University and Alumni—"A New Partnership"

(THE PRESIDENT'S PAGE)

IN A CHRISTMAS letter to our alumni, hurriedly summarizing developments in our recent past, I emphasized briefly a new relationship between the University and the alumni. This interpretation of the status of alumni work and alumni response has already found acceptance in many of the farsighted institutions of the nation. I am confident that the endorsement of the plan by the University Board and the Alumni Board means the beginning of a new era for us.

This "new partnership," as it has been defined, rests upon two basic convictions.

The first conviction is that a college has a continuing obligation to its students, when they are alumni as well as when they are residents of the campus. The mere act of graduation does not dissolve this obligation. The obligation is manifold, variable. It begins with a duty of keeping informed as to the careers of all alumni, includes services of recommendations and counsel, reaches the possibility of fortifying the cultural and spiritual life of the alumnus by keeping him constantly identified with a vital cultural and spiritual agency, his own Alma Mater. The alumni secretary is the regularly authorized University official, responsible for the projection and the maintenance of these functions.

The second conviction, and this is close indeed to the heart of the new interpretation, is that whatever aid the alumni may bring, they wish to bring directly to the institution itself, probably in the modes and for the ends that engage authentically their own enthusiasms, but still directly to the strengthening of the institution itself.

Let's be specific about the change. When the 1941 class-agent program is launched, for example, one purpose of that effort will be, as always, to gather every possible bit of information about the alumni. The former students will, however, be invited this year as in past years to make such contribution of cash as may seem possible for them to give. But not one penny of such contributions will go to the expense of this particular endeavor or to the general expenses of the alumni office. Every penny will go to Washington and Lee.

But the alumnus will be invited to contribute to any one of a number of definite purposes, these ends to be selected by an Alumni Committee from a list submitted by the University officials. It is hoped that the items included will be sufficiently varied to engage the attention at one point or another of every alumnus.

Let us assume—and the list for this year has not been determined—that one item would be completing the Chemistry Building; the scientifically-minded alumni might find that thought appealing. Another item would provide for the development of our new intra-mural fields; alumni interested in physical training might respond to that suggestion. Another item might be furnishing one of the special rooms in the new library, another might be providing for a lectureship on a particular theme, another might be sustaining the new Law Review. The list could be indefinitely extended. Of course, every alumnus will be given the privilege of making an unrestricted contribution which will go to the central budget, or for scholarships.

I do not mean to imply that this class-agent plan—a consistent and, we hope, a reasonable system for concrete support from former students—is the only way by which alumni may come to the aid of their Alma Mater. One of the most important methods of assistance is the matter of interesting the right kind of boy in Washington and Lee. That this method is now yielding notable results is attested by the fact, which I have previously mentioned, that nearly one-fourth of our present freshman class were influenced to come to Washington and Lee by alumni—not counting immediate members of these boys' families.

At the risk of tiresome repetition, I wish to give emphasis to this point. Your Alma Mater seems to have

The Thirty-Fifth Fancy Dress Ball

IN OUR rather elderly way, we are still distressed by the thought of a time when the energetic young men who annually produce the Washington and Lee Fancy Dress Ball may run out of ideas for a historical Theme. After all, recorded history covers a period of only three thousand years or so, and most of it has already been used pretty thoroughly in our past thirty-five dance-sets. Imagine the situation if we were some time reduced to a Cave Man Ball! Who would go as the ichthyosaurus, and what might some of the costumes be?

Anyhow we submit that the signs of this approaching catastrophe might be found this year when definite historical events were abandoned in favor of the timeless New Orleans Mardi Gras.

But time or no time, you may be sure that our Mystic Krewe of Mirth this year was outdoing New Orleans not to mention all previous Fancy Dress efforts, in a dance that will go down in history. (There is a thought—a Fancy Dress Ball based on the historical theme of a Fancy Dress Ball—and we will sell it to the committee for a nominal consideration!)

One thing we can say about the "Rex" Ball (for that was technically the title of this year's dance) is that it added to student education—and after all, what else is a college for? For example, we discover from the material disseminated by the young man in charge of publicity, that the word "carnival" is of Latin origin and means literally, "farewell to meat," hence giving the true reason for Mardi Gras which is a final spree before the fast of Lent. "Mardi Gras" itself means "fat Tuesday" and is the day before the long, lean weeks that follow Ash Wednesday.

Furthermore, our youthful expert points out, the original New Orleans Mardi Gras burst out rather spontaneously in 1827 when some young men who had studied in France simply couldn't restrain their pre-Lenten joy.

Other things we learned were that the real Mardi Gras lasts from after Christmas until Ash Wednesday, the Rex Ball being only the climax of a long series of celebrations; that the first parades were held in Mobile in 1831; that the so-called Mystic Krewes date from 1857, and that King Rex himself—Lord of Misrule—was created for the entertainment of the Grand Duke Alexis Romanoff Alexandrovitch when he visited New Orleans in 1872 and heard played especially for him, the song "If Ever I Cease to Love," which is still the theme of Mardi Gras and was of the 1941 Fancy Dress Ball.

In true Washington and Lee style, all these details and many more were incorporated perfectly into the procedure of the big midwinter dance. The only two missing features, it would appear, were New Orleans itself, which refused to be moved; and a change in the calendar which likewise stuck to January 31. For the first, however, was substituted ingenious decoration, and for the second, an authentic spirit of joy which attends the Mardi Gras season and that is more essential than the date.

As to the decorations, the gym was turned into a typical New Orleans ballroom, chiefly decorated in green, yellow and purple, traditional for Mardi Gras; but specializing in loud colors throughout. The south end of the hall was covered by a huge, laughing mask whose mouth was big enough to make an entrance door for the members of the figure. The end of the gymnasium where the coaches' offices are, was made to represent a scene from the Old French quarter of New Orleans, complete with patios and wrought-iron balconies.

To make the costuming harmonize with the scene, the student body was divided into four "Krewes" and costumed accordingly. Krewes are secret societies organized for the purpose of adding to the gaiety of Mardi Gras; and the four Krewes chosen for this occasion were: the Mystic Krewe of Mirth, consisting of harlequins, jesters, Pierrots, etc.; the Mystic Krewe of Osiris, appearing as Orientals; the Mystic Krewe of Romany (gypsies); and the Mystic Krewe of the Merry Monarchs, representing such characters as Charles II, Louis XIV, Henry VIII and Lorenzo the Magnificent.

The officers, led by the President of Fancy Dress as King Rex, Lord of Misrule, for whom a throne was provided, were dressed as Henry VIII with Catherine of Aragon; Louis XIV and Madame Du Barry; Antony and Cleopatra; Falstaff and friend; Ali Baba and Scheherazade, (poor Scheherazade accompanied by a creature of her imagination!); the Vagabond King and Queen; old King Cole and Queen (the latter being heard of, we suspect, for the first time at this gathering); and the King and Queen of Gypsies. The aces seem to have been withdrawn from the pack, and jacks were good for openers.

So much for the visual element. As to the sound-effects, you heard them, or if you did not, you missed a splendid broadcast, particularly featuring one of Dr. Gaines' excellent speeches made directly to you. The music, as is well known, was played by the incomparable

Benny Goodman, with his old clarinet and his new band. Goodman also performed at the ODK formal Saturday night, while the Junior Prom Thursday evening was entertained by Maestro Charlie Barnet. Miss Helen Forrest sang for the company, and dancers from the Floyd Ward School of Dancing in Lynchburg presented two dances, one in which a Nubian slave, a messenger from Illyria, presented three gifts to King Rex and the Lady of Misrule (Queen Regina perhaps); the other a "Coq d'Or" number.

It seems significant that two big broadcasting companies were vying this year for the privilege of broadcasting Fancy Dress. The way in which this event has grown from Miss Annie White's inspiration in 1907 to a social event of national importance in 1941 is a credit to the college, and especially to all of those thirty-five classes of alumni who have helped to make it what it is.

It was a great week-end as always. If the participants ever get over it, they will go back to school, which reopened officially on February 3; but, we suspect, won't get going until a week before exams in May. After that will come Finals. And we hope all of you who missed Fancy Dress, and all of you who didn't, will be there.

Another Varsity Show Aids Charity

ONE FEATURE of a small college in a small town which we have always noticed and are sure you have too is that the student body—as avid for gossip as any small community—does most of its gossiping about the faculty and enjoys ridiculing that supposedly august body on all occasions. The Sigma Litany, which was a manifestation of this tendency, had to be squelched a few years ago when its ribaldry went out of bounds, but the custom was sure to break out again in some form or other; and the new form seems to be the now-annual "Faculty Follies" in which the professors take part in a beauty contest, to the delight of all, except, for the contestants.

The Varsity Show Recruits in Training

The show, "One for the Money," was not unlike last year's "W & L 'Zapoppin'" in that all musical and dramatic talent in school was employed to its fullest. The "Southern Collegians" orchestra and the Glee Club both performed; there were feminine singers and dancers from Southern Sem; there were athletes dressed up as Red Cross Nurses; there was a skit in which a Washington and Lee student became a draftee at an army camp where he was trained by a V.M.I. man; and of course there was the poor old faculty, being girlish for the benefit of charity. The show poured $100 cash into the pockets of the Red Cross and the Monogram Club,

Training for Foreign Service

WASHINGTON AND LEE alumni overseas, particularly the men of an older generation, may perhaps envy the educational experience of the undergraduates of today who are training for foreign service. In the classroom and on the campus (especially before tests and examinations) one finds young students discussing the significance and complexities of consular invoices, bills of exchange, ocean freight rates, neutrality laws, the rights of American citizens abroad, Oriental-American diplomatic relations, British democracy, Latin American problems and policies, foreign banking systems, international organizations and agencies, ports and terminal facilities, world politics and diplomacy. To the uninitiated ear, such topics of conversation may sound like the proverbial jargon of Babylon, but to the modern undergraduate it is serious business, a part of a well integrated course of study that is training him for his life's work in foreign trade or government service overseas.

About ten years ago the need of definite training for students interested in a foreign career was recognized and studied by two faculty members—Professor John Higgins Williams, who had had two years of experience in the Department of State and who had been American Vice Consul in Ceylon in 1924-27, and Professor M. Ogden Phillips, who had worked in the Export Department of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company in 1924-25 and who later served as Economic Adviser to the United States Maritime Commission. As a result of their study and recommendations, basic courses in economics, commerce, political science, history, and modern languages were combined into a group of studies known as the "Foreign Service Group," which was inaugurated by the School of Commerce and Administration in 1933.

Without any attempt to describe curricular requirements in detail, it may be noted that students who elect the Foreign Service course of studies enroll in the School of Commerce as sophomores but do not begin to specialize until their junior year. All students must take a third year of foreign language, and the better ones are permitted to enroll in conversational Spanish, French, or German.

Of special interest to the young man who hopes to enter exporting, importing, ocean shipping, branch banking, or some other line of foreign business are such courses as Money and Banking, World Resources and Industries, Ocean Trade and Transportation, Foreign Trade Theory and Practice, Banking Problems, Investments, Public Utilities, and Economic Geography of North America and of South America. For the student who aspires to a career in government service abroad are courses in American Diplomatic History, International Relations, International Law, Governments of Europe, European History 1814-1914, and World War and Reconstruction. Next year new courses dealing with Latin American history and government may be offered. Thus, while time marches on, the University keeps pace with curricular changes designed to meet the needs of her sons who go forth into a rapidly changing world.

Today there are many Washington and Lee alumni who have achieved distinguished success in the broad fields of diplomacy and world trade. Some have been unable to return to the campus in years. To the alumni scattered along the world's far-flung diplomatic and commercial frontiers, we send greetings:

reached the point at which it does not have to worry about the number of applicants. But it is just as deeply concerned as it ever was, I can assure you, as to the quality of applicants. This is the factor that, certainly as much as any other one thing, will determine what kind of a school we shall have as the years pass. Alumni can be doubly helpful in suggesting this institution to the proper boys, and then in helping the institution evaluate the boys who do apply.

As a stimulus to this end, the Trustees renewed and enlarged the time-honored alumni scholarships. They are now valued at $250 a year, payable as remission of tuition; and they are awarded by the University to some boy who satisfies our general scholarship requirements and has the recommendation of a regular committee of some chapter as to need, character, and promise of scholastic success. Twenty-five of these scholarships may be in force at any one time, and they are renewable, subject to good performance, for each of the four undergraduate years.

The University budget, and not any basis of endowment, bears the expense represented in the Alumni Scholarships. We should be delighted, of course, if any chapters, or any individual alumni, should establish additional scholarships, available for this proper type of student.

Reading this article over, I fear that I have written it largely from the point of what the alumnus can do for his Alma Mater and have paid scant attention to what the Alma Mater can do for the alumnus. Well, that side of the relationship is a long story, perhaps another story, certainly a valid story. At the present time, to cite one small example, hardly a day passes that we do not aid in preparing credentials for young alumni who wish to relate themselves in one way or another to the program of national defense. But that story will be attempted later.

It is enough to say here that important as is alumni support to any institution, and particularly to our institution, this "new partnership" has not been established by the two Boards with any selfish thought dominant. It is a sincere and we believe a promising effort to strengthen or even to re-create a close intellectual and spiritual fellowship between the University and her sons. The University fervently desires such relationship; and we have a serene confidence that her sons will be happier because of it.

FRANCIS P. GAINES, President

Campus Comment

By KENNETH VAN DE WATER

A NEW YEAR, a new issue of the "Alumni Magazine," and a new batch of items of what's new among the students in Lexington.

Fancy Dress is over, but it will always remain a vivid and pleasurable memory to those who attended. From the student's standpoint, "it was great" and the transforming of Washington and Lee into Mardi Gras town was colorfully quaint.

"One for the Money," the 1940 version of the varsity show, went over in a big way, and the local Red Cross and the Monogram Club were both the recipient of a $100 check.

The bearded playboys of the House of David basketball team visited Doremus Gymnasium a while back, but the Generals' basketeers were not fooled by the abundance of hair, and trounced them soundly by a score of 51 to 36.

Dick Wright, Ring-tum Phi sports columnist and creator of the loudest protests in regard to the athletic discussion, was amazed when he received a letter from Blacksburg making him a "tentative offer" of a five-year contract as head football coach at VPI at $9,000 a year. No one will claim the authorship of the letter, but it was written upon stationery of the Tech Department of Physical Education and the typed signature was, "The Virginia Tech Athletic Association."

The efforts of TKI to secure an "iron lung" for the Lexington hospital have become a reality. The order has been placed, and the machine has arrived. The campus takes its hat off to the biological society for an enthusiastic project well executed.

A student body poll was taken to see if a majority of the men in school would favor the abolition of corsages for dates at all dances of the university. Not enough students wanted to abolish the custom, but 70 per cent desired a change. What happened? A cut-rate price war offset the anti-corsage petitions.

To spice the Fancy Dress issue of the "Southern Collegian," a special set of female writings was included. Dedicated "to the ladies," the section contained articles and verses written by girls of neighboring schools.

"Set 'em up in the other alley" has become the cry of the faculty recently, but in regard to bowling over students, thank goodness. The faculty bowling team is creating quite a name for itself, and holds the record for local clubs. C. Harold Lauck set a team record when he rolled 151. Other members of the team are Larry Watkin, Foster

Mohrhardt, Larkin Farinholt, Raymon Johnson, Cookie Cunningham and Cy Young.

Results of the placement bureau questionnaire sponsored by the Commerce Club show that three-fourths of the junior and senior classes have no positions which they are sure of entering following graduation. More than fifty per cent favored the establishment of a placement bureau, and as a result, the faculty is now considering such a proposition.

The installation of 105 parking meters has been begun by the town of Lexington and so we find that we have used up our time and will move on until next issue when we make another stop.

Four Outstanding Alumni

WHENEVER possible, the ALUMNI MAGAZINE likes to print biographical sketches of graduates whose present activities and past record ought to be of interest to all. Consequently we ought to print a sketch of each of the notable nine thousand because certainly there is no Washington and Lee alumnus who is not doing something all of us would like to know about. Needless to say, however, such a project would involve a slight problem of space. Therefore, for the moment, we content ourselves by proudly presenting four.

Lewis Powell

AMONG the younger graduates of the Law School who have been making a mark for themselves is Lewis Powell, 1929, (LL.B. 1931) who is a member of the Richmond law firm of Hunton, Williams, Anderson, Gay & Moore, and National Chairman of the Junior Bar Conference of the American Bar Association.

Not long ago Mr. Powell was not only President of the Student Body, but he was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Omicron Delta Kappa, and Sigma. His fraternity was Phi Kappa Sigma; he was manager of the football team, and as a final reward for merit, he received the Algernon Sidney Sullivan Medallion.

He took the degree of LL.M. at the Harvard Law School in 1931 and proceeded to Richmond where he joined his present firm. He soon showed his legal scholarship by publishing an article in the University of Virginia Law Review.

For three years Mr. Powell was a member of the Executive Council of the Junior Bar Association, the only national organization of younger lawyers, and he represented the group in various southern states. He was elected the Association's president at their Philadelphia meeting in 1940.

Other young alumni—particularly Graham Morison, '32, Ross Malone, '32, Amos Bolen, '37, and Sherwood Wise, '34, are also active in the Junior Bar Association.

Mr. Powell is a member of the Board of Directors of the Family Service Society of Richmond and chairman of its Legal Aid Committee, which is giving an outstanding community service in his home city.

He was married in 1936 and has two girls, one almost three and the other almost one.

Norfleet Turner

IN 1933—a most unenviable year for the type of business—Norfleet Turner, 1924, was elected Vice-President of a bank.

Most of us (do you realize that it was nine years ago?) would at that time as soon have been elected to something more like a few years of hard labor, but Mr. Turner took his new job and made such a success of it that in 1937 he was made Executive Vice-President of his bank, the First National of Memphis. He still holds that position today.

Mr. Turner, a member of Kappa Sigma, left Washington and Lee in 1923 and soon became associated with his present bank, becoming Manager of its affiliate, The First Securities Corporation, in May, 1929. As can be seen from the record above, he has been making a lot of headway in the banking business ever since.

Not content with helping to put the Memphis banking business back on its feet, Mr. Turner has found time for numerous civic activities. He has been on the Board of Directors of the Community Fund, of the Chamber of Commerce, of the Shelby County Tuberculosis Society, and of the Memphis Junior Camp. He is Treasurer of the Memphis Chapter of the American Red Cross and a past president of the Memphis Clearing House Association.

He is a member of the Rotary Club, the Memphis Country Club, the American Bankers Association, and the Reserve City Bankers Association. He is at present serving on the latter's Board of Directors.

Mr. Turner mentions the "problems that go with the rearing of two youngsters" along with the "headaches" connected with the banking business in recent years," but since he and Mrs. (Elinor Ragland) Turner are the happy parents of a boy born twelve years ago and a girl two years his junior, we cannot drum up much sympathy—even for the banking business nowadays—maybe!

Abram P. Staples

IN 1908, a student who had been a member of Phi Kappa Sigma, Sigma, president of Graham-Lee, and Secretary of his senior class, left Lexington with an LL.B in his pocket. Today he is—as he has been since 1934—Attorney General of the State of Virginia.

Abram P. Staples—the former student in question—was born in Martinsville, Virginia, in 1885; and, after an education in the Roanoke schools and at Washington and Lee, he entered the practice of law in Roanoke. From the commencement of his practice he was recognized as one of the outstanding lawyers in that section of the state. In 1923 he was made president of the Roanoke Bar Association and was endorsed by this and other associations to fill a vacancy in the Supreme Court of Virginia.

In 1928 he was elected by the people of Roanoke to represent them in the State Senate where he served for four sessions. He has been Attorney General since his appointment to that office by Governor George C. Peery in 1934.

A few words from an editorial in the Richmond Times-Dispatch of October 20, 1940, will give a good idea of Mr. Staples' achievement since he has been in his present office:

"Virginia's Attorney-General, Abram P. Staples, has an unbroken record of victories in both the State and the United States Supreme Court. The record is impressive, and worth review, because civil cases are not brought to the highest federal and state courts unless the appellants are convinced they have a powerful argument and are represented by lawyers of recognized ability . . .

"The attorney-general's record in the United States Supreme Court is remarkable. Thus far he has not lost a single case in Washington, although he has been opposed by some of the keenest lawyers in the land. . . ."

Besides being Attorney-General at the present time, Mr. Staples is Director of the Interstate Commission on Crime, member of the National Conference on State Defense, of the Joint Conference Committee of the Federal State Conference on Law Enforcement Problems of National Defense, and Vice-President of the Association of Attorneys General.

Edward Asbury O'Neal

EDWARD ASBURY O'NEAL, who received his A.B. in 1898, is today president of the American Farm Bureau Federation and an authority on American farm problems.

This young Phi Kappa Psi, who had played two years of football, rowed on the Harry Lee Boat Crew, been president of the Final Ball in 1895 and studied a year of law, returned, in 1898, to his native Florence, Alabama, and began the work of operating what is now a 1900-acre farm on the Tennessee River, two miles from Muscle Shoals.

The soil of this plantation, which came down to him from a line of distinguished ancestors, was all but worn out as a result of the War and Reconstruction, and he realized that for successful cotton farming he would have to improve it. Following, therefore, the program recommended by the agricultural college at Auburn, he made cotton grow and developed legumes, livestock, and grain.

He soon saw the need for the new program beyond the confines of his own fields and threw himself into the work of organizing other farmers with such effect that in 1927 he was presented by the Agricultural College with one of his most prized possessions, a gold medal with the inscription, "For Distinguished Service in Farm Leadership."

More and more of his time went into farm organization until he had to give up personal operation of his own farm. He was successively elected to offices in the state and National Federation and at last, in 1931, he attained his present position as national president.

President Harding appointed Mr. O'Neal to serve on a national agricultural conference; President Hoover placed him on the Muscle Shoals Commission; President Roosevelt appointed him to the allotment division set up under the Works Relief Bill. He was called to help in the framing of the McNary-Haugen bill, the Agricultural Adjustment Act, the Soil Conservation Act, the Farm Credit Act, the present monetary program, and the mar-

Towards an Intramural Field

By GEORGE STUYVESANT JACKSON

AS I WRITE this, I cannot help remembering the accounts my father used to give me of undergraduate athletics when he was at college in the class of 1883. Outside of intercollegiate baseball and various interclass games, the main emphasis was upon the wielding of dumb-bells and Indian clubs, compulsory for all members of the school. The room used for these exercises was encumbered by a good many iron pillars, and the principal aim of all members of the class was to get behind a pillar so that their loafing could not be seen.

Since that time, fifty-seven years ago, college sports have undergone an expansion into a million-dollar enterprise, which, in some places, emphasizes the entertainment of sports-fans more than it does the physical well-being of undergraduates. This process has been praised and condemned many times.

Meanwhile, the desire of American youth to engage in athletic competition had not lessened. The boy who wants to play football but is not big enough, can play touch-football. The boy who would like to be on the varsity baseball team but can't hit for .300 can always play softball. The young man trained well in no particular sport can try soccer, for instance; and if his legs and his wind are sound, he has a chance to improve his health and his fraternity standing in that or some other minor sport. If his inclinations or abilities are not in the direction of team-play, he has a chance at tennis or golf, handball or volleyball for a physical outlet. And he can still indulge in sports like these after he is an alumnus, putting on too much weight, and worrying about what will happen down at the office tomorrow morning.

Intramural programs, important in most colleges today, are founded on such considerations as those above. Directors of athletic programs, trained as they are in physical education, know that all of us get our health, not through compulsory exercise when we hide behind a pillar, or when we force ourselves to take an unwilling walk, or when we make a theatrical appearance on the field of glory—but rather when, for the pure joy of combat, we engage in competition with those we love but want to beat. Such is the origin—such is the moving force in the intramural program at Washington and Lee today.

When I was in college myself, I witnessed a great many stirring intercollegiate contests; yet the only game that stands out in my memory today is the freshman-sophomore football game played my freshman year. Just how those sophomores cheated us, I never have known, but I know that our team was better and that the sophomores won merely by kicking a field goal in the midst of a driving rainstorm. No honest team could possibly have done that!

In any case, the stands cheer; the photographers' lights flash; the big dance is held. But the real sport is going on on the touch-football fields, the softball grounds, and the lacrosse layout. And it is going on in the gymnasium where opponents bat each other around the handball courts or drown each other at water-polo. These are our "playing fields of Eton."

In short, departments of physical education have pretty well given up the antiquated theory that every boy must exercise whether he likes it or not—because they all like it!

At the present time, your college is not as well off as it should be for space to play intramural games. Mr. Gavin Hadden of New York, the engineer who studied our needs last spring, put it this way: An average of nineteen different institutions scattered all over the country, and with an average enrollment of 620 students, had an average of 9.3 major units ("units" meaning the "summation of the number of the separate fields suitable for minor sports.") "On this same basis, the number of major units at Washington and Lee today is only three." Noting that the average enrollment of the other schools mentioned was 620 to our approximately 920, you can easily see how our intramural program is cramped.

About a year ago, as noted in the ALUMNI MAGAZINE for last May, the college bought the White farm with sufficient acreage to build intramural fields for many colleges, and the plan is still to add to our present athletic facilities in that direction.

Here is approximately what the Physical Education department would like to have:

(1) At least three and preferably five touch-football fields which could be used for softball diamonds in the spring and would serve, if needed, for soccer or lacrosse as well.

(2) Ten or more tennis courts.

(3) An area for instruction in golf which could be furnished inexpensively in the form of driving ranges and a putting course.

Without these facilities, the university is going to be forever doing less for health and recreation than it should. To quote the engineer again, "That your department of physical education has been able . . . to carry on any team program at all . . . is to me extraordinary." Yet, in spite of the congestion in the regular playing fields where varsity practice interfered with intramurals and freshmen, or vice versa; and where the three hundred who wanted to play tennis were prevented by tournaments or by the varsity team; where intramural schedules were carried out on the high school field or on back lots—where the newly formed and highly successful lacrosse team had no place to play at all—in the face of all this, the intramural program has been amazingly successful.

It has been functioning in organized form for about ten years under the leadership of Forest Fletcher and his assistants, Cy Twombly and Archie Mathis. Each of these years has shown an increase in the number of those participating until now there are seven hundred boys eager to engage in the various kinds of sport, not for credit, not for personal glory, but for the love of the game.

At the present time, without a good place to play, nineteen teams participate in football, baseball, softball, ping pong, basketball, handball, tennis, golf, wrestling, swimming, volleyball, track, and horseshoes. They do this with such enthusiasm that some fraternities have even inaugurated a training table and imposed a fifty-cent fine for non-attendance at contests. The program has made for good spirit, and good health. And finally, in the words of one of the directors, "it never cost anybody a cent."

Plans have been made so that at any time work can begin, and the costs should not be large. The university, of course, cannot undertake such a project with its present resources, but it is hoping for the day when new generosity will bring this new improvement. It should make a pretty view, by the way, from the campus or from the football stands, of green playing fields stretching out towards the Alleghenies.

JOSEPH E. BIRNIE, 1925, for the past two years Executive Vice-President of the Morris Plan Bank of Atlanta, was elected President of the bank on January 18. He was elected Vice-President of the bank in August, 1938, and six months later was made Executive Vice-President. He had been an officer of the Morris Plan Bank of Virginia at Richmond and later Executive Secretary and Treasurer of the Morris Plan Bankers National Association. He is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Omicron Delta Kappa, Country Club of Virginia at Richmond, Piedmont Driving Club, and the Society of the Cincinnati.

PROFESSOR OLLINGER CRENSHAW, 1925, recently had his article on "George Bickley and the Knights of the Golden Circle," accepted by the American Historical Review, the leading scholarly journal of history. The article deals with the activities of the Knights, whose organization was founded in the South on the eve of the Civil War with the objective of seizing Mexico in the interest of spreading slavery. Bickley was the organization's founder.

JUNIUS POWELL, 1917, who has been in the bond business with several concerns since his overseas service during the World War, and who was one of the founders of the Raleigh office of the Wachovia Bank and Trust Company, has returned to Raleigh this year with J. S. Bache & Company.

A Resumé of Winter Sports

Basketball Washington and Lee's potent basketball team, digging in for tough second semester opposition, was in a challenging position for both state and conference laurels as examinations ended January 30.

Defeated only once by Big Six or Southern Conference teams, the Generals stand almost assured of a bid to the conference tournament in Raleigh February 27-28 and March 1, but need to sweep their remaining state games to defend their Big Six crown.

Three victories and a loss mark W. and L.'s state record, with four victories and one loss against conference foes. The season record stands at six and six, with an unproductive invasion of the Middle West during Christmas accounting for three defeats.

Washington and Lee opened with a 46 to 15 triumph over Lynchburg college. Powerful George Washington clipped the Big Blue, 40 to 34, in its next stand. The vacation trip followed, with the Generals dropping decisions to Western Kentucky Teachers, 26 to 22, Morris Harvey, 33 to 32, and Evansville (Indiana) Teachers, 41 to 38.

Captain Howard Dobbins, suffering a bad knee, saw little action before Christmas. Dick Pinck, Bobby Gary, and a brace of sophomores, Leo Signiago and Jeff Hudson, carried the offensive. Lugger Ligon, another soph, displayed some neat work at guard, with George Gassman furnishing relief work at forward.

Coming back after the holidays with Dobbins back in the line-up, the Generals defeated the House of David, 51 to 36, and dropped a thrilling 43 to 39 decision to North Carolina in their first conference start.

Following this, W. and L. racked up three consecutive conference victories, defeating William and Mary, 35 to 29, Maryland, 59 to 41, and Virginia Tech, 41 to 29.

The Generals suffered their first state setback when Virginia won a 37 to 28 victory before a record crowd in Doremus gym. Pinck and Gassman were in the hospital with influenza, seriously crippling the W. & L. offensive.

A 37 to 30 triumph over V. P. I. during exams revived the Generals stock in the state race, as V. M. I. upset Virginia the same evening.

Tough return games with William and Mary and Virginia stand as threats to the General's state championship hopes. Two matches with the University of Richmond also remain on the state card.

Wrestling

By BAYARD BERGHAUS

Washington and Lee's wrestling program got off to a good start before the exam layoff, with the varsity taking their first two matches from the Apprentice School and West Virginia, and the freshmen bowing to Woodberry Forest.

Captain Fuller led the grapplers to their opening victory on January 11 over the Newport News Apprentice school by a score of 26-10, and the following week they repeated the performance at the expense of the West Virginia Mountaineers, 26-8. Both were home meets.

The Generals lost only the 165 and 175-pound matches in the opener. Winners for W. and L. were Graham, 121; Lambert, 128; Robb, 136; Captain Fuller, 145; Lanier, 155, and Ailor, unlimited. House, 165, and Hanasik, 175, both of W. and L. lost by falls.

In the West Virginia meet, which was the Generals' 15th straight dual meet victory, the home team used the same line-up with the single exception of the 175-pound class, in which Schellenberg replaced Hanasik. Only Ailor and Lambert bowed for W. and L. The rest came through victorious, and Fuller won his second head-scissors fall.

The freshmen, in their meet January 17 with Woodberry Forest at Woodberry, took only one bout. Ed Waddington, in the unlimited class, saved the Brigadiers from a whitewashing by decisioning his opponent. The final score favored Woodberry, 27-3.

Rifle Club

By LATHAM THIGPEN

As a definite step toward national preparedness the Washington and Lee rifle club plans to give each member a certificate at the end of the current season showing his degree of proficiency as a rifleman. The certificate will be suitable for inclusion in the national selective service questionnaire.

Finishing their preliminary training period, the Blue team already has qualified six men as expert riflemen on the National Rifle Association's course and twelve on the war department course, according to Dr. Marcellus Stow, rifle coach. In addition ten men have qualified as sharpshooters and twenty-five received their marksman's ranking.

Intercollegiate matches—fifteen varsity and fifteen freshman—will occupy the next half of the shooters' program, which starts immediately after examinations, with matches scheduled with L. S. U., Cornell, Columbia, Harvard, Chicago, West Virginia, C. C. N. Y. and other rifle aggregations. Several shoulder-to-shoulder matches are also being arranged, Dr. Stow said.

Fencing

By LATHAM THIGPEN

Fencing, organized several times in the past at Washington and Lee with small success, entrenched itself last month with the organization of the Washington and Lee fencing club. Bill Murchison, freshman from Mocksville, N. C., who organized the club, was elected president and team captain.

Other officers chosen were George Blackburn, treasurer, Alvin Aisenburg, manager, and Dusty Millar, publicity director.

With their number one and two men missing from the foil team, the Blue swordsmen dropped a tough pre-season skirmish to North Carolina university on January 11, 87-70. Captain Murchison, former A.M.A. bladesman, led the scoring with 32 points, while Lew Pendleton of W. and L. tied with the 'Tar Heels' Deering for second honors with 15 each.

Captain Murchison's fencers will open their regular season on February 15 against William and Mary at Williamsburg.

Board Adopts Athletic Recommendation

AT AN athletic conference (composed of four representatives of the Board of Trustees, four representatives of the general Alumni Association, four representatives of the faculty, and four representatives of the student body) held in Lexington on January 20, the two following recommendations were formulated to be presented to the University Board of Trustees:

I. With regard to the matter of student aid the Conference recommends that the University reaffirm its position which is expressed in the following paragraphs taken from the standards advocated by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

In the award of scholarship aid and student aid in general, an athlete shall not be discriminated against.

The award of any scholarship or student aid to an athlete shall be made through the regular agency supervised by the college for the granting of aid to all students, and athletic participation shall not be a condition for such aid.

No athlete shall be deprived of scholarship or student aid because of failure to compete in intercollegiate athletics.

Aid extended by the college to athletes shall be awarded on the basis of need without regard to the proportion such awards represent in the total amount of aid extended to all students.

An athlete shall be required in employment to give full and honest return for pay received.

II. With regard to the control of intercollegiate athletics at the University, the Conference makes the following recommendation:

The control of Intercollegiate athletics is hereby vested by the Board of Trustees in a University Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics. The membership shall consist of nine members—Two alumni appointed by the Alumni Board; two students appointed by the Executive Committee of the Student Body; and five faculty members appointed by the Board of Trustees. The Chairman of the Committee shall be designated by the Board of Trustees from the aforementioned appointees.

The Committee shall recommend to the Board of Trustees the appointment of a Director of Intercollegiate Athletics who shall be entrusted with the active and detailed management of intercollegiate activities, subject to the advice and control of the Committee which shall be responsible directly to the Board of Trustees. The Director shall be ex officio member of the Committee without vote.

Nothing in the above provisions shall in any way interfere with the right of the general faculty of the University to control any and all matters of eligibility of students for participation in intercollegiate contests, absences from class work, or any other matter relating to the scholastic work of members of the student body. All constitutional provisions and all by-laws governing intercollegiate activities which are inconsistent with these provisions are hereby declared to be inoperative.

The committee formulating these recommendations consisted of the following members: For the Faculty—L. W. Smith, G. D. Hancock, R. T. Johnson, L. H. Farinholt; for the Alumni—R. W. Fowlkes, C. S. Glasgow, Earle F. Fitzpatrick, John H. Thomas; for the Student Body—Allen Snyder, William Buchanan, Cecil Taylor, Al Fleishman; for the Trustees—J. Morrison Hutcheson, William McChesney Martin, Harry St. George Tucker Carmichael, James R. Caskie.

The Board of Trustees, at its meeting on February 7, adopted the recommendations as presented.

Local Alumni Association Notes

Lynchburg

THE LYNCHBURG alumni met at the Boonesboro Country Club on January 20.

New officers elected were C. Lynch Christian, President; Edward S. Graves, Vice-President; and Dick Gooch, Secretary-Treasurer.

The principal speakers of the evening were Foster Mohrhardt, university librarian, and Dr. Reid White, university physician.

A resolution was adopted to invite the alumni of Bedford, Campbell, and Amherst counties to become members of the chapter.

Another activity of the Lynchburg group was the annual Washington and Lee Dance, which was held on December 19 at the Oakwood Country Club. High and preparatory school seniors were among the guests.

About thirty members attended the January meeting, among whom were:

Cincinnati

THE ALUMNI and undergraduates of Washington and Lee assembled for their Christmas luncheon this year on December 23, at the Mayfair Room of the Sinton Hotel. The meeting was purely a social gathering, and no business of any kind was undertaken.

Alumni: Roger J. Bean, '14; Blake Dock, '41; Burt Farber, '32; John G. Hamilton, '32; Robert Hilton, '38; Clyde Hoge, '08; Stewart Johnson, '39; Spence Kerkow, '39; Alfred Kreimer, '39; Walter McDonald, '10; Horace J. McFarlan, '93; Dr. James T. Pearce, '89; Jack Reiter, '41; Robert Shrene, '40; Dan Startzman, '34; John Tomlin, '38.

ON GENERAL LEE's birthday the San Antonio chapter held a banquet at the Milam attended by about thirty-five alumni.

Russell Wine acted as toastmaster, and talks were made by Albert Steves, Jr., Joe Glass, and, according to Albert Steves, III, the secretary, "by practically everyone else present."

Among those attending were:

J. P. Aylmer; W. T. Beard; Jesse Beitel; E. A. Basse; Billy Fowlkes; Joe G. Glass; E. R. Guenther; Jack Gugenheim; Joe Gugenheim; B. C. Harnisch; V. R. Hood; Van Hook Howard; Park Street; J. L. Lytle, Jr.; T. J. Newton; H. K. Oppenheimer; A. C. Pagenstecher; W. W. Palmer; Joe Clay Roberts; S. E. Roberts; E. L. Schilo; H. E. Trail; F. H. Wolff; Carl Wurzbach; Sam Steves; Albert Steves, Jr.; Walter Steves, II; Tommy Graves of Cuero.

Philadelphia

THE PHILADELPHIA alumni group held a luncheon and business meeting at Wanamaker's Tea Room on Saturday, January 11.

The following officers and committees were elected for the coming year:

President, Lynwood R. Holmes, 1900; Vice-President, E. W. G. Boogher, '02; Secretary-Treasurer, Norwood E. Band, '34; Board of Managers, Fred S. Johnson, '11; Samuel Baker, '16; Harry Robert, '22; Howard Snyder, '31; Frank T. Bready, '31.

Committees: Entertainment, Harry Axelroth, '07; Membership, Blair Price, '21; Scholarship, G. H. Bowers, '22; Publicity, Atherton Seeley, '31; Alumni Inc., David Seeley, '36.

There was enthusiasm expressed for the Philadelphia group to begin making definite contributions to the university and also to become the university's most active chapter.

Plans were put in motion for a banquet to be held probably on Washington's birthday.

Louisville

THE LOUISVILLE alumni met on January 20 in the Brown Hotel. President George Burks, 1927, presided.

Speeches were made by Edward A. Dodd, Mr. Millburn of the Male High School, and Robert P. Hobson. Fielden Woodward then introduced the speaker of the evening, Professor F. James Barnes, II, of Washington and Lee.

New officers elected were: Oldham Clarke, president; Fielden Woodward, Vice-President; and Ernest Walker, Secretary-Treasurer.

About 56 attended, including parents, wives, sweethearts, alumni, and prospective students.

Among them were:

Members and their wives: Mr. and Mrs. Fielden Woodward; Mrs. and Mrs. E. D. Axton; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Foree; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Woodward, Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. George Burks; Mr. Hunt Collins; Mrs. Charles Semple; Mr. Tom Tuley; Mr. Terry Blandford; Mr. Lyne Smith; Mr. Tom Nugent; Mr. Ernest Walker; Mr. and Mrs. John Faison; Mr. John Petot, Jr.; Mr. Henry Hill; Mrs. E. C. Hill; Mr. Horace Barker; Mr. and Mrs. James Veech; Mr. Ed Dodd; Mr. Murrel Klein; Mr. Tilford Payne; Mr. E. G. Barker; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Tabb; Mr. Stanley McGee; Mr. Peel Rivers; Mr. and Mrs. Oldham Clarke; Mr. and Mrs. Ed Rietze, Jr.; Mr. Martin Kaplan; Mr. and Mrs. Grenberry Simmons; Mr. Robert Hobson; Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Bondurant; Mr. E. S. Clarke, Jr.; Dr. James Bruce.

Guests: Professor James Barnes; Professor W. S. Milburn; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Woodward, Sr.; Mr. and Mrs. M. Viser; Mr. John S. Petot, Sr.; Mr. and Mrs. J. B. LaPlante; Mr. Ben Kaplan; Mr. Bill Otter.

Baltimore

ON THE evening of November 29, 1940, the Baltimore Alumni Chapter held its annual meeting and dinner at the Longfellow Hotel at 6:30 p. m. As is customary, this get-together is held annually on the day before the Washington and Lee-Maryland football game.

Cy Young was present and added much to the occasion by his remarks relative to the Alumni Organization, the University, and our team.

Dr. Johnson of the Law Faculty, in his delightful and interesting way, gave a short talk on "Washington and Lee Ideals and Traditions."

Before the meeting closed, Cy Young showed moving pictures of the activities at 1940 Finals and one of the last football games.

J. Carl Fisher was elected President of the Baltimore Chapter to succeed A. H. Chandler, and Latimer G. Young, who had been serving in the capacity of Secretary and Treasurer, was elected to succeed himself in that office.

Those present voted the evening a most enjoyable one and were enthusiastic in their desires to have more frequent get-togethers.

Washington

THE autumn smoker of the Washington chapter of the Washington and Lee Alumni Association was held Friday night, November 29, on the eve of the Maryland game, at the Raleigh Hotel.

Guests at the smoker from Lexington included Cap'n Dick Smith, Coach Tex Tilson, Coaches Cunningham and Hennemier and Lea Booth, director of sports publicity.

Out of town alumni present were Bill Ward of Atlanta and George Glynn of New York City.

Coach Tilson reviewed the football season and demonstrated that he is a prophet as well as coach by saying the approaching game with Maryland would be a toss-up. The score was 7 to 7. The coach, in reply to a question, said the scholarship average of the football squad was highly satisfactory, better, in fact, than that of the non-playing students.

Dick Smith gave the alumni an interesting picture of the general athletic situation at Washington and Lee and brought the oldsters up to date on the changes over the years on the campus.

Retiring officers of the chapter are Richard W. Hynson, president; William O. Burtner, vice-president; John A. Hanley, III, secretary and treasurer and Charles F. Suter and E. Marshall Nuckols, Jr., additional executive committeeman.

New officers and executive committeemen elected:

Brian Bell, (chief of the Washington bureau of the Associated Press), president; William O. Burner, (attorney, department of justice), vice-president; Alexander M. Walker, (security analyst, Securities and Exchange Commission), secretary and treasurer; Melville B. Cox, (real estate broker, Phillips & Canby, Inc.), secretary for keting agreements. Secretary Wallace appointed him in 1939 to the Agricultural Advisory Counsel to meet the situation created by the outbreak of the European War; while, in 1940, he was asked by Mr. Chester C. Davis to serve on the Advisory Commission to the Council of National Defense.

He has a wife, two boys, and a girl. He was awarded an honorary degree of Doctor of Agriculture from the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. The Progressive Farmer selected him as the South's "Man of the Year" in 1939. None of us, we believe, would disagree with the selection.

In Memoriam

Although General Gillett attended Washington and Lee for only two years, taking his B.S. at Yale and his LL.B at Union University, he was a loyal and interested alumnus.

His career as a lawyer was distinguished, including a year in the New York State Legislature from 1919-1920, and a term as Assistant Attorney-General in 1934. His greatest fame arose, however, from the part he played in the World War. He won citations from three nations for gallantry; the Croix de Guerre with Palm from Belgium; the British Expeditionary Force Ribbon, and the United States Conspicuous Service Cross.

General Gillett was 63 when he died.

By HORACE W. "RAGS" PHILLIPS, Class Agent

ROBERT JENNINGS REVELEY is principal of the high schools of Canton, North Carolina. His health has not been very good for years, but he has carried on. He has one son. Our best wishes for his recovery.

PROFESSOR EARL PAXTON is teaching mathematics at Washington and Lee and is to be congratulated by his class upon following in the line of Alec Nelson and working with Liv Smith. We hope that he will never again have to devote his mathematical skill to the solution of problems arising because of the Virginia Underwriters' Association. Despite his fire loss, he has been a generous contributor with money and information.

JOHN WALL LYKES is associated with his brothers in the numerous activities of Lykes Brothers and makes his home at Tampa.

COL. JOSEPH MARION MOORE is doing a fine job with the Greenbrier Military School at Lewisburg, West Virginia. "Moss" also shoots a fair game of golf (he says) when his executive duties at the school and elsewhere (notably at Montreat) do not prevent. Despite his possibly meritorious claim of indemnity from further assessment at the hands of the members of the class of 1908 because he happened to be class historian 32 years ago, he has consistently given toward the Alumni Fund.

HOWARD NEWTON CLENDENING sent his son to Washington and Lee and his daughter to the University of Arkansas. He was especially interested in the sons of his fellow students when he visited his son while in Lexington. Howard is chief engineer for a coal company. His address is MacBeth, West Virginia. His son has an appointment to West Point effective 1941.

CLYDE L. GREEN has been engaged in educational work in North Carolina for a number of years and since 1937 has been County Superintendent of Education for Robeson County, with offices at Lumberton. Robeson County is one of the largest and most prosperous of the counties in North Carolina and is sometimes called by the Tar Heels "the State of Robeson."

THOMAS (TOMMY) NEWELL HAVLIN lives at 900 North First Avenue, Arcadia, California and is Chief Chemist and Metallurgist for the Bureau of Power and Lights of the City of Los Angeles. He had the misfortune of losing his wife during the spring of last year but is fortunate in having a daughter survive, who lives with him.

ALAN PORTER LEE wrote us from 136 Liberty Street, New York City. He calls himself an engineer. We call him an engineer of parts, as his duties involve the design and construction of process equipment for the fatty oils and soap divisions of the chemical industry. His activities in this large field take him to all parts of this hemisphere.

MONTAGUE (MONTY) I. LIPPITT's present address is 4718 Albemarle Street, Washington, D. C., but we understand that his permanent address remains McLean, Virginia, and that he is an engineer for the Public Works Administration.

WILLIAM R. (BILL) LUHN of 1906-1908 baseball varsity fame is an Assistant Engineer with the Missouri Pacific Railroad living in St. Louis. Bill writes that he has two children in college, one a girl, the other a boy. He took his family through Lexington last summer and they all now understand why he feels as he does about Washington and Lee.

WILLIAM A. MCCOY is Chief Chemist at the American Smelting and Refining Company's Barber, New Jersey, laboratory. He has one boy who spent a year at Washington and Lee in 1936-1937 and who graduated this summer from Oberlin College.

DOZIER DEVANE is a member of the law firm of DeVane, Andrews & Patterson, Florida Bank Building, Orlando, Florida.

Contributors to Alumni Fund in 1940

The following list of contributors to the Alumni Class Fund represents the best year we have had since the Class Agent Plan was adopted in 1933, both in number and amount of contributions. It does not include the names of those who replied to their Class Agent's letter, without sending a contribution, although this response is deeply appreciated. The plan has shown a steady growth from year to year but there are still a surprisingly large number of our outstanding alumni who have never made a response of any kind to the strenuous efforts of their Class Agents. Under the revised plan which is being put into effect this year, which is fully explained in the President's Page, the alumnus will have the opportunity of saying to which one of the needs of the University his gift will be allocated. We hope to receive letters this spring, with or without a contribution, not only from those alumni who have consistently cooperated in this movement, but from many others who have neglected this opportunity of service to the University.
