Assurances and Needs

(THE PRESIDENT'S PAGE)

THAT president of a college for men who would say anything with certainty about the present circumstances in the domain of education would certainly be a brave and probably a rash man. Such institutions are in what is almost a whirlpool of furious mutations, and it is difficult for individuals concerned not to be dizzy.

If I say that during the present session we have already lost about half of the students that began this year, our friends will understand one factor of our uncertainty. Probably two-thirds of those now in the student body, members of the Naval and Marine Reserves, will be called to an active status at the end of the present semester. In the light of large excitements such important facts as our first mid-year commencement, with the graduation of about fifty boys, become almost unnoticed details.

* * *

Let me give this as my first assurance, that the institution will be open next year for regular students. There are not many boys in the United States who can come to a college of their own choosing as regular students, but certainly boys who are not of draft age may enroll.

* * *

My second assurance is that we shall be on an accelerated plan and that the young boy who can enroll will cover much more ground educationally than he could formerly in the same period of calendar time.

Of course we shall be open for boys of any age who do not meet the physical standards for military service, and for boys who may take such specialized courses as afford occupational deferments.

We have rented certain of our facilities to the Army School for Special Service—if I may repeat—and we are engaged at this moment in conversations with the military authorities concerning our acceptance of an undergraduate unit of men on active status. In all our plans, however, we have taken into account regular students who wish to come to Washington and Lee by their own volition. We shall have for these boys as effective instruction as we have ever had, and we shall have as many of the useful and attractive features of college life as we can maintain though most of these features, I must confess, are suspended for the duration of this emergency.

* * *

There are two things that I wish to say to our alumni out of all the earnestness of my heart—first, short of losing the war itself, perhaps the greatest loss America could suffer would be a crippling of the independent institutions of higher learning. Those words are trite and possibly cold, but they come from my soul with a kind of burning passion. Relative forces may be set in motion which could prevent the recovery of these institutions, including Washington and Lee, from the state of relative suspension in which they are now compelled to exist. Alumni of such colleges must be on the alert if we are to maintain our great agencies for freedom of thought and freedom of culture.

* * *

Second, the alumni will help us most generously, I hope, in connection with the current Class Agent Fund. These are difficult times financially. We agreed, for example, that all boys who entered the second semester and were called into military service before college credit could be obtained would receive refunds, and Mr. Mattingly actually wrote out checks for about $18,000 for refunds in less than two days. If Washington and Lee is to survive for a great future which will be comparable with its great past, naturally we must survive during this period of crisis. I know the alumni will not fail us.

Musical and Dramatic Organizations

By J. G. VARNER

Director of Musical and Dramatic Organizations

On December 10, 1943, Timothy Shay Arthur's famous tear-jerker, Ten Nights in a Barroom and What I Saw There, went on the boards at the Troubadour Theatre, and the Players again filled the house for a capacity run of three nights. There can be little doubt but that this sensational tale of the "doings of rum" as sold by the Sickle and Sheaf thrilled Lexington moralists and terrified Rockbridge tipplers in the days when our grandfathers used to "hitch up the old bay" and drive their families down the little narrow lanes to the Henry Street Opera House for an evening of entertainment guaranteed to satisfy the most fastidious and possibly to bring added signatures to the cold water pledge. But gone was that audience, and, like-departed was the spirit of that audience; for, although a few youths approached the theatre with the idea that the producers intended something of a moral purge, most of them came with the conviction that, tragic as was the case of Father Morgan, who was troubled with green snakes while he watched little Mary gaze into the faces of celestial beings, no one was trying to persuade them from the tap-room at the Corner Store. But this was the right spirit for fun, and the audience acted with the players as they burlesqued the old melodrama, singing lachrymal tunes with the barroom quartet, and helping little Mary to die with their heaves and sobs.

Ten Nights in a Barroom was directed by Jack Lanich of Baltimore, a talented young man who showed his versatility by filling in the role of the villain of the play when the draft law made a last minute shift in the cast necessary. Lanich was assisted by Seymour Smith, Director of Religious Activities, and by several distinguished members of the Army School for Special Service, whose nostalgia for the odor of grease paint drew them to the theatre door. The cast consisted of John Taylor, Jack McCormick, Jack Hornickel, Jack Lanich, Jack Wood, Bob Harter, Dick Bartlebaugh, Virginia Deaver, Leila Nance Moffatt, Helen Smith, and Helen Anderson. A quartet from the glee club (Waller Dudley, Joe Mingioli, Bill Wilcox, and Bill Bien) gave a musical background which added much to the color of the play.

General Pershing is reported to have stated during World War Number I that he preferred a thousand soldiers occasionally entertained to ten thousand soldiers without entertainment. The army has placed great emphasis on the value of amusement in the present struggle; and the Army School for Special Service, now located on the Washington and Lee campus, has strengthened our own faith in the importance of music and dramatics in bolstering morale in times of crises. To the army, these activities constitute a particularly vital force when they are employed in processes of occupational therapy. In our present work at Washington and Lee, we are following the example of the army as well as that of some of the other colleges of the country in our effort to teach students to train others and to direct such activities among the armed forces should they be given the opportunity to do so; but at the same time we are proceeding not with the idea of amusing others so much as with that of keeping our own student body and those of us who participate occupied and free from depression. At present the players are in rehearsal for Arsenic and Old Lace, Joseph Kesselring's popular "tale of wholesale murders by amiable old ladies"; and the Glee Club, much depleted but not disheartened by the draft, is in preparation for several concerts in the spring. An intramural scheme for college activities, directed primarily toward entertaining the members of the student body, must loom vividly in the plans of all directors of college organizations, and it does constitute one of the basic principles of our dream for musical and dramatic organizations after the war. And in the midst of the most disheartening year since the last war—in a year when the world of fancy must give way to a world of reality, and the romantic visions of actors tend to fade—the Washington and Lee Troubadours are still dreaming, and many are marching off to war with plans already made as to what they wish to do on the campus after their return. For these boys and for those lads who will come with them, I am hoping that the Troubadour Theatre will serve as a personal workshop as well as a playhouse, and that it will provide an outlet or a constructive diversion for every boy who desires to participate in musical and dramatic activities even though he may have only a minimum of talent. If a boy desires to sing, he must find an opportunity here to sing; or if he desires to act, he must be given his chance to act; if he can write a song, we shall try to sing it; if he can write a play, we shall try to give him an opportunity to see it played. There will be many activities connected with the theatre which will give him diversion as well as a chance to exercise his talent. One need look no further than the Carolina Playmakers to see the success of the creative arts idea.

The creative impulse among students should be satisfied, and in so doing we may discover real talent in our midst. But we hope to go still further in training the student to perfect himself to the best of his ability in the art which he has chosen as an outlet. To do so we must have a system which will encourage organization and discipline as well as an unwillingness to do things in a slipshod way. During the past few years the Glee Club has obtained a rather enviable record as far as collegiate choral groups are concerned. They have sung in many well-known girl's schools, both in the North and the South; they have sung at the National Cathedral in Washington; they have appeared on prominent theatrical stages both in Washington and New York, and they have broadcast over the leading net-works of the nation; and last year they appeared for the fourth time as the guests of Fred Waring and the Chesterfield Hour, this time on the stage at Carnegie Hall, having been chosen by a group of well known critics as one of the eight best clubs in the country. They received wide publicity; telegrams and letters of commendation came from all sections of the United States, and the last such letter came from the American Embassy in London. With only very rare exceptions have these boys been students who have had any previous voice training. They have been normal, average boys whose only requirements on entering the club were that they be able to carry a tune, and that they have a desire for singing sufficient to make them spend several hours of each week drilling toward perfection in minute details. They were willing to accept organization and a pleasant form of discipline, and the result was a rich experience.

The importance of music and dramatics in American life, and especially in American colleges is growing. I felt this fact keenly last year in that gathering of choral organizations at Carnegie Hall; and I am being advised continually of this fact by many officers in the School for Special Service who have gained prominence in music or on the stage. So I find myself—inspired I suppose by those lads who have gone off to war with a post-war plan formulating in their minds—dreaming dreams of what we can do at Washington and Lee after they return. I shall expect to see the Glee Club appearing again on metropolitan stages and broadcasting over national hook-ups; I shall expect to see the band parading again in some of the larger stadiums of the country; and I shall expect to find the Players not only giving a series of good plays at home, but gaining some prominence abroad, and possibly even starting a summer theatre in this valley which in normal times attracts so many tourists. But what I should like to find is more opportunity or provision for making the best work in these activities possible. We have at our disposal a rather excellent little theatre building which is adequately equipped for our work. We have several valuable courses which deal with the history, the theory, the criticism, and the appreciation of music and the drama.

We need courses in diction, in play-writing, in stagecraft, possibly in broadcasting technique, and in the more scientific phases of music and the stage. But what we need most is a closer correlation between the musical and dramatic organizations and other, at present more valued, liberal arts, many of which find their matrix in music and the drama. We need more consideration for these activities as arts, and a feeling that they are arts rather than activities. For instance, I should like to see the student in dramatic theory or dramatic criticism encouraged to turn to the actual theatre for some of his basic training; I should like to see the student of poetics urged to obtain some of his knowledge of rhythm, tone color, and those other elements so necessary for the understanding of lyric poetry through actual participation in music. One of the best ways for assuring this encouragement would be by providing academic credit for the work accomplished. I therefore very strongly desire that the musical and dramatic organizations might attain such a standard of excellence that they could justify consideration in the University curriculum equal to that of any other subject which is felt to be of value in a student's intellectual development. These organizations, through the proper cultivation, could be made to do more than merely add to a boy's pleasure during his academic career—they could make a rich and vital contribution to his life.

Army Reserves Called to Active Duty

By ALLEN W. MOGER
Faculty Army Adviser

NEARLY 200 Washington and Lee students were called to active duty in the United States Army during the month of February. Their departure left the student enrollment at approximately forty per cent of its normal peace-time number. It marked almost the last chapter in a program under which the students had been permitted to enlist in the Army and remain in college on a deferred status.

In May of last year the War Department announced a program of pre-induction training for colleges in which students of good standing might enlist in the Army Air Corps as aviation cadets and in the Enlisted Reserve Corps, unassigned. Such students were to remain in college as long as they did good work or until the Secretary of War determined that the national emergency demanded that they be called. These enlistees were to be considered as a pool from which future officers would normally come. Each one had to pass the physical examination required of men for officers candidate school. The War Department urged students to take advantage of this deferred plan, saying that "these men may feel assured that they are doing the job their country wants them to do and are performing their full duty in the war effort."

Immediately after the announcement a recruiting board representing the Air Corps visited the campus, and Washington and Lee boys began to enlist. By December 15, when the period of enlistment was closed, 58 had enlisted as aviation cadets, most of them for flight duty.

In July plans were completed by the government for students to begin enlisting in the Army Enlisted Reserve Corps, unassigned. Many students joined during the summer and others in the fall at various recruiting stations. In November, when a mobile recruiting station visited the campus, 73 were enlisted. By December 15, a total of 176 Washington and Lee students had joined what was generally known as the E.R.C. Included were 50 freshmen, 55 sophomore, 36 juniors, and 35 seniors.

Throughout the fall, students were in a state of unsettled expectancy due to the fact that the government was constantly changing details or announcing unexpected departures from the plan as originally announced. In September, before the plan was well under way, Secretary Stimson announced that it would be necessary to call most of the E.R.C. enlistees to active duty at the end of the term then beginning. This was a surprise to all colleges because the details of the plan had indicated that students who enlisted would probably be left in school for at least one academic year. After the Secretary's announcement the idea of deferment was minimized, but students continued to feel that they would have an advantage by joining this college army group. Finally it was announced that no more enlistments would be permitted after December 15. Just before the Christmas holidays definite instructions arrived that all enlistees, except some special engineering and pre-medical students, would be called to active duty shortly after the semester closed in January. However, the boys were urged by the War Manpower Commission to remain in school until they were actually called. So students continued to live from announcement to announcement, not knowing what plans to make, if any.

At the close of the semester some of the E.R.C. enlistees dropped out of college. A few transferred to schools nearer their homes. The vast majority, knowing that the government had modified its plans before and also that they had been told to stay, matriculated for the second semester.

On February 6, orders arrived for the boys to report for active duty on February 18. About two-thirds of the men were to report to the reception center at New Cumberland, Pennsylvania, and about one third to Camp Lee, Virginia.

President Gaines called all the enlistees together in Washington Chapel, where he made a most appropriate address to an excited crowd of boys. He explained the government program by which many of them would be returned to school after their basic training in order that they might take specialized courses designed to equip them for technical work in the army.

"During your service in the army you will be considered continuing students of Washington and Lee," Dr. Gaines said. "By all means plan to return and complete your college education. Plans are being worked out by which, on your return, you will be given college credit for work and experience received while in the service."

The boys then packed and left for home. The government permitted them to go directly to camp from their homes or to return to Washington and Lee and leave in a group.

On the morning of the eighteenth of February, 44 boys left in a special bus for New Cumberland, and 37 left by bus for Camp Lee. Classes were suspended. The whole faculty and student body, as well as many town people, were at the bus station to see the boys off. It was an occasion that will not soon be forgotten. Many left behind were eager to go. Those leaving were a serious group, but they lustily sang the "Washington and Lee Swing." It was the largest if not the only group of students that ever left Washington and Lee together to report for duty in the armed forces of their country.

Late in January the Headquarters of the Army Air Forces announced that boys who had enlisted for flight duty under the deferred plan would be called very soon. During February most of these boys received their individual orders. Most of them went to the Air Force Training Center at Miami, Florida. The few who remain will be called to active duty by April 1.

Eighteen E.R.C. enlistees received their degrees from Washington and Lee in January and were called to active duty two weeks after they graduated. Those who had dropped out of college or had transferred have also been called. Candidates for degrees in May, 1943, who are called to active duty during their last semester will receive their degrees provided their work is not in arrears when called.

Ten E.R.C. men remain at Washington and Lee, four as pre-medical students and six as special engineering students. These men, with all other pre-medical and engineering students, are deferred until the end of this semester. Boys who enlisted for technical work as aviation cadets in the ground crew of the Air Corps have been assigned to training classes that begin at different times. Most of them are still in school.

When the army plan was announced last May the writer of this article was asked by President Gaines to serve as faculty adviser to students who might wish to join. Hundreds of students have been interviewed, most of them many times. It has been a fascinating and at times a bewildering experience; bewildering because details were changed so many times by the War Department that it was almost impossible to give the students intelligent advice. The boys have been fine, however, and they will never be forgotten.

Of the students still at Washington and Lee, about 200 have enlisted in the Navy and Marines under a deferred plan. The Marines and the Navy men are deferred until July 1, 1943.

Professor Lewis K. Johnson and Professor Earl K. Paxton are faculty advisers for the Navy and Marines, respectively.

Recent Gifts to the University

FORTY-ONE THOUSAND, FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS have been received in gifts to Washington and Lee University within recent months.

An anonymous contributor gave $25,000, to be used without restrictions.

Three gifts of $5,000 each are acknowledged. These are to be used "in the interest of journalism."

One donation of $1,000 is to be used to replace trees on the University campus.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Cohen, of Cincinnati, Ohio, have contributed $500 toward a scholarship.

There has come to the University a donation by the C. and O. R. R. Co., from White Sulphur Springs, of a large portrait of General Robert E. Lee. From the same source are 27 Beyer prints, a block-front mahogany desk, a grandfather clock, and 14 large lamps.

WASHINGTON AND LEE has received as a gift the personal Bible of Robert Alexander, who in 1749 founded a small classical school, Augusta Academy, the germ from which the present University grew.

The Bible came as a gift from Mr. Charles H. Revercomb, of Covington, Virginia, a descendant of Robert Alexander in whose custody the volume has been for a number of years. It was brought for formal presentation by Mr. Roscoe B. Stephenson, LL.B., '08, also of Covington and another descendant of Robert Alexander.

Dr. Gaines expressed pleasure at receiving this historic item, particularly in view of the fact that the University is just beginning to lay its plans for the bi-centennial in 1949, which will center to a large extent in the person and in the work of Robert Alexander.

Dr. St. Clair Named Trustee

DR. HUSTON ST. CLAIR, A.B., 1922, was elected a member of the University Board of Trustees, at its meeting held in Washington, D. C., on May 5. Dr. St. Clair is president of the Jewel Ridge Coal Corporation, president of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce, and active in industrial, religious and educational work. His home is in Tazewell, Virginia. Dr. St. Clair's father, Mr. George Walker St. Clair, LL.B., 1890, was a member of the University Board of Trustees in 1901, serving as Rector of the Board from 1927 until his death in 1939.

LAIRD Y. THOMPSON, 1921, is working with Production Engineer Control Materials Plan in Takoma, Washington. His address is 2219 N. Proctor Street, Takoma.

Additions to List of Alumni in Service

As of March 1, 1943

NOTE: This list of 364 alumni in service comprises the fourth published addition to the list of Washington and Lee men in service, published in the May, 1942, Magazine. Washington and Lee now has 1671 men listed in the armed forces.

In compliance with the military and naval authorities, we have refrained from giving information about service men save their class and branch of service, and indicating whether or not they are commissioned officers. However, the Alumni Office is vitally interested in other pertinent data, such as actual rank, station, permanent home address, or other address from which mail will be forwarded, special activities, type of service or training, etc.

It is our policy to keep as close a connection as possible with our alumni in this time of stress, and any information concerning alumni in service will be greatly appreciated by this office.

In the listing below, certain symbols have been used to conserve space. These symbols and their meaning are as follows: A, Army of the United States; AAF, Army Air Force; N, United States Navy; NAC, Naval Air Corps; MC, Marine Corps; CG, Coast Guard; AFS, American Field Service. An asterisk (*) following the above symbols indicates a commissioned officer.

Recapitulation of Winter Sports

By EARLE PALMER BROWN, 1943

WINTER sports this season dropped from their usual high place on our University calendar. The basketball team, long a power in the Old Dominion, had one of its poorest seasons.

The start of the season found us without a coach and Cap'n Dick Smith felt himself lucky to secure the services of George S. (Gummy) Proctor, former VPI coach and well known Southern Conference official.

With a coach of Proctor's calibre and six lettermen returning for the semester, led by Captain Leo Signaigo, the prospects for a state title looked good.

We won our opener from Roanoke and then dropped a one point decision to William and Mary through a scorekeeper's error. The team later dropped another one pointer to Virginia. These two bad breaks didn't dishearten the boys and they came back to win successive victories over Maryland, North Carolina, Camp Pickett, Hampden Sydney, and Lynchburg.

After those five triumphs things began to happen. Capt. Signaigo received his service call, Dick Working left for service with the A.E.R.C.

We lost a close one to VPI and then lost our third game by a single point to Richmond. Things went worse as more boys left, among them Leon Harris, our six-foot-five center. We continued to lose games.

The peak of the season was the game with George Washington University. The George Washington boys came down to Lexington expecting a duplication of their easy 20-point victory a few nights before. George Washington, now the Conference champions, left feeling lucky to have even won. Five Generals started and played the entire route without a substitution. At the end of the game the score was 38-38 and it had to go into overtime.

At the end of the first overtime it was still tied 43-43 and those five boys in blue were still in there fighting the onrush of George Washington reserves. This last period told the story as the capital city club went out to win, with our boys practically out on their feet.

After that thriller we lost George Wood, our reserve center, and Jack Kibler, a guard. All in all nine boys left the squad for the service and Proctor had a hard task to keep five capable men on the floor. Freddie Vinson, a talented freshman, moved into a starting position along with Harry Baugher and our great guard combine, Harry Harner and Clancy Ballenger. Towards the end of the season Vinson contracted the measles and "Gummy" was forced into the intramurals to find players. We continued to lose games.

The last game was with Virginia. The Wahoos had been boasting of the ability of their "Deadshot" Dick Wiltshire, the state's leading scorer. Ours was a sweet victory, 46-35. Harry Harner, W. and L. sensational sophomore, held the highly touted Wiltshire to three points.

Harner and Ballenger are a couple of fine ball players and between them they scored just under 400 points from their guard positions. Baugher at forward was on the job all season, but he, like the others, was handicapped by having too big a job to do.

WRESTLING was a bright spot. The Blue matmen went through the regular season with only one loss and three victories. The place of Coach Archie Mathis, now a naval officer, was taken by the two co-captains, Sammy Graham and Bud Robb, both former Conference champions.

The team lost its first match to Carolina and then beat North Carolina State, Duke, and V. P. I in that order. Both Graham and Robb were undefeated and along with several sophomores gave Washington and Lee a good shot at the Conference championship, held this year at Waynesboro, Virginia, under our sponsorship and directed by William C. Raftery, former football coach here.

Uncle Sam beckoned to our grapplers as well. Before the championships both our co-coaching co-captains left for the Air Corps. Graham picked the Army and Robb went to join Archie Mathis in the Navy Air Corps. As if that wasn't enough an epidemic of measles hit our two best sophomores, George Bird and Jack Burger. As a result we only entered four men in the tournament, and didn't do much. Our best was a second by Bob Crockett in the 155-lb. class.

V. M. I. won this year's championship by a single point over Carolina. It was V. M. I.'s third Conference title. Carolina has won one and Washington Lee has won the other five.

As for the outlook for spring sports, the University Committee on Athletics has dropped everything but baseball and will concentrate on that. Cap'n Dick Smith has six returning lettermen and over 30 boys have turned out. The team plays a twelve game schedule and should help avenge losses by our football and basketball teams.

In Memoriam

HON. HENRY T. WICKHAM died in Richmond, Virginia, March 5, 1943. State Senator Wickham, Washington and Lee's second oldest alumnus, 93 years of age, was graduated from the University when it was still Washington College. He was a student during General Robert E. An Apology

THE ALUMNI OFFICE wishes to apologize for its failure to list the names of Mr. Kenneth I. McKay, 1904, and Dr. William L. Woolfolk, 1925, in the Alumni Fund Report for 1942.

Class Notes

1903

GEORGE COUPER GIBBS became Attorney General of the State of Florida on May 16, 1938, and served in that capacity until January 7, 1941, at the expiration of his term of office. He did not offer for re-election, and resumed the private practice of law at his home in Jacksonville, Florida. Prior to his service as Attorney General he was Circuit Judge for nearly twenty-one years. His home is at 2717 Riverside Avenue, and he says he would be delighted to see any member of the Class of '03.

1905

ARTHUR BITTLE OBENSCHAIN is pastor of a Lutheran Church in Lexington, South Carolina. He has two children, one son and one daughter, and two granddaughters. He received his D.D. degree in 1930.

1906

R. B. ("BUCK") SPINDLE is Judge of the Corporation Court of Norfolk, Virginia. His son, Richard Buckner, II, graduated in May with the A.B. degree, cum laude.

J. W. EGGLESTON is one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia, with offices in the City Hall Building, Norfolk, Virginia.

W. K. ("BILL") RAMSEY says his chief claim to fame is a charming wife, three fine sons, and a lovely daughter, all in good health. He would like to see and hear from others of the Class of 1907. He is land agent for the International Boundary Commission, El Paso, Texas.

CHARLES F. BAGLEY is president of the Union National Bank of Fayetteville, Tennessee. His son, Charles F., Jr., '41, is a lieutenant in the Army Air Corps, and

We wish to apologize for any errors in the class notes appearing in this issue. The letters from which these notes are taken were written, for the most part, early last spring. The rapid influx of alumni into the several branches of the armed forces of the United States have no doubt rendered some of these notes inaccurate. We would like to have more material for class notes in letters to your Class Agents this year.

another son, Joe, '45, just inducted into the Army Air Corps within the last two weeks.

H. R. MAHLER is superintendent of schools, Thomasville, Georgia. He has four grown sons all making their way in the world. He is already a grandfather, and has two fine grandchildren.

DOZIER DEVANE is a member of the law firm of Devane, Andrews and Patterson, Florida Bank Building, Orlando, Florida, but spends much of his time in Washington, which he says is "hard on a country boy."

JOSEPH J. (ROSY) GLASS is still practicing law in San Antonio, Texas, but for the past four years has been working with the WPA. He is married and has a daughter eight years old.

WALTER WILKINS, Federal Compress and Warehouse Company, Pine Bluff, Arkansas, has two sons, Walter, Jr., B.A., '41, is studying medicine at Johns-Hopkins, and Howard entered Washington and Lee at the beginning of the summer session.

ROBERT P. HOBSON is still practicing law in the Kentucky Home Life Building, Louisville, Kentucky. His son, Robert C., graduated from the Law School in May and is now in Naval Training School.

K. L. SHIRK, District Attorney, 33 North Duke Street, Lancaster, Pennsylvania. His son, K. L., Jr., has recently been inducted into the Army Air Corps. His daughter is at Southern Seminary in Buena Vista.

W. A. KELEHER is practicing law in the First National Bank, Albuquerque, New Mexico.

1916

HOWARD C. HICKS is administrator in the Department of Assessments, Nassau County, New York. He has a daughter who is attending Syracuse University.

LYCURGUS HYRE is practicing law in Buckhannon, West Virginia.

EMORY P. BARROW has been practicing law in Lawrenceville, Virginia, since World War I. He served in the Virginia Legislature for two terms.

GUS OTTENHEIMER gave up his law practice in 1922, to go into the department store business. He is now vice-president and treasurer of Ottenheimer Brothers, Incorporated, Little Rock, Arkansas, manufacturers of ladies' apparel, employing over 300 people.

1918

FITZHUGH MAYO is teaching at the Landon School for Boys at Bethesda, Maryland, and is also the director of a boys' camp in New Hampshire. He has a boy at V. P. I. who will graduate a year from Christmas.

1919

LEONARD T. BROWN is still a member of Lott-Merlin, Inc., wholesale paper dealers, doing business in Connecticut and New York State. His address is 700 W. Jackson Street, Bridgeport, Conn. He is married and his daughter, Muriel, graduated from Edgewood Park School, Briarcliff Manor, New York, in June.

1920

JOHN MCKOWN is in the furniture and floor covering business in Waynesboro, Virginia. His son graduated from Mercersburg Academy in June and he had fond dreams of his entering Washington and Lee this fall, but he decided to enlist in the Army Air Corps instead.

CHESTER STEADE, is at present counsel in the Legal Division of RFC, 811 Vermont Avenue, N.W., Washington. After graduation, he was in general practice for 14 years in Dallas and Los Angeles, during most of which time he also managed a real estate subdivision business in Louisiana. Since 1934 Chester has been a Government lawyer, first with Federal Home Loan Bank Board for more than 7 years, then with the War Department for a short time, and now with RFC. He is married and has two daughters, one of whom is a sophomore in college.

E. A. HANSBARGER is an official of the Supreme Court of Appeals of West Virginia at Charleston. On dissolution of the Dallas firm of Hansbarger and Shade, Ech took up practice in Williamson, West Virginia, for 12 years, during which time he served a term as assistant prosecuting attorney for Mingo County. For eight years thereafter he served in the office of the West Virginia State Tax Commissioner, first as chief of the Inheritance and Estate Tax Division, and later as assistant tax commissioner. Ech's home address is 1637 Quarrier Street, Charleston, W. Virginia.

W. T. CALDWELL attended Yale Law School after leaving Washington and Lee, graduating in 1926, and then went to New York where he has been practicing with the firm of Chadbourne, Hunt, Jaeckel and Brown, of which he has been a member for the past ten years. He lives in Greenwich, Connecticut, is married, and has four children.

GEORGE STONE, M.D., has been practicing medicine and surgery at 25 Park Avenue, Suffern, New York, for the past ten years.

RUDOLPH JONES is with the State Highway Department in Jackson, Mississippi, in the capacity of Division Engineer.

DR. DEWEY A. REYNOLDS is busy at the United States Bureau of Mines, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, where a mid-winter promotion gave him the rating of full chemist. He says that he and Dr. R. E. Sherrill get together with their families frequently.

R. MAURICE ("STUDENT") FREW has been with the Winnsboro Mills, a unit of the United States Rubber Company, for six years. For three and a half of these years he has been employee relations manager. He says what it really amounts to is chairman of the Headache Committee. His address is Winnsboro Mills, Winnsboro, South Carolina.

STEPHEN D. LEE is headmaster, Riverside Military Academy, Gainesville, Georgia.

HENRY W. JONES is engaged in the wholesale lumber business at Memphis, Tennessee, and is busy supplying various war industries with their hardwood lumber requirements. He is married and has two sons, one aged twelve, and the other only thirteen months old.

NORFLEET TURNER is executive vice-president of the First National Bank of Memphis, Memphis, Tennessee.

J. N. THOMAS, D.D., has been for two years at Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Virginia, as Professor of Theology. He is married and has a little daughter seven and a son who was two in July. He is a member of the University Board of Trustees.

JOHN G. GUERRANT is vice-president of the Virginia Paper Company, Richmond, Virginia. He has lived in Richmond since 1924. Has a wife and one daughter, eleven years old.

By Class Agent BRUCE GANNAWAY

WILLIAM L. WOOLFOLK, 2118 Frederica Street, Owensboro, Kentucky, continues as an Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat specialist. He received his M.D. from Penn in 1929, and on October 20, 1934 was married to Miss Julia Porter. They have two children; Margaret, who will be six on December 2, and William, Jr., who was three on April 10. Bill's 30 new pounds bring him up to 145. He says his hair is true in color, but some of it has left.

W. E. MOORE is practicing law in Waynesboro, Virginia, with offices in the First National Bank Building.

W. S. BROCK, Brock Candy Company, Chattanooga, Tennessee, is president of a very "sweet" business. On April 5, 1928 Bill married Miss Myra Kniesi (Bill, I can't make that name out, I'm afraid, but it's changed now, so what's the difference) and they have three children: William, III, born November 23, 1930, Paul Kniesi, born June 4, 1932, and Frank Acree, born February 21, 1942. Bill looks the same, but like most of us, has put on 20 pounds.

MARVIN F. HUMMER, 1010 Massachusetts Avenue, N.E., Washington, D. C., is manager and part owner of W. F. Hummer and Son Company (Coal and Fuel) Marvin is still single, so we may look for his APO number. He picked up his 20 pounds, but otherwise is unchanged.

PRESTON C. MANNING, 234-B West Evans Street, Florence, South Carolina, is owner of a General Insurance Agency. On September 27, 1927, he married Miss Wallace Williams, and they have three sons; Preston, Jr., born January 4, 1931; Fred W., born October 27, 1934; and Richard I., born August 8, 1940. Pete hasn't changed a bit, but I'll be my socks he can't run a 440!

TOM HARMON, 1759 Union Commerce Building, received his J.D. from Michigan in 1928, was married on July 2, 1932 to Miss Gertrude A. Milde, and now has three children: Nan Milde, born December 6, 1933; Peter Willis, born October 5, 1935; and Thomas Lee, born January 19, 1941. Tom is some 10 pounds lighter than when at W. and L., and those gray hairs are sprinkled over his head.

HERBERT POLLACK, 20 East 76th Street, New York City, received his M.D. from Cornell in 1929, and his Ph.D. in medicine from Minnesota in 1933. On June 27, 1935, he married Miss Helen Young. At the time of his letter, April 14, Herb was waiting to be called into the Armed Services. One day I listened to a talk by Herb on a National Radio Program, so he must be moving along nicely. We all remember what a chemical "whiz" he was at Washington and Lee. Herb, with graying hair, has gained 33 pounds.

W. W. ELGIN, Box 6815, Towson, Maryland, is a Psychiatrist at the Sheppard-Pratt Hospital. On August 2, 1930, he married Miss Elizabeth Knight. That's all I know about Bill, but he must have a most interesting work. I have three friends who have had their mental troubles cleared up at Sheppard-Pratt.

EARL MATTINGLY, treasurer, Washington and Lee University, Lexington, doesn't give any information about himself, so we shall presume that he is still single, and still doesn't have any too much hair. In spite of all the digs we took at Matt when we were at W. and L., I'm sure we'll agree the University is fortunate to have him take Mr. Penick's place as treasurer.

CURTIS LANGHORNE, Emory University, Georgia, is professor of Psychology, and Assistant Registrar of Emory. After leaving Washington and Lee, he got his Ph.D. from Ohio State in 1932. He married Miss Mary Summers on June 3, 1937. Curtis has broadened out to 180 pounds, and the gray matter is showing on the outside of his head. After a long siege of arthritis, he seems to have won the battle.

DARBY BROWN, 3925 Clairmont Avenue, Birmingham, is associated with Jackson, Securities and Investment Company. He was married on June 16, 1928 to Miss Mary Atkinson, and on January 24, 1936, Amelia Bestor came to bless their home. Darby would be recognized by us all, for in these 17 years, he hasn't changed a bit.

LUTHER REYNOLDS, Care Mrs. John Vick, Cullman, Alabama, is now a lieutenant in the Navy, attached to the 8th Naval District, New Orleans. On September 11, 1934, he married Miss Magdalene Cooper. Luther says he has gone from 160 to 175 pounds, and that he can be described as one of those slightly gray.

BURKE WILLIAMSON is living in Lake Forest, Illinois, a suburb of Chicago, with his wife and their daughter Eleanor, now fourteen months old. He is still practicing law in Chicago with the firm of Adams, Nelson and Williamson, 39 South LaSalle Street.

1927

BAILEY FULTON DAVIS is pastor of the Springfield Baptist Church, Springfield, Kentucky. He has a wife and two daughters.

EDWIN W. CHITTUM is principal of the New Hope High School, New Hope, Virginia.

WALLACE WERBLE is editor of Food-Drug-Cosmetic Reports, with offices in The National Press Building, Washington, D. C.

JERRY ADE was with the Greater New York U.S.O.—Joint War Appeal, when his letter was written last May. His address is 33 E. 43rd Street, New York.

PAUL HOLBROOK was practicing medicine at Greenup, Kentucky, when his letter was written in June. However he expected to be in the Army before long.

JOHN L. ERICSON is practicing law in New Britain, Connecticut.

DONALD K. CRAWFORD is a member of the law firm of Arnold and Crawford, Elkins, West Virginia. Mr. Arnold is also an alumnus of Washington and Lee, class of 1901. Donald is rationing chairman for his county, and as he is a bachelor, expected to be in the service before long.

KIRWIN THOMAS EVERNGAM is now Assistant U. S. District Attorney. His address is Post Office Building, Baltimore, Maryland.

JOE BEAR has been with the Bear Lumber Company, Montgomery, Alabama, for the past five years; has been married for three years and has a baby girl about eighteen months old.

DR. ROBERT RAGSDALE SMITH has recently moved from Ambler, Pennsylvania to Washington and Lincoln Avenues, Newton, Pennsylvania. He is doing private practice, and is physician for George School, a private preparatory school, located in Newton. He is also medical director of the Out-Patient Clinics of Arlington Memorial Hospital. He reports the birth of Robert Ragsdale, Jr., on May 1, 1942.

DR. ALVIN B. ORTNER became chief resident of surgery at the Louisville Central Hospital on July 1, 1942. He is also instructor in surgery at the University of Maryland School of Medicine. He is still a bachelor.

DARBY BETTS is rector of the Episcopal Church, The Plains, Virginia.

TAYLOR JONES is practicing law in Jacksonville, Florida, under the firm name of Rogers, Towers and Bailey, Consolidated Building.

FARRAR NEWBERRY, JR., has been appointed State Manager of South Carolina for the Woodmen of the World, Life Insurance Society. His new address is 2830 Duncan Street, Columbia, South Carolina.

VICTOR MARSHALL, M.D., is now resident surgeon in Urology and also instructor in surgery in Cornell University Medical School, 525 E. 68th Street, New York City.

FRED FOX is district manager of sales with the Superior Steel Corporation, office 2013 Peoples Gas Building, Chicago. He was married to Dorothy J. Foster last year.

RICHARD W. GRAFTON, Life Insurance Service, One State Street, Trenton, N. J., moved into his new home last October.

CARLTON VICTOR WARE, JR., is in the grain and fertilizer business in Pine Bluff, Arkansas. He was married last December 10, to Marjorie Hames of Atlanta, Georgia. He expected to be in the Army before long.

1936

JOSEPH J. HARDING is vice-president of Harding Brothers, Incorporated, president, Emporia Country Club, vice-president, Cavalier Stores, Incorporated, president, Southside Virginia Golf Association, and director, Emporia Federal Building and Loan Association. He is married and has a little daughter.

1937

DUANE BERRY is with the Armstrong Cork Company, 424 West Peachtree Street, Atlanta, Georgia. He says he is married to "the choicest one of the crop" of Georgia peaches. His home address is 356 Whitmore Drive, N.W., Atlanta, Georgia.

SOUTHERN TOMPKINS is interning at the University of Pennsylvania Hospital in Philadelphia.

JOHN CHAMP NEELY is deputy collector of Internal Revenue, Los Angeles, California.

ROBERT R. RADCLIFF is still with the Essex Rubber Company, Trenton, New Jersey. He says his daughter, Robbie Lee, is growing up very fast.

ALBERT COMPTON BRODERS, JR., is still in medical school. He will graduate next year. His address is 1200 East Marshall Street, Richmond, Virginia.

O. H. PECKHAM is with the Oberjuege Rubber Distributing Company, St. Louis, Missouri. He says the only news he has to report is the birth of a daughter, Helen Stryker Peckham, on July 12, 1941.

WALLER C. HARDY is salesman and assistant treasurer of Laird Office Equipment Company of Charleston, West Virginia.

SAUL R. WEINSIER is secretary-treasurer of Trageser Copper Works, Inc., doing nothing but defense work. His residence address is 270 Corbin Place, Brooklyn, New York.

CHARLES SEMPLE, JR., is with the Citizen Union National Bank, Louisville, Kentucky.

1940

JOHN B. CLEVELAND, B.S., 1940, member of the Kappa Alpha Fraternity, and Phi Beta Kappa, has served since August, 1940, as Second Lieutenant, U. S. Marine Corps Reserves. (His mother writes to Lea Booth that he has been ill all winter and still isn't well enough to write).
