soft lights—streamers, exotic gowns, the gleam of white and black—Interfraternity ball—warm prelude to P. A. N.-White Friar dansant and Sigma German—the parade of white in the afternoon—white shoes, white flannels, white dresses—boat races, movies, fraternity horse-play—the call of the road—to Goshen Pass, Lover's Leap, North River—the roar of cars and the lilt of laughter in the quiet at midnight—the quiet laziness of Sunday—Baccalaureate—the campus, shaded green grass, falling blooms, the gleam of white columns—couples strolling—Senior Alumni ball—glad greetings—late and later dates—the senior class in full parade—the march of cap and gowns to the Chapel—a warm breeze through the windows—and suddenly they have diplomas in their hands—dinners, luncheons, teas—families, friends, fraternities—the Final Ball—color, music, gaiety—and then as the sun begins to streak through the windows, the lump in the throat feeling—an aching love for Washington and Lee and all that it means—seniors with tears in their eyes—partings—good-byes—farewells—milestone—and the last note of "College Friendships" as dawn breaks—

*Our college friendships soon must sever,
And fade as does the dying day,
Our closest bonds must all be broken,
As through this world we wend our way.
But yet—whatever be life's fortunes,
Though friendships fail and friends be few,
We'll love thee still our Alma Mater,
Our dear old W. and L. U.*

Winter Sports at the University

By RICHARD POWELL CARTER

THE SCORE was Michigan thirteen, Washington and Lee eleven. Doremus gymnasium was a yelling mass of people, almost a record crowd . . . Washington and Lee's spectacular wrestling record was at stake.

Marty Kaplan of Louisville, Kentucky was on in the next bout, slated to meet the experienced Lowell from Ann Arbor. It was a thriller, with the sophomore Kaplan matching his apparently strong-man hold for hold, and coming out of the bout with a time advantage of one minute and twenty-seven seconds.

That was like striking a match to a gas-soaked pile of shavings. The crowd thundered approval.

It was up to Hugo Bonino, unlimited champion of the Southern conference and captain of his team, to save the Generals' record of only one defeat in sixty-one dual meets in five years.

Bonino tore into Hilderbrand of Michigan, tossed him all over the mat, stood him on his head for a minute, then pinned his shoulders, requiring just four minutes and two seconds to accomplish the feat.

That was all. But it was enough.

So Coach Mathis' mat artists rose to new heights with a nineteen to thirteen victory over the Wolverines, regarded as the foremost contenders for wrestling honors in the Big Ten.

That was the highlight of the winter sports season at Washington and Lee this year.

The Generals have lost only once in the past half a decade, dropping a meet to Navy in 1933, and struggling to a tie last year. Otherwise, they have been rulers of the mat.

This year the grapplers are defending the Southern conference crown in Doremus gymnasium, March 1 and 2, in matches that promise to offer the best the collegiate grappling sport can give. Sports writers call the Washington and Lee wrestling record the best in the history of Southern athletics.

Four good reasons why W. and L. excels in wrestling: Captain Hugo Bonino of Hawthorne, N. J., conference heavyweight champion left. Then there is Rowland Thomas of Baltimore, bottom, center, who won the 118-pound championship in 1933. Two other capable performers are Glenn Shively of Chambersburg, Pa., center, top, 145-pound threat, and Ed Seitz, right, of Cass, W. Va., a veteran at 165.

The Generals have not been so fortunate on the basketball court this season, running into all sorts of difficulties as defending champions in the Southern conference.

With only eleven men on the squad, Coach Cy Young has had to cope with a succession of colds that hindered his charges' efficiency on the floor, and has run into some of the best basketball combines produced in this part of the country in many years.

HORACE RICHARDSON

The Generals started off with a smashing victory over St. Johns, then underwent a two-point loss game at the hands of North Carolina at Lynchburg. There followed a convincing victory over the University of Virginia and another over Virginia Tech; but then the hard luck started. Charlie Smith of Jacksonville, Florida, captain and all-Southern center last year, contracted a cold that kept him idle long enough to cost the Generals' winning goals, and Bob Field, of Miami, Florida, was called home for several weeks this semester.

CHARLIE SMITH - CAPTAIN

Washington and Lee has lost three games by two-point decisions, one by three points, and two others by only four points. So since figures don't lie, it adds up to total a good basketball team that hasn't had the breaks.

In swimming, Coach Cy Twombly's tankmen have been more than good—they've been excellent. In fact, Washington and Lee's swimming record looks almost as good as the wrestling record—a feature story on that some day soon, alumni!

The first thing the Washington and Lee swimmers did was go down to Williamsburg and duck the William and Mary team fifty-three to thirty-one. Then they went to Durham and soaked Duke University's Blue Devils, champions of the Southern conference, forty-three to forty-one.

After that people began to sit up and take more notice of Washington and Lee's tankmen.

Virginia Tech brought a strong team to Lexington to swim the Generals on February 16, and Coach Twombly's men splashed water in their faces all along the route, getting a fifty-four to thirty-four victory.

In boxing the Generals had had breaks, but with Lewis Martin, of Richmond, senior at Washington and Lee, as assistant coach actively in charge of the leather pushers, the team gave a good enough account of itself even if it didn't break into the right side of the ledger.

Martin, technically assistant to Tex Tilson as coach, turned out a good squad with the few men he had available, dropping the first meet to the powerful Maryland team, six to two.

The Generals lost to Virginia Tech at Blacksburg in the next match, scoring three and a half points to the Gobblers' four and a half.

The same thing happened when Hampden - Sydney brought a surprisingly capable team to Lexington, and won by a like score.

Ed Jean, one hundred and seventy-five pounds, went to the Southern Conference tournament in Charlottesville and lost a close decision to Maryland's man in that division.

NORMAN ILER

JOE PETTE

Dick Smith has had his battery men warming up indoors as preliminary to baseball practice next month. It is too early as the Alumni Magazine goes to press to make any predictions concerning the ball players, but you can take 'Cap'n Dick's' word for it—there will be a likely squad on hand. But he's not optimistic.

Forrest Fletcher has a speedy collection of cinder path men this year, with Bill Schuhle of Plaquemine, La., as captain.

WINTER SPORTS RESULTS

BASKETBALL

W-L		Opp.
37	January 7	St. Johns at Lexington 26
34	January 10	North Carolina at Lynchburg 36
30	January 12	Virginia at Lexington 20
49	January 19	V. P. I. at Lexington 19
27	February 2	Duke at Durham 31
36	February 5	William and Mary at Lexington 38
30	February 8	Duke at Lexington 33
29	February 9	V. P. I. at Blacksburg 22
26	February 13	North Carolina State at Lexington 35
29	February 15	Virginia at Charlottesville 31
33	February 16	Maryland at College Park 29
21	February 19	Richmond at Lexington 25
33	February 22	Clemson at Clemson, S. C. 48
30	February 23	South Carolina at Columbia 46

BOXING

W-L		Opp.
2	February 2	Maryland at College Park 6
3½	February 9	V. P. I. at Blacksburg 4½
3½	February 16	Hampden-Sydney at Lexington 4½

WRESTLING

W-L		Opp.
34	December 15	Johns Hopkins at Lexington 0
28	February 2	North Carolina at Lexington 0
14	February 8	North Carolina State at Raleigh 12
19	February 9	Duke at Durham 11
19	February 18	Michigan at Lexington 13
19	February 23	V. P. I. at Blacksburg 11
	March 1-2	S. C. Tournament (Doremus Gym.)

SWIMMING

W-L		Opp.
53	February 2	William and Mary at Williamsburg 31
43	February 6	Duke at Durham 41
54	February 16	V. P. I. at Lexington 34

FOOTBALL SCHEDULE FOR 1935

September 21	Kentucky at Lexington, Virginia
September 28	Wofford at Lexington
October 5	Duke at Richmond
October 12	Open
October 19	Centre at Louisville
October 26	V. P. I. at Blacksburg
November 2	West Virginia at Charleston
November 9	Virginia at Lexington
November 16	Maryland at College Park
November 23	Open
Thanksgiving	South Carolina at Columbia

Journalism Directory Published

A DIRECTORY of Washington and Lee men who are in the the journalistic world has recently come off the press. Work on the book was completed by Professor O. W. Riegel, head of the department of journalism.

This is the first attempt to discover how many former students of Washington and Lee are in journalistic occupations. The directory contains sketches of one hundred men, the majority of whom received degrees from Washington and Lee, though some did not complete their work on degrees and others received honorary degrees.

The directory was designed and printed in the journalism laboratory by C. Harold Lauck, laboratory instructor in journalism. It will be distributed among publishers, editors, educators and alumni. Copies may be obtained from Professor Riegel.

JOURNALISM students at Washington and Lee went on two field trips February 22, one group going to Staunton and one to Roanoke to work for the day on the staffs of newspapers at those cities. In Staunton a group accompanied by Richard P. Carter cooperated in putting out the Evening Leader, and in Roanoke a group accompanied by O. W. Riegel, acting director of the Lee School of Journalism, aided the staff of the World-News in gathering and editing the day's news.

THE EDITOR of this excellent magazine has very kindly invited me to tell his patrons about the board of trustees' plan for the new law building and I wish, as I have wished before, that he had a larger audience.

Yet that small number that reads these pages is a choice and responsive group of alumni. I address myself to you with full appreciation that your interest and loyalties and affection for Washington and Lee are stronger than others.

The University on February 11 sent out a bulletin to all alumni, reporting the loss of Tucker Hall by fire on December 16, explaining temporary measures for continuing courses and promising, so strong are our hope and confidence, a new building well under way, if not completed, by September 1.

The board of trustees has authorized a new law building, but the funds for construction must be raised. The finance committee has no plan or hope beyond the response it expects from the alumni, who have been asked to raise $100,000. This is the amount needed for the building. The insurance of $30,000 will be needed for furnishing and equipping the building and replacing the library with necessary working references.

The finance committee presented this problem to the alumni in a general letter on February 14 and responses at the early date this is written are too few and scattered to indicate a result.

Plans, however, are going forward in full confidence that there will be funds at the only source the University has.

The new law building, as you can see by the architects' sketch, will on the exterior be almost a replica of Newcomb Hall. It will give that impression. In detail, there will be variances as there must be to make the new building in harmony with Washington College, whose adjacent dignity and simplicity and superiority make deviations from Newcomb Hall necessary in order that it may sit beside the finest architecture we have.

This problem has focused sharp and critical attention on both Newcomb Hall and Washington College.

The New Law Building and

By JAMES R. CASKIE, Lynchburg, Virginia, Chairman

It has brought to light, and new appreciation, the greater architectural beauty we have in the original building which is Washington College. In dignity, simplicity, dimension, and proportion, it is one of the fine historical monuments of the period in this whole country. A new building that dares to stand neighbor to anything as graceful and right in line and form as Washington College has to be designed with a precise eye and nice feeling.

The tentative plans for the proposed building made by the firm of Carneal, Johnston & Wright, of Richmond, Va., have been received with much enthusiasm and satisfaction. The plan for the interior arrangement of lecture rooms, library, professors' offices, the dean's office, washrooms, a lounge for students, a special room for briefing, a vault for records, a place for storage, an auditorium in the plan of a moot court room, and all details planned for a small but probable increase in student enrollment have pleased everybody concerned.

Philip Small, of Cleveland, a nationally known designer and critic of the Georgian period, has been engaged as consultant. He will review the design and the plans and be responsible directly to the board of trustees for the final correctness of detail and that indefinable quality that is "feeling."

Dear "Cy"—

When, in the latest University Bulletin, I saw the architects' drawing of the proposed new law building, I thought it was all right. At once I observed that its construction would harmonize with the campus outline; but I knew that the present board of trustees and President Gaines would not have it otherwise.

Then came the architects panorama of the entire group of buildings as they would look with Tucker Hall restored — no, I mean transfigured and glorified. My enthusiasm is endless, as I picture that impressively dignified, yet altogether lovely front, with Washington Hall as its ancient yet ever beautiful and traditional centerpiece.

My first thought comes from a desire to show this vision of pure architectural beauty to everyone I see and I would send it to others with whom I correspond. I would ask them all if nature and this slope-crowded line, when completed, will not unite to make the Washington and Lee campus the most truly inspirational in these United States—save one only rival, and I would mention that one, were I not afraid of turning the head of a Virginia immortal, America's first great architect, Thomas Jefferson.

The above conjecture as to creative preeminence would be freely ventured as an out-and-out declaration; but having, in the field of history, been so long accustomed to gathering all the evidence, to say nothing of the pre-publication imprimatur of specialists, I tentatively qualify what may be called intuitive assurance.

Please send me some copies of the panorama and let me help get a consensus of opinion. And if the sight of the vision will aid in making the dream come true, so much the better for the immediate realization of a noble ideal of structural harmony that must necessarily ennoble all so fortunate as to be associated with it; for the new harmony cannot but add to the spiritual endowment created by the original interest of Washington and the subsequent presence of Lee.

Enthusiastically,

MATTHEW PAGE ANDREWS

a More Beautiful Campus

of the Building Committee on the New Law Building

The above is in the nature of a report from the two committees charged with the responsibility that ultimately will replace the law building.

It is easy to address an appealing word to those whose minds can instantly recall the picture and the associations at Washington and Lee. I am sure I need suggest no vision more forceful or more compelling than the beauty of the colonnade with its symmetry completed and its harmony fulfilled for all time.

It is an arresting thought that there are still men whose memories go back to the days when General Lee was president of Washington College, and that some of them have great-grandsons here today. Those two generations, and all in between, are able to have their first opportunity to see the colonnade at Washington and Lee in the completed form the original and unknown designer of Washington College would have wished it to be.

The editors of The Alumni Magazine were so impressed with the reaction of Matthew Page Andrews to the proposed new law school, that his letter is being passed along to you. Mr. Andrews, living now in Baltimore, was the subject of a biographical sketch in The Alumni Magazine last fall.

He Saw Tut-ankh-Amen's Coffin Opened

FEW EVENTS of recent times have created such world-wide interest as the opening of the tomb of Tut-ankh-Amen, and few men were privileged to see the sarcophagus lid of that Pharaoh's coffin lifted.

But an alumnus of Washington and Lee was there when modern men first gazed on the mummy of that ancient Egyptian.

The man is J. O. Knott, now of Washington, D. C., who took his degree from the University in 1907 while serving as pastor of the Methodist church in Lexington. His has been an interesting life: thirty times he has crossed the Atlantic: many books he has written—but read here his story of the opening of Tut-ankh-Amen's coffin:

"One cold January, ten or twelve years ago, after I had visited Egypt for several winters in succession, I was about to sail again for that exotic land, with a small party. A day or two before sailing, the Egyptian Legation made its first appearance in Washington, quartered at the Willard Hotel. Surmising that they would like to send some word back home, I paid them a visit, and received a most enthusiastic welcome. In parting, the secretary handed me a card which he said would "admit me to anything in Egypt." It was signed "Hassenein Bey."

"I little dreamed what an Aladdin's Lamp I held in my hand until on arriving in Cairo, I presented this pencil-signed card, "introducing Dr. Knott." The name "Hassenein Bey" went echoing through the halls of the Egypt government buildings. Doors flew open at my approach. The very "holy of holies" of Egypt was none too good for me—for I held in my hand direct word from "Hassanein Bey." After seeing the "secretary of state," I had an audience with the then premier, Zoglool Pasha, who asked me what he could do for me. This was my great chance: "Your excellency, I wish to see the tomb of Tut-ankh-Amen," I said. "That can be arranged," he said, and I received a permit which read that I could enter the tomb on February 17. But on arriving at Luxor, which is six miles from the tomb, I saw Lord and Lady Astor and other dignitaries at the hotel, and discerned that something unusual was about to happen. I soon learned that the sarcophagus lid of the Pharaoh (dead now for thirty-four hundred years) was to be lifted on February 12. I at once wired to Cairo for a change in the date of permit, and to my astonishment received reply that if I agreed to go in alone, without my party, I could enter the tomb on that date. This is how and why I was there on that epochal occasion.

"The preliminary examination of the mummy took place, of course, in the presence of some twenty scientists and government officials, as was necessary, for none of them knew what would happen when they lifted that lid. I was among four others to be admitted just afterwards. I do not know who the others were, nor did I ask. The excitement of the moment was such, that every one of us concentrated attention on the mummy and not on the "other fellow." I do know, however, that the sensationalist who lectured in New England on the "Curse of King Tut," and who says he "sneaked in" without being observed when the sarcophagus was opened up, is a fake; for no one could pass that double guard without being stopped and his permit examined. Further, even Dr. Howard Carter met his Waterloo with the Egyptian Government (for the time) by attempting to have a person enter the tomb without permission from the government.

"The tomb or cavity was sixteen steps in depth, which is very shallow compared with other tombs of Egyptian Pharaohs. Some are hundreds of feet deep. But since Tut-ankh-Amen died quite young and had reigned only a few years, his rock-hewn tomb, which is always begun when the man enters upon his reign, had time only for little penetration of the rock in the mountain side. But as I went alone down these sixteen steps, in utter darkness, they seemed to me like entering into an old-time country cellar. On reaching the end of the descent, I turned to the right, and met the glare of electric lights. Wires had been connected with the power house at Luxor and temporary light had thus been conveyed to the tomb.

"After all, mere descriptions are boresome, even when one sees so interesting a sight as I beheld that day. Probably "impressions" are more interesting. Looking down upon a perfectly dazzling sheen of gold, modeled in form of a man, with large black eyes of obsidian gazing wildly at visitors, the sense of looking at a man who lived in the time of Moses, made me feel that the clock of life had been suddenly turned back and I was living in strangely far-off days. I could hear my own heart in its thumps, saying, "Moses was learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians." And here were evidences of such art, taste, ability to preserve a body, ability to produce a likeness of a man in gold, that nothing in our own day could surpass and even rival. This sight seemed to turn my entire mental outlook upside down and rightside in. I have never doubted since that we have an entirely wrong conception of Egyptian life in the days of Moses. It is from Egypt that civilization came. All that the Jew had which was worth while, he got from Egypt, through Moses, who was Egypt trained and to all purposes an Egyptian.

But this aside: Pharoah Tut-ankh-Amen (which means "Tut, the favorite of god, Amen") lay in that upper coffin, (under which were other coffins and then the dried-up and brittle mummy itself) with a flail in his left hand, and a crook in his right. The "crook," with its stripes, looked to me exactly like those sugar canes of peppermint which we used to see in candy stores on Christmas occasions. The flail and crook symbolized protection and punishment—for a Pharoah had both in his power.

The head gear, above the beautiful gold face, was decorated with the outstanding cobra, whose head protruded over the forehead, and on that head hung a garland of flowers, with the colors, after over thirty centuries, still observable. This last touch of his child wife's love was a pathetic sight. When the other coffins were opened up, more flowers were discovered, and a funeral bouquet was found at the door of the tomb.

The decorations on the wall, which were in colors much resembling what one sees in the Congressional Library in Washington, were as fresh as though done the day before we entered the tomb. In fact, everything was so "recent" looking, that the effect was the more startling. On coming out of this visit to past ages, into the light of common day, I do not think that "common" day ever seemed so much so. Everything in the world about me seemed sordid. I had paid a visit to ancient Egypt, and had talked with Moses, so to speak.

As for the "curse," it is but necessary to say that of the twenty-two persons who saw the tomb that day (and it was at once closed afterwards to be opened no more for a year) only two have died. This is about an average of life, considering the ages of the people who were there. I have never even considered such a thing seriously. The reverence with which the body of the Pharoah was treated, and the part he has played in revealing to us the hoary past, should make King Tut in glory a very happy man. When your readers go with me to Egypt and see the display of wealth and antiquity there in the Cairo Museum, they will say: "The half has never been told."

Weariness: Rest

By DE LA WARR BENJAMIN EASTER

*A few more sighs; a few more tears;
A few more joys; a few more fears;
A few more days, some dark, some bright;
A few more hopes with fading light.
And then comes night.*

*A bit more work, with much of pain;
A sunshine gleam, then clouds and rain;
And yearnings vain; ambition dead,
And weariness of heart and head,
And then, earth's bed.*

*Ah! peaceful bed, so cool, so still,
So quiet, restful, calm, where will
No storm e'er come, no trouble blight,
No wrong be wrought, but all be right,
Beyond man's might!*

May, 1909

The above poem, written by the late Dr. D. B. Easter, beloved professor whose presence at Washington and Lee was a tradition, was discovered several weeks ago in one of his old examination books. It portrays the sensitive and keen nature of this man who knitted himself into the soul of Washington and Lee University. Mrs. Easter, now living in Baltimore, has the original of the poem, which is reproduced through her permission.

Two Get Virginia State Jobs

GOVERNOR PEERY of Virginia, himself a Washington and Lee man, in January honored two alumni, appointing Wilbur C. Hall as chairman of the newly-created state conservation and development commission, and Braden Vandeventer as a member. Mr. Hall, who lives at Leesburg, Va., succeeds William E. Carson, and takes over heavy duties as head of a "dual" commission. Mr. Vandeventer lives in Norfolk.

The appointments were made early in the new year, and Mr. Hall assumed office at once. Considerable attention was attracted to the new position, in view of Virginia's announced intention of stressing those two state topics.

Mr. Hall is a member of the class of 1914; Mr. Vandeventer a member of the class of 1897.

Fancy Dress Broadcast Wins Praise

FRIDAY NIGHT, January 25, 1935, Washington and Lee's annual Fancy Dress ball was broadcast over a nation-wide hookup of ninety-three stations and was sent to Europe through short wave—over the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Response was immediate. Telegrams came from scattered sections of the country, and several days later letters began arriving at the alumni office from Washington and Lee men throughout the United States. All were unanimous in appreciation of the broadcast, which calls for an extra word of credit here:

The broadcast was made possible through the cooperation of the Columbia Broadcasting System and was put on at practically no cost to the University, the only charges being for wire tolls. Columbia sent an engineer and an announcer to Lexington from Washington to handle the program, which was prearranged by the publicity department at Washington and Lee in cooperation with the program director of Columbia in New York City.

So interesting were the letters to Cy Young and "others responsible for the broadcast" that we reproduce excerpts from some of them:

The "Fancy Dress Broadcast" Friday night was 100 percent. I listened in while attending a little party and those present not only enjoyed it thoroughly but all were favorably impressed.—R. B. PRICE, 1921, Hartford, Conn.

Broadcast great shades of yesterday. Puts St. Louis alumni on feet.—EDDIE BACON, St. Louis.

Many congratulations on the broadcast Friday night, which I was able to pick up on at least a dozen stations on my own radio. I thought the remarks made by Dr. Gaines were both clever and exceedingly appropriate for the occasion.—JOHN MORRISON, Charleston, West Virginia.

Just wanted to let you know that I was one of the many ex-Generals who listened to the swell broadcast of the Fancy Dress ball. It came in fine on WJSV here and we had a little dance to make use of the music.—EVERETT N. (GUS) CROSS, 1932, Washington, D. C.

Enclose clippings from the three Detroit newspapers announcing the broadcasting of Fancy Dress. The program was immensely enjoyed by me. Dr. Gaines, the "Swing," the music, and above all, the thought of sending it out to all of us scattered everywhere in this country, is appreciated. I told a number of people around Michigan about the program and friends here in Lansing commented on it.—CHAN GORDON, East Lansing, Michigan.

One hundred and twenty-five Philadelphia alumni listening in. Reception perfect.—E. WARING WILSON, Philadelphia.

Congratulations to the person or persons responsible for the broadcast of a portion of Fancy Dress Ball. Anyone who had been a student at Washington and Lee could not help but get a kick from the program, for memories of undergraduate days were refreshed and lived again. Personally, if it is financially possible, I would suggest a broadcast of Fancy Dress each year. This method, I believe, will bring results in that the interest of alumni will be stimulated, particularly is this true of those of us who are at such distant places that it is impossible for us to return for an occasional visit.—RALPH M. McLANE, Pensacola, Florida.

As wired you, I got in touch with a number of interested folks in this section of the state and have received favorable reports from many of them who tuned in on the Fancy Dress Ball program last night. The reception was splendid and the whole broadcast sounded very "peppy," and I am sure created a very favorable impression. I am enclosing clipping of the broadcast from a local newspaper.—H. ST. G. T. CARMICHAEL, Kyrock, Ky.

I am enclosing a few tear sheets from Southern California newspapers mentioning last night's broadcast. There were several others but I could not find them in the files. We had a bad break here as KHJ, the local Columbia station, had a commercial program on at that hour which it said could not be changed. However, all the other Pacific Coast stations of the Columbia system seemed to have had the program and I am sure many of the brethren enjoyed it.

My own experience was a bit odd. I tuned in a San Diego station and everything was o. k. for fifteen minutes when it had a local commercial program and cut "us" off. Fortunately the announcement of the next number had been given before San Diego retired so we turned back the dial until we found a station playing that piece and "sure nuff" we were back on the campus again. When the program was over and the station announcement made we were surprised to hear the latter portion of the broadcast came to us from Louisville, Ky. We thought we were listening to Salt Lake City. So the Bell family heard most of it even if we did have to jump almost all the way across the country to do so.—BRIAN BELL, Los Angeles, Calif.

The Fancy Dress Ball broadcast was a striking success. Hats off to the originator! The program came over very distinctly and naturally was thoroughly enjoyed. Of course, the highlight to me—and it must have been to the thousands listening in—was the word of greeting from President Gaines. Rarely have I ever known any man to handle the English language so skillfully.—LOUIS KNOTT KOONTZ, Washington, D. C.

I thoroughly enjoyed the broadcast of Fancy Dress Ball last night and I congratulate those responsible for getting the Columbia System to put on the broadcast. I am sure it must have warmed the heart of every alumnus who was listening in. Being one who loves the place with no less than a passion, it was all I could do to keep the old lump in the throat down when they got to the "Swing."—JOHN BELL TOWILL, Augusta, Ga.

Please allow me to thank you for the lovely radio concert from Doremus gymnasium last night. It was a wonderful pleasure and experience to hear the orchestra play the various dance numbers and the 'Swing.' I also greatly enjoyed the talk of President Gaines and was delighted that he was recovered from his recent throat affection.

After listening to the concert last night, hearing the "Swing" and the applause following same by the guests of the dance, I was indeed proud to be an alumnus of old Washington and Lee University; and feel that I am under many obligations to those who were instrumental in arranging the fine program. I should indeed appreciate it if you would express to Dr. Gaines, whom I met here a few years ago, my appreciation of the privilege that I enjoyed last evening. I was carried back many years almost to the old days when I was a student there. I feel very remiss at times that I did not take my academic degree from the old school and more, that I have done so little for the school since I left.—DR. RUEL E. EBERSOLE, Norfolk, Va.

Am enclosing clippings from our two newspapers and a sample of the postcards I sent out to every alumnus I know of in this section, advertising Fancy Dress.

The program came over great. In my opinion it was a smart idea, that is to say, it furnished a real thrill to all old Washington and Lee men who heard it and also should prove very favorable advertising for the University. Sorry I couldn't get down.—JIM MILBOURNE, Baltimore, Md.

It is my custom to be in bed by nine o'clock, but when Washington and Lee is involved I have to make exceptions, consequently I sat up and listened to every sound from first to last. There is something about Washington and Lee that thrills me like nothing else. There isn't much to jazz over the radio but just the fact that it was coming from Washington and Lee made me sit and listen. It was interesting to hear a new one who was listening in. Being one who loves the strains of the "Swing." It was also most gratifying to hear choice words from Dr. Gaines' lips and to hear his voice sound so clear and strong.

For my part you may say to the Columbia Broadcasting System that they did a fine job and the reception was as perfect as it could have been right on the floor. It was splendid in them to give such a broadcast, and I am sure that every old Washington and Lee man is deeply grateful and thankful. There were notices in all of the New Orleans papers. Nice publicity! The magazine came yesterday and is always welcome.—PETE HAMILTON, New Orleans.

WASHINGTON AND LEE
OFFICIAL CLASS RING

*With your year of Graduation and Degree
Set With Sapphire Stone*

10K SOLID GOLD	$21.20
GOLD OVERLAY	$14.70

L. G. BALFOUR COMPANY
C. S. & C. Division
ATTLEBORO, MASS.

Local Alumni Association Notes

Greensboro

SLEET, RAIN and a little snow almost kept the Piedmont Alumni Association from having a speaker for the Founder's Day meeting at Greensboro, N. C., on January 19.

Dr. Walter A. Flick, professor of education and psychology at the University, was taken ill between Lexington and Roanoke while en route to address the Carolina Club, and at exactly one o'clock the afternoon of January 19 your managing editor volunteered to pinch hit for him, and set out accordingly for Tarheelia. Just beyond Roanoke sleet began falling, most of it sticking to the windshield of the managing editor's car—so thick did the stuff become that ye editor invested in an electric gadget to keep the windshield warm. It worked, else the Piedmont alumni might still be sitting at the O. Henry hotel waiting for someone to show up and give them the lowdown on things at Lexington.

Ye managing editor held up the meeting fifteen minutes, and thought it loyal indeed that anyone would brave the elements that night. But an enthusiastic group attended the dinner, served in the green room of the O. Henry hotel. (Compliments are tossed here to whoever planned that dinner—it was perfect).

Ye managing editor (forgive the repetition) described the Tucker Hall fire, and spent about twenty minutes praising Washington and Lee athletics, giving due note to the coaches guiding the destinies of four Southern conference championship outfits at Washington and Lee.

Dr. Henry Louis Smith, president-emeritus of the University, spoke at the meeting, reminiscing of his term of office here.

Those who attended included:

Mayor Roger W. Harrison of Greensboro, 1899; R. R. Blake, 1912; D. Newton Farnell, Jr., 1924; A. Stacey Gifford, 1924; J. D. Rogers, Jr., 1927; Macon Cracker, 1932; Clarence Woods, 1933; Max Woodcock, 1932; Robert C. Potts (the "Daddy" Potts of football fame who now is with the North Carolina state highway commission), class of 1923; Dr. Smith; and Richard P. Carter, 1929.

Louisville

FOOTBALL Coach Warren E. (Tex) Tilson addressed the annual meeting of the Washington and Lee

Alumni Association in Louisville on Saturday, January 19, at a banquet held at the Brown hotel. More than thirty alumni attended.

H. Ed. Rietze, Jr., was elected president for the coming year, succeeding Arthur Tabb. H. K. Hill, Jr., was elected vice-president, and Robert T. Foree assumed the secretarial duties for the coming year, succeeding Murrel D. Klein.

Professor W. S. Milburn, principal of the Louisville Male High school, gave a brief talk.

Among those present were:

R. P. Hobson, 1917; Greenberry Simmons, 1925; Robert T. Foree, 1927; Edward Matz, 1924; George E. Burks, 1927; J. B. Hill, 1928; E. Ed. Rietze, Jr., 1925; G. R. Smiley, 1902; William L. Hoge, 1906; A. P. Bondurant, 1928; M. Peel Rivers, 1933; Edward R. Scales, 1931; George Mercke, Jr., 1924; Edward W. Dodd, 1926; M. P. O'Sullivan, 1908; Alvin B. Ortner, 1933; Walter F. Williams, 1931; Murrel D. Klein, 1925; Arthur Tabb, 1904; W. E. Tilson, 1925; John J. Davis, 1892; R. A. Bate, Jr., 1928; Joseph J. Kaplan, 1928; Henry K. Hill, 1925; W. F. Glenn, 1925.

Among the visitors were: Robert P. Hobson, Jr., Ticky Scholtz, W. H. Millard, Jr., Dr. C. W. Karaker and Professor W. S. Milburn.

New Orleans

AN ADDRESS on "Robert E. Lee," a talk by one of the great chieftain's soldiers of the Army of Northern Virginia, and several short talks by special guests—to say nothing of the enthusiastic gathering of 36 alumni and fathers of alumni, made a notable occasion of the annual dinner of the New Orleans Alumni Association at Kolb's Restaurant on January 19.

The Olympian Room was decorated in Blue and White, which also was used in the refreshments, and pictures of Lee and the old college lent by "Pete" Hamilton gave an appropriate setting. A telegram from President Francis P. Gaines and a good letter from Cy Young were received with interest. Elmore G. Dufour, president of the local association, to whom much credit is due for the success of the get-together, presided.

Officers for the coming year were elected as follows, after announcement of their choice by F. P. Hamilton of the nominating committee: Norton L. Wisdom 1927, president; O. H. Breidenbach 1911, vice-president; and W. W. Ogden 1923, secretary-treasurer.

O. H. Breidenbach, for the scholarship committee, reported good news from the holder of the scholarship this year, Hepburn Many, and said that the committee was already actively interested in a student for next year's scholarship, as evidenced by the presence of J. Woodruff George and his sons, Woodruff, Jr., and Tabb, both prospective Washington and Lee men.

"I would that we had more men of Lee's type in this time of great need by our country," said Rabbi Louis Binstock, principal speaker of the evening, who is widely known as a scholar and an orator of ability. He was introduced by Dr. H. M. Blain as "one who is especially appropriate for the subject, being a man of the same high ideals as Lee and all alumni of Washington and Lee, who absorbed those ideals in that atmosphere surcharged with sacrificial service."

The speaker based his address on the great biography of Freeman, and after paying a tribute to Lee's genius for leadership, power of personality, and untainted character, he refuted every structure of critics of the great soldier, Christian gentleman, and educator, emphasizing the need now for men who are great leaders, wise followers, and men actuated by such ideals as are exemplified in the inspiring life of Robert E. Lee.

Lee as the soldier's idol was described briefly by D. W. Pipes, Sr., the father of three Washington and Lee alumni, and a soldier in the Army of Northern Virginia for three years of the war. He told of actual instances that came under his observation of the affectionate interest shown by the great commander in the humblest of privates, and the almost incredible inspiration of his presence to the soldiers.

Especially gratifying was the testimony of John L. Many, Jr., conveying the enthusiasm of his son over the institution, the faculty, and the student body, and his own gratitude to the association for having enabled him to send his son to Washington and Lee. He said he had sent three sons to college, each to a different university, and he had no hesitation in placing Washington and Lee as his choice if he had a dozen more.

The excellence of the old college was set forth in an interesting way by Dr. J. E. Winston, an alumnus of other institutions, who declared that he hoped to be able to send his young son there.

With an exhortation by the president-elect urging co-operation in the activities of the coming year, and the chorus of "The Swing" led by him, the meeting adjourned.

Alumni in attendance were:

Rev. W. M. Alexander, 1884; Douglas S. Anderson, 1890; Hugh M. Blain, 1894; O. H. Breidenbach, 1911; H. M. Butler, 1912; Elmore G. Dufour, 1923; Benjamin C. Eastwood, 1929; W. H. Fields, Jr., 1930; W. K. Gladney, 1928; W. M. Gray, 1921; W. M. Gurley, 1912; F. P. Hamilton, 1899; George Hill, 1876; H. G. Jahncke, 1930; E. A. Nabors, 1926; W. W. Ogden, 1923; B. Palmer Orr, 1920; W. Fort Pipes, 1910; Randolph Pipes, 1912; J. S. Beasley, Jr., 1931; Dr. M. H. Kaplan, 1930; W. F. Smith, 1926; Dr. L. Von Meysenbug, 1913; W. K. Taliaferro, 1925; John M. Wisdom, 1925; Norton L. Wisdom, 1927; W. B. Wisdom, 1921; E. Leigh McLellan, 1933; Robert Ewing, 1919.

Huntington

THE WASHINGTON AND LEE alumni association of the tri-state region gathered in Huntington on January 21 for a banquet-meeting at the Frederick hotel and unanimously elected Judge A. Wendell Mann of Ashland, Ky., president for the coming year.

Other officers, all named unanimously like Judge Mann, were chosen as follows: George Keller, Huntington, vice-president; Joe W. Dingess, Huntington, secretary.

Judge Mann made a talk in which he included a report of efforts being made by the Ashland members to get new students for the University, and described what was being done to assist some men already at Washington and Lee. George Keller was appointed a committee of one to see all members and obtain contributions for the association's use in aiding needy students at the University from this area.

Joe Fitchett read to the alumni a bulletin from the University under date of January 17, 1935, announcing a broadcast from Doremus gymnasium on Friday night, January 25. He also brought to the attention of those present the fact that committees had been appointed in connection with the rebuilding of Tucker Hall, which burned recently, and moved that this chapter go on record as expressing sympathy to the University for the financial loss sustained, and expressing willingness of full-co-operation with the committees.

The president appointed the following committee to draft such a resolution, forwarding a copy of it to the proper authorities:

W. T. Lovins, chairman; A. W. Mann; Philip P. Gibson; J. W. Fitchett.

Judge Mann and Mr. Gibson expressed themselves as feeling that the association should be of more active service, especially in securing likely young men as students for the University from this section, especially from Huntington, and a committee was appointed to function in this respect as follows:

W. Roy Campbell, chairman; R. Lee Beuhring; Houston Laird.

Attention was called to the recent deaths of the fathers of T. J. C. Mayo and R. Lee Beuhring, and a committee was appointed to draft proper resolutions.

The following were present:

E. W. MacCorkle, 1874, president, of Ashland, Ky.; S. S. McNeer, vice-president, 1916; J. W. Fitchett, secretary, 1924; Dr. W. P. Hooper, 1908; William Carey Barker, of Lynchburg, Va., 1910; Philip P. Gibson, 1913; Houston Laird, 1924; R. L. Beuhring, 1914; Joe McVay, 1925; John Dingess, 1921; Roy W. Campbell, 1919; Russell Buskirk, 1922; Vickers Watts, 1924; George Keller, 1907; W. T. Lovins, 1914; Judge I. P. Baer, 1906; A. W. Mann, of Ashland, Ky., 1916.

Chicago

THE annual dinner of the Chicago Alumni was held the evening of Founders' Day, Saturday, January 19, at the University club of Chicago. About twenty men were present. Reuben A. Lewis, 1916, presided as toastmaster and introduced among other speakers Edward A. O'Neal, 1898, Dr. Herman P. Davidson, 1913, Col. Elijah Funkhouser, 1893, and Philip P. Page, 1908.

The main address was made by Frank J. Gilliam, 1917, dean of students, who represented the administration of the university. Dean Gilliam's talk dealt with some of the distinctive phases of the program that the university is attempting to carry out, with special emphasis on the personnel work.

Plans were discussed looking to more active cooperation with the university in the matter of securing the right type of students from the Chicago section and to the possibility of the alumni's sponsoring a gathering next year in conjunction with the Southern Society.

Those attending included Edward A. O'Neal, 1898, Philip P. Page, 1908, Reuben A. Lewis, Jr., 1916, Dr. Herman P. Davidson, 1913, Col. Elijah Funkhouser, 1893, Jerry E. Grashorn, 1930, William Cooke Mulligan, 1931, George W. Schnath, 1931, Allen D. Symonds, 1933, William F. Symonds, 1933, Howerton Gowen, 1930, and John A. Culley, 1933.

Lynchburg

THIRTY-THREE Washington and Lee alumni gathered for a banquet at the Virginian hotel in Lynchburg on January 19 and heard Dr. Robert H. Tucker, dean of the University, discuss problems and affairs of their alma mater. The meeting was called by most of those attending "perhaps the most satisfactory gathering of alumni ever held in Lynchburg."

Brief talks also were made by James L. Caskie, member of the board of trustees of Washington and Lee; by Samuel L. Williams; and by Mosby G. Perrow, Jr.

Thomas W. Gilliam, 1919, was elected president of the group; Henry B. Glass, 1915, was chosen vice-president; and A. L. Burger was named secretary and treasurer.

Hugh M. Witt, of the Richmond alumni chapter, attended the dinner as a guest.

Those present included:

W. K. Allen 1894; R. Max Barker 1922; E. M. Bristow 1915; H. S. Bryant 1920; A. L. Burger 1902; James R. Caskie 1906; J. S. Caskie 1925; Fred M. Davis 1914; Thomas W. Gilliam; Henry B. Glass 1915; Powell Glass 1907; Robert C. Glass 1908; Richard Gooch 1930; Reid E. Graves 1924; Thomas Graves 1934; Don P. Halsey 1896; Thomas S. Kirkpatrick 1913; William T. MacLeod 1911; F. W. McWane 1913; Maurice Moore 1895; M. G. Perrow, Jr., 1897; Ashton Powell 1922; D. R. Phelps 1903; R. D. Ramsey 1912; Cornelius Roberts 1894; O. C. Rucker, Jr., 1919; W. T. Spencer, Jr., 1921; Aubrey E. Strode 1894; Basil G. Watkins 1926; S. H. Williams 1914; C. B. Wiltshire 1913; D. E. Witt 1902; R. C. Wood 1921.

Attention Alumni

THIS IS THE FIRST TIME IT HAS BEEN POSSIBLE TO GET A
COAT-OF-ARMS OF THE UNIVERSITY

Price Postpaid

framed $2.00; unframed $1.00

As the supply is limited, send in your order early to

LEE MUSEUM

Washington and Lee University

Lexington, Virginia

Class Notes

1891

J. M. FULTON is practicing law in Richmond, Virginia, with offices in the Mutual Building.

MONTE J. GOBLE is a general business consultant with offices in the Union Trust Building, Cincinnati, O.

1892

JOHN J. DAVIS succeeds William Reynolds Vance as class agent for 1892. He is practicing law in Louisville, Kentucky, with offices in the Kentucky Home Life Building. He has a son in college.

CHARLES DUDLEY BARKSDALE is practicing medicine in Sutherland, Virginia.

EDWIN LUTHER GREEN is professor of Greek in the University of South Carolina at Columbia.

1893

ROBERT WARE JOPLING is a minister, the first Presbyterian church, Lancaster, S. C.

ANDREW HENRY WOODS is a professor at the University of Iowa, Iowa City.

THOMAS WALKER GILMER is practicing law at Bay Minette, Alabama.

1894

JAMES BELL BULLITT is teaching in the medical department of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill.

JAMES U. GOODE is judge of the civil court, Norfolk, Virginia. Judge Goode is remembered as a star baseball player at Washington and Lee.

1895

GEORGE RUTHERFORD HUNT is practicing law in Lexington, Kentucky.

BRIAN JARED COOK is a planter at Bovina, Miss.

1896

ROBERT A. BAKER is practicing law in Jacksonville, Florida, and is president of the local alumni association.

MARION WALLACE RIPPY is located at 333 W. 56th St., New York, N. Y.

1897

THOMAS HENRY WEBB is with the state road commission, Austin, Texas.

WILLIAM BROWN MORRISON is president of the Oklahoma Presbyterian College for Girls, Durant, Oklahoma.

1898

EDWARD WARING WILSON is president of the local alumni association of Philadelphia, Pa.

W. A. ADAIR has for many years been treasurer of Rockbridge county, Lexington, Va.

DR. R. E. EBERSOLE is a physician in the Marine hospital, Norfolk, Virginia.

1899

JAMES A. McCLURE is minister of the First Presbyterian church, St. Petersburg, Florida.

SAM PRICE is a member of the firm of Price and McWhorter, Attorneys and Counsellors at Law, Lewisburg, West Virginia.

COL. ARTHUR (BUCK) SHIPP is a graduate of V. M. I., as well as an alumnus of Washington and Lee. He is always generous and loyal to both his alma maters, and keeps up warm friendships with his classmates.

A. SEDDON JONES, JR., is division sales manager of the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Corporation. He lives on his farm in Hanover county, Va. His post office is Ellerson.

1900

LINWOOD R. HOLMES is with the Furness-Withy Steamship Line, with offices at Public Ledger Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

WILLIAM PINKERTON OTT is professor of mathematics at the University of Alabama.

1901

HAMPTON HALLEY LISLE is living on Leestown pike near Lexington, Kentucky.

NATHAN LYNN BACHMAN is United States Senator from Tennessee.

1902

The Rt. Rev. WILLIAM G. McDOWELL is bishop of Alabama, Birmingham, Ala.

RICHARD ROSCOE PHELPS is an Episcopal minister at London, Ohio.

1903

DAVID VANCE GUTHRIE is at the State University, Baton Rouge, La.

ROBERT W. MCCRUM is with the state highway department, Macon, Georgia.

1904

K. I. MCKAY is a member of the law firm of McKay, Withers and Ramsey, Citrus Exchange Bank Building, Tampa, Florida.

J. B. AKERS is an engineer with the Southern Railway system, Washington, D. C.

LYLE M. MOFFETT has spent his life in foreign and home missionary work. He is now located at McDowell, West Virginia.

HUGH S. LARRICK is a realtor, 1141 Lincoln Road, Miami Beach, Florida.

1905

T. DWIGHT SLOAN is superintendent of the New York Post Graduate Medical School and Hospital. He is married and has a family of three children, the oldest of whom graduated from the Friends' School in New York last June. He spent fourteen years in China teaching medicine and practiced in the Nanking hospital and in the Peking Union Medical College hospital. He returned to the United States to take charge of Lakeside hospital in Cleveland in 1926 and in 1928 took up his present work.

JOHN WEST ADDISON, since leaving Lexington in 1907, has been in government service most of the time. In 1920 he married a Bedford, Virginia, girl. He is with the Federal Trade Commission.

1906

GEORGE H. (RED) CAPERTON has moved from Charleston, West Virginia, to Staunton. He is working for the New River Coal company.

B. E. Clark is district engineer in charge of the Oklahoma City office of the Portland Cement Association. After leaving college he was in coal mining in Kentucky, then spent a period in Mexico and arrived in Oklahoma in 1909. He has a wife and three children. He is also interested in real estate and oil production.

B. J. MAYER is a member of the firm of Lovejoy and Mayer, La Grange, Georgia.

1907

DAVID H. HILL was with the board of water supply of New York City for the first ten years of his working career on the construction of the Catskill aqueduct. Since the world war has been with the Merritt, Chapman & Scott Corporation, 17 Battery Place, New York City—ship salvers, marine heavy hoisting and general submarine construction work, and works with the construction division of the company. He made a trip to Lexington in the fall of 1931 and everything looked familiar after a lapse of 25 years, he declared. He has a son who is a freshman at Duke.

JAMES R. SIMMONDS is a member of the law firm of Simmonds and Bowman of Johnson City, Tenn.

JOHN W. FLANNAGAN, JR., is congressman from the ninth district of Virginia.

DAVID S. McDONALD is in partnership with his brother John A. MacDonald, 1914, in the practice of law in Durant, Oklahoma. David has a son who is a senior in the law school this year.

DR. FRANCIS G. JONES of 478 Peachtree St., Atlanta, Georgia, has been in poor health for some time, but is now almost recovered. He is practicing in Atlanta.

EDGAR STRUSS is a member of the firm of Struss-Henderson-DuBard, Inc., "Improved Permanent Floors and Walls," in Tampa, Florida.

1908

MONTAGUE I. LIPPITT is in charge of Jefferson county relief administration at Charles Town, West Virginia.

JAMES M. O'BRIEN recently formed a partnership for the practice of law with Donald S. Dundas, under the name of O'Brien & Dundas, with offices at 817 South Western avenue, Los Angeles, California.

C. W. STREIT is with the Southern Cement Company in Birmingham, Alabama. He recalls "the old days" at Lexington in letters to the alumni office.

CLIFTON A. WOODRUM is congressman from the sixth district of Virginia.

1909

REUBEN RAGLAND is a member of the law firm of Kay, Adams, Ragland & Kurz, Consolidated building, Jacksonville, Florida.

R. ALLEN BROWN is a minister of the Presbyterian church, Havre de Grace, Maryland, having had this pastorate for six years.

1910

B. L. WOOD is a Presbyterian minister at Buchanan, Virginia.

J. J. BARRETT is an attorney-at-law, with offices in the Bank of America Building, San Diego, California.

GEORGE L. COYLE, of Coyle & Richardson, Charleston, West Virginia, is an enthusiastic and helpful alumnus, always responding to the calls made upon him by the alumni office.

"TUBBY" DERR is with the Marietta Paint and Color Company of Marietta, Georgia.

WYATT C. HEDRICK is president of the Wyatt C. Hedrick Co., Inc., firm of architects and engineers of Fort Worth, Texas.

HUGH J. HAGAN, M. D., is practicing his profession in Roanoke, Virginia.

1911

SIDNEY RUDOLPH GRIZZARD is with the National Bank of Commerce, Norfolk, Virginia.

WAYNE ELY was appointed assistant United States attorney in 1920. In September, 1931, he resigned this position and entered private practice. He is a member of the firm of Ely & Ely, Bank of Commerce Building, St. Louis, Mo.

J. TOM WATSON is practicing law in Tampa, Florida, with offices in the Tampa Theatre building.

LEWIS G. COOPER has practiced law in eastern Carolina since 1913, with the exception of the time spent in the army during the war. He lives in Greenville, North Carolina.

E. W. BARGER is in the insurance business in Waynesboro, Va.

W. P. GUTHRIE is district communications manager of R. C. A. Communications, Inc., a Radio Corporation of America Subsidiary, with offices at 1112 Connecticut Ave., Washington, D. C.

C. H. ZERKLE is cashier of the Bank of St. Albans, St. Albans, West Virginia. He is married and has two children, Bill and Marjorie. Bill is a "Washington and Lee man" even at the age of five.

JAMES E. GREEVER says "there is a friendship that seems to grow under the fertilizing atmosphere and environment around about Washington and Lee University that exists nowhere else and the friendships formed there are like the honor and glory of George Washington and Robert E. Lee, they grow brighter and stronger with age." He is practicing law at Logan, West Virginia.

1912

"TUCK" HARRISON is in the insurance business in Charlotte, N. C.

BOB HOOD is a baby specialist, practicing in Clarksburg, W. Va.

J. D. RICHARDSON is with the Virginia Public Service Corporation, Clifton Forge, Virginia.

BILL ACKERLY is commonwealth's attorney, Rockbridge county, Lexington, Virginia.

1913

R. R. WITT, Builders' Supply Company, San Antonio, Texas, says that he has been trying to keep step mentally, physically, and financially with what is taking place in Washington, and up to now is a "lap and a half" behind. He regrets that he did not study law "so that he could make a living by advising the other fellow what to do instead of finding himself in a fast-moving current and having to do something himself."

D. EASLEY WAGGONER, vice-president and general manager, United Fidelity Life Insurance Company, Dallas, Texas, is still a bachelor, still vice-president and general manager, and still president of the Dallas Country Club. He says the duties imposed upon him by these varied jobs keep him pretty busy.

R. A. (CAPT. DICK) SMITH is director of athletics at Washington and Lee, a farmer, and a fisherman and hunter of big game on the side.

LEWIS TWYMAN, of the firm of Twyman & McCarthy, Miami, Florida, writes a pleasant letter in praise of the impression made on the Florida alumni by Dr. Gaines at the various meetings in that section last spring. This was Dr. Gaines' first visit to the Florida alumni, and they evidently are entirely behind him and the administration.

L. A. HARPER has been associated with the Virginia Carolina Chemical Corporation, in charge of their plant at New Bern, N. C.—“The Land of Enchanting Waters.” He says the depression is wearing itself out with too much exertion.

1914

SAMUEL H. WILLIAM is a member of the firm of Williams & Harrison, attorneys-at-law. This firm name has recently been changed from Harrison, Long & Williams. Offices are in the Krise building, Lynchburg, Virginia.

1915

REV. JOHN DUDLEY McCREADY is pastor of the First Baptist Church of Demopolis, Alabama.

L. J. ROBBINS is county attorney for DeSoto county, Arcadia, Florida.

TAYLOR H. STUKES is an attorney-at-law in Manning, S. C.

KENELM L. SHIRK is practicing law in Lancaster, Pa.

HOWARD C. STUCK has been with the Piggly Wiggly stores in Jonesboro, Arkansas, for the past eleven years, and is president of the Independent Piggly Wiggly operators.

1916

JIGGS DONAHUE has been coaching football at Western Reserve University in Cleveland, Ohio, for three years. He has three hefty sons—all “football crazy.” It’s in the blood.

SELDON S. McNEER is a member of the law firm of McNeer & Delaney, First Huntington National Bank Building, Huntington, West Virginia.

SAM P. KOHEN says: “In September, 1921, I moved to the wild and woolly state of Texas, concerning which my only knowledge came from such two-gun men as Tex Bryan, Fleming Burk and Rosy Glass. Since coming to Texas I have lived in Dallas, where I have been employed as adjudication officer for the United States Veterans’ Administration. I frequently see Dusty Rhodes, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of Tyler, Texas, and Sidebottom McCord, Dilard Estes, both practicing law in Fort Worth, Buck Bailey of a more recent class, selling insurance for the Travelers in Dallas, and others who from time to time come into the city.”

1917

ADRIAN H. BOYD, after completing his army service, entered the cotton business first as an employe and then on his own account, spending in all about ten years in this work. For the past four years he has served as the manager for the local Merchants Credit Association in Clarksdale, Mississippi.

R. GLENN CRAIG is practicing medicine in San Francisco. His address is Medico-Dental Building, 490 Post St., San Francisco, California.

TOMMY HAMILTON is associate professor of statistics at the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas, College Station, Texas. He has been granted a year’s leave of absence for graduate study toward his Ph.D. degree in economics. He will be at Columbia University, New York.

L. DEWOODY LYLE is practicing law in Pine Bluff, Arkansas.

G. W. KLUTZ is a practicing attorney of Lenoir, North Carolina.

BARMORE P. GAMBRELL has moved from Belton, S. C., and is now practicing law in Atlanta, Ga., with the firm of Arnold, Gambrell & Arnold, with offices in the Hurt building.

J. L. (DUKE) FURNEE is with the Frank Paxton Lumber Company at Kansas City, Kansas. He is vice-president and treasurer.

GUS OTTENHEIMER is in the ladies’ ready-to-wear business, manufacturers, under the firm name of Ottenheimer Bros., at Little Rock, Arkansas.

KEITH C. RICE is a doctor in Atlanta, Ga. He regrets that the Washington and Lee alumni are not better organized there.

J. WITHERS BLAKE is serving his twelfth year as a member of the Florida Methodist Annual Conference in a Florida east coast town of about 5,000 people, just fifteen miles from Daytona Beach. He has a wife and two children, a boy of ten and a girl six. His wife recently has been elected to Phi Beta Kappa at Agnes Scott College, Decatur, Georgia.

T. DEWEY DAVIS is practicing medicine with Dr. Douglas Vanderhoof in Richmond, Virginia. He has a small son who will come to Washington and Lee, he says.

CHARLIE KUPFER is a lawyer in New York, located at 122 East 42nd St.

J. S. HANSEL is mayor of the town of Monterey, one of the most picturesque spots in Virginia. He has two sons who, in time, will be candidates for LL.B. degrees at Washington and Lee. He also has a small daughter.

1918

RAYMOND M. BEAR is with the bureau of aeronautics, Navy department, Washington, D. C.

ARTHUR CROMWELL says: "A flock of years have passed since I left Lexington to become a 'buck' private in the field artillery (I did get a commission) and I am getting grey around the temples and thin on top, but the years spent there are as bright in my memory as though they were yesterday."

JOHN SORRELLS proves to his own satisfaction, and regardless of his scientific training at Washington and Lee, "that blood can be got out of a turnip." He is an executive editor with the Scripps-Howard Newspapers at 230 Park Ave., New York.

1919

ARTHUR M. CROMWELL, formerly of New Orleans, is now at 712 6th Ave., Venice, California.

TOM GILLIAM is cashier of the Lynchburg National Bank & Trust Co., Lynchburg, Virginia. He was recently chosen president of the Lynchburg alumni association.

1920

HAROLD G. ROBERTSON is president of the Liberty Trust Company, of Roanoke, Virginia. After graduating from Washington and Lee he practiced law in Beckley, W. Va., for about a year. He married Amelia Harveycutter of Salem. They have two sons, both of whom are in line to attend Washington and Lee. His home address is Salem, Va.

R. M. HUTCHESON is employed by the Virginia Insurance Rating Bureau as special agent. His work consists of fire insurance rating in the cities of Lynchburg and Roanoke and his headquarters is in the State and City Bank Building in Roanoke. He is deeply interested in Washington and Lee and sends best wishes for the institution and his friends among the alumni.

L. PRESTON COLLINS is living in Marion, Virginia, where he is a juvenile judge, president of the Kiwanis club, and legal representative of the state highway commission, and a number of industrial firms. Pat is married and has one child, but he failed to tell us whether it was Pat or Patricia, so we cannot yet make a reservation at Washington and Lee.

JOHN J. GEORGE is associate professor of political science at Rutgers University, New Brunswick, N. J.

JAMES MAGRUDER WARREN is living in Harrisonburg, Virginia.

From far across the United States at Corvallis, Oregon, comes a letter from Daniel T. Ordeman, who tells us that he returned to Washington and Lee in 1922 for his Master's degree in English. He afterwards taught at Niagara Falls, N. Y., and Woodberry Forest, Virginia, and in 1927 completed his work for his Ph.D. at the University of Maryland. He married Anna Mae Lafferty of Niagara Falls in 1927 and the same year went to Corvallis, Oregon, as assistant professor of English at Oregon State College. They have a two-year old daughter, Ann Dietrich.

WILLIAM E. ARMSTRONG writes: "I entered the Medical College of Virginia in the fall of 1920, after I had completed my pre-dental work at Washington and Lee; graduated in 1924 and have been practicing here (Staunton, Virginia), for eight years. Practiced two years at my home in McDowell, Va. I am married and have a son three years old who is already being groomed for Washington and Lee."

RAMON D. GARCINE, JR., is now located at 329 Lincoln Road, Brooklyn, N. Y. After leaving Lexington he was with the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company in Richmond, Virginia, and was for some time manager of their Richmond commercial office. He decided to study medicine and attended the Medical College of Virginia, graduating in 1929. He is now practicing in Brooklyn, N. Y., is instructor at Long Island College and is on the staff of several public and private institutions. In 1930 he married Katherine Daly of Montrose, Pennsylvania.

CLARENCE J. LIDDELL writes from West Haven, Conn.: "Played one year professional hockey with the New York Americans, then I was appointed athletic director of the New Haven County Home, where I teach boxing, wrestling, hockey, football, baseball, basketball and gymnastics. I am married and have two daughters."

1921

CARLTON E. JEWETT is practicing law in Richmond, Virginia. He is a member of the common council, Madison ward, Richmond.

EDDIE LONG is office manager of the Huntington Publishing Company, Huntington, West Virginia.

MILLING BERNSTEIN is practicing law in Monroe, Louisiana.

H. GRAY FUNKHOUSER is teaching at Exeter Academy, Exeter, N. H.

1922

WILFRED WEBB is a professor in the English department at Augusta Military Academy, Fort Defiance, Virginia, where he has been since 1924. He is married and has two daughters.

R. E. (DICK) SHERRILL is professor in the department of geology at the University of Pittsburgh. He has a boy five years old.

W. H. BARRETT is principal of the Narrows High School, Narrows, Virginia. Was at Church View, Va., for two years; Ivy, Va., four years, and this is his fifth year in the present school. He will complete work for his M. S. degree at the University of Virginia during the summer. Has twenty teachers and 660 pupils under him and they manage to keep him rather busy.

TROY C. MUSSELWHITE, after receiving his A. B. from Washington and Lee, studied law at Harvard, and since that time has been practicing in his home town of Orlando, Florida. He was married about a year ago and paid a short visit to Lexington on his honeymoon.

1923

F. T. PEEPLES is a member of the firm of Kerr & Peeples, lawyers, Dunedin, Florida.

FRANK HURT has for some years been connected with the department of history and political science of Western Maryland College, Westminster, Maryland. After leaving Washington and Lee he went to Virginia and later to Princeton. He taught for a time at the University of North Carolina.

1924

M. P. MATHENEY is practicing law in El Dorado, Arkansas, with offices in the Exchange building. He is married and has two boys, age seven and three.

1927

JAMES M. GARRETT of Red Springs, N. C., is engaged in farming and is secretary and treasurer of the Hoke Lumber Company of Red Springs.

JAMES T. PATE is now assistant superintendent of the Manhattan Eye, Ear, and Throat Hospital in New York City. His address is 210 E. 64th Street, New York, N. Y.

1928

R. E. KEPLER, B. S. in E. E. 1928, has been in Columbia, S. A., for the past five years as a telephone engineer. He is now located in Cali, Columbia; Compania Telefonica del Pacifico.

REED JOHNSTON is working for the Francis I. du Pont Co., in Wilmington and reports five Washington and Lee alumni and one from V. M. I., who live there.

HOWARD BUSOLD says the new alumni plan has put him in touch with other Washington and Lee men. He attends the monthly luncheons in New York and sees many old friends.

FRANK LEVERETT is living in Live Oak, Florida.

1929

JULIUS GARNETT (GUS) BERRY is with his father in the insurance business in Tupelo, Miss., after two years of "not-aimless wandering," he says. Took a boat trip to England, worked on The Nashville Tennessean for a while, and in Houston, Texas, for two years. In Tupelo since January 1, 1933.

CHARLES M. SMITH is director of publicity for the American Institute of Accountants, at 135 Cedar St., New York. Prior to taking up this work he was engaged in newspaper work in New Orleans and Philadelphia.

FRED C. PACE is connected with the advertising department of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass company, in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, where he has been for over a year. Prior to that time he was in the factory of the same company in Newark, N. J., for a year and a half.

GEORGE F. WARTHEN is connected with the legal division of the Aetna Life Affiliated Companies, 10 Prior Street Building, Atlanta, Ga.

LEWIS F. POWELL, JR., has recently become associated with the law firm of Hunton, Williams, Anderson, Gay and Moore, Electric Building, Richmond, Va.

1930

JAMES INGRAM-GILLESPIE has had much illness since leaving Washington and Lee, but is now well again. After leaving school he worked for the Birmingham Post, a Scripps-Howard paper, and spent one winter in Florida. He is now with the city engineer's office of Birmingham, Alabama.

W. VAN GILBERT is an attorney-at-law and registrar of the circuit court, Athens, Alabama.

JOHN H. NELSON has been teaching in the Junior high school at Danville, Virginia, for four years. He is married and has a little girl one year old.

FRED SWINK is a practicing attorney with Swink & Fentress, Norfolk, Virginia. He is nautically inclined—swims, still has his cruiser, and last year got a Moth Class sail boat for racing. That class is limited to eleven feet over all with seventy-two square feet of mainsail. Says it frequently gives him swimming practice.

NED WADDELL has gotten his degree in medicine from the Medical School at the University of Virginia—but says he is not a “Wahoo.” He is now an interne at the Cincinnati General Hospital.

THOMAS D. SHUMATE thinks he “graduated from the greatest university in the world.” Was married on August 10, 1932, and has a baby girl.

SHUFORD R. NICHOLS has been in the cotton business since leaving school, buying and selling spots on his own account. Also operates a gin and assists in managing part of his father's business. Has been back to Finals twice—1931 and 1932.

GRAHAM (SNORTER) MORISON is practicing law in Bristol, Virginia, with the firm of Morison, Morison & Rouse.

HUBERT L. ECHOLS is with the United States Department of Agriculture, office of the solicitor, Acquisition division, Staunton, Virginia.

1931

DAVID MCKAY is with the sales promotion department of N. B. C., in San Francisco. He lives at 1070 Green Street, San Francisco, California.

WILLIAM E. FULWILER is “merchandising” in Buchanan, Virginia.

JACK HARDWICK is with the Guaranty Trust Co., of New York.

STUART SANDERS, II., is in business with his uncle in Richmond, Virginia. He is secretary of the local Richmond alumni association. His address is 1207 W. Franklin Street.

1932

JAMES D. SPARKS is practicing law in Monroe, La.

BILLY HOYT is doing graduate work at Hopkins toward his Ph.D.

RAN SHIELDS has spent two years at the Harvard Medical School.

MARTIN P. BURKS is a member of a newly organized firm of lawyers composed of S. King Funkhouser, Randolph G. Whittle and himself. Their offices are in the Colonial-American Building, Roanoke, Va.

W. S. BURGESS is doing experimental and research work with the Burgess Chemical Company, at Benton Harbor, Michigan.

KEMPER JENNINGS is employed by the United States Geological Survey at DeFuniak Springs, Florida.

GENE MARTIN is an accountant with the Federal Land Bank of Baltimore.

LYMAN C. HARRELL, JR., attorney at law, Emporia, Virginia, is superintendent of a Sunday School and president of the local cotillion club.

WAYNE H. MATHIS has been made a member of the law firm of Covey, Mathis and Covey, of Peoria, Illinois. After taking his LL. B. here in 1932 he was admitted to the Illinois bar association the following October. He became affiliated with the Covey firm in 1932. He has been active in Y. M. C. A. work, was wrestling instructor at the Y. M. C. A. and president of the Young Men's Council at the same institution. He is also a member of the Toastmasters' Club of Peoria and a lecturer on business law on the Y. M. C. A. educational program.

1933

J. P. (PECK) WALKER, JR., has managed to have a job ever since leaving Washington and Lee and now is satisfactorily located with the Georgia Ice Company in Savannah, Georgia, he says.

GEORGE STROUSE, JR., has hung out his shingle on the Shannon Building, Norwich, Connecticut—attorney-at-law.

HUBY NASH has been working for the brokerage firm of Post and Flagg, 49 Broad Street, New York. He is located at Spartansburg, S. C.

T. K. LAIRD is interning at the Johns Hopkins Medical School. His address is 520 N. Broadway, Baltimore, Md.

BILL GABB is at 571 Monroe Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

EBEN JACKSON is at 20 Poplar Street, Danvers, Massachusetts.

E. ROGER GRISWOLD landed a job with the Panama Pacific Lines after leaving school, and made two trips through the Panama Canal to California; was transferred to the United States Liner “Manhattan” and had the opportunity of visiting Germany. Is now in the advertising business with Kenyon & Eckhardt in New York City. His home address is 36 South Munn Avenue, East Orange, N. J.

GEORGE STOUT is at 42½ South Marshall St., Pontiac, Michigan.

BILL FLOWERS is working for his father in the Flowers Baking Co., wholesale manufacturers of quality bread, at Thomasville, Georgia.

1934

JESSE C. LEIGH is with the Home Owners' Loan Corporation. His address is 1129 Edwards Road, Hyde Park, Cincinnati, Ohio.

CLAUDE A. LAVARRE is with the Singer Sewing Machine Company, Edificir "La Auxiliar" Casilla 1460, Lima, Peru.

In Memoriam

DR. JOHN M. KENNEDY, veteran Knoxville physician, died January 24, 1935. Dr. Kennedy was an alumnus of the University of Tennessee as well as of Washington and Lee, and received his degree in medicine in Philadelphia. Dr. Kennedy attended Washington and Lee in 1865, 1866, and 1867.

McCRUM'S

DRUG STORE

FLOWER SHOP

SODA FOUNTAIN

BUS TERMINAL

* * * * *

Where Students, Alumni, and Their Friends Get Together to Enjoy the Best of Ice Cream, Toasted Sandwiches, and Fountain Drinks

Boley's Book Store

HENRY BOLEY, MANAGER

Lexington, Virginia

SPECIAL

Biographies of Lee and Jackson

(Prices on Application)

ACTUAL PHOTOGRAPHS

General Robert E. Lee, size 7x 9, prepaid..... $1.50

General Robert E. Lee, size 9x13, prepaid..... 3.00

Stonewall Jackson, size 7x9, prepaid..... 1.50

Campus Views, size 7x9, prepaid..... 1.50

Money Order or Check should accompany order

Virginia Smokeless Coal Company

Exclusive Miners and Shippers of
JEWEL POCAHONTAS COAL

Bluefield, West Virginia

Correspondence from Washington and Lee men about the use of coal either upon large contracts or for domestic consumption can be addressed to anyone of the three officers below. If interested in the technical side ask for special booklet.

Geo. W. St. Clair
Class of 1891

C. R. Brown, Jr.,
Class of 1916

Huston St. Clair
Class of 1922

Professional Directory

This directory is published for the purpose of affording a convenient guide to Washington and Lee alumni of the various professions who may wish to secure reliable correspondents of the same profession to transact business at a distance, or of a special professional character. Alumni of all professions who by reason of specialty or location are in a position to be of service to the alumni of the same profession are invited to place their cards in this directory.

Gibson Witherspoon

Attorney-at-Law
204-208 Lawyers Building
Meridian, Mississippi

Philip P. Gibson

Attorney-at-Law
Marcum and Gibson
First National Bank Building
Huntington, W. Va.

Elwood H. Seal

Seal and Dice
General practice in the courts of the District of Columbia and Federal Departments
Associate Income Tax Specialists
Tower Bldg., Washington, D. C.

William A. Hyman

Counsellor-at-Law
100 William Street
New York

E. C. Caffrey

1909
Court House
Hackensack, N. J.

Carlton D. Dethlefsen

Attorney-at-Law
Suite 916 Nevada Bank Bldg.
14 Montgomery Street
San Francisco, California

Woodruff and Ward

Bruce F. Woodruff, 1916
Wm. A. Ward, Jr., 1930
Attorneys-at-Law
928 Healey Building
Atlanta, Georgia

James R. Caskie

1909
Attorney-at-Law
Peoples Bank Building
Lynchburg, Virginia

John H. Tucker, Jr.

1910
Tucker and Mason
Law Offices
Commercial National Bank Bldg.
Shreveport, Louisiana

Edmund D. Campbell

1918-1922
Attorney-at-Law
Douglass, Obear, Morgan and
Campbell
Southern Building
Washington, D. C.

Laurence Claiborne Witten, 1910

General Agent
Department of Southern Ohio
Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company
1507 Union Trust Building, Cincinnati, Ohio

Washington and Lee, Virginia, Cincinnati, Yale, Harvard, Ohio State, Brown, Columbia, Miami, Wisconsin, and Pennsylvania are represented in this Agency. There are usually one or two openings for exceptionally good college men. Applications from Washington and Lee Alumni have the preference.

- take it from me
Chesterfields are Milder

- take it from me
Chesterfields Taste Better

