

W&L

The Washington and Lee University Alumni Magazine

SPRING 1994

15

New dean Barry Sullivan, who arrives at W&L July 1, comes to the law school from Jenner & Block, one of the nation's leading litigation firms, based in Chicago.

ARCH
378.755
W317
-dlw
V.69
no.1

FEATURES

10 / The Making of the President.

As the University prepares to choose a leader to usher W&L into the 21st century, a look back at the leaders of the last 100 years.

12 / Out of the Fishbowl.

Far away from the buzz of New York's literary cognoscenti, novelist Mark Richard '80 ponders The New York Times and life after Fishboy.

15 / Sullivan's Travels.

For new law dean Barry Sullivan, a partner in a Chicago law firm, the road to W&L began in the office of Judge John Minor Wisdom '25.

18 / Museum of Art.

Art Wood '50 finds a home away from home for the cartoon collection of a lifetime—40,000 original drawings by the medium's all-time greats.

22 / Divine Intervention.

At least 170 alumni have heeded the call of a church or synagogue. One in 100 students on campus today are religion majors. Who are they?

DEPARTMENTS

2 / From the Alumni President.

Mason New invites nominations for W&L's next president.

3 / Letters.

A peek inside W.O. Shropshire's mailbox finds bouquets, not bombs.

4 / The Colonnade.

The winter that just wouldn't quit; the prognosis on Tyler Duvall; the plans for the Leyburn Library dedication; the verdict on FIJI; and more.

28 / W&L Law.

A March symposium examines race and the criminal justice system; the law school climbs in the U.S. News rankings; and more.

30 / The Generals' Report.

Women's basketball hits the floor winning. Also: Angie Carrington's dynasty.

34 / Alumni News.

Chapter of the Year citations for Los Angeles/Orange County and Baltimore; a fall calendar of campus activities; and a look at Habitat for Humanity.

37 / Annual Fund.

Who's hot and who's not, as measured by dollars and participation.

38 / Class Notes.

G. David Low reflects on life in zero gravity; Clintonomics becomes a game; and Tonya and Lorena—together for the first (and probably last) time.

On the Cover: University chaplain Thomas V. Litzenburg '57, photographed in Robert E. Lee Memorial Church by W. Patrick Hinely '73.

APR 2 1994

WASHINGTON AND LEE UNIVERSITY

A. Stevens Miles Jr. '51, Rector
John D. Wilson, President

WASHINGTON AND LEE ALUMNI INC. OFFICERS

Mason T. New '62

President (Richmond, Va.)

Robert K. Wittpenn '82

Vice President (Peapack, N.J.)

James D. Farrar Jr. '74

Secretary and Director of Alumni Programs
(Lexington, Va.)

Robert W.H. Mish III '76

Associate Director of Alumni Programs
(Lexington, Va.)

DIRECTORS

Michael D. Armstrong '77 (Atlanta, Ga.)

R.K. Barton III '63 (Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich.)

T. Talbot Bond '51 (Baltimore, Md.)

E. Neal Cory II '77 (Louisville, Ky.)

Ben S. Gambill Jr. '67 (Nashville, Tenn.)

J. Michael Jenkins III '64 (Montgomery, Ala.)

Robert S. Keefe '68 (New York, N.Y.)

H. Drake Leddy '71 (San Antonio, Texas)

Henry "Skip" Nottberg III '71 (Kansas City, Mo.)

William J. Russell Jr. '57 (Palm Beach, Fla.)

Alexa A. Salzman '89 (San Francisco, Calif.)

Jackson R. Sharman III '83 (Washington, D.C.)

Hatton C.V. Smith '73 (Birmingham, Ala.)

J. Frank Surface Jr. '60 (Jacksonville, Fla.)

J.E. "Jet" Taylor III '84 (Walnut Creek, Calif.)

James M. Turner Jr. '67, '71L (Roanoke, Va.)

H. William Walker Jr. '68, '71L (Miami, Fla.)

Donald W. Weir Jr. '72 (Shreveport, La.)

LAW ALUMNI ASSOCIATION OFFICERS

Charles B. Tomm '68, '75L

President (Jacksonville, Fla.)

James C. Treadway Jr. '67L

Vice President (New York, N.Y.)

LAW COUNCIL

Charles M. Berger '68L (Charlotte, N.C.)

Alfred J.T. Byrne '65, '68L (Washington, D.C.)

Robert M. Couch '78, '82L (Birmingham, Ala.)

William R. Goodell '80L (Atlanta, Ga.)

Theodore D. Grosser '77L (Cincinnati, Ohio)

Robin P. Hartmann '71L (Dallas, Texas)

Milton T. Herndon '56L (Charleston, W.Va.)

Carol L. Hoshall '83L (Alexandria, Va.)

James W. Jennings Jr. '65, '72L (Roanoke, Va.)

John D. Klinedinst '71, '78L (San Diego, Calif.)

Thomas M. Millhiser '81L (Richmond, Va.)

Dana C. Petersen '82L (Baltimore, Md.)

The Hon. W. Ray Price '78L (Jefferson City, Mo.)

W. Bryce Rea Jr. '41L (Vienna, Va.)

David D. Redmond '66, '69L (Richmond, Va.)

B. Cary Tolley III '78L (Darien, Conn.)

Elizabeth Turley '80L (Chicago, Ill.)

Patricia A. Van Allan '80L (Houston, Texas)

John A. Wolf '69, '72L (Baltimore, Md.)

Thomas K. Wotring '75L (Bethesda, Md.)

From the Alumni President

Search for Tomorrow

As readers of these pages are aware, President John Wilson has announced his retirement after more than 12 years of distinguished service to Washington and Lee. A presidential advisory search committee has been formed to help evaluate candidates for this most important position. I have been asked to represent the undergraduate alumni and Charlie Tomm '68, '75L, president of the Law Alumni Association, will represent the law alumni. I would encourage you to read the story beginning on page 10 of the Alumni Magazine that has all the details of the committees and the search process itself.

Where is Washington and Lee going? As rector A. Stevens Miles Jr. '51 noted in his Founders' Day speech, under President Wilson, coeducation became a reality and a success more quickly than anyone imagined. Our academic program and faculty remain of the highest quality. Our physical plant is in excellent shape and our fraternities have been restored, making it possible for them to nurture the kind of leadership and fellowship that has characterized their place at W&L. The Lenfest Center, the Reeves Center and the Watson Pavilion, and the Powell Wing at Lewis Hall — these all serve to underscore the University's commitment to a true liberal arts environment and are evidence of John Wilson's leadership.

Perhaps more important, however, is that Washington and Lee, in President Wilson's own words, remains "a setting in which truth and honesty and tolerance can be spoken of and acted upon without embarrassment or apology. That is what Washington and Lee has come to stand for over the decades. That is what one can decipher in the symmetry and grace of its architecture and declaration of its honor code." The honor system defines our institution and has a great and ongoing influence on the lives of all our graduates; our resolve to uphold it must not weaken.

And now the task begins to select a leader who will help define W&L's future. The Advisory Search Committee is in the process of receiving nominations, and we are encouraging all of Washington and Lee's constituencies to participate. We are inviting any alumnus or alumna with a nomination to convey to the committee to send a letter to:

*Professor William J. Watt, Chairman
Presidential Advisory Search Committee
Washington and Lee University
Lexington, VA 24450*

Your letter should include the candidate's name, address, and any pertinent professional information available to you.

Let me assure you that the entire membership of the Presidential Advisory Search Committee takes this responsibility most seriously. It is important that alumni contribute constructively to this process and we welcome and encourage your participation. Thank you for all your efforts on behalf of Washington and Lee.

Mason T. New '62

President, W&L Alumni Association

Letters

The Bomb and Us

"The Bomb and I" (Winter), W.O. Shropshire's first-person memoir of his post-W&L days on the Manhattan Project, generated more than a dozen letters to Shropshire at his farm in Paris, Ky. Shropshire was kind enough to declassify his correspondence and pass it on to us, and now we are sharing his mail with you.

Just finished reading "The Bomb and I" and sure was tickled to see it in print. Absolutely terrific, and the Class of '42 is mighty proud of one of our great members.

*Edgar M. Boyd '42
Baltimore*

I was delighted to catch up with you after 50-plus years through the very nice article in the W&L Magazine. Do you recall where you were when you first heard about the attack on Pearl Harbor? You were staying in our apartment in Arlington, Va., complete with terrific hangovers. You and Betty went out to replenish our supply of beer—badly needed for survival.

As a member of the FBI in New York City during the war, I was involved in the surveillance of a Russian agent known to be interested in obtaining information about the Manhattan Project. I could tell you some interesting things about this agent.

Herbert Kelly Garges Jr. '40 Atlanta

It has been a long time since I first met you and Johnny Davis in the fall of 1938, on the C&O bound for Clifton Forge, Va. I guess that was the first time I had ever experienced a berth for an overnight train trip. You and Johnny were enjoying a crap game in the club car. Remember how hard it was to roll out of the berth at about 4 a.m.?

I enjoyed tremendously the article about your fantastic World War II experiences. When you took off from Tinian in August 1945, I was a major in the 10th Marines on Saipan preparing to invade Kyushu. You saved my life! A few weeks later we landed at Nagasaki and I witnessed the devastation wrought by "Fat Man."

Thomas S. Brizendine '41 Greenville, Ky.

My mother-in-law, Carolyn Ardery, mailed me a copy of your interesting and well-written article which appeared in the W&L Alumni Magazine. I found the selection process you underwent and the insidious way you were drawn into the Manhattan Project intriguing.

I would enjoy very much hearing from you about your experiences at Los Alamos. Did you encounter my father, Ernest O. Lawrence? If so, what sort of a guy was he? Any interesting stories about him or Oppenheimer? (I was named after Oppenheimer—before he and Dad had their falling-out.)

I assume from your article that your job was to monitor stray radiation with your ionization chamber. How is it that you and your chamber came to the attention of the military when you and it were to be found in the relative obscurity of a small liberal arts university? Had you published a paper on the subject?

Again, I enjoyed the fascinating article and look forward to hearing from you if you can find time to drop me a line.

Robert Lawrence Stockton, Calif.

When my Alumni Magazine came in the mail, I just happened to open it to page 16 and was amazed to see a scene I knew well: the Headquarters 509th Bomb Group. I, too, have Tinian memories and have often remarked it all happened under our nose and we didn't know about it until the rest of the world.

I went to Tinian with the 240th Ordnance Ammo Co. in November 1944, and we operated the Bomb Dump and saw the 2,000-pound bombs come and go. I was executive officer and operations officer for the Bomb Dump. I had my own Jeep and often drove down to North Field—photographed many B-29s. Yes I did take the Enola Gay and Great Artiste after their famous bombing.

We did get to know a few B-29 pilots and I had the privilege of a practice bomb run on Iwo Jima—this was before the arrival of the 509th and invasion of Iwo—and one morning a pilot friend was checking out a new pilot and I went on the practice run of landings and take-offs.

We had our independent unit and our own small officers' mess and often entertained friends on Tinian. Sorry I wasn't aware of your presence then.

*Dick Sandstrom '41
New Lebanon, N.Y.*

Congratulations! Evie and I are mighty proud of you. We both agreed that we didn't know any Phi Delt who could keep silent for a year, much less 50!

G. Richard Day '41 Louisville, Ky.

Calyx, Anyone?

Calyx co-editor Sarah Butler informs us that alumni interested in obtaining The Calyx from the years '54, '60, '61, '71, '72, '79, '80, '81, '82, '84, '85, '86, '88, '90, '91, and '92 can purchase copies for $15 each (payable to Calyx), which includes shipping. For more info, write The Calyx, Washington and Lee University, University Center, Lexington, VA 24450 or call (703) 462-4046.

The Alumni Magazine of Washington and Lee welcomes letters from its readers. Address correspondence to: University Editor, Washington and Lee University, Publications Office, Lexington, VA 24450. Letters may also be faxed to (703) 463-8024. All letters should include the author's name, address, and daytime phone number. Letters selected for publication may be edited for length, content, and style.

The Winter of Our Discontent

The Last Weather Story We'll Write This Year. Promise.

January 19—the annual observance of Founders' Day at Washington and Lee—dawned bright and extremely cold in Lexington this year. President Wilson, out for his 7 a.m. walk with his golden lab, Bo, encountered conditions that were both sub-freezing (10 degrees below zero) and sub-human. The ice that had fallen the previous day, already resistant to the chipping and scraping of the intrepid Buildings and Grounds crews, was now harder than Kryptonite—impossible to clear and impassable to walk on. Parking lots were jammed with snow and ice, and emergency road crews had been unable to clear many of the roads in Rockbridge County. After consulting with University officers, President Wilson closed the campus for two days—the first time in more than 30 years that the University had been closed because of severe weather.

It was that kind of winter. The combination of snow, ice, freezing rain, and near sub-zero temperatures that gripped Lexington (like much of the East Coast) from mid-December to mid-March had many University types scratching their heads, wondering if Washington and Lee had somehow been transported into Ivy League territory. When it was all over, when the forsythia began to bloom and the crocuses poked their tiny heads through the soggy brown earth, a collective sigh could be heard rising from the Colonnade. It was a miserable, memorable winter.

The first snow came on Dec. 20, a blanket several inches thick that lingered through exams and the holiday season, and Lexington enjoyed its first white Christmas in some time. Intermittent snows, coupled with freezing temperatures, kept the ground white and the nearby ski resorts busy through the first of the year. After that, things began to get interesting.

The temperature began dropping at a rate that had not been seen in the Rockbridge area in many years. Record lows (-12 degrees near Raphine) and overcast skies prevented the sun from melting the ice, and the consistent snowfall only added to the problem. The situation reached emergency state on Jan. 19.

President Wilson's actions were consistent with what was happening all over western Virginia. Virtually everything ground to a halt as emergency crews and the Virginia Power Co. struggled with the drastic conditions and the unprecedented demand for electricity. Around 10 a.m., Virginia Power began a series of rolling blackouts, whereby power was cut to a specific area for 15 minutes while that electricity was diverted elsewhere. The blackouts forced the computer center to shut down, eliminating the computer network and all but the most rudimentary word processing.

The situation worsened when Buildings and Grounds superintendent Jim Arthur discovered that three of W&L's four emergency generators would not start, potentially endangering the telephone and communications systems on campus. In an effort to reduce the demand for power, all University personnel who had braved the elements to come in were sent home. The dining hall moved up dinner one hour to take advantage of the daylight and served meals on paper plates with plastic utensils to avoid using dishwashers. And yes, even the James Graham Leyburn Library, which never closes except during breaks, was forced to go dark.

The Founders' Day celebration planned for that day was postponed until Jan. 31. The day's featured speaker, rector A. Stevens Miles Jr. '51, had been scheduled to speak to an R.E. Lee Birthday celebration in Richmond the night before (he was stranded in Florida), and that event, along with celebrations in Charleston, S.C., Charleston, W.Va., Lexington, and Philadelphia, had to be postponed.

Despite the life-threatening conditions, the University came through the harshest weather unscathed. "The biggest problem we had was damage to the gutters and downspouts," says Arthur. "We also suffered some damage to sidewalks and steps throughout the campus, and the ice was very hard to remove from the brick sidewalks. We used more salt and gravel this year than we ever have in my 29 years."

As if the harsh weather of January wasn't enough to make the students long for the Florida sun, Mother Nature dumped another eight inches of snow and freezing rain on Thursday, Feb. 10—the day before Washington Break. The second round—minus the sub-freezing temperatures—created transportation delays and forced many students to postpone plans for the beach (or the slopes) until the highways and airports reopened.

The final indignation occurred on Wednesday, March 2, when eight more inches of snow arrived two days before Fancy Dress. Another major power outage around 10 a.m. on Thursday, caused by collapsing trees and limbs near Glasgow, had students wondering if that evening's concert with Jerry Jeff Walker and the Marshall Tucker Band would be canceled, or at least unplugged. But Virginia Power got the juice going again, and the concert rocked on as planned.

And while there might have been a few soggy hemlines (and an occasionally disgruntled camel), the 87th annual

Fancy Dress—A Magical Carpet Ride—went off without a hitch. There was only one downer, as a headline in the March 9 Trident noted: "Fancy Dress loses money, snow blamed."

After toughing out this winter at Washington and Lee, nobody argued that point.

A Health Scare, a Happy Ending

As if the Washington and Lee community did not have enough to worry about with the relentless snow and ice this winter, a health scare in early February reminded everyone on campus about the uncertainty and fragility of life.

Junior Tyler Duvall: Much better now.

Tyler Duvall, a 6'3" transfer from Colby College and guard for the W&L basketball team, woke up with classic flu symptoms on Tuesday, Feb. 1, and missed the Generals' practice that day. Team trainer Melanie Middleton checked on Duvall the next morning and his condition had worsened, so she took him to the Student Health Center, where he was examined by University physician Jane Horton.

Horton knew Duvall had more than the flu, so she transported him to Stonewall Jackson Hospital. There he was diagnosed with a meningococcal infection—a deadly bacteria that is a form of meningitis. Within hours, the Bethesda (Md.) junior was on a helicopter to the University of Virginia Hospital in Charlottesville in extremely critical condition.

The W&L junior's illness touched off a wild series of events around campus. The men's basketball team canceled a Wednesday night contest with Virginia Wesleyan and came straight home from Norfolk to begin taking antibiotics as a precautionary measure. Because of the highly contagious nature of the infection, its life-threatening potency, and its similarities to the flu, the University community was alerted immediately with a combination of phone mail and neon orange posters. More than 100 students were examined at the Student Health Center and 38 individuals were treated with antibiotics, though no new cases were diagnosed.

While the campus was gripped by apprehension and the regional media seized on the story—one Roanoke TV station visited the campus four times in one week to update the situation—the W&L junior was in a fight for his life. "I didn't know how serious it was until a few days later when I asked a nurse to compare my progress with other people who'd had it," Duvall recalls. "She told me that everyone she had seen with it had died. Luckily, I was past the worst part by then."

Duvall, who returned to school in early March, is now busy with his rehabilitation and his quest to become the Generals' point guard next season. "I'm not back to where I was, but I'm moving around fine," he says. "I'm not as tired now and most of the swelling in my joints has gone down." Having read the newspaper clippings, he finds all the media attention rather amusing—but he won't soon forget what he went through. "I still have the scabs caused by it, so that kind of serves as a reminder," he says. "I'm trying to take care of myself a lot better."

Bishop Elected as Trustee

Edward L. Bishop III '68 was sworn in as a member of W&L's Board of Trustees at the board's February meeting. He was elected last fall in alumni balloting. Bishop is president and CEO of Berkeley Investment Technologies in New York, which provides computer-based trading and arbitrage systems internationally.

Ed Bishop '68

At Washington and Lee, Bishop was president and treasurer of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity; served as a dormitory counselor; played varsity football and baseball; and was a member of the Athletic Association and the Interfraternity Council.

After graduating, Bishop served six years active duty as a Navy fighter pilot in Vietnam. He flew in 163 combat missions and received two Distinguished Flying Crosses. He received his MBA in 1975 from the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School of Business. From 1986 to 1989, he was the director of arbitrage trading at Drexel Burnham Lambert. He is president and founder of Arbitrage Software Inc., and managing director of Antietam Investment Group.

A Distinguished Alumnus honoree in 1991, Bishop served on the Alumni Fraternity Council from 1986 to 1993, including two years as president, and was a leading sponsor and inspiration for W&L's Fraternity Renaissance program. He is vice chairman of the parents' committee for the University's capital campaign and is a member of the New York area campaign committee.

Bishop lives in Flourtown, Pa., with his wife, Joyce. Their daughter, Kimberly, is a 1992 W&L graduate.

James G. Leyburn Library Dedication Set for May 28

The James Graham Leyburn Library will be dedicated May 28. A symposium, "A Celebration and Remembrance of James G. Leyburn," will begin at 11 a.m. The symposium will be chaired by Robert E.R. Huntley '50, '57L, former president of Washington and Lee, and include remarks by Bill Gottwald '70, a member of the Board of Trustees; John McDaniel '64, professor of sociology at W&L; Betty Munger, former W&L bookstore manager and longtime friend of Leyburn's; and Philip Turner '58, a professor at Yale University. The dedication ceremony, including the unveiling of a portrait of the late dean of the University and professor emeritus of sociology and a plaque lauding his contributions to W&L, will commence at 1 p.m., to be followed by a luncheon on Stemmons Plaza. For more information, contact the Alumni Office at 463-8464.

Harlan McMurray '55 (left) reviews papers belonging to his uncle, James Graham Leyburn, with trustee Bill Gottwald '70. The papers will go in the Special Collections room of the Leyburn Library.

Trustees Approve 250th Birthday Commission

Although 1999 is still five years away, it's not too early to begin planning a party—particularly when the cause for celebration is Washington and Lee's 250th birthday.

At its February meeting, the executive committee of the Board of Trustees approved the creation of the 250th Birthday Commission to plan and carry out the year-long celebration. Representatives from the Board of Trustees, Alumni Board, Law Alumni Association, Washington Society, faculty, students, and administration, and the Lexington community will be asked to serve on the commission. The first meeting will be scheduled for this spring.

Historic Lexington Foundation officers Pamela Simpson and Elizabeth Harralson honor President Wilson and Frank Parsons '54, coordinator of capital and facilities planning, for Fraternity Renaissance.

"Only five colleges and universities in the United States will have had the privilege of celebrating such a milestone before we do so in 1999," says Farris P. Hotchkiss '58, vice president of university relations, "and we plan a celebration of virtually every aspect of the University and its history."

Fraternity Renaissance Honored by HLF

Washington and Lee's recently completed Fraternity Renaissance program was honored by Historic Lexington Foundation with its Founders Award in February. "The program preserved the character of the historic district and added to the beauty of the city while providing safe, clean housing serving the needs of present and future generations of students," the citation said. The $13 million renovation of 16 fraternity houses concluded last fall with the completion of the new Sigma Phi Epsilon and Sigma Chi houses.

Foreign Student: April in Paris, Later in States

U.S. release of Foreign Student has been pushed back to August or September, according to a spokesman for distributor Gramercy Films. The production, you will remember, spent two days filming in Lexington last May. The fall release, incidentally, comes 40 years after author Philippe Labro's arrival as a foreign student at Washington and Lee.

Of course, if you've got frequent flyer miles to burn and a fistful of francs, you might consider crossing the pond for the film's world premiere engagement in April in Labro's homeland of France, where L'Etudiant Etranger was a No. 1 bestseller in 1986. See you in Paris!

Brouwer, McThenia Named Outstanding Faculty

Associate professor of music Margaret L. Brouwer and professor of law Andrew W. McThenia Jr. '58, '63L were among 11 recipients statewide of Outstanding Faculty Awards from the State Council of Higher Education at a ceremony in Richmond March 8. The program recognizes the excellent teaching, research, and public service being performed in Virginia colleges and universities.

Brouwer, who joined the W&L faculty in 1988, teaches music composition, theory, 20th-century music, and violin. An award-winning composer, she is also the founder and director of Sonoklect, an annual festival of new music at W&L. Brouwer holds degrees from Indiana University, Michigan State, and the Oberlin Conservatory of Music.

In addition to his W&L degrees, McThenia has a master's from Columbia University. After practicing law in Washington, D.C., for four years, he returned to W&L in 1967 and has been professor of law since 1973. McThenia teaches in the areas of legislation and directs the Mental Disabilities Clinic. He has written articles on civil disobedience and legal narratives including a recent collection of essays on William Stringfellow, a white attorney and writer who practiced law in East Harlem.

The Shadow Knows: A real-life cowboy known only as Shadow (left) swaps horse stories with emeritus trustee Ike Smith '57, '60L, and Linwood Holton '44 prior to the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo on Feb. 26, one of the more colorful highlights of the trustees' winter meeting.

FIJI Suspended for '94-'95

The Phi Gamma Delta fraternity has been suspended through the 1994-95 academic year for hazing.

The incidents, which occurred in November and December, were brought to the attention of the administration by dean of freshmen Dennis Manning. Following a review of the case, the Interfraternity Council judicial board found the fraternity guilty of hazing and suspended the FIJI pledge program.

The case was then reviewed by the Student Affairs Committee, the tripartite committee responsible for reviewing violations of University policy that could involve the possible suspension of a fraternity. Following a presentation by members of the fraternity, SAC members voted unanimously that Phi Gamma Delta had violated the University hazing policy. The SAC then voted 11-0-1 to suspend the fraternity immediately and to continue the suspension through the 1994-95 academic year.

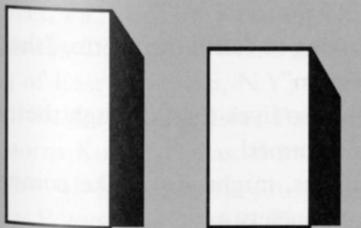

In accordance with established procedures, the fraternity appealed the SAC's decision to President John Wilson. Appeals were received from the Phi Gamma Delta House Corporation and from the parent of a Phi Gamma Delta pledge. After reviewing the details of the case and conducting his own investigation, Wilson upheld the SAC decision to suspend the fraternity. "I am persuaded that the imposition of a suspension penalty was a just response to the Phi Gamma Delta infractions," he wrote in response to the appeals.

After consideration of the president's report, the SAC voted to confirm that: Phi Gamma Delta is suspended through the 1994-95 academic year and will not be permitted to participate in the Fall 1994 IFC rush; the house corporation will be invited to submit an action plan for the future of Phi Gamma Delta to SAC by May 1; contingent upon a constructive and workable house corporation action plan, the SAC will support the members of this year's pledge class living in the fraternity house beginning in the fall term of 1994; and that the SAC will review and assess the progress of Phi Gamma Delta next January.

At its April meeting, the University faculty passed a motion supporting the SAC decision.

Campaign Update

The Campaign for Washington and Lee passed the $100 million milestone in February. Major needs remain unmet, especially the $21 million science center.

Goal:
$127,000,000

Thru March 31:
$101,000,000

'We Have Been Seduced'

W&L senior Matt Jackson, president of Omicron Delta Kappa at Washington and Lee, spoke to Phi Beta Kappa initiates of "The Tempestuous Seduction" at the honor fraternity's banquet March 10. The text of his speech follows.

We have been seduced. We have attended college because it was expected of us. We came here because it was the thing to do: go to a good college, get a degree, get a good job. But, somewhere along the way, something radical and irrevocable occurred. Somewhere along the way—in that search for an excellent record and for honors such as Phi Beta Kappa—a sweet-sounding calling, either conscious or unconscious, came to us, saying: "The search for knowledge is more than the means for something else; it is the end. It is not just a stepping stone to vocation or accolades. The vigorous, honorable, panoramic search for knowledge has an intrinsic worth, all by itself."

We have taken this revelation, over time, and made it an essential part of our lives. By adopting this voice as our own, we have been captivated by one of the most ugly, nagging, troubling creatures imaginable: the constant call of learning. This seduction led to late nights, sleep deprivation, anxiety attacks, confusion, self-doubt. We can blame others for this tempestuous seduction: professors, scrutinizing parents and relatives, honorary societies like Phi Beta Kappa, distinctions, such as Honor Roll and Dean's Lists, and academically competitive friends and associates.

But I suppose we have to blame ourselves too. We have to blame ourselves for the dreaded loneliness of intense scholarship. For many of us, our true collegiate biographies can be found in those revelations in lonesome places, away from society, at our desks, in seclusion, in carrels and empty classrooms, and when facing computer screens. There are many nights of loneliness, of contemplation, in which some of us must have felt that we were the only living person in the universe pondering a certain theory, formula, essay, or poem at that moment. While winds from the outside howled against the window panes, and tempting thoughts inside our heads reminded us of other more frivolous activities, somehow our convictions to learn remained steadfast, our fidelity remained constant.

We also have to blame ourselves for the pain of neglecting friends at times. Our reasons for studying seemed wholly inadequate at times. No, we have told friends, I cannot go out with you tonight, to drink, to dance, to laugh, to sing—these things will have to wait. I already made plans with others . . . dead people—dead writers, dead theorists, dead political figures, dead artists. Of course, this answer, as lame as it has been, may still be better than the other answer. No, I cannot go out with you and the rest tonight. I have other plans, this time not with dead people, but with pure abstractions which have never depicted reality—Plato's Republic and economic graphs depicting a perfectly competitive and efficient national economy.

On the nights after the decision between fun and work was made, we would sit at our desks working diligently. And, at times we would put down our pens, push aside our notes, lean back on our chairs, look into the ceiling, and ask ourselves or another Energy: Why am I doing this? Why do I work so hard for a number—a grade-point number? Why do I cause myself anxiety, sleep loss, confusion and doubt? Why do I analyze everything I see now, from MTV videos to underwear commercials to professors' ties?

The answer to these questions is that: this monstrous, nagging enchantress, or enchanter—depending on one's preference—we, strangely, find lovable. We have been seduced; we admit it; we accept it. Although this stormy affair with knowledge constantly tests us, we know it will continue, and we want it to continue. If we live one day without thinking critically and thoroughly, without asking questions, without attempting to see many sides of an issue, without seeking fair judgment, we would feel incomplete, inhuman, unfaithful.

Today, the Washington and Lee community's public and exclusive honoring of academic achievement and intellectual inquiry helps to vindicate this four-year, and for some of us, three-year tempestuous relationship. Today also might allow us to muster the courage to answer those friends we resisted at times and to answer our own reservations, by saying:

We were not as aloof, cold, pretentious and distant as much as we were committed to another calling—that of the yearning for wisdom and the humbling, challenging search for perception, knowledge, awareness, insight. And this search, we earnestly hope, does not lead to alienation and arrogance. It leads to deliberate, rational living and lives, not only that will delight us in striving to fulfill the motto, "the love of wisdom"

but also lives that, through their prudent, informed courses, might also make communities and society a bit more safe, a bit more rational, a bit more moral, a bit more peaceful, a bit more humanistic.

John M. McCardell Jr. '71, Middlebury College president since 1992, addresses the Phi Beta Kappa convocation March 10. McCardell came to Middlebury in 1976 as a professor of history.

Phi Beta Kappa Inducts 49

Forty-one W&L undergraduates and eight 1993 graduates have been elected into membership in the University's Gamma of Virginia chapter of Phi Beta Kappa. The new members were initiated into the national fraternity on March 10 during the chapter's annual Phi Beta Kappa convocation in Lee Chapel.

Phi Beta Kappa was installed at Washington and Lee in 1911 and annually elects a limited number of students of outstanding character and superior academic records. The students elected to membership this year are:

Seniors: Heather Catherine Aussiker of Accokeek, Md.; Angie Lauren Carrington of Charlottesville, Va.; Jennifer Coleman of Auburn, N.Y.; Sharron Lolita Crabbe of Birmingham, Ala.; Ryan Lee Dennard of League City, Texas; Miriam Elise Genevieve Hagensen of Vancouver, Wash.; Robert Thomas Higginbotham of Memphis, Tenn.; Matthew Edward Jackson of Hanover, Pa.; Richard Houston Jenkins of Kansas City, Mo.; Shannon Marie Jones of East Hampton, N.Y.; Christian Boyd Keller of Carlisle, Pa.; James Fitzmorris Kull of Dallas; Erin Michelle Nelson of Massillon, Ohio; Justin Randal Peterson of Novato, Pa.; Jennifer Jane Ray of Atlanta; Avery Katharine Rembowski of Hilton Head Island, S.C.; Tommy Carrell Ritter of Mountain Brook, Ala.; Jennifer Anne Roscoe of Glenwood, Md.; Herman Safin of Moscow; John William Schindler of Phoenixville, Pa.; Jennifer Claire Shaker of Macon, Ga.; Valerie Michele Shannon of Houston; Elizabeth Whitton Storey of Columbia, Md.; John Spencer Surface of Jacksonville, Fla.; Lee Anthony Wright of Fort Totten, N.Y.; Sarah Merle Wyatt of Doraville, Ga.; Sheri Renee Wynn of Lynchburg, Va.; Jon Charles Yeargan of Beckley, W.Va.; and Rachel Ann Zloczover of Boynton Beach, Fla.

Juniors: Kelly Leigh Brotzman of Hamilton, Mich.; Joshua Andrew Cook of Mars, Pa.; Matthew Ehret of Savannah, Ga.; Robert Charles Eison of Bowling Green, Ky.; Assia Plamenova Georgieva of Sofia, Bulgaria; Leslie Reneau Hallett of Lodi, N.Y.; James Michael Johnston of Littleton, Co.; William Pinson Shepherd of Atlanta; Eric Duncan Shirley of Olney, Md.; Carter Edwin Tharpe of Macon, Ga.; James Morton Turner of Roanoke; and Jennifer Ann Yanulavich of Roswell, Ga.

1993 graduates: Christine Jacqueline Gorman of Chapel Hill, N.C.; Anne Booker Redford of Richmond; Leslie Irene Cummings of Bettendorf, Iowa.; Heather Lynn Olsen of Peekskill, N.Y.; Jon Heath Dixon of Plano, Texas; Mark Thomas Goglia of Clarksville, Md.; Heather Noelle Cook of Fair Lawn, N.J.; and James Mazyck Wilson of Charleston, S.C.

W&L

VOLUME 69, NUMBER 1

SPRING 1994

Brian D. Shaw, Executive Editor
Dick Anderson, Editor
Joyce Harris, Associate Editor
W. Patrick Hinely '73, Photographer
Evan Atkins, Contributing Editor
William Coker '82, Contributing Editor
Jerilyn Farren '93, Class Notes Editor
Brian Logue, Sports Editor
Karlic & Linthicum, Design

COMMUNICATIONS ADVISORY BOARD

John Cleghorn '84
 David M. Clinger '55
 William H. Fishback Jr. '56
 Farris P. Hotchkiss '58
 Robert S. Keefe '68
 Thomas V. Litzenburg '57
 David Lotts '74
 Andrew H. McCutcheon '48
 Robert Mottley '64
 Elizabeth Obenshain
 Howard Packett '58
 Frank A. Parsons '54
 Sarah K. Wiant '78L
 Robert Wittpenn '82

Published quarterly by Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Virginia 24450. All communications and POD Forms 3579 should be sent to Washington and Lee Alumni Inc., Lexington, VA 24450. Third-class postage paid at Lynchburg, VA 24502. Signed articles reflect the views of their authors and not necessarily those of the editorial board or the University.

WASHINGTON AND LEE DIRECTORY

Switchboard (703) 463-8400
Publications Office (703) 463-8956
Alumni Office (703) 463-8464
Development Office (703) 463-8410
News Office (703) 463-8460
Sports Info. Office (703) 463-8676
W&L Sports Hotline (703) 463-8998

William L. Wilson, former Congressman from West Virginia and postmaster general under President Grover Cleveland, succeeded Custis Lee as president of Washington and Lee in 1897. His Baptist affiliation, he reasoned, weighed in his favor with the largely Presbyterian Board of Trustees. Wilson died in office in 1900.

George H. Denny was a 30-year-old professor of Latin at W&L when he became acting president in 1901. A popular leader with students, who shared his love for football, he resigned in 1911 to take the presidency of the University of Alabama, prompting the Richmond Times-Dispatch to write, "To George H. Denny . . . Stay where you are."

Henry Louis Smith (like Denny, the son of a Presbyterian minister) was president of Davidson College when he was elected in 1912. His inaugural address was titled "The American College of Tomorrow." He served for 17 years, retiring in 1929 as the United States was approaching the Great Depression.

As Washington and Lee prepares to choose a leader to usher the University into the 21st century, a look back at the leaders who shaped the past 100 years

The Making of

The nomination process to select a successor to Washington and Lee president John Wilson has formally begun with the selection of a pair of committees to be chaired by William J. Watt, professor of chemistry and former dean of the college, and A. Stevens Miles Jr. '51, rector of the Board of Trustees. Miles outlined the process in his Founders' Day speech on Jan. 31. "Helping to select the 22nd president of this University—and the ninth since General Lee—is the most important task I will have as rector," Miles said.

A presidential advisory search committee, including faculty, staff, and alumni representatives, will evaluate all candidates, reduce the list to approximately 10 names, and submit that list to the trustee committee. The trustee committee will subsequently conduct interviews with the candidates before making a recommendation to the full board. The nomination and screening process are expected to be completed by November, with finalists to be interviewed in December and January. A recommendation to the full board will be made by the February 1995 trustees meeting, with the new president to take office on July 1 of next year.

Watt encores as chair of the presidential advisory search committee, having served that task in 1982. The current mem-

Francis Pendleton Gaines came to Washington and Lee from the presidency of Wake Forest College in 1930. A master orator and educator of national renown, he saw W&L through a Depression, two wars, and other matters, and retired in 1959 after a tenure of 29 years, the longest in University history. Gaines died in 1964.

Fred Carrington Cole joined Washington and Lee in 1959 from Tulane University, where he was successively an associate professor and professor of history, dean of the college of arts and sciences, and academic vice president. He left W&L in 1967 to become president of the Council of Library Resources Inc., and died in 1986.

Robert E.R. Huntley had been dean of the W&L school of law for a single year when he was elected University president in 1968. He earned his undergraduate and law degrees from W&L in 1950 and 1957, respectively, and is the only alumnus to have been named president in this century. Huntley resigned in 1982 and lives in Richmond.

John D. Wilson was executive vice president and provost of Virginia Tech when he became the 21st president of Washington and Lee in 1983. He had previously been president of Wells College in Aurora, N.Y., from 1968 to 1975. He will retire from the University (at the conclusion of its $127 million capital campaign) on June 30, 1995.

f the President

bers of the president's advisory committee—professor of romance languages Larry Boetsch '69, professor of psychology Nancy Margand, professor of geology Edgar Spencer '53, professor of politics Robert Strong, associate professor of romance languages Cecile West-Settle, and professor of physics Tom Williams—will serve on the committee alongside commerce, economics, and politics dean Larry Peppers, newly elected law dean Barry Sullivan, professor of law Uncas McThenia '58, '63L, Alumni Association president Mason New '62, Law Alumni Association president Charlie Tomm '68, '75L, and Executive Committee president Robert Tompkins '90, '94L.

The committee chaired by Miles includes current trustees Dubose Ausley '59, Virginia Holton, William Lemon '55, '59L, Tom Wolfe '51, and emeritus trustee Royce Hough '59.

"Lee's principles of a simple, straightforward curriculum, taught by a dedicated faculty, in an environment that holds honorable behavior and respect for others in the highest regard, continue to guide our institution," Miles said. "It is important that from time to time we rededicate ourselves to these principles. As we go through the process of selecting our next president, this is clearly one of those times." (For more about the nomination process, see Mason New's column on page 2.) ♦

Out of the

Fishbowl

Far away from the buzz of New York's literary cognoscenti, novelist Mark Richard '80 ponders life after *Fishboy

By William Cocke '82

In 1986, when Mark Richard turned 30, he moved to New York to become a writer. He carried with him little baggage other than a recipe borrowed from Mark Twain: Success is equal parts ignorance and confidence.

"I've always been recklessly optimistic," Richard says now of those plans. "I thought all you had to do was go to New York, write a book, have it published, receive critical praise, and be a successful writer." Eight years later, with his first novel published, the 1980 Washington and Lee graduate has accomplished what he set out to do, but "as with everything in life," he says, it was a completely different process from what he had imagined.

That process was recently chronicled in a two-part article by Michael Norman for The New York Times Book Review titled "A Book in Search of a Buzz: The Marketing of a First Novel." Richard endured more than 50 interviews for the 9,000-word article, a fascinating—and often disquieting—case study of the commercial publishing world and the obstacles an author must overcome to prevent his work from winding up in the remainder bin.

Thanks in part to some good reviews, aggressive marketing by Doubleday, and a continent-wide book tour by Richard, this fate is unlikely to befall his debut novel, Fishboy. The story may not be to everyone's taste, but those who dive into it will find a slightly skewed sea-tale, a gumbo of grotesques seasoned with flashes of dark humor. And while it may not have scaled the best-seller charts like a work by John Grisham or a Robert James Waller—not that it was ever expected to—Fishboy, published last May, has sold some 12,000 copies and is now in its third printing (the paperback is due this June).

While the "Buzz" surrounding the Times piece has given the novel a second promotional wind, Richard admits to some jitters before the articles appeared. Looking back, he says, "if the book had been a complete flop, it would have been kind of traumatic to have had your first novel, a personal failure, being documented in the pages of The New York Times."

Far from the glow of the golden literary circles of New York City, the Louisiana-born author is writer-in-residence for the spring semester at the University of the South in Sewanee, Tenn. "This is the best place to be when something like this happens," says Richard of the small liberal arts university located on the Cumberland Plateau. "If I was in New York, people would be calling me up wanting to go out for drinks and dinner and talk about it—and I don't want to talk about it. I've spent the last year talking about the book and myself."

In fact, Richard's immediate plans don't include returning to New York except for visits and business. Perhaps it's a desire not to be pigeonholed—of being labeled, "for better or for worse, a white, Southern, straight, male"—but whatever the reason, Richard finds the city to be a Faustian bargain. "It opened up my career, it changed my life, it accelerated my career, but it also ages you in direct proportion," he says. "New York offers a support group. You've got other people who are trying to do what you're doing, all the contacts are there. Everything is in place; you just have to deliver product. And in this day and age, as I found out, beyond product, you have to deliver your own personality as a marketing tool."

At Washington and Lee, Richard was an indifferent student at best—a journalism major whose advisor flunked him twice, and a half-hearted fraternity man who discovered all sorts of ways to goof off living out in the country. "I had a couple of professors who saved me, who kept me sane," he says.

The late Jim Boatwright, editor of Shenandoah and a professor of creative writing, was one. With Boatwright's encouragement, Richard began to express himself in short stories, even though he didn't want to be a writer at the time. He had entertained notions of being a television newscaster, or a radio announcer (he was, at age 13, the youngest DJ in the country), or even a commercial fisherman (he took two years off from W&L to work on fishing boats along the Atlantic coast), "but never really a creative writer," he says. "There's no future in that."

"If it had not been for Jim Boatwright, I wouldn't have graduated," Richard admits. That's not just publicity hype: Just before graduation, Richard discovered that he was one credit shy of the number required to graduate, and with a dean breathing down his neck, he turned to Boatwright. "I'm going to give you a one-credit, independent study course," the professor told him, "for which you'll owe me one short story."

Boatwright was very supportive of the young writer, going so far as to submit one of his stories to a national fiction competition for college students sponsored by The Atlantic Monthly. He did so unbeknownst to Richard, but "he was good at things like that." In 1989, when his first book, a collection of short stories titled The Ice at the Bottom of the World (Knopf) was published, Richard dedicated it to Boatwright. The collection won the prestigious Ernest Hemingway Award from the international writers association known as PEN.

Despite his potential—Richard won the English department's George A. Mahan Award for sophomore prose in 1976—one professor, who shall remain nameless, told him that he'd never be a writer. "But you know," he adds, "it's things like that that motivate you as much as people who submit your stories to The Atlantic. You never know when that's really the thing that's the burr under your saddle."

Now that he's a teacher himself, Richard has a better understanding of the profession and takes a more compassionate view towards his students. "All you can really hope for is enthusiasm," he says. "If you've got that, you've been given a gift." As for his students' writing, he does not place too much emphasis on the stories they have to tell: "I'm just trying to get them to give themselves license to be free with their work, to be able to smear themselves on the page and not just write in a way in which they think is expected of them, not just to make the obvious choices on the page, but to reach beyond that public facade, the Big Me, to go beyond that to the little me where our true thoughts are and let that speak."

Richard has never been one to do what was expected of him. He spent last fall in Los Angeles working on three screen projects: an original screenplay, a feature treatment of a short story, and an adaptation of Fishboy. He recently followed Tom Waits around over the course of a year, from New York to Berlin, Hamburg, and Los Angeles, eventually selling a profile to Spin magazine, and in June he is traveling to Ireland to do a series on five emerging young Irish writers for the BBC ("They like my accent because, with the Southern accent, it's like we're the bastard cousins or something"). On the horizon is a series on the great dams of the world.

After teaching at the Sewanee Writers' Conference in July, Richard plans to spend a semester at the University of Mississippi in the fall, where John Grisham is an adjunct faculty member. "People don't understand that books like mine rarely make money," he explains. "The bigger books like Grisham's are the moneymakers for a publishing house—this gives them the luxury to offer people like me contracts. If there were no John Grishams, there would be no Mark Richards."

Beyond the first of next year, Richard has no idea what will come next—and that prospect excites and inspires him. "I may have only two more books in me and then I'll go into the seminary or I'll be a reporter for the BBC," he says. "I've never felt that anything I did in my life was crucial to my ultimate happiness."

Remembering that Washington and Lee was the first place where he learned to "shake off the shackles of expectation," as he puts it, what he says of himself could hold as true today as it did 18 years ago. "You seem to be this cocksure, seafaring guy, and inside you're afraid. You're wondering if you're making a mistake but you know that you cannot do the other thing. You know that in your heart of hearts you cannot do what is expected of you. And once you've cut something out for yourself, you've got to follow through. There were times when I was sleeping in nets on decks, sleeping under picnic tables, and I thought: Why did I leave W&L?"

"Then I would wake up in the morning and I would say, 'Mark, gather up your things and let's hit the road and let's go. Let's do this thing we set out to do.'" ♦

Photos: Eve Morra

Sullivan's Travels

For new law school dean Barry Sullivan, the road to Washington and Lee began in the office of Fifth Circuit Court Judge John Minor Wisdom '25

By Dick Anderson

In the midst of Lexington's Chicago-like winter—at least, as close to a Windy City winter as we ever hope to get in Lexington—Barry Sullivan saw only fair weather on his two visits to Washington and Lee's School of Law. "Both times I came it was a sunny day and there had always just been a couple of bad days, which I took to be a good omen," Sullivan recalls with a laugh.

But it's not the city's normally mild climate that persuaded the 45-year-old Chicagoan to become the 14th dean of the law school at W&L. "I think that in teaching and leading a law school, you can make a tremendous contribution to the future," Sullivan says, "and that's certainly the most alluring part of the job. Lawyers play a very important role in our society, and preparing students to take on that role is very important. This is a very interesting time in legal education in terms of the changing nature of the profession. There's a lot of questioning about what a good legal education is and how law schools can provide it. Those are important issues deserving of a lot of considered thought, and they are interesting issues to be involved in.

"What makes W&L such an attractive place," he adds, "is not just the scholarship and teaching, which are extraordinarily good, but the seriousness with which the faculty approaches those questions."

What makes Sullivan attractive to W&L is a reputation not only as a first-rate litigator but as a widely-published and respected legal scholar whose work appears in many law reviews, including the Northwestern University Law Review and the Yale Law Journal. "Barry is a person who by deed as well as inclination spans both the academy and the practicing profession," says outgoing dean Randall P. Bezanson. Adds W&L president John Wilson: "We are confident that Barry Sullivan will provide the leadership to carry the law program to even greater heights."

A native of Newburyport, Mass., a town rich in legal history, Sullivan graduated Phi Beta Kappa from Middlebury College in Vermont. He earned his degree cum laude with high honors in philosophy and political science. He also minored in English and studied with W&L's Dabney Stuart, who was a visiting professor there. He considered graduate school in philosophy or political science, but the law won out. "1970 wasn't a great time to think about a career in college teaching. There weren't any jobs and a lot of my more risk-averse professors at Middlebury were encouraging me to go to law school," he says. "I thought lawyers could do something to make the world a little better. I still think that."

Sullivan attended the University of Chicago Law School on a National Honor Scholarship ("which they gave to people from other parts of the country to encourage diversity"), and was associate editor of the university's Law Review. "I also met my wife in law school," he adds. (In addition to her law degree, Winnifred Fallers Sullivan has a Ph.D from the University of Chicago Divinity School. The Sullivans have two sons—George, 11, and Lloyd, 8.)

You don't have to look far down Sullivan's 14-page resume to find a W&L connection. His first job out of law school was a yearlong clerkship with Judge John Minor Wisdom '25, circuit judge for the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit in New Orleans. "He's one of the most wonderful people I've ever known," Sullivan says. "My father died when I was in law school. In some respects, I felt like I was adopted by Judge Wisdom, but all of his law clerks feel that way. He's just a terribly warm, wonderful person, in addition to being one of the greatest—and most courageous—judges of our time."

At the end of Sullivan's clerkship, he married Winni and went to work as an associate for Jenner & Block, a nationally prominent, Chicago-based firm with more than 350 attorneys and additional offices in Lake Forest, Ill., Miami, and Washington, D.C. "I was interested in doing litigation, and Jenner & Block was, and is still, one of the great litigating law firms in the country," Sullivan says. (Name partner Bert Jenner was involved in the Watergate Committee as Republican counsel until the Republicans fired him "for an excess in enthusiasm in figuring out what went on.") "As associates, we learned from the partners and we learned from each other. We believed in doing pro bono work."

In early 1980 Sullivan left the firm to serve for almost two years as an assistant to the solicitor general of the United States at the Department of Justice in Washington, D.C., returning to Jenner & Block as a partner in December of the following year. At Justice, we worked for Solicitor General Wade McCree, a former federal judge who later taught at Michigan.

Among the 104 appellate cases on his resume, a number stand out for Sullivan (and that's not even counting a 1977 breach-of-contract case, eventually settled out of court, titled Madison Square Garden Boxing Inc. v. Muhammad Ali). During his time at the Justice Department, he successfully argued County of Washington v. Gunther (1981), a landmark case wherein the U.S. Supreme Court held, 5-4, that the Civil Rights Act of 1964 prohibited unequal pay for women in addition to racial minorities. Back in private practice, he filed a brief for the Lawyers Committee for Civil Rights Under Law in Batson v. Kentucky (1986), another landmark case involving racial discrimination in the selection of jurors, and he briefed two follow-up Supreme Court cases.

He also successfully had a death penalty murder conviction overturned. People v. Wilson involved a man who had been accused and convicted of killing two Chicago police officers when Sullivan took on the case as court-appointed counsel. He showed in his appeal that Wilson's constitutional rights had been violated in about 12 different ways—from racial discrimination in jury selection ("it's not an easy thing in a place like Cook County to get rid of all the black jury men") to hypnotically induced evidence and a confession which the defendant maintained had been beaten out of him by means of radiator burns and the sending of electric current through his genitals. The conviction was overturned, and the case eventually led to an Amnesty International investigation of the practices of the Chicago police department and the disciplinary proceedings against several Chicago police officers.

On the business side of litigation, Sullivan has argued a large number of cases involving railroad reorganizations, the most personally rewarding of which was a case involving the tiny Chicago, Missouri and Western line, preserving railroad service for a section of Illinois. "If the railroad had gone out of business, it would have had a devastating effect on the economy there," he recalls. Sullivan has also argued a wide range of appeals in areas as diverse as tax and securities, medical staff privileges, and medical malpractice. He has represented the University of Illinois in a wide variety of constitutional litigations, and his oral arguments have taken him from Seattle to Atlanta.

More recently, Sullivan has developed an expertise in AIDS and the law, an interest that grew out of the work he was doing for the American Bar Association. In December 1987, Sullivan was asked by the ABA president and chairman of the Section of Individual Rights and Responsibilities to chair an ABA-wide commission on AIDS to define the legal problems caused by the AIDS epidemic and to make recommendations to the House of Delegates, which is the policy-making body of the ABA.

Sullivan oversaw the work of about 15 people on the commission representing many different viewpoints, from civil liberties lawyers to people who represented insurance companies. "They wanted someone who didn't have any baggage—who didn't have a lot of petrified positions—who could be an honest broker and bring this divergent, expert group together—although, like anything else, you gain the expertise and become opinionated," he recalls.

In six months' time, the group wrote a 250-page book titled AIDS: The Legal Issues ("Everybody participated in the discussions and took a hand in doing the drafting"). During the next year, the group produced a set of more than 50 policy points and recommendations as to what the law should be in about 14 areas. The policy points, which were supported by a 150-page report, was subsequently adopted by the House of Delegates "with one very minor change," he notes proudly.

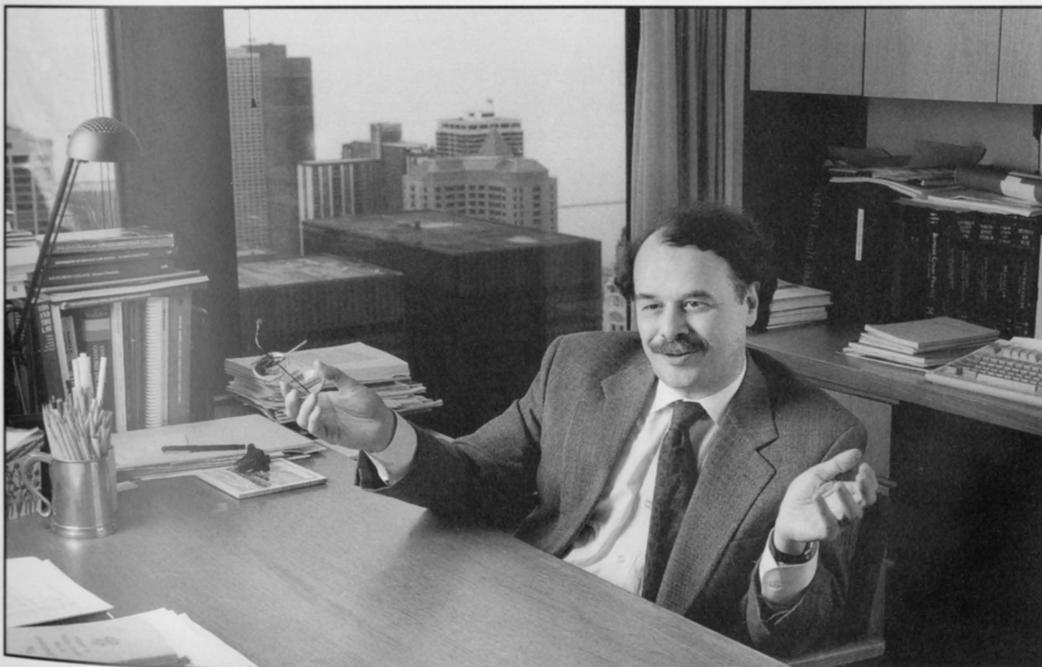

But it may be that the production of a directory of legal resources for people with AIDS covering legal aid, bar association referral panels, etc., in all 50 states that "practically speaking, was the most important thing we've done," Sullivan says. "Nothing is more important than putting together lawyers willing to donate their time with people desperately in need of representation." On the other side of the equation, the group created a manual on how local bar associations and others should go about setting up a program of pro bono services for people with AIDS as well as a 30-minute video aimed at encouraging lawyers to get involved. Michael Moriarty, star of TV's "Law and Order," contributed his time for the narration.

Sullivan's career as a teacher began in his senior year at Middlebury, when he taught a course in political philosophy, "and as they say, I was drawn to teaching," he recalls. In 1979, he taught a course in civil procedure at Loyola Law School in Chicago, an upperclass course where he used problems from real cases to simulate pre-trial motion practice, and for the last four years he's enjoyed a relationship with Northwestern Law School as an adjunct professor and as a visiting professor teaching and writing at the same time. At Northwestern, he has taught civil procedure for first-year students, a course on public law remedies for upperclass students, and an AIDS and the law seminar for upperclass students. "I decided I couldn't teach and write and practice law in my spare time," he jokes. He also serves as a member of the visiting committee of the University of Chicago Divinity School and a trustee of the Catholic Theological Union at Chicago, the largest Catholic school for ministry in the United States.

So now he's giving up the practice of law to devote the immediate future to legal education. Among his earliest inspirations was John W. Davis, the subject of William H. Harbaugh's biography Lawyer's Lawyer, who may be best known these days as the losing attorney in Brown v. Board of Education of Topeka (1954). "He was quite a fine appellate lawyer," Sullivan says admiringly—and a W&L alumnus as well (1892, 1895L).

Sounds like another good omen. ♦

Sullivan at the Chicago offices of Jenner & Block: "In teaching and leading a law school, you can make a tremendous contribution to the future, and that's certainly the most alluring part of the job."

MUSEUM OF ART

ART WOOD '50 FINDS A HOME AWAY FROM HOME FOR THE CARTOON COLLECTION OF A LIFETIME

BY DICK ANDERSON

The J. Arthur Wood collection for the National Gallery of Caricature and Cartoon Art: "Jazz and the cartoon," Wood says, "are the two major American contributions to art."

Art Wood dreams in word balloons.

For more than half a century now, the 1950 Washington and Lee graduate and card-carrying member of the National Cartoonists Society has collected original artwork from just about everyone who has ever made us laugh with a punchline or a sight gag or even a biting satiric wit. From political cartoonists Thomas Nast (whose corrupt "Boss Tweed" is a staple of U.S. history textbooks) and Pat Oliphant to Charles Addams and Charles Schulz, Wood owns 40,000 pieces of original artwork—that's forty thousand drawings—spanning three centuries and 3,000 artists.

It's a one-of-a-kind collection, and a visit to Wood's unassuming five-bedroom home in Rockville, Md., is an eye-popping experience for even the casual cartoon connoisseur. Framed originals greet you everywhere: doorways, sitting rooms, the kitchen, even the bathrooms. Works by every Pulitzer Prize-winning cartoonist hang chronologically in the hallway upstairs. A child's bedroom is decorated with priceless animation cels from such Disney classics as Fantasia, Pinocchio, and Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs. Custom-built cabinets and files house the bulk of the collection, all carefully filed by subject and cartoonist.

The genial Wood has worked toward securing a permanent home for his collection for more than 30 years, but the end result has been as elusive as, say, Lucy's football from Charlie Brown's reach. That's all about to change with the opening this spring of the Museum of Caricature and Cartoon Art on Capitol Hill in Washington, D.C. Thanks to the efforts of Oliphant, cartoonist Dick Locher (Dick Tracy), and other artists and politicians, Wood's dream is now being realized—and the only person happier than Wood may be his bride of 42 years, Sallie. Glancing out over the ping-pong table, card tables, and numerous other surfaces covered with the approximately 135 framed treasures that will constitute the museum's permanent exhibit, he says, "My wife can't wait to get them out of the family room."

Wood started collecting when he was 12 with the help of a friend whose father ran United Features Syndicate and NEA, two major suppliers of comic strips. Back then, "Everybody worked at the syndicate," he recalls, and young Wood would accompany his father, Roosevelt administration attorney J. Arthur Wood '24L, on business trips to New York. With his well-placed connections, he visited the offices of the other major syndicates, met the artists, and came away with signed originals. "Most of the comics artists lived to be very old," he says. "Part of the fun of collecting for me has been to know the artists."

During World War II, Wood toiled in the bullpen of the Bureau of Naval Personnel in Washington, drawing comic strips, VD posters, even top secret cartoon work on the atomic bomb, all the while working alongside such future funnies notables as Dennis the Menace creator Hank Ketcham. He was working on an animated training film for dancer-producer Gene Kelly when the bomb was dropped. Then came W&L.

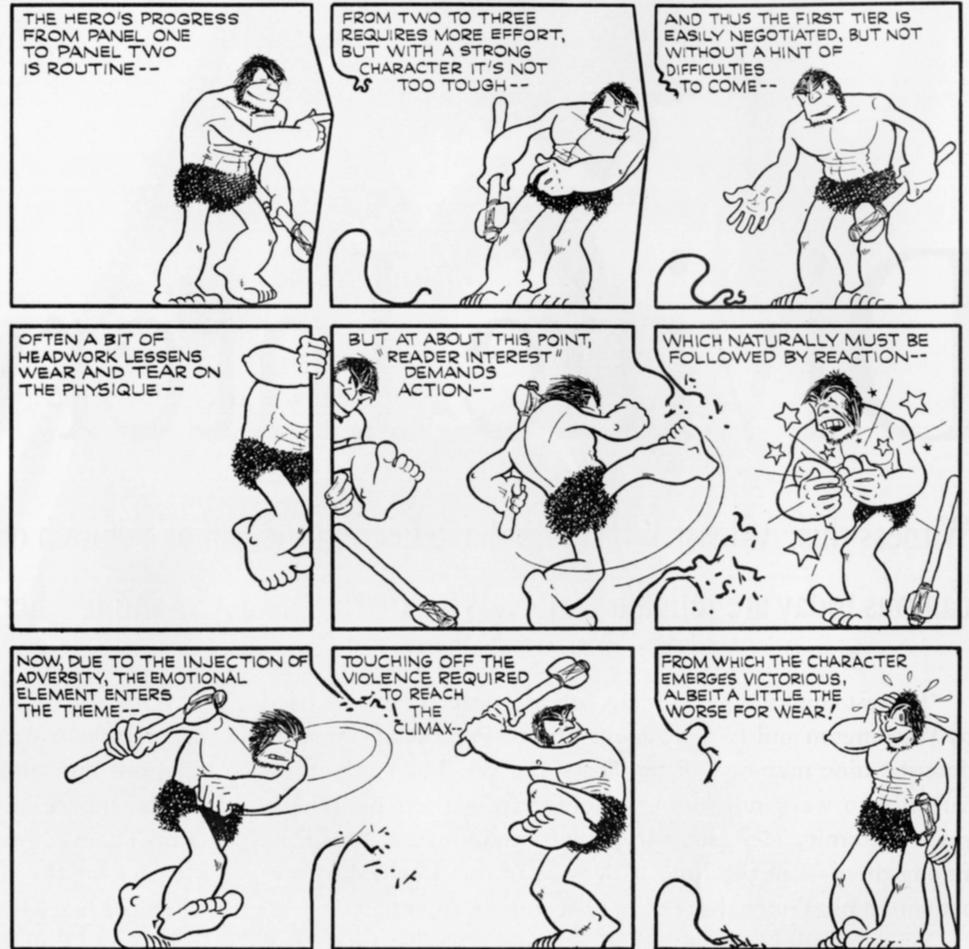

As a student, Wood brought such four-color giants as Alex Raymond (Flash Gordon) and Hal Foster (Prince Valiant) to Lee Chapel as speakers. He drew for the Phi and its competitor paper, but did the bulk of his 'tooning for The Southern Collegian. His most lasting legacy at W&L, however, may be a bicentennial booklet, edited by Wood, featuring contributions by many of the day's leading cartoonists, including Ernie Bushmiller (Nancy), Chic Young (Blondie), and Chester Gould (Dick Tracy), drawn especially for W&L's birthday. An Alley Oop page created for the publication will be on permanent display at the museum.

After college, Wood had one primary aspiration. "I wanted to be a cartoonist in Washington," he says, "but the bases were always loaded." He worked for a time at the Washington Star ("I was way down the line, number four or five") before going to work for the Richmond News Leader and editor Douglas Southall Freeman. From there it was on to the Pittsburgh Press, and then eventually back to Washington as an editor for the Bell Telephone System. "All my papers have folded," he laments. "Most cities have become one-newspaper towns and you get only one editorial view."

Other things have changed since Wood began amassing his collection. Original cartoon art has gone from being consigned to the dumpster (where Wood has fished out many originals over the years) to commanding high prices, as recent comics-related auctions at Sotheby's will attest. "Most everybody's selling their work now," he says of today's cartoonists. "They know I'm not selling it—that it's going into the museum."

Wood has put together 16 national and international shows for the likes of the Metropolitan in New York, the Louvre in Paris, even Madame Tussaud's in London. He moderated a lecture series at the Smithsonian, "Giants of Cartoon Art," for eight years, drawing enthusiastic crowds for the likes of Gary Larson (The Far Side) and Milton Caniff (Terry and the Pirates). And now, finally, there's the museum, which will occupy a duplex adjacent to the Frederick Douglass House Museum in the 300 block of A Street Northeast in Washington. With French windows on the third floor and a fireplace in every room, the building boasts two floors for exhibition space, a floor for personnel, and another floor for computer scanning (the entire 40,000-piece collection is being catalogued, piece by piece, on CD-ROM).

"Alley Oop at Washington and Lee," created for the bicentennial booklet 200 Years Young, is among the 135 cartoons on continuous display at the museum, which opens later this spring.

Wood has three architects working to get the museum ready for opening by the end of May—with all the red tape in Washington, that date is tentative at best—and in the meantime, he's still working at the medium that he loves, turning out three cartoons a week and planning future exhibitions for the museum. "What I've been working to do," he explains, "is to make the cartoon a major American art form."

But once that's done—once the cabinets and files have been emptied—what's he going to do with all that storage space at home? Wood grins broadly, "We're going to fill it up again." ♦

Divine Intervention

Witness this: At least 170 alumni have heeded the call of a church or synagogue. One in 100 students on campus today are religion majors. Who are the preachers and teachers of W&L? ❖ By William Cocke '82

"Honest thinking and serious intent" were the words used by Washington and Lee president Francis Pendleton Gaines to describe nine members of the Class of 1954. The students he referred to were not much different from their peers that year—fraternity men, football players, and amateur thespians among them—but the June 1954 issue of the Alumni Magazine contains a brief item about their plans for the future:

"An unusually large number from one class," it says, "will continue their studies next fall in preparation for the ministry."

"We were a class of teachers and preachers," notes Frank Parsons '54, director of capital planning at W&L, and he's not far off the mark. Today, all but one of those named in the article are still in the ministry, serve as professors of religion, or are in some sort of other religious vocation. And they are not alone. Alumni records show there are at least 170 alumni—including three Episcopal bishops, two rabbis, and Pat Robertson '50—who have heeded the call of the church or synagogue. And while the Class of '54 may be a little out of the ordinary for a school that, at the time, did not even have a religion major, what is not unusual is that, for decades, Washington and Lee has been turning out men—and now women—who have felt the need to use their education for a non-secular calling.

Before religion became a separate entity at the University in 1959, the history and philosophy departments filled the void with offerings such as Old Testament History and Literature, Comparative Religion, and Philosophy of Religion. William Morton, who was then chairman of philosophy at W&L, taught some of the more religiously inclined students at his home.

With the arrival of David Sprunt in 1954, the religion department came into being, though for the next several years, religious and philosophical studies shared the same departmental umbrella. In 1960, Louis Hodges, now the Fletcher Otey Thomas Professor of Bible at W&L, became the second member of the department, which expanded in the 1970s when the late Minor Rogers joined the faculty to teach courses in Japanese Buddhism. In 1971, a religion major was offered for the first time, with no fewer than 12 courses covering not only Christianity but other religious traditions, such as those from India, China, and Japan. Three years later, an ethics program was added and by 1984, two courses in Christian thought had evolved into a four-course sequence in "Christian Historical Theology and Ethics."

Today, Hodges is director of the University's program, Society and the Professions: Studies in Applied Ethics, and the department's five-member faculty includes professors Harlan Beckley and Winston Davis and associate professors Alexandra Brown and Richard Marks. Of 29 religion offerings, eight focus primarily on Christianity; five are concerned with Judaism, four deal with Buddhism, Islam, and other religious traditions in Japan, China, and India; and the remainder treat a broad range of topics in the history, philosophy, and sociology of religion.

At present, one out of every 100 undergraduates enrolled at W&L, or 16 students, have declared religion as their major course of study. And out of the present student population, it is estimated that about 25 percent of them will take at least one course in religion this year at Washington and Lee.

BURR DATZ '75
CAMPUS MINISTER

“A church means community, just like a fraternity means community.
It’s the beginning of a process.”

Ask any number of alumni why they chose a religious vocation, and it’s clear that a religion major is not a necessary prerequisite to one’s later career. In the ’50s and ’60s this was true, of course, because there was no major. But for almost everyone, choosing to go into the ministry or becoming a teacher takes a lot of soul-searching.

“I stumbled into religion late at Washington and Lee,” recalls David Anderson ’76, an ordained Methodist minister and one of three chaplains at St. Christopher’s, a boy’s prep school in Richmond. “Dr. Sprunt’s New Testament class fit a nice spot in my schedule and I liked it. I eventually started taking more classes, particularly with Harlan Beckley.” As a senior, Anderson felt pressure to go to law school, and Beckley began talking to him about divinity school, “even though I didn’t listen to him at the time,” he says. “Then, after about a year of wondering what to do with my life, I decided to go on to the divinity school at Vanderbilt. I had no intention at the time of going into the ministry. It was a time of searching for me. During this period, both Vanderbilt [where he received his M.Div.] and Harlan were very helpful and supportive. W&L let me know that there was something else out there. It set me on a path where I was on the lookout for something more.”

Other students, such as Richard Harbison ’54, were influenced by something that happened on campus. Harbison had been thinking about going into the ministry for years but kept putting off the decision. Then the University brought in two speakers in conjunction with an event called Religious Emphasis Week. “That had a terrific influence on my leaning toward the ministry and discovering my own faith,” he recalls. “These two visitors were such dynamic speakers that they shaped my thinking at a crucial time.” Harbison attended St. Andrew’s University in Scotland on a Rotary Scholarship for the 1954-55 school year, and it was there, in the divinity school that he decided to go into the ordained Presbyterian ministry. Now pastor of First Presbyterian Church in Lynchburg, Va., Harbison is giving the Baccalaureate address at W&L June 1.

For Lane Steinger ’68, W&L afforded him the chance to return to what had been a dream since childhood. “From the time I was eight years old, I wanted to be a rabbi,” says Steinger, who is rabbi at Temple Emanu-El in suburban Detroit. His parents didn’t share his enthusiasm for the synagogue, but he found a support group at the University that included the late Steve Stephenson in the German department (Steinger’s major) and religion professors Sprunt and Hodges. Others who encouraged him while in Lexington were Rabbi Ephraim Fischhoff of Lynchburg; Holmes Irving, rector of R.E. Lee Church; and even “Mom” Fletcher, his house mother at Zeta Beta Tau fraternity. “They were all people who helped me decide that a rabbi was what I wanted to be,” says Steinger, who was ordained in 1973 and served a congregation near Pittsburgh before moving to his present position in Oak Park, Mich.

LANE STEINGER '68
RABBI, TEMPLE EMANU-EL

“At Washington and Lee, I was able to return to what had been a dream from childhood—to be a rabbi.”

Religious life at Washington and Lee has always benefited from a rich array of formal and informal support systems. An interactive YMCA program helped meet the spiritual needs of students in the 1950s, and that was succeeded by the University Christian Association, a “nondenominational group in which all students are welcome to participate, regardless of church or creed,” overseen by the University chaplain. By the late 1960s, the UCA was working with the University Federation of Christian Concern, an interdenominational group of Protestants and Catholics. Both groups conducted cooperative programs with Lexington churches, which provided outreach programs during this period and continue to do so even now.

Religious activity at W&L today includes informal student groups, chapters of various national organizations, and campus ministry programs sponsored by area churches. Such organizations include the Baptist Student Union, Campus Crusade for Christ, the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, the InterVarsity Christian Fellowship, the Lutheran Student Movement, and the Hillel Association. “The University’s support for those who want to seek a religious life has in no way diminished,” says Thomas Litzenburg ’57, director of the Reeves Center and acting University chaplain. Washington and Lee, he adds, has never strayed from one of Robert E. Lee’s guiding precepts: “Lee, for whom religious life was fundamental, always believed that its expression should be utterly voluntary.”

Whatever decade a student happens to come along at Washington and Lee, one constant remains—the University’s emphasis on the liberal arts. For students who are so inclined, the arts and humanities may awaken a sense of purpose that finds its best expression in a religious vocation.

The deciding factor may manifest itself through the influence of a teacher or other mentor. William Thomas ’54, now professor of philosophy and religion at James Madison University and an ordained Presbyterian minister, remembers the training he received under philosophy professors William Morton and Edward Myers. Charles Swezey ’57, dean of faculty at Union Theological Seminary in Richmond and the Annie Scales Rogers Professor of Christian Ethics, cites James G. Leyburn as a great influence and corresponded with him until just before Leyburn’s death last year at age 91. “Dean Leyburn brought me back to Lexington when I served at the Lexington Presbyterian Church from 1962 to 1970,” he says. “We taught Sunday school for eight years together.”

And for Peter Lee ’60, now bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Virginia, dean of students and director of admissions Frank Gilliam was a major figure: “I am one of several dozen Episcopal clergy resulting from his influence. He would growl at me and say that I should consider the clergy.”

Bishop Lee, who majored in history at W&L, resoundingly endorses a liberal arts education for people going into religion. “It gives you a sense of perspective on ways human beings have sought to find meaning in their lives,” he says. “It tempers fanaticism.” And as someone in the business of ordaining people, Lee finds that those with liberal arts backgrounds “have a better awareness of all human experience.” He recalls Sunday mornings when he and others in his fraternity would

DAVID ANDERSON '76
CHAPLAIN, ST. CHRISTOPHER'S

"I stumbled into religion late at W&L."

JEFFREY SPENCE '71
NATIONAL CONFERENCE OF CHRISTIANS AND JEWS

"Dr. Sprunt was a sort of father figure."

slip away before anyone was up, go to Robert E. Lee Memorial Church for worship, and be back in time for breakfast.

This wouldn't surprise William "Burr" Datz '75. He is finding out that the fraternity system harbors more than just beer and bravado. As the campus minister for St. Patrick's Catholic Church, Datz recently conducted an "imagination exercise" for a group of recently inducted pledges at one of the Red Square fraternities. He calls the exercise "Shopping for Values": "We pretend that they've won the lottery and they get to pick between material things and more intangible things like truth, honor, and compassion. They then write their choices on an index card and turn them in to me." Datz didn't blink when he looked at the cards and found that, instead of mountain bikes and stereos, the students had chosen: Friendship, Integrity, Perseverance, Respect, and Honor. "By giving them permission to talk, I am always amazed and touched by their response," he says. "A church means community, just like a fraternity means community. It's the beginning of a process."

If Datz is working on a grass-roots level close to home, Jeffrey Spence '71 is doing the same on a state and national level as executive director for the Virginia region of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, a nonprofit human relations organization founded in 1927 to fight bias, racism, and prejudice nationwide. Spence, one of the first two religion majors to graduate from W&L, credits professors Hodges and Sprunt with providing him with well-timed guidance. Hodges "was the person through whom I was able to define my commitment to the ministry," he says. "Dr. Sprunt was a wise counselor and a sort of father figure."

Spence was ordained in the United Church of Christ in 1974 and joined the NCCJ four years later. He conducts human relations training for law enforcement agencies to guide police toward a better understanding of a diverse society and does likewise with youth groups. He also sets up intergroup dialogues between different, sometimes antagonistic, segments of society. He recently hosted a Christian-Jewish-Muslim dialogue at Christopher Newport College in Newport News, Va.

Spence's relationship with Hodges continues to this day, and he regularly participates in Hodges' Ethics and the Professions institutes at W&L, including a March session on journalism. "As an ethicist," he says, "I provide a view from someone who is not a member of that particular profession."

Washington and Lee continues to graduate students who want to go into the ministry and those who want to teach.

Will Jones '92 was a senior history major with only two religion courses to his credit when he decided over Christmas that he wanted to go into the ministry. After graduating, he worked as a youth director for his home church in Memphis, learning the Monday-through-Friday administrative aspects of how a church operates, and now he's in his first year at Columbia Theological Seminary in Decatur, Ga., with two more years to

KERRY EGAN '95
RELIGION MAJOR

"I would like to change the world—print that."

KELLY BROTZMAN '95
RELIGION AND ENGLISH DOUBLE MAJOR

"I want to go for a Ph.D
and eventually teach."

go. In his last year, he'll take four ordination exams—"sort of like a religious bar exam," he says—and receive an M.Div. upon graduation. From there, he will interview with various Presbyterian churches and "hope to find a good match."

A classmate of Jones', Sonja Tillberg was similarly preoccupied with her economics and politics major during much of her time at W&L. "I thought about going into the ministry as far back as high school when I was working with my church," says Tillberg, who was raised as a Lutheran in rural Pennsylvania. "Then, as I was studying economics and politics, it became evident that things in my background had shaped my view of social issues. By my junior and senior years, I began to realize that this was a major influence in my life and that I should share it—and Harlan Beckley always said you don't have to be a religion major to go into the ministry."

Tillberg is finishing up her first year at Yale Divinity School and will receive a M.Div. in two years. "The things I'll do within the ministry will never be far from social issues," she says, "so my majors were not a contradiction."

Junior religion majors Kelly Brotzman and Kerry Egan are close friends—something that is not unusual among the tight-knit group of religion majors, many of whom go into non-religious vocations. Brotzman and Egan both plan to pursue academic careers, though in different directions. Brotzman, a religion and English double major, is specializing in ethics and systematic theology, with a focus on Judeo-Christian traditions. She switched from a chemistry major after taking a religion class under Beckley. "I want to go for a Ph.D and eventually teach,"

she says. "Graduate school was the logical choice because I'm the bookish sort."

Egan leaned toward a major in English, then philosophy, when Alexandra Brown's course in Women in Western Religious Tradition hooked her on religion for good ("It was a fluke"). "I am more interested in comparative religion than Kelly is," says Egan. "I want to find out how peoples' religions affect other aspects of their lives—their public lives. How religion affects health and women's status. How religion affects social structure in Third World countries. You have to understand the religious underpinnings before you can understand their world view."

"I would like to change the world," she adds, laughing. "You can print that."

Egan's enthusiasm is infectious, particularly if you think of the scores of alumni out there who, because of "honest thinking and serious intent," are contributing to making other peoples' lives easier or more meaningful. Those who choose religious vocations are perhaps the ultimate example of the value of a liberal arts education. It may take them a while to figure out where they're going, but once decided, they rarely forsake their mission.

"Change the world?" She just might. ♦

Race, Crime, and Law in America

Symposium Focuses on Criminal Justice System

From left, symposium co-organizer Laura Anderson '94L; former San Jose police chief Joseph McNamara; and Memphis judge D'Army Bailey.

A distinguished group of speakers from a range of professional backgrounds—including law enforcement, social science, the judiciary, academia, social work, the Justice Department, and capital defense representation—gathered in the Moot Courtroom of Lewis Hall on March 11 for a symposium on race and the criminal justice system. The symposium, “‘To Establish Justice’: Race, Crime, and Law in America,” was sponsored by the Frances Lewis Law Center, the Black Law Students’ Association, and the Washington and Lee Law Review. Students, professors, and practicing attorneys, including a number of W&L alumni, attended the conference, which was approved by the Virginia Mandatory CLE Board for credit.

In the wake of the Rodney King beating and the highly publicized trials that followed, the effect of race and fairness within the criminal justice system has become an issue of national concern. The symposium explored a number of race-related issues arising in all phases of the system, from encounters between police officers and citizens, to arrest and prosecution, to sentencing.

King’s case was cited more than once as an example of race affecting criminal justice. The panelists agreed that, if there had not been a videotape of the beating, we would never have heard of Rodney King. The case against the police officers would probably never have gone to trial.

According to Lawrence S. Middleton, assistant U.S. attorney for the Central District of California, the Rodney King case is the perfect example of racial discrimination in the criminal justice system. Middleton, a University of Virginia law graduate, was a member of the federal prosecution team that prosecuted the police officers charged in the beatings. He was joined by other panelists in the first session, “Race in the Courtroom,” who pointed to patterns of racial injustice in venue determinations, jury selections, racial imagery, and verdicts.

“Racial discrimination is one of the biggest problems society faces today,” said panelist Bryan Stevenson, a defense attorney who represents death row prisoners in the South. Stevenson grew up in Alabama aware of the impact of the civil rights movement, but sees little evidence of civil rights when he walks into the courtroom. “Law school,” he added, doesn’t prepare you for being there on execution day.”

Stevenson praised the symposium for the courage and interest to confront the problem: “When we confront racial bias and overcome it, we create hope.”

Judge D’Army Bailey of Memphis, Tenn., spoke at length on race in the courtroom, especially in jury selection. Like other speakers, Bailey readily acknowledged that prosecutors use race in the courtroom, but candidly noted that as a defense attorney he used race at times to try and gain an advantage in areas such as jury selection. From his perspective, the challenge was to formulate approaches which acknowledged the reality that both sides—the prosecution and defense—are trying to win their case and that assumptions based on race will enter into their strategies.

Joseph McNamara, a panelist in the discussion on “Race, Crime, and Punishment,” began his 35-year career as a policeman in Harlem in 1956 and made his first arrest for first-degree murder. “Crime and violence hit the inner-city poor more than anywhere else,” said McNamara, onetime police chief of San Jose and Kansas City and a research fellow at Stanford University. He noted that since 1914, a huge drug industry has increased violence and, though most drug users are whites, the arrest rate is nearly five times higher for non-whites.

Fay W. Hobbs, a rehabilitation counselor in Lexington and Rockbridge County, spoke on the socioeconomic factors and the need for more funding of youth programs to steer adolescents away from a life of drugs and crime. Her message was a powerful statement on the need to instill in these youth a sense of self-esteem and importance after childhoods that rarely provide the emotional or educational support necessary for them to succeed in society.

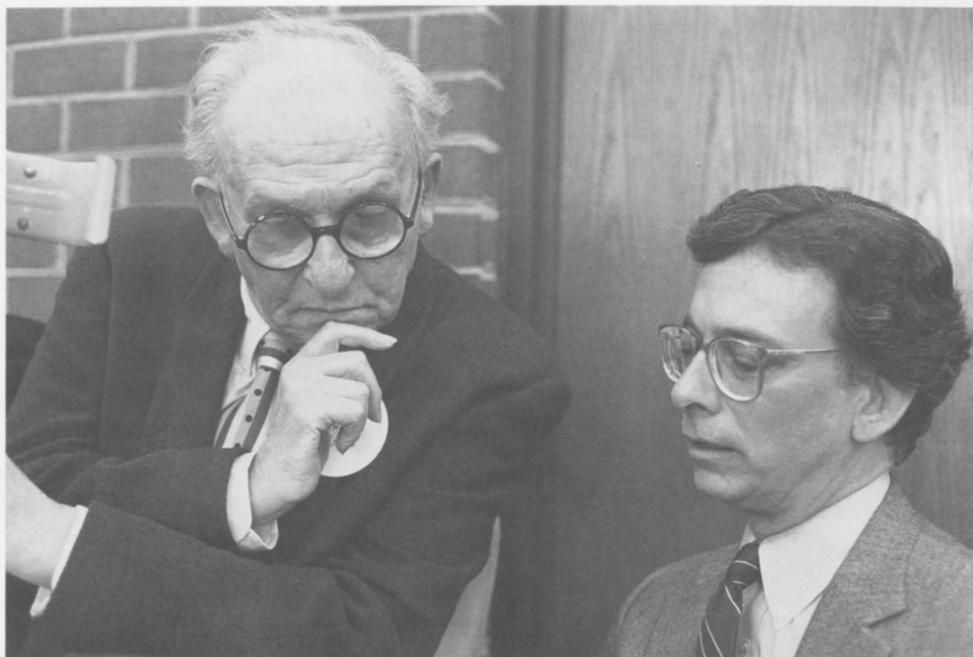

An afternoon session took "An Empirical Look at Race and the Criminal Justice System." David C. Baldus, professor of law at the University of Iowa, spoke on the topic of his research which included a landmark study of Georgia's death penalty, which statistically demonstrated that defendants are significantly more likely to receive the death penalty if they kill a white rather than a black victim. The Baldus study formed the basis of the defendant's argument to the Supreme Court in McCleskey v. Kemp that the death penalty was being unconstitutionally imposed.

Although at times some of the panelists voiced extreme pessimism, the conference ended on a note of cautious optimism that solutions to the problem are possible. Speaker after speaker emphasized however, that harsher penalties could not ultimately solve the crime problem. Any hope lies in pursuing strategies that look at the root causes of crime and that attempt to confront problems such as drug abuse through rehabilitation programs rather than through blanket incarceration.

"I think the symposium succeeded in presenting a candid picture of the criminal justice system and in furthering the public dialogue on critical issues involving race," says law professor Brian C. Murchison, who organized the symposium along with fellow professor Scott Sundby, Black Law Students' Association president Laura Anderson '94L, and Law Review editor Paul F. Kirgis '94L. "It was thought provoking and hopefully started discussion that will continue about what people can do to make things better."

Others in attendance agreed. "It gave us some real hands-on information and was very useful for the practitioner," says Laura Fenn '93L of the Public Defender's Office in Portsmouth, Va. "A trial lawyer could benefit a great deal from the perspectives presented here."

"I thought it was very timely," adds Overton P. "Opie" Pollard '54, '57L, executive director of the Virginia Public Defender Commission in Richmond. "I was very impressed with the caliber of speakers present. They gave us a lot to think about."—By Evan Atkins

Sydney Lewis '41 and dean Randall P. Bezanson were among those attending the symposium.

W&L Law School Ranked 22nd in U.S. News Survey

The Washington and Lee School of Law has been ranked 22nd in the country by U.S. News & World Report in the magazine's March 21 issue listing of "America's Best Graduate Schools."

Law schools were ranked using five criteria: student selectivity, placement success, faculty resources, and two separate measures of institutional reputation. Overall rank was determined by converting into percentiles the scores achieved in each category. For the fifth consecutive year, Yale Law School earned the top rating among the nation's 176 accredited law schools.

Washington and Lee was ranked sixth in the category of faculty resources, which was based mainly on the school's total expenditures per student for instruction, library and supporting services, and the current student-to-teacher ratio, which at Washington and Lee is 12 to 1. W&L also scored favorably in the employment category, with 88.3 percent of its graduates employed six months after graduation.

The U.S. News listing comes on the heels of the law school's 19th-place ranking among the most selective law schools in the 1994 edition of the Princeton Review Student Access Guide to the Best Law Schools. The Princeton Review guide ranked W&L second, after Yale, in the quality of life category.

"We are delighted that the law school has received national attention again for its quality, and especially that the attention is focused on our student/faculty ratio and the quality and accessibility of our faculty," says Randall P. Bezanson, dean of the W&L law school. "It is, after all, the quality of what we do, not how we rank, that matters most."

Powell Book Published

Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr.: A Biography (Scribners; $30), by John F. Jeffries Jr., was published in April. Jeffries, a former clerk of the retired Supreme Court Justice and W&L graduate ('29, '31L), had full access to Powell and his papers and the cooperation of other justices in writing this 736-page account of the Justice's life. The papers are now stored in the law school's Powell Archives.

Elsewhere, William H. Harbaugh's 1973 work, Lawyer's Lawyer: The Life of John W. Davis, has been reprinted by Oxford University Press ($18.95). Davis graduated from W&L (1892, 1895L) and was later a professor of law at the University; solicitor general of the United States; ambassador to Great Britain; and a U.S. presidential candidate in 1924.

The Generals' Report

BY BRIAN LOGUE
AND JAY PLOTKIN '92

Pleasant surprises and noteworthy achievements heated up an icy winter sports season at Washington and Lee. Taking the floor for the first time, the women's basketball team posted a winning record on the season, and the women's swimming team reclaimed the Old Dominion Athletic Conference championship for the first time in three years. The wrestling team posted its first .500 season since 1987. The men's basketball team knocked off NCAA tournament-bound Amherst while veteran coach Verne Canfield posted his 450th victory. The men's swimming team continued its streak of national qualifiers while placing second in a competitive championship meet. Both track teams fared well at the ODAC championships, with the women's team winning its fifth straight conference title, unofficial though it is.

Sophomore Sondra Holmes battles a Hollins player for the ball. The women's basketball team came up winners in their first season of competitive play.

Men's Basketball

Following a slow 1-5 start, the Generals regrouped with a key 63-54 victory over Emory & Henry in December and played competitively for the remainder of the season. W&L finished the year 9-15, winning four games more than last year.

Among W&L's most notable wins was a 70-64 victory over Amherst in early January. The Lord Jeffs came to Lexington undefeated and went on to qualify for the NCAA tournament. W&L coach Verne Canfield, in his 30th season, notched his 450th career win with a 102-81 victory over Eastern Mennonite Feb. 16.

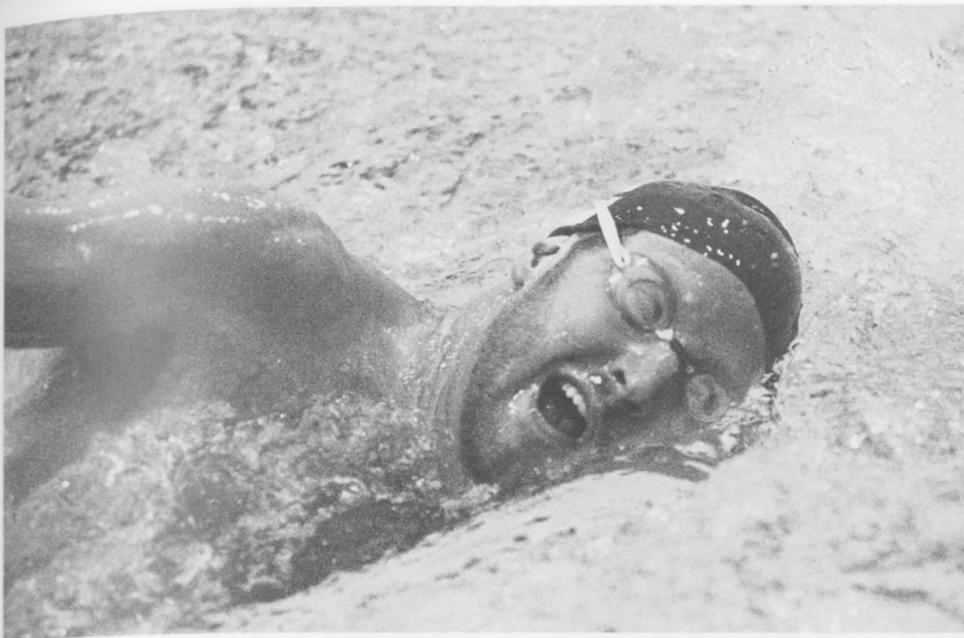

For a team that emphasized youth, W&L got excellent play from its two seniors. Matt Newton was a workhorse as the team's only true point guard and Robert Miggins led the team in rebounding and blocked shots and tied with Newton for the lead in steals. Sophomore forward Cam Dyer led the team in scoring, averaging 15 points per game and earning honorable mention All-ODAC honors. Sophomore forward Derek Carter played like a madman the second half of the season and finished second in scoring (9.8 points per game) and rebounds (5.9 per game). Freshman guard Chris Couzen moved into the starting lineup in his fifth game and led the team in defense while averaging 8.3 points a game.

Women's Basketball

In its first varsity season, the women's basketball squad shattered everyone's expectations by putting together an 11-10 season, winning three of its last four games, and finishing second in the season-ending North Carolina-Virginia Women's College Tournament. The Generals knocked off Salem and Randolph-Macon Woman's College before falling to Meredith in the championship game.

After an 0-3 start, W&L posted the program's first win by nipping St. Mary's (Md.) 60-57. Back-to-back wins over Wesley evened the record at 3-3, and after a loss to Virginia Wesleyan, the Junior All-American John Rowe just missed qualifying for his third NCAA championship meet.

Generals scored a big win with a 43-41 decision over Sewanee. W&L's defense, which was nationally ranked all year, forced 41 turnovers in the game.

Freshman Virginia Yoerg was W&L's top scorer, averaging 10.4 points a game off the bench. Sophomore Sandra Holmes averaged 9.8 points and 6.6 rebounds and senior Nicky Mayfield averaged 8.5 points and 6.3 rebounds. Both Holmes and Mayfield were named to the all-tournament team.

Men's Swimming

W&L saw its streak of 16 consecutive victories snapped with a loss to Catholic in mid-January, but that hardly took the shine off another excellent season. The Generals finished the year 5-3, their 10th winning season in the last 11 years, and placed second (behind the College of Charleston) in a field of mostly Division I schools at the Southern States Championships. W&L beat such schools as Georgia Southern, Louisville, Howard, Davidson, and VMI.

Juniors Tony Diederich and John Rowe and sophomore Craig Sears all swam NCAA-provisional qualifying times at the meet, as did the 400 and 800 freestyle relay teams. Diederich, though, was the only General selected for the NCAA championships, held March 17-20 at Williams College. His selection kept alive a W&L string of representatives at the championship. At least one W&L swimmer had garnered All-America honors in the previous 19 seasons.

No school records fell during the season, but the 400-yard freestyle mark of 3:09.04 set in 1984 by Gary Meyer, Don Smith, Tim Stanford, and Bobby Pearson narrowly survived. The 1994 team of Diederich, David Stillman, Roland Chase, and Sears missed the record by .09 of a second when they won the race at the Southern States Championships.

Women's Swimming

The ODAC women's swimming championship returned to its rightful owner this year. W&L won the championship from 1988 through 1991, but lost the crown in 1992 and 1993 despite dominating the championship meet. W&L won nearly every event those years, but a lack of depth prevented them from claiming the title.

This year W&L won all but one of its events while tying the school record for wins in a season (eight) and winning the Atlantic States title. As testimony to its depth, five relay teams set school records at the ODAC championship.

Sophomore Rebekah Prince qualified for the NCAAs for the second straight year and won seven events at the ODAC championship meet. Freshman Jen Miller also won seven events as she was named ODAC Swimmer of the Year. Joining Prince and Miller on the All-ODAC team were Staci Bertelli, Susan Fisher, Brandi Henderson, Laura Marshall, Jill Sheets, and Anne Spencer.

Indoor Track and Field

The women reigned supreme at the ODAC championship meet once again. The league does not officially sponsor women's track, but W&L won the invitational for the fifth straight year.

Women's individual winners were senior co-captain Wendy Neel in the 60-yard dash, sophomore Amy Mears in the two-mile run, and freshman Hollis Leddy in the 440-yard dash. W&L's 4x440 and 4x880 relay teams both won and all five winning W&L entries set new conference records. Junior Sarah Gilbert placed in five events and was W&L's top point scorer.

The men's team improved upon last year's third-place showing by finishing a solid second. Sophomore Dax Mahoney won the 440-yard dash and teamed with Scott Covey, John Robinson, and Hayne Hodges to win the 4x100 relay.

Wrestling

A squad of young wrestlers grappled with a number of questions at the outset of the season, but W&L finished with a 4-4 dual meet record and several strong invitational showings. The Generals finished third at the W&L Invitational with several wrestlers making solid showings, but the story of the Invitational was sophomore Anthony Rafla. In his first season of wrestling, Rafla won the 134-pound title with first-period pins over the top two seeds.

Junior Eric Shirley also won a title at the Invitational with an overtime victory in the 126-pound class. Shirley finished the season by winning 14 of his final 16 matches to go 14-6 on the year. Sophomore Cole Van Nice had W&L's best record and was dominating at times, posting a 16-8 record in his first season.

Winter Sports Scoreboard

Men's Basketball (9-15)

John Carroll 92, W&L 52
 Western Connecticut State 97, W&L 92
 W&L 69, Emory 54
 Bridgewater 74, W&L 50
 Hampden-Sydney 90, W&L 48
 Guilford 66, W&L 58
 W&L 63, Emory & Henry 54
 W&L 70, Amherst 64
 W&L 70, Virginia Wesleyan 66
 Roanoke 73, W&L 66
 Mary Washington 61, W&L 57
 W&L 70, Lynchburg 67
 Randolph-Macon 69, W&L 65
 W&L 76, Emory & Henry 72
 Bridgewater 63, W&L 58
 W&L 86, Catholic 67
 Hampden-Sydney 85, W&L 77
 Guilford 79, W&L 68
 W&L 90, Eastern Mennonite 74
 Lynchburg 62, W&L 57
 Roanoke 74, W&L 63
 Virginia Wesleyan 78, W&L 60
 W&L 102, Eastern Mennonite 81
 Randolph-Macon 58, W&L 55

Women's Basketball (11-10)

Eastern Mennonite 61, W&L 36
 Emory 77, W&L 37
 Catholic 59, W&L 57

W&L 60, St. Mary's (Md.) 57
 W&L 55, Wesley 22
 W&L 48, Wesley 38
 Virginia Wesleyan 80, W&L 33
 W&L 43, Sewanee 41
 W&L 66, Sweet Briar 20
 Mary Washington 71, W&L 29
 Meredith 68, W&L 55
 W&L 56, Mary Baldwin 27
 W&L 57, Sweet Briar 22
 Davidson 77, W&L 33
 W&L 81, Mary Baldwin 22
 Midway 83, W&L 38
 Hollins 66, W&L 62
 W&L 64, Hollins 56
 W&L 78, Salem 40
 W&L 60, Randolph-Macon 55
 Meredith 67, W&L 42

Men's Swimming (5-3)

W&L 137, Centre 61
 Third of 4 at U. of Virginia Invitational
 W&L 138, Buffalo 64
 Catholic 118, W&L 86
 Emory 71, W&L 50
 Johns Hopkins 90, W&L 32
 W&L 141, Franklin & Marshall 49
 W&L 124, Mary Washington 81
 W&L 120, Radford 18
 Second of 12 at Southern States
 Championships

Women's Swimming (8-4)

W&L 134, Centre 59
 W&L 175, Sweet Briar 86
 W&L 140, Randolph-Macon Woman's College 66
 W&L 121, Buffalo State 57
 Catholic 106, W&L 99
 Emory 83, W&L 39
 Johns Hopkins 90, W&L 28
 W&L 131, Franklin & Marshall 73
 W&L 167, Hollins 84
 Mary Washington 117, W&L 75
 W&L 142, Mary Baldwin 78
 W&L 148, Radford 32
 First of 8 at ODAC/Atlantic States
 Championships

Wrestling (4-4)

13th of 18 at Lebanon Valley Invitational
 Messiah 31, W&L 9
 Johns Hopkins 24, W&L 16
 W&L 27, Western Maryland 15
 W&L 28, Pensacola Christian 22
 W&L 29, Davidson 13
 Third of 6 at W&L Invitational
 York 27, W&L 21
 Gettysburg 26, W&L 18
 W&L 44, Gallaudet 6
 Sixth of 7 at Apprentice Invitational
 Fourth of 4 at Va. College Division State Championship

Chris Couzen (left), a freshman from Union, N.J., averaged 8.3 points a game while shutting down the opposition; sophomore Cole Van Nice (above) led the wrestling team in wins and pins.

Family Tradition

Senior Angie Carrington Plays Dual Roles for W&L

Angie Carrington knows something about the word commitment. As a captain of the women's soccer and lacrosse teams, the All-American athlete spends seven months out of the school year out on the playing fields most afternoons and weekends. As a senior religion major, she's an Honor Roll student and was recently inducted into Phi Beta Kappa. On top of all that she finds the time to serve as a dorm counselor, and she's even finding the time to get married: While she'd like nothing more than to lead the Generals into their second straight NCAA Tournament, she also has a wedding to get ready for. "I'm really, really excited," she says. "I'm trying to keep one foot in each world now."

Carrington knew all about Washington and Lee when she was growing up in Houston. Her grandfather is the late Lee McLaughlin, the famed W&L football coach who led the Generals to the national small college championship in 1961. Her grandmother still lives here, and even her stepfather is an alumnus.

But despite the family ties, her decision to choose W&L was not an easy one because of what she describes as "neverending" bloodline to that school on the other side of the mountain. "I felt much more pull to UVa," says Carrington, who moved with her family to Charlottesville before her junior year of high school. "I felt like I was going against the grain to come here."

It was a decision helped by Washington and Lee's size more than anything else: "As a place that would be my home and community, W&L really attracted me," she explains. "It was a feeling-type decision rather than an objective one."

Jan Hathorn, who has coached Carrington in both soccer and lacrosse over the last four years, sees an almost artistic quality to her play. "Athletics is an expression of something that is a part of who she is," she says. "It's more than she just enjoys the game. She's truly an athlete and she has to do it."

Hathorn and Carrington readily agree that lacrosse is her more natural sport, but she's been successful in both. Carrington was twice honored as an All-ODAC soccer player and finished her career with 16 goals, third-best in W&L history. She has twice been all-region in lacrosse and last year earned third team All-American honors, and enters this season among the school's all-time leading scorers. The soccer and lacrosse teams she has played on have gone a combined 69-41-3 with two league championships in lacrosse and one regular-season soccer title.

Her role as a dual captain is no surprise to Hathorn: "Her thinking, maturity and personality are of a leadership nature. Plus, she's a good player."

How does she do it all? "It's not a matter of giving up a lot," she insists. "I love the games, being outside, the exercise and just being a part of the team. It's something I've always done and it flows out of love."

One last note to future recruiters: Her June 18 wedding is to former Generals soccer star Reid Murphy '93.

—By Brian Logue

Alumni News

Los Angeles/Orange Co., Baltimore Recognized as Chapters of the Year

A total of 60 W&L alumni and guests turned out to honor the Los Angeles/Orange County chapter as Small Chapter of the Year at a dinner March 17.

President and Mrs. John Wilson came from Lexington for the presentation, as did James D. Farrar Jr. '74, director of alumni programs, and Michael T. Boyd, assistant director of major gifts. Ann and Walt Fry '45 traveled from Goleta, about three-and-a-half hours north of Los Angeles, to attend the function, while Cindy and John Klinedinst '71, '78L drove up from San Diego for the occasion. "We had people make strong efforts to get there," says Farrar.

Farrar cites the leadership provided by chapter co-presidents Park Iler '57 and Jack Norberg '79 with leading the way for the chapter, which merged from the two separate groups last year. "Those guys have worked hard to communicate with the chapter and they have the interest, enthusiasm, and energy to create chapter events."

The whole West Coast alumni constituency has grown dramatically over the last decade, as admission numbers show. In 1984, a total of five California residents were enrolled in the University; that number stands at 52 today. "As the number of law and undergraduate students from California continues to grow, their interest level in alumni activities grows along with it," Farrar says.

Wearin' of the Grins: President Wilson presents Los Angeles chapter co-presidents Park Iler '57 and Jack Norberg '79 with Small Chapter of the Year plaque on St. Patrick's Day in L.A.

On the other coast, meanwhile, the Baltimore chapter was to receive its Large Chapter of the Year award on April 5, capping a remarkable turnaround that began six years ago under the leadership of Marc Ottinger '80 and continues today under current president Clark Carter '69.

Under the guidance of Alumni Admissions chair Hugh Robinson '80, "We continue to recruit students very heavily out of Baltimore," Farrar says, "and the chapter plans events that are both substantive and fun." Among the latter, a

Robert E. Lee birthday party hosted by Peggy and Butch West '65, '70L turned out more than 100 alumni and friends in January. "They've got a good family feel to their alumni chapter," Farrar adds.

The Alumni Board created the Chapter of the Year recognition program in 1987 to celebrate those chapters that have done a superior job in promoting the goals of Washington and Lee through areas such as student recruitment, career assistance, and chapter programming, as well as other criteria. Awards are given to large chapters (those serving 200 alumni or more) and small (199 and below).

A Pair of Jacks: Jack Norberg '79 and Jack Cook '38 are all smiles in Los Angeles.

Andrew Caruthers '87, John Catron '89, Joe Zasa '92L, and Michael Kidd '89.

L.A.'s Paul Hendry '80 (right) toasts Cindy and John Klinedinst '71, '78L of San Diego.

The House That W&L Built

Junior Francie Cohen, a politics major from Virginia Beach, is co-founder of the Washington and Lee Campus Chapter of Habitat for Humanity. During Alumni Weekend, the chapter will be raising money to build a Habitat house in Lexington, as she explains below.

"I always wondered why someone didn't do something. Then I realized, I was somebody."

When I decided that these words of Albert Camus' were to be my high school senior quote, I wasn't very sure whether or not I would honestly live my life according to them. Young liberal that I was, all that I knew was that I wanted to save everyone and everything; whether it was protecting Walden Pond or saving the whales, I became the champion of a new issue every other week, it seems.

All of my "issue philandering" came to an end, however, when I came to W&L and saw the rampant poverty of Rockbridge County and the way in which we all ignore it. When Former President Jimmy Carter mentioned his work with Habitat for Humanity while speaking on campus last year, I realized that I had finally found a way that I—along with my Washington and Lee family—could really make a difference.

Homecoming, It Ain't: Riding in an uncovered wagon in the parade to begin the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo Feb. 26 are a W&L posse that includes (from left) Jimmy ('51) and Joan Gallivan; Bo ('62) and Eileen DuBose; campaign marshal Gerry Lenfest '53; Buck Ogilvie '64; Marguerite Lenfest; President Wilson; Berry Miles; and rector Steve Miles '51.

The Washington and Lee Campus Chapter of Habitat for Humanity, founded by Jackie Van Vliet '95 and myself, will work side-by-side with the local affiliate to eliminate poverty housing in Lexington. A non-profit organization that accepts absolutely no government funds, our job is threefold: to educate our community about the serious need for affordable housing and the work of HFH; to build and rebuild houses in partnership with the local affiliate and the Lexington Safe and Sound Program, respectively; and to fulfill our most heartfelt goal—a house that the W&L community raised the money for and built all on its own.

The last goal, of course, is the most challenging. A house will cost us approximately $20,000. Although we have graciously been given an anonymous pledge of $10,000, we must raise $10,000 in matching funds first or receive no donation at all. We are excited by this challenge and are planning all sorts of fund-raisers, including a few to be held over Alumni Weekend. We hope to complete our fund-raising and begin construction of our house by next spring. What a great feeling it will be for us to return to Lexington as alumni and see all of the houses that Washington and Lee built!

As a community, we finally have a way to really be somebody and make a difference. As students, we are excited to participate in this project. We hope that you—as alumni and friends—will be just as excited to lend a hand in some way.

(Contributions to the W&L Chapter of Habitat for Humanity may be sent to University Center, Washington and Lee University, Lexington, VA 24450.)

A Good Year for Lichtfuss

Skip Lichtfuss '74 became the third member of W&L's lacrosse team to be inducted into the Lacrosse Hall of Fame in ceremonies in Baltimore Feb. 5. W&L was well represented for the occasion, including many past teammates and coaches. Front row (l-r): Chip Tompkins '73; former W&L lacrosse coach and 1994 Hall inductee Gene Corrigan; Lichtfuss; former W&L lacrosse coach Jack Emmer. Second row: David Warfield '75; Don Carroll '76; and Brian Chasney '74. Third row: Hall member Ted Bauer '74; Matt Montgomery '74; Hall member Skeet Chadwick '74; and Sam Englehart '73. Back row: alumni director Jim Farrar '74; and Don Eavenson '73.

Alumni Views

Lee's Lieutenants: From left, trustee Bill Lemon '55, '59L, Alumni Board member Jay Turner '67, '71L, Roanoke chapter president Paul Black '82, and Congressman Bob Goodlatte '77L celebrate Robert E. Lee's birthday at a Jan. 22 gathering in Roanoke. Goodlatte was elected to Congress from Virginia's Sixth District in 1992.

From left, Jane and Howard Packett '58 and Doris and Frank Rogers '79, '84L were among the well-wishers in Roanoke celebrating Robert E. Lee's birthday with a Jan. 22 reception at the Shenandoah Club. Southern Comfort added a capella harmonies to the cocktails and hors d'oeuvres.

Tom Beazlie '71 and his father, Frank Beazlie '40, were among the guests at the Peninsula chapter's Robert E. Lee birthday celebration on Jan. 21 at the James River Country Club in Newport News, Va. Rob Mish '76, associate director of alumni programs, was on hand with a video presentation of "On the Shoulders of Giants."

On the Road Again: Bettie and Ted Hunt '52L welcome Roger Libby '95 of Southern Comfort at the Charlotte chapter's first annual Robert E. Lee birthday celebration, held Jan. 15 at the Mint Museum. W&L's famed singing group played Greensboro, N.C., the previous night on a weekend swing through the Tar Heel State.

Good Buddies: Dick Sessoms, director of major gifts at W&L, and Don McFall '64, '69L celebrate the Feb. 24 launch of the Houston area Campaign for Washington and Lee, of which McFall is chairman. The national effort passed the $100 million mark in February, and Houston hopes to raise $6 million for Washington and Lee.

JubiLation: Hal Morris '42 and his wife, Jean, enjoy the company of JubiLee members (from left) Jennifer Ray '94, Melissa Wolf '94, Michelle Bauman '97, and Ellen Dean '94 at the choral group's Peninsula stop on Jan. 21 celebrating—you guessed it—Robert E. Lee's birthday.

David Long, W&L's director of planned and capital giving (left), and law dean Randall P. Bezanson join Connecticut River Valley chapter president Sandra Fischer '90L for the chapter's Robert E. Lee birthday party on Jan. 21.

Four Star Generals: From left, Virginia Sen. John Warner '49, Gray Castle '53, '55L, national campaign chairman Gerry Lenfest '53, and Fox Benton '60 mark the ongoing success of the Campaign for Washington and Lee at the Omni Houston on Feb. 24.

Fall Campus Calendar

- Aug. 19: Law classes begin.
- Sept. 8: Opening convocation.
- Sept. 9-10: Hall of Fame and Class Agents' Weekend.
- Sept. 30-Oct. 1: Homecoming '94: Five Star Generals reunion; chapter presidents' conference.
- Oct. 14-15: Parents' Weekend.

Annual Fund

Alumni Giving by Undergraduate and Law Classes

Class/Agent	Donors	Dollars	Participation (%)	Goal (%)	Class/Agent	Donors	Dollars	Participation (%)	Goal (%)
'02-'19	2	$200	22.2	13.3	'65L Leyburn Mosby Jr.	12	$1,955	30.0	72.4
'20-'29	36	9,200	26.1	46.0	'66 Jack Baber III	70	15,742	32.1	65.6
'20-'29L	1	200	12.5	20.0	'66L Henry Counts Jr.	12	4,400	27.9	97.8
'30 Herb Jahncke	21	12,298	40.4	123.0	'67 Jay Turner Jr.	68	20,066	35.1	91.2
'30L	1	200	33.3	200.0	'67L Bob Powell III	15	5,995	32.6	36.3
'31	15	3,925	28.3	65.4	'68 Joe Matthews Jr.	77	46,614	35.3	77.7
'31L	1	4,000	14.3	160.0	'68L Alling Jones	20	3,725	29.0	82.8
'32	11	985	24.4	49.3	'69 Phil Norwood	108	56,510	35.9	94.2
'32L	3	350	27.3	35.0	'69L Dave Redmond	24	4,775	34.3	95.5
'33 Charlie Longacre	26	11,370	39.4	133.8	'70 Dean Kumpuris	88	41,832	27.3	72.6
'33L Frank Bigham	4	475	66.7	95.0	'70L Ed Crosland Jr.	13	8,125	28.3	162.5
'34 Scotty Mosovich	29	6,810	46.0	68.1	'71 Drake Leddy	96	44,605	32.9	92.9
'34L	6	625	75.0	41.7	'71L Rob Hartmann	13	6,660	22.8	100.9
'35	17	3,002	27.9	75.1	'72 Bruce Wilsie Jr.	76	49,073	24.2	96.2
'35L	3	1,200	30.0	70.6	'72L Steve Annand	15	5,775	22.4	77.0
'36	33	9,540	41.3	83.0	'73 Meade Kampfmuller	81	32,172	23.3	89.4
'36L	2	300	40.0	150.0	'73L Greg Digel	36	9,519	37.5	58.8
'37	37	15,825	39.4	131.9	'74 Jim Farrar Jr.	98	37,863	29.7	98.3
'37L	2	600	25.0	17.1	'74L Steve Elkins	22	14,790	25.9	80.0
'38 Ernie Williams II	35	34,224	36.5	114.1	'75 Guy Kerr,
'38L	5	2,125	45.5	193.2	Steve Van Amburgh	114	37,562	36.5	97.6
'39 George Goodwin	41	32,480	32.5	81.2	'75L Grady Frank Jr.	28	11,890	35.4	97.5
'39L	11	2,785	50.0	79.6	'76 John Cocklereece Jr.	99	32,485	28.7	87.8
'40 Ross Hersey	61	55,786	54.0	94.6	'76L Pat Arey	20	7,050	27.0	95.3
'40L	3	300	25.0	100.0	'77 Jimmy Brooks	97	33,075	29.1	100.2
'41 Al Fleishman	42	17,867	31.6	71.5	'77L Morgan Maxwell III	18	5,525	23.7	76.7
'41L	4	12,447	40.0	113.2	'78 Peter Keefe	80	21,272	23.1	70.9
'42 Jim Warms	44	18,161	33.3	90.8	'78L Derek Swope	13	3,550	18.3	84.5
'42L	5	2,450	22.7	122.5	'79 Steve Jones Jr.,
'43A&L Al Darby Jr.	66	20,775	44.9	78.4	Jack Bovay	106	25,285	31.0	105.4
'44A&L Jay Cook Jr.	62	25,602	48.1	116.4	'79L Murph Murphy	31	9,990	26.1	87.6
'45A&L	30	17,535	30.3	97.4	'80 Sidney Simmons II	127	25,370	34.4	110.3
'46A&L	34	11,793	39.5	78.6	'80L Chris Wolf	22	7,325	20.0	112.7
'47A&L Warren Merrin Jr.	21	5,230	42.0	74.7	'81 J.R. Sult	120	24,568	39.0	111.7
'48 Andy McCutcheon	29	7,790	45.3	103.9	'81L Dave Weaver	30	7,735	26.3	84.1
'48L Carter Allen	19	13,650	34.6	91.0	'82 Tripp Brower III	105	21,166	32.8	84.7
'49 Charlie Treadgold	57	20,733	40.7	90.1	'82L David Black,
'49L Bill Greer	11	3,285	23.4	109.5	Lizanne Thomas	27	3,485	25.0	68.3
'50 Dug Dugger	106	49,787	46.9	88.1	'83 Scott Bond	104	15,898	30.3	106.0
'50L George Gray	21	8,035	52.5	114.8	'83L Millard Fretland	20	3,288	16.0	64.5
'51 Dave Kerr	82	61,219	44.1	87.5	'84 John Cleghorn,
'51L Marvin Bowling Jr.	22	7,975	39.3	99.7	Matt Thompson Jr.	117	21,356	36.3	71.2
'52 Boyd Leyburn Jr.	59	34,252	35.1	103.8	'84L Mike Pace Jr.	20	3,315	19.1	66.3
'52L Jake Reed Jr.	15	10,585	41.7	124.5	'85 Tad Renner III	104	14,765	30.9	118.1
'53 Gray Castle,					'85L Jon Rak	13	3,490	10.7	99.7
Parker Smith Jr.	58	55,474	31.9	48.9	'86 Randy Ellis,
'53L Bob Banse	17	6,813	56.7	85.2	Mark Slack IV	108	10,935	34.5	109.4
'54 Wiley Wright Jr.,					'86L Kirk Ludwig	18	1,438	15.3	49.6
Bob Cross	73	33,160	39.9	90.4	'87 John Atkins,
'54L Don Klensk	4	950	17.4	30.7	Andrew Caruthers	100	11,354	29.2	108.1
'55 Buddy Somerville Jr.	55	36,350	37.2	84.5	'87L Dayton Haigney III	15	985	13.0	35.2
'55L Jay Jackson	5	1,500	18.5	37.5	'88 Brad Watkins,
'56 Marv Moreland Jr.	47	13,262	28.0	48.2	Garth Schulz	124	8,660	34.5	82.5
'56L Reno Harp III	9	3,275	47.4	105.7	'88L Powell Starks	14	1,640	11.7	68.3
'57 Dick Laskey	62	24,918	35.6	89.0	'89 Elizabeth Cummins,
'57L Opie Pollard	16	9,928	59.3	73.5	Fray McCormick	147	10,304	37.3	103.0
'58 Howard Packett	79	38,073	40.5	77.7	'89L Al Ragan	12	1,465	10.3	66.6
'58L Mark Davis	12	9,050	52.2	82.3	'90 Brooks Pettus,
'59 Ted McKeldin Jr.,					Dallas Hagewood	160	7,635	38.7	117.5
David Meese	71	58,324	41.0	72.9	'90L John Falk,
'59L Bill Lemon	13	6,350	46.4	97.7	Tim Hodge	19	1,110	16.5	50.5
'60 Dave Weaver	77	34,667	40.7	73.8	'91 Stephen White,
'60L Bill Crowell Jr.	11	2,625	33.3	72.9	Chad Meyer	192	8,701	43.4	124.3
'61 Bill Bowen,					'91L Vaughan Gibson	9	1,575	8.1	63.0
Bill Johnston	59	24,648	33.0	75.8	'92 Garnett Wilbourn,
'61L Michael Masinter	10	4,100	31.3	68.3	Read Folline	178	6,585	43.0	109.7
'62 Jack Vardaman Jr.	81	45,293	38.9	78.1	'92L Molly Ziebold	11	555	8.7	55.5
'62L Ray Robrecht	16	5,500	53.3	68.8	'93 Josh Levinson,
'63 Thomas Moore Jr.	80	27,363	38.8	60.8	Annie Salisbury	266	6,167	62.0	123.3
'63L	11	3,000	39.3	63.8	'93L Chris Lawson,
'64 Don McFall	95	37,838	44.8	94.6	Walter Godlewski	45	1,625	31.0	108.3
'64L Pete Straub	22	3,400	53.7	136.0
'65 Skip Chase	71	28,054	34.1	72.9

(Figures as of March 15, 1994.)

Class Notes

'27

Dr. Alexander S. Moffett is retired and living in Grinnell, Iowa. He says that he is glad to be living in a college town and keeps busy reading and writing poetry. Moffett and his wife of 60 years, Virginia, are thankful to be living in the same town as their son, Sandy, who teaches theater at Grinnell College.

C.W. Clark Poole writes that the real news is that he is still active at almost 88. He lives in St. Leonard, Md., with his wife of 51 years and enjoys gardening, taking short trips and reading.

Dr. Burchard S. Pruett is enjoying the blue skies and sunshine of Prescott, Ariz., where he moved in 1991.

'29

William G. Sargent lives in Flushing, N.Y., and says that his age is starting to catch up with him. He enjoys visits from his family and has 26 great grandchildren!

'30

The Hon. Robert E. Clapp Jr. is enjoying his retirement from his position as a Maryland Circuit Court Judge. He is now serving as "of counsel" to son James' (Class of '73) law firm and says, "it's easier than working." He lives in Frederick.

Dr. Idus D. Felder Jr. recently moved to a retirement community in Valdosta, Ga.

'31

Dr. John H. Thomas Jr. writes that he has enjoyed visiting the campus this year. He lives in Greenville, Va.

'32

Charles E. Duncan lives in Vero Beach, Fla., and reports that he is still playing some golf although he has been in poor health.

William R. Howell writes that his memories often take him back to the days when he was captain of the golf team and Cy Twombly was the coach. Now, Howell lives in Gulfport, Miss., and says he still enjoys playing golf about twice a week.

James S. Pollak of Sherman Oaks, Calif., reports that he is working on publishing The Jubilant Delinquent, an anecdotal memoir about his life, including a chapter about his days at W&L.

J. Bernard Spector lives in Miami Beach, Fla., and says he is glad to be "still hanging in there."

'33

Edwin W. Chittum recently moved to a cottage on the Outer Banks of North Carolina.

John N. Hoffman is recovering in a nursing home in Salisbury, Conn., after suffering a stroke in September 1992. Although progress seems slow at times, Hoffman writes that he is hopeful and that he's receiving excellent care.

'33L

Alfred R. Jones of Seminole, Fla., and his wife, Ruth, celebrated their 54th wedding anniversary last November.

'34

Dr. Milton L. Harris is retired and divides his time between Baton Rouge, La., and Perdido Key, Fla.

Joseph C. Muller has been retired for 17 years after working for DuPont in Wilmington, Del., for 42 years. He received his master's degree in physical chemistry in 1940 from Rutgers University and completed his doctoral work in 1942. He now spends most of his time playing golf at the Delray Dunes Golf and Country Club in Boynton Beach, Fla.

Foster McCrum Palmer traveled extensively this past year, visiting Lexington twice as well as Texas, Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, Montana, British Columbia, and Nova Scotia. He has been living in Watertown, Mass., for 40 years.

Dr. George W. Price and his wife, Gretchen, moved back to Spartanburg, S.C., after 17 years in Hendersonville, N.C. He is in the Health Center, and says the care is excellent, and Gretchen has an apartment there.

'35

Dr. Sidney Lyons has been retired from his family practice for 14 years. He has one son, three daughters, four grandsons and two granddaughters. Lyons lives in Arlington, Va., and enjoys biking, walking, and volunteering.

Gilbert R. Swink Jr. is a retired U.S. magistrate living in Norfolk, Va. Swink reports that he recently heard from classmate and fellow DU, James Franklin.

'36

A. Lee Reeser is semi-retired after 34 years as a manufacturer's representative selling food services equipment and supplies in five mid-Atlantic states. He lives in Berwyn, Pa.

'37

William D. Fishback is still farming and raising Angus cattle and thoroughbred horses in Versailles, Ky. He was widowed in 1983 and remarried in 1985. With his four granddaughters and his wife's seven grandchildren, all under 21 years of age, things get pretty lively at family gatherings!

'38

Seth N. Baker writes that he is "getting younger every day," as confirmed by the letter he recently received from Sen. Bill Bradley (N.J.) congratulating him on achieving the rank of Eagle Scout—Baker writes, "I always was a slow learner and a late bloomer!" He lives in Chatham, N.J.

N. Christian Nielsen reports that he and his wife, Martha, thoroughly enjoyed meeting his classmates at their 55th reunion at Homecoming and they can't wait for the next one. He writes, "Our alligator teeth may be worn down, but our tail is strong!"

E. Alton Sartor Jr. and his wife, Jean, attended Alumni College in July 1993 and then took the Classical Greece trip in September. Just five days after their return from Greece, the Sartors celebrated the 55th reunion of the Class of '38 at Homecoming in Lexington. They live in Shreveport, La.

Col. John H. Shoaf spent a month last summer in Ecuador as a Rotarian volunteer under the auspices of the International Executive Services Corps. He lives in The Woodlands, Texas.

'39

George C. Kerr and his wife, Florence, recently celebrated their 53rd wedding anniversary and are enjoying living in a large life care facility in the Amish country of Pennsylvania. He serves on the Residents Council and is president of the Golf Club. He is still an elder at First Presbyterian Church in Lancaster and is in charge of the stewardship committee. The couple spends eight weeks every winter on Hilton Head, S.C., playing golf and visiting with old friends and business associates.

'39L

William D. Fishback
See '37.

Fred G. Francis lives in Sarasota, Fla., and has retired from his law practice. He keeps busy with his office as the international secretary for the Argale Society.

Philip M. (Pete) Grabill is an attorney in Woodstock, Va.

Martin V. Partenope lives in Sparks, Nev., with his wife, LaVerna.

John B. Pearson passed the Virginia Bar 55 years ago and has been a member of the Connecticut Bar for more than 50 years. He lives in West Hartford, Conn., and says that he still goes to the office and is active as an arbitrator in administering Connecticut's "lemon law."

'40

Dr. Frank S. Beazlie Jr. notes that he is a member of two 50-year societies, the Medical Society of Virginia and the University of Virginia Medical Society, simply by virtue of surviving. He works with the Newport News Library Board and says he remains well and active.

The Hon. George M. Foote reports that his granddaughter, Allison, is a member of the Class of '97, and that he plans to attend more Homecomings now. Foote lives in Alexandria, La.

John W. Johnston spends eight months of the year at his 350-acre farm located ten miles southwest of Lexington and the remainder of the year at his townhouse in Richmond.

Homer D. Jones Jr. and his wife, Helen, were honored with a scholarship in their names for more than 30 years of service to Warren Wilson College. They live in Princeton, N.J.

Lorenzo C. (Lew) Lewis is semi-retired, but still working part-time as a consulting forester. He lives in Lincoln, Va.

'40L

J.N. (Newt) Harman III reports that his trout fishing is improving, catching 11 rainbows with flies on a late October trip. He lives in Welch, W.Va.

'41

A. William Avent is retired and living in Jacksonville, Fla. He went to the Ryder Cup matches in England last September. After the golf was over, he toured York, Cambridge, Canterbury and the Rye-Hastings area.

Edward E. Hunter Jr. lives in West Jefferson, N.C. He writes that his grandson, Zachary Harrison Hunter, was born last July.

Joseph G. Street served as a pilot in the U.S. Army Air Corps during World War II and then went on to the University of Texas Law School, graduating in 1947. He has been practicing law in San Antonio since then. Street and his wife of 51 years, Jeanette, have two daughters and four grandchildren, all living in San Antonio.

'42L

The Hon. George M. Foote Sec '40.

'43

Lawrence W. Galloway is planning his second trip around the world as an evangelist. He lives in Baltimore.

Dr. R. Francis Johnson reports that as a relatively new resident of Hilton Head Island, he chuckled to see a license plate on a car in the lane next to his at a stop light that read, "W&L HHI."

John N. Peeples is an attorney in Valdosta, Ga. He addressed the local chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy in Valdosta last fall, speaking about Stonewall Jackson. Peeples says that he became interested in Jackson during his sophomore year at W&L when he rented a room in the Lee-Jackson house on campus.

'44 (REUNION)

Thomas D. Crittenden lives in Virginia Beach and continues to sit as an arbitrator in disputes between insurance companies and reinsurance companies.

Dr. Charles J. Devine Jr. received the American Urological Association's Distinguished Contribution Award last May at the association's national conference in San Antonio. He was the founder and first president of the Association of Genitourinary Reconstructive Surgeons and currently serves as medical director of the Devine Center for Genitourinary Reconstructive Surgery at Sentara Norfolk General Hospital. Devine lives in Norfolk, Va.

David R. Embry is looking forward to the big 50th Reunion in May. He lives in Seabrook, Texas.

G. Edward Heinecke is semi-retired, but continues to do consulting work in advertising and marketing. He also keeps busy with volunteer work, serving as president of the Second Harvester Food Bank of Wisconsin and working with the Salvation Army Advisory Board. He lives in Mequon, Wis.

John C. Hempel Jr. lives in Bradenton, Fla. He is a volunteer in the emergency room at L.W. Blake Hospital and is also a past president of the Hospital Auxiliary. He is on the board of directors for Southeastern Guide Dogs and is a retired licensed real estate agent in the state of Florida.

LTC Charles B. Jackson is a retired educator living in Alton, Ill. He reports that he recently had lunch with classmate, Ed Withrow.

Dr. Haven W. Mankin is completely retired from the practice of radiology. He lives in Oklahoma City, Okla., and spends his free time painting with watercolors.

John N. McCormick reports that his son and daughter-in-law just had a daughter whom McCormick baptized in November. His oldest daughter has a daughter who gave birth to a daughter three years ago. That makes the new baby an aunt to a niece who is three years older than she is! Confused? McCormick lives in Orlean, Va.

'45

The Hon. Elliot S. Schewel is in his 19th year as a Virginia state senator. He serves as chairman of the Senate Education and Health Committee. Schewel also serves on the finance, commerce and labor, general laws and rules committees. He lives in Lynchburg.

'46

L. Rex Criminale retired in June 1992 from his position as professor of Romance Languages at Elmira College. Since then he has traveled to Spain, Italy, Turkey, China, and Thailand. He also lectured on the Alumni College trip to Copper Canyon and the Sea of Cortez in Mexico in March 1993. He lives in Elmira, N.Y.

A Wonderful Life

One of the most delightful aspects of working for Washington and Lee as a non-alumnus has been the way in which so many alumni, by their very nature, loan me their trust and confidence long before I have a chance to earn it. No one has offered me more comfort and support in this regard than Alfred T. Bishop Jr. '41 (aka Tom and "Junie"). He and his wonderful wife, Helen, have been nothing short of an inspiration.

Alfred T. Bishop '41: You can call him Al, or Tom, or Junie.

I first met Junie through his service as fund-raising chairman for the Class of 1941's 50th-reunion project, which established an endowment to benefit the Leyburn Library. At our initial committee meeting, the subdued yet forceful quality of his personality was evident, as was the charm with which he worked to engage the time and talent of the others assembled. The success of this endeavor was presaged by his life-long service to the University in his native Louisville and through his ongoing financial support of W&L through the Annual Fund.

Junie began his professional work life as a factory sales representative for Armstrong Cork Co. in Lancaster, Pa., in a setting much akin to a college dormitory—I have reveled in the hilarious stories of his days there. He returned to Louisville and with his father developed the Monarch Equipment Co. into a very successful enterprise, and his volunteer efforts were very much in demand. In the midst of what the Bishops avidly describe as a wonderful life, they raised two sons, Lee and Bill, and divide their time these days between Hilton Head Island and Grandfather Mountain, N.C. They can be difficult to reach by phone since they are always on the golf course!

We at Washington and Lee are fortunate to claim the Bishops as our own and to have benefited from the various income-retained gifts they have made over the years. These gifts also make it possible for Helen and Junie to continue to travel and to support the other charitable causes that occupy their hearts. They have found a way to support their interest in conservation and nature via a planned gift that will ultimately establish a professorship bringing a multi-disciplinary perspective to our students' understanding of the natural environment.

It was Emerson who said, "The only gift is a portion of thyself." Junie and Helen Bishop are very special to me, and they are certainly among that august group I frequently refer to as our "contemporary giants"—people to whom future generations of Washington and Lee students will be indebted.

David R. Long
Director of Planned and Capital Giving

'48

Dr. William H. Rattner is chief of urology at Sinai Hospital of Detroit and an assistant professor of urology at the Wayne State University School of Medicine. He lives in Bingham Farms, Mich.

'49 (REUNION)

Col. Michael J. Barrett Jr. retired from civil service last June after more than 40 years of military and civil service. He lives in Alexandria, Va.

Edward P. Berlin Jr. recently retired after 40 years with the daily Waynesboro News-Virginian. He continues to write a weekly column, "Let's Talk," on local issues, and the Chamber of Commerce has voted to award a $1,000 annual scholarship in his name.

H. Glenn Chaffer moved to San Rafael, Calif., in January after more than 60 years in Connecticut.

C. Tait Trussell of Eustis, Fla., reports that his book, Beating the Competition, on public relations and advertising, is in its second printing by Madison Books.

'50

Dr. John S. Chapman belongs to a group of 18 internists in Dubuque, Iowa. He says that he is thinking about retiring, but still enjoys medical practice "despite the slings and arrows that abound."

Arthur S. Emmons is retired from Ashland Oil Co. and lives in Ashland, Ky. He recently returned from his second trip to Africa. Emmons is a member of the Baptist Disaster Relief Team and has traveled to disaster sites following hurricanes and tornadoes, offering assistance to the victims.

John F. Hardesty moved to Ashland, Ore., and is opening a contemporary print gallery there.

Richard E. Hodges was recently elected to the College of Fellows of the Public Relations Society of America, capping off more than 45 years as a newspaper reporter, public relations writer and advertising and public relations agency executive. He is now semi-retired and working as senior counsel with Knapp Inc. in Atlanta. He lives in Marietta, Ga.

Lawrence E. Jarchow was elected president of the Three Lakes (Wisconsin) Rod and Gun Club. He lives in Chicago.

Dr. Robert S. Mendelsohn of St. Louis, Mo., writes that he is still busy in the private practice of internal medicine and hematology. He and his wife enjoy spending time with their eight grandchildren.

C. William Pacy is executive director of the Building Congress of Baltimore and the Construction Industry Educational Foundation. He sails from Maryland to Maine every summer with his wife, Brooke.

Dr. Frank M. Scarlett Jr. is living in the northern California Presbyterian Homes' Western Park Apartments in San Francisco.

Jules R. Shavit of Baltimore retired from the retail furniture business two years ago and is working on new careers as a portrait artist and a writer.

Dr. Howard L. Steele of Fairfax, Va., headed the U.S. delegation to the Economic Commission for Europe Agricultural meetings in March, the Inter-American Institute for Cooperation on Agriculture Executive Committee in June, and was a member of the U.S. delegation to the Inter-American Board for Agriculture in September. He continues to serve on the house corporation board for W&L's Sigma Nu chapter.

'50L

Thomas D. Crittenden
See '44.

'51

James F. Gallivan was named to the 1993 Broker Hall of Fame by Research magazine. He has been with the Nashville office of J.C. Bradford & Co. since 1965, where he is now a partner. He was one of only five brokers nationwide to be selected for the honor by a panel of experts. Gallivan lives in Nashville and is a member of W&L's Board of Trustees.

Dr. B. Voss Neal retired from his dermatology practice in December and is looking forward to spending his time reading, traveling and gardening. He lives in Newport News, Va.

'51L

Col. Michael J. Barrett Jr.
See '49.

'52

Dr. Robert A. Maslansky writes, "Having spent the better part of 30 years treating drug and alcohol addicted patients, I now spend a portion of my time petitioning for saner laws governing drugs, their manufacture, sale and use." He lives in New York City.

Rev. Robert D. Schenkel Jr. and his family live in Bethlehem, Pa. Schenkel had a busy year in 1993, becoming a grandfather for the first time and visiting Russia twice and Ireland once as a representative of his parish in Bethlehem.

Thomas R. Warfield celebrated the fourth anniversary of the founding of his investment management/brokerage firm, Warfield Associates in New York City in January.

'52L

S. Maynard Turk is retired and living in Greenville, Del.

'53

Jay W. Jackson is a partner in the Hartford (Conn.) law firm of Jackson, O'Keefe and Dunn. He lives in West Hartford.

Thomas B. Perkins and his wife, Carolyn, live in Boise, Idaho. He reports that they travel a good deal and that he is completing a master's in history. Perkins also works with Small Business Administration with SCORE. He is currently chairman of the local chapter of SCORE in Boise.

'54 (REUNION)

James D. Bonebrake and his wife, Sally, live in Moreland Hills, Ohio. They are looking forward to attending his 40th reunion in May.

Robert D. Dixon is a real estate developer in Hinsdale, Ill. He has two sons in the business and four grandchildren.

Robert McGeehan has been appointed assistant director of the Institute of United States Studies at the University of London. He remains chairman of the Committee to Select American Scholars of the USUK Fulbright Commission, and lives in Oxfordshire with his wife, Hanneke, and their two cats.

'55

Pegram Harrison is happily retired and expects to receive his master's degree from Dartmouth in June.

Dace W. Jones Jr. was named Senior Healthcare Executive of the Year for South Carolina by the American College of Healthcare Executives. He has been president of Springs Memorial Hospital in Lancaster, S.C., for the past 28 years.

Dr. Harry G. Kennedy Jr. lives in Fairmont, W.Va., where he is a practicing radiologist. He has a retirement home in Vero Beach, Fla., where he plans to settle in a few years and join his Sigma Chi brothers and classmates, Ted Chenault and Joseph K. Banks. Chenault is a senior trust officer at Beach Bank and Banks is retired and spends half the year in Florida and the rest in Dorset, Vt.

The Hon. Laurence Levitan is still in the Maryland State Senate and is the chair of the Budget and Taxation Committee and the Southern Legislative Conference Fiscal Affairs Committee. He also practices law with Baker and Hostetler. Levitan lives in Potomac.

E. Stuart Quarngesser of Baltimore is the proud grandfather of Sarah Ann Gleberman.

Dr. O. Bertrand Ramsay received U.S. Patent No. 5,265,029 for his chemical calculator. He lives in Ypsilanti, Mich.

'55L

Jay W. Jackson
See '53.

Walter J. McGraw has retired from practicing law with Williams, Mullen, Christian & Dobbins in Richmond and is now able to spend a considerable amount of time boating, fishing and loafing around at his home on the Carrotoman River.

'56

William C. Norman Jr. is chairman of the state advisory board of the Arkansas Repertory Theater, the state's regional professional theater. His son, Allen (Ax), graduated in 1992. Norman lives in Crossett.

'56L

Thomas W. Turner retired last July after 34 years with Piedmont Trust Bank in Martinsville, Va. He is now living at Smith Mountain Lake in Penhook.

'57

John M. Ham and his wife, Elizabeth, moved to Raleigh, N.C., in June. He is teaching political science and economics at St. Mary's College.

Jeb J. Rosebrook is co-executive producer of "The Four Diamonds," a Disney Channel film that will be produced this spring. He is also serving as a visiting assistant professor of screenwriting in the graduate department of English at Arizona State University. When he isn't teaching, Rosebrook calls North Hollywood home.

'58

Keith R. Barney Jr.
retired from Fairfax County (Va.) Public Schools and the Army Reserve. He is now working for ELS, a government contractor in northern Virginia. Barney lives in Springfield.

Edward M. (Ned) George Jr.
was appointed to the Small Bank Advisory Council of the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland last August. In December, he was appointed to the West Virginia Board of Banking and Financial Institutions by the governor. He lives in Wheeling.

Frank M. Hoopes Jr.
was appointed director of the Monomers, Resins and Lucites Division of I&I Acrylics Inc. in Wilmington, Del. His appointment came as a result of an asset swap with DuPont for I&I European nylon business. Hoopes lives in Wilmington.

W. C. Miller
writes that the Collagen Corp. has received FDA approval for two novel collagen-based medical devices. The U.S. Supreme Court upheld the rulings of lower courts based on federal pre-emption of state negligence causes of action. He lives in Pleasanton, Calif.

John P. Moyer lives in Girard, Ohio. He is working for Wheat, First/Butcher & Singer in their Youngstown office with his son, who is also an associate with the company.

J. William Reid
of Richmond has just completed 32 years with NationsBank of Virginia and its predecessors, C&S Sovran, Sovran and First and Merchant National Banks. He is currently senior vice president and manager of the financial institutions department with responsibilities for community/bank relations in Virginia, West Virginia, and Washington, D.C.

Rufus L. Safford says he loves living in Denver, climbing 14,000-foot peaks and enjoying the wilderness. He saw Don Sigmund '59 and Vernon Holleman '58 in Washington, D.C., in February.

Scott Whipple hosts a weekly blues radio show and a jazz program on WNHU (88.7 FM) in West Haven, Conn. "Good Morning Blues" was broadcast to American servicemen and women stationed in Somalia over the Christmas holidays. Whipple also writes blues and jazz features for the entertainment section of the Connecticut Post.

'59 (REUNION)

DuBose Ausley
served on the Florida Board of Regents for 15 years, longer than anyone else in the history of the board, when he resigned in January. During his tenure, Ausley was appointed by three different Democratic governors. Ausley, an attorney in Tallahassee, was the lawyer for the Florida Senate's higher education committee when the Board of Regents was formed in 1963.

Reginald K. Brack Jr.
was awarded the 1993 Henry Johnson Fisher Award, the magazine industry's highest honor, by the Magazine Publishers of America. He is chairman and chief executive officer of Time Inc. The award honors a magazine leader who has gained distinction through significant and long-standing contributions to the publishing business. Brack lives in Greenwich, Conn.

John H. Esperian will present a paper on the "flip side" of Las Vegas titled "Beyond the Neon" at this year's convention of the Popular Culture Association in Chicago in April. He was presenting a paper on Ray Bradbury at last year's convention, when he was recognized by Marshal Fishwick, his sociology professor at W&L. Esperian lives in Las Vegas.

Dr. Thomas P. Foley
of Pittsburgh is president-elect of the Lawson Wilkins Pediatric Endocrine Society. He is working with Olga Korbut to raise funds and build a much-needed University Children's Medical Center in Minsk, Belarus. Korbut, who won four gold medals in gymnastics for the former Soviet Union, has devoted her life to helping the children from her native country (Republic of Belarus) who were exposed to heavy radiation from the Chernobyl power plant accident in 1986.

Dr. Arthur S. Grove Jr.
is in private practice specializing in ophthalmic reconstructive surgery. He is also director of the fellowship program at the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary/Beth Israel Hospitals in Boston. Grove lives in Cambridge.

John D. Hattendorf was promoted to vice president of R.T. Vanderbilt Co.'s petroleum department. He lives in Trumbull, Conn., and writes that he is looking forward to seeing many classmates at his 35th reunion in May.

Bertrand R. Hudnall II
lives in Lynchburg, Va. As of June 1993, he has become an independent educational consultant, working with families to find colleges and prep schools compatible with their children's goals and abilities. He has also signed on to work with a placement agency in Dallas and a marketing firm in Richmond, both education-oriented in their services.

Robert R. Kane
is development director with the General Services Administration responsible for the development of the Southeast Federal Center, a 55-acre site on the Anacosta River one mile from the U.S. Capitol in Washington, D.C. It is being developed as an office and retail complex to house 23,000 federal employees in 5.6 million feet of space. Kane and his wife, Sloan, spend weekends at their soon-to-be retirement home in Lottsburg, Va., sailing the waters of the lower Potomac River and the Chesapeake Bay.

Evan J. Kemp Jr.
has a marketing and public affairs consulting firm in Washington, D.C. The firm is dedicated to helping empower persons with disabilities and to designing marketplace strategies and public policy responses to support this unique population.

Theodore R. McKeldin Jr.
says that he "greatly enjoyed" serving as co-class agent with David Meese. This is Meese's last year in the position, so McKeldin is looking for a new co-agent for 1994-95. Any takers? McKeldin lives in Baltimore.

The Hon. John C. Morrison Jr.
was recently elected chief judge of the 4th Judicial Circuit of Virginia. He has been a circuit judge since 1988. Morrison lives in Norfolk.

Dr. Edward M. Reaves lives in Memphis, Tenn., where he practices cardiology and internal medicine. He is the managing partner of a three-man group. Reaves has three children, Ned, Ali, and Avery.

Raymond R. Robrecht
has been a practicing attorney in Salem, Va., since 1968. He served as the Roanoke County prosecutor from 1968 to 1971 and in the Virginia House of Delegates from 1972 to 1982.

Robert E. Shepherd Jr.
is currently serving on the executive committee of the Virginia Bar Association as the initial occupant of a newly created law educator position. He is also a professor at T.C. Williams School of Law at the University of Richmond.

Laurence M. Smail
was elected chairman of the legal issues committee of the Federal Laboratory Consortium for Technology Transfer. He is also counsel for the U.S. Army Aviation Applied Technology Directorate in Fort Eustis, Va. Smail lives in Newport News.

Murray M. Wadsworth is president of the law firm of Wadsworth and Davis in Tallahassee, Fla.

'60

The Rt. Rev. Peter J. Lee, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Virginia, was elected chairman of the board of trustees of the Virginia Theological Seminary in Alexandria. He lives in Richmond.

John R. Pleasant Jr.
has taught English at Southeastern Louisiana University for 28 years. He has served on the faculty senate for the past five years and is currently on the athletic and Hall of Fame committees. He lives in Hammond.

A. Prescott Rowe was tapped for induction into the Virginia Commonwealth University's School of Mass Communications Hall of Fame. He is vice president of corporate communications with Ethyl Corp. and lives in Richmond.

'61

Dr. Firth S. Spiegel
writes that he enjoys living in the Upper Cumberland and expects his new house to be completed soon. He invites any old friends passing through the area to stop by for a visit. He lives in Livingston, Tenn.

Dr. Charles S. Wassum III
is now on the full-time field staff of the John Birch Society, working on an education program to decrease taxes through decreasing the size of all governments: federal, state and local. He lives in Springfield, Va.

'61L

W.C. Miller
See '58.

The Hon. John C. Morrison Jr.
See '59.

Robert E. Shepherd Jr.
See '59.

Ronald H. Alenstain is an attorney with the New York law firm of D'Amato and Lynch. He specializes in the defense of lawyers' and accountants' malpractice claims and in litigation concerning directors' and officers' insurance, and brokers' and bankers' blanket bonds. He lives in Briarcliff Manor, N.Y.

Harry G. Ballance Jr. is an L-1011 captain with Delta Airlines. He is based out of Atlanta and flies Delta's trans-Atlantic flights to Europe.

Thompson W. Goodwin lost his job as executive vice president of Dominion Bankshares after over 29 years with the company when it merged with First Union. The very next day, he started Goodwin and Co., a general and electrical contractor in Roanoke. He is also involved in developing nursing homes in the southeast.

Ralph O. Harvey III is a director of the National Grain and Feed Association and was invited to several cities in Mexico last fall as part of a trade delegation investigating NAFTA opportunities. He lives in Wichita Falls, Texas.

James A. Russ and his wife, Rita, live in Stevensville, Md., on the Eastern Shore. Russ is the president of Bardon Inc. in Greenbelt, Md., a quarry stone, sand gravel and ready-mixed concrete group of companies supplying Maryland, D.C., Virginia and West Virginia markets.

Harry Teter Jr. is "working hard" in Washington, D.C. The attorney with O'Brian, Butler and Birney also serves as director of the American Trauma Society and as general manager of the National Theater.

'62L

Raymond R. Robrecht
See '59.

Laurence M. Smail
See '59.

'63

William H. Candler was the editor of PortFolio, a weekly arts and entertainment publication for Hampton Roads, Va. Last July, he took a 10-day hiking trip to Glacier National Park and the Canadian Rockies and returned to start a new job as director of communications at Tidewater Community College. He lives in Virginia Beach.

Robert D. Hart Jr. of Pensacola, Fla., reports that his oldest son, Daniel, graduated last June with the Class of 1993, and his younger son, Douglas, entered W&L in the fall as a member of the Class of 1997.

J. Holmes Morrison is chairman-elect of the West Virginia Roundtable, an organization of CEOs working to promote economic development in the state. He lives in Charleston.

H. Michael Walker is still working in commercial real estate consulting with Guest Quarters Hotels and GMK Interests in Norfolk, Va. He and his wife, Carole, live in Virginia Beach.

'64 (REUNION)

Louis V. Flanagan Jr. retired from coaching in 1978 and opened Dew Real Estate in Ashland, Va. They now have a second office in Bowling Green where his wife, Joanne, is the broker. The couple's oldest son, Trey, graduated from William & Mary last year and their daughter, Katie, will graduate from Meredith College this spring. Their youngest son, Bob, plans to attend either William & Mary or W&L next year. The family lives in Ashland.

Dr. Bill H. Kinsey Jr. was recently appointed a senior associate member of St. Anthony's College and the Center of African Economics at Oxford University. He holds a joint appointment as senior research associate at the University of Zimbabwe. Over the next two years, Kinsey will travel between the U.K. and Zimbabwe to continue a longitudinal study of 400 families begun in 1982.

The Rev. Kenneth P. Lane Jr. is a minister at Trinity Lutheran Church in Roanoke. He lives in Roanoke with his wife, Deborah, and their children, Kevin and Christina. Lane is president of the Roanoke Area Ministries.

Jack C. Martin and his wife have visited Great Britain, Belgium, Holland, Austria, Switzerland, Germany, Italy, and France since his retirement and hope to see Greece and Turkey in the future. The Martins live in Louisville, Ky., and would love to hear from any of Jack's classmates.

Floyd W. (Wink) McKinnon reports that his son, Robert, is a freshman at W&L. McKinnon lives in Scarsdale, N.Y.

Charles C. (Chick) Owens of Baltimore reports that his son, Charles Jr., is a member of the Class of 1997.

Tain P. Tompkins is serving as charge d'affaires at the U.S. Embassy in Barbados. He and his wife, Grace, and their daughters, Ann and Heather, are "tanned and ready for the reunion!"

The Hon. Jerome Turner received the 1993 Charles Rond Outstanding Jurist Award from the Memphis Bar Association. He is a Federal District Court Judge in Memphis and was appointed to the bench by President Reagan in 1988.

Rex H. Wooldridge has been reliving his W&L days through his daughter, Christi, who is enjoying her freshman year. He is in his 16th year with Kendall/Heaton Architects in Houston where he is a principal in the firm and currently managing the production work on Wachovia's new corporate headquarters in Winston-Salem, N.C.

Jack Yarbrough was named chief operating officer of Pharmacy Gold last September. Son Jay, a 1990 cum laude graduate of Amherst, began work toward his MBA at Wharton last September, and son Andrew will graduate from SMU this May. Yarbrough and his wife, Linda, live in Minneapolis with their three-and-a-half-year-old daughter, Auna, whom they adopted from Romania in 1990.

'64L (REUNION)

I. Lionel Hancock III and his wife, Carole Lee, live in Norfolk, Va., where he is a substitute judge for the Norfolk General District Courts and she teaches kindergarten at St. John's Lutheran School. Their oldest daughter, Kimberlee, is a captain in the Army Nurse Corps stationed in Fort Eustis, Va. Allison, their youngest daughter, left the nest this year and is working hard as a resident counselor for Portsmouth Psychiatric.

'65

Dr. Brooks G. Brown III lives in Bethesda, Md., and practices ophthalmology in Chevy Chase. His oldest daughter, Lise, is a junior at W&L and another daughter, Anne-Lamar, was accepted Early Decision to be a member of the Class of '98. He also has a son who is a freshman at the University of North Carolina and another son and daughter at home.

Alfred J.T. Byrne is a partner in the Washington (D.C.) law firm of Patton, Boggs and Blow. He had served as FDIC general counsel for three years.

Robert C. DeVaney has lived in Bombay, India, with his wife, Sita, and their three daughters since 1989. He manages two offshore drilling rigs for Arethusa OffShore Co. of Houston.

Dr. L. Shannon Jung recently published We Are Home: A Spirituality of the Environment. He is the director of the Center for Theology and the Land, sponsored by the University of Dubuque and Wartburg Seminars in Dubuque, Iowa.

Michael J. Michaelis spent a week skiing in Jackson Hole, Wyo., in January with Bruce Jackson '65, '68L and Greg Sharkey '65. He lives in Boylston, Mass.

J. Malcolm Morris spent three weeks in Namibia and Zimbabwe last summer with his wife, Mary, and their two sons, David and Michael. It was the 30th anniversary of the summer he spent in East Africa in 1963. Morris lives in Manhattan and serves as vice president and general counsel to Ziff Communications, a publisher of computer magazines and information services.

Sam P. Simpson IV lives in San Antonio, Texas, and represents U.S. consumer product firms in Mexico and Mexican firms in the United States.

Joseph G. Wheeler writes that his company, Yale Carolinas, has expanded with the purchase of Yale dealers in Chattanooga and Birmingham. He lives in Charlotte where his wife, Lynn, was recently elected to her third term as their at-large City Council seat. Their daughter, Lisa, attends the University of Richmond, and their son, Gray, is married and finishing his Ph.D at Princeton.

'65L

Stephen L. Willson reports that his eldest daughter, Lauren, was accepted Early Decision to be a member of the Class of '98. They live in Roanoke.

'66

Dr. David E. Fleischer is president of the American Society for Gastrointestinal Endoscopy, one of three major digestive disease societies. He represented the group at a world conference in Barcelona last summer and will also represent them in Japan this spring. Fleischer lives in Washington, D.C.

Michael E. Lawrence is chief financial officer of the Sea Pine Co. on Hilton Head Island, S.C. His daughter, Catherine, is a sophomore at W&L.

Buckner Woodford Jr. of Paris, Ky., took a week-long Christmas ski trip to Whistler, British Columbia, in western Canada.

'66L

Robert R. Baldwin of Maplewood, N.J., retired as a colonel in the U.S. Army Reserve after 30 years of commissioned service, mostly as a Judge Advocate. He was awarded the Legion of Merit upon his retirement.

William H. Candler
See '63.

Jeffrey G. Haverson lives in Virginia Beach and writes that he is "still breathing!!!"

William (Andy) Schroeder III is president of the alumni chapter in New Orleans. He is an executive vice president with Sedgewick of New Orleans.

The Hon. Jerome Turner
See '64.

George W. Wooten is president of the western Virginia chapter of the American Board of Trial Advocates for the 1993-94 year. He lives in Roanoke.

'67

Dr. William C. Davison is a practicing neurologist in Chicago. He is also an assistant professor of neurology at Northwestern University and president of the medical staff of Resurrection Hospital in Chicago.

William H. Jeffress Jr. has been elected a fellow of the American College of Trial Lawyers and appointed chairman of the American Bar Association's committee on standards of criminal justice. He lives in Washington, D.C.

Dr. John R. McGill is president of the Maine chapter of the American College of Surgeons and president-elect of the Maine Medical Association. He lives in Bangor with his wife, Margaret.

John C.B. Smith Jr. was elected chairman of the board of the Bank of Columbia (S.C.). He is a partner with Nexsen Pruet Jacobs & Pollard law firm in Columbia and serves on the board of ComSouth BankShares. Smith is also vice chairman of Cities in Schools and on the boards of the Greater Columbia Chamber of Commerce and Providence Hospital Foundation.

'67L

J. Holmes Morrison
See '63.

'68

M. Ray Bradford is a founding member of the National Network of Estate Planning Attorneys. The group has more than 300 members across the country. At the group's October meeting in Las Vegas, Bradford and his wife, Marlo, met up with Nat Clement '67 and his wife, of Chapel Hill, N.C. The Bradfords live in Bangor, Me.

Alexander S. Jones is host of "On the Media," a radio program examining both topical and enduring issues concerning the news media. Guests include working journalists, critics and scholars, and among recent topics of discussion have been the media's coverage of Haiti, the New York City mayoral election, AIDS, and NAFTA. This is Jones' first venture in radio, having worked for nine years as a press reporter for The New York Times.

Robert H. Moll lives in McLean, Va. Last March, he visited the birthplace of his paternal great grandfather in Germany and met many relatives for the first time. He says that it was "the adventure of a lifetime!"

'68L

Alfred J.T. Byrne
See '65.

Michael J. Michaelles
See '65.

'69 (REUNION)

William Cook is teaching organic chemistry on an adjunct basis in evening classes at Wilson College for the spring 1994 term. He lives in Harrisburg, Pa.

Mark L. Favermann and his Boston design firm, Favermann Design, was chosen by the Atlanta Committee for the Olympic Games to be a part of the team of five of the nation's leading design firms and one architectural firm charged with creating the "look" of the 1996 Centennial Olympic Games, a theme that will guide the design of everything from the medals and the torch, to the look of signage, volunteer and staff uniforms, lighting schemes, and even landscaping around the Games venues. Favermann will be leading a panel of W&L alumni who are involved with the Olympics during Reunion Weekend in May. He lives in Chestnut Hill, Mass.

Philip W. Norwood has resigned after 13 years as a partner in the Tramell Crow Co. He has assumed the position of president and chief executive of Faison & Associates Inc., a real estate development and management company active throughout the southeast and Texas headquartered in Charlotte.

'70

Dr. Stuart L. Porter wrote a chapter on "Pesticide Poisoning in Raptors" in the book Raptor Biomedicine. He was the session chair and speaker in the wildlife medicine session at the North American Veterinary Conference in Orlando, Fla., in January. He lives in Fort Defiance, Va.

Dr. Bruce Samuels lives in New Orleans, where he has two offices and heads a six-physician group with specialties in general internal medicine, gastroenterology, and rheumatology.

Alexis G. Starun Jr. lives in Summit, N.J., and coaches a local girls' soccer team, the Chatham Cougars, that won more than 200 consecutive games.

Andrew B. Thomas reports that he is back on his bicycle following a serious collision with a car in 1992. His law firm merged with Broad & Cassel, where he is a partner in their Orlando office specializing in education and governmental law.

'71

Nelson F. Brinkerhoff lives in East Greenwich, R.I., where he coaches baseball and soccer and is the chair of the East Greenwich Rotary citrus sale.

Robert R. Jensen directed and designed Fullerton College's production of The Grapes of Wrath, which was named one of the top 10 shows in Orange County in 1993 by The Los Angeles Times. His production of Indians shared the same distinction in 1991.

Dr. Thomas E. Reynolds is a partner in a four-man family practice in Culpeper, Va., and is medical director of the local hospice. He lives in Culpeper with his wife, Charla, and their two sons, Keith and William.

'72

Peter A. Converse took over as president and chief executive of Virginia Commerce Bank in Arlington on Jan. 1. He lives in Annandale.

'72L

Robert P. Beakley is a partner with the Atlantic City (N.J.) law firm of Wallen & Beakley. He lives in Ocean City with his wife, Susan, and their children, Timothy and Tara.

'73

Dr. N. Reed Finney is an assistant professor of cardiac and thoracic surgery at the Medical College of Georgia. He lives in Augusta.

William C. French is an attorney with the law firm of Sands, Anderson, Marks & Miller in Richmond, where he practices business law, estate planning and probate.

Andrew G. Hollinger lives in Bedford, Texas, where he is a charter member of IBM's new general business management consulting practice. He specializes in helping regional firms construct business and I/T strategies.

Dr. Alexander E. Moser lives in Winston-Salem, N.C., with his wife, Melanie, and their three children, Ben, Rob, and Megan. He is a dentist in private practice.

Gregory S. Thompson of Atlanta is president of THOMCO, a wholesale insurance broker specializing in child care insurance.

'74 (REUNION)

The Rev. Jack E. Altman III is working for the Bishop of East Carolina on special assignments, spending weekdays surveying estates and dodging alligators and copperheads, spending every spare minute on his 22-foot grady-white, The Wicked Witch. He has been trying to catch all the dolphin, wahoo, king mackerel, and sailfish from the N.C. waters and the Gulf Stream that he can: "No blue marlins yet!" Altman lives in Morehead City.

James C. Ferguson is a partner in the Oklahoma City law firm of Walker, Ferguson and Ferguson specializing in workers compensation defense and employment law. He lives in Edmond, Okla., with his wife, Judy, and their two children, Kelly and Clay.

Dr. Peter H. Jones specializes in preventive cardiology as an associate professor of clinical medicine at Baylor College of Medicine. He lives in Houston and has two sons, Bradley and Travis.

Edwin L. McCoy is a first-year surgical resident at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston. He graduated from Vanderbilt University School of Medicine last May.

Low in Space

In the ethereal, anomalous sweep of zero-gravity outer space, astronaut G. David Low '78 discovered a sudden and unwelcome fear of falling. The space shuttle Endeavour was cruising in orbit on the night-side of the earth when Low tethered up for his first spacewalk. In the darkness, with the shuttle his only frame of reference, "the sun came up, and I looked down at my feet, and all of a sudden it was like I was just hanging on for dear life," he recalls. "My feet were 300 miles above the surface of the earth."

G. David Low '78 talks to science prospects in Lee Chapel.

Low has been witness to the heart-stopping drama of America's space program since its inception. His father, the late George M. Low, served as manager of the Apollo missions, and later as acting administrator of NASA. Low remembers watching the Mercury and Gemini missions on TV and discovering his calling: "If someone had a little magic wand and said, you can do anything you want to do, I always said I wanted to be an astronaut."

After earning a B.S. in physics-engineering from Washington and Lee, Low took a second bachelor's from Cornell and a master's from Stanford. While working for Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena in 1984, he was chosen to participate in the astronaut training program.

Low flew three missions between 1990 and 1993 aboard the shuttles Columbia, Atlantis, and Endeavour. His mission last June included a nearly six-hour-long spacewalk to test techniques that were later used by astronauts to repair the Hubble Space Telescope.

As a member of Washington and Lee's science support group, Low endorses the University's $21 million campaign to build a new science center. "Parmly Hall looks identical to what I left 16 years ago," he explains. "We're already competing for the top-notch students in every other discipline at the University. If we want to attract more of the top-notch students who want to study science, we ought to have better facilities."

Low lives with his wife, JoAnn, in Houston, where he trains other astronauts for spacewalks in preparation for the proposed orbiting space station. He has the option of flying again, which he recognizes as an enviable position. "I've had many different moments on every single flight when I'll just sit there quietly, looking out the window, thinking about a lot of things—about my place in this universe, and how I'm one of the luckiest guys ever to live to be able to get that kind of view, and that God has given me the opportunity, and that I'm very thankful."

—By Mark Mattox

Martin E. Stein Jr. is president and CEO of Regency Realty Corp., a shopping center real estate investment trust that recently completed a $108 million initial public offering. He lives in Jacksonville, Fla.

Charles E. Taylor left the tax law firm of Silverstein and Mullens last year, where he had been a partner for eight years. He had a solo practice in Washington, D.C., for a short time, where he concentrated in estate business planning and administration, and then joined the McLean (Va.) firm of Merrell, Ferguson and Taylor.

J. Kenneth Wood is a tax partner with KPMG Peat Marwick in Richmond. He and his wife, Alecia, and their daughter, Lindsay, make their home on a thoroughbred horse farm in Hanover County, Va.

'74L (REUNION)

Royce G. Lookabill is clerk of the Pulaski County (Va.) Circuit Court. He took a two-week mission trip to Russia, Romania, and Hungary last August. Lookabill lives in Draper, Va.

'75

Gregg B. Amonette lives in Westfield, N.J., with his wife, Susan, and their three children, Susan, Jake, and Margaret. He is vice president-sales of the financial information services division of Automatic Data Processing.

Dr. Lawrence B. Cahoon was promoted to full professor in the department of biological sciences at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington. He was elected president of the N.C. Academy of Science for 1994-95 and named chairman of the N.C. Ocean Resources Task Force.

Joseph H. Dennis writes, "My son is taller, smarter and better-looking than I am. I won't even mention my daughter, who is almost as tall. My wife still loves me anyway, and is still beautiful. I often wish I lived in Lexington." He lives in Wilmington, Ohio.

J. William Lassetter is living in New Haven, Conn. He is halfway through a three-year master's program at the Yale School of Architecture, focusing on housing and urban design issues as they impact the life of American cities.

'75L

M. Steven LaCroix is senior vice president and general counsel for Snelling and Snelling, at its international headquarters in Dallas. He was recently appointed chair of the corporate counsel division of the American Bar Association's forum committee on franchising and he serves on the forum's governing committee. LaCroix lives in Plano, Texas.

Robert S. Stubbs III is a partner in the law firm of Banks and Stubbs in Marietta, Ga.

'76

Marc R. Chimes reports that his 16-month-old daughter, Meryn, plans to follow her dad into the political consulting business. The Chimes family lives in Silver Spring, Md.

Paul B. Cromelin III is a partner with the Washington (D.C.) law firm of Craighill, Mayfield, Fenwick and Cromelin. He specializes in estate planning and administration. He and his wife, Margaret, live in Chevy Chase, Md., with their two children, Caroline and Bo. Cromelin currently serves on the boards of St. Albans School, the Chevy Chase Club, and the Columbia Hospital for Women.

Michael B. Hubbard became a partner in the Chicago law firm of Seyfarth, Shaw, Fairweather and Geraldson in 1993. Hubbard practices in the Washington (D.C.) office, concentrating in the areas of government contracts and white collar criminal practice. He lives in Fairfax, Va.

Gregory J. Muldoon is a senior vice president for Browning-Ferris Industries. He lives in Houston with his wife, Kappa, and their two children, Lauren and Devin.

'76L

Hiram Ely III lives in Prospect, Ky., with his wife of one year, Brenda.

John S. Norris Jr. is a partner with Norris and St. Clair in Virginia Beach, a four-attorney firm concentrating in commercial and construction litigation.

Thomas Pace lives in Sea Girt, N.J., with his wife, Loren, and their three children. He was recently named chief operating officer of a joint venture, half-owned by Dow Jones. He has been working for Dow Jones since 1981, working in the legal department, then in management and most recently as executive director of information services before his current appointment.

William J. Cople III has joined the Washington (D.C.) law firm of Spriggs and Hollingsworth as a partner. He was previously with the Washington office of the Atlanta firm of King and Spalding. He is continuing his practice in government contracts, construction, commercial and environmental law. Cople lives in Alexandria, Va.

John H. Gayle V lives in Bedford, N.Y., and is a partner with Design Point Decal. He has three daughters: Tara Ashleigh, Jessica Lynn and Melissa Nicole.

Craig F. Hamilton writes that he is still working at AT&T Universal Card Co. and "digging the rippin' curls at Ponte Vedra Beach (Calif)."

Dr. Sinclair (Sandy) Harcus lives in Martinsville, Va., where he is part of a busy family practice group. His sons, Bruce and John, keep him busy coaching youth soccer and baseball. He enjoys traveling with his wife, Catherine, when time allows.

Lt. Col. James E. Koch was recently promoted as an engineer officer in the Army. He received his Ph.D in engineering management from the University of Missouri at Rolla. His dissertation involved managing environmental remediation risk. Koch lives in Okmulgee, Okla.

Mark A. Krieger III lives in Jacksonville, Fla., with his wife, Ruth and their son, Drew. He is chief operating officer of Hart Enterprises, managing the graphics, printing and product, and tool distribution divisions.

Robert K. Lyford and his family live in Atlanta. On a recent vacation to Destin, Fla., his son, Robert, 7, played his first hole of golf while his sister, Amy, 5, tended the flag. Rumor has it that the kids beat their dad in a putting contest. Lyford and his wife, Nancy, celebrated the 10-year anniversary of the day they met on New Year's Eve.

David R. Meschutt is still curator of art at the West Point Museum at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y. He recently had articles published in Winterthur Portfolio and the Journal of Forensic Pathology.

Dr. R. Mark Payne is a pediatric cardiologist at Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis. He and his wife, Helen, have two daughters, Eliza and Rebecca.

Frank K. Turner Jr. is vice president of corporate banking with Mercantile Bank and Trust Co. in Baltimore. He has two children, Keech and Lili.

78

Jerrell M. Baird launched Baird Information Systems in 1992. The firm is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Mrs. Baird's Bakeries, the family business that was founded by his great grandmother in 1908. Baird designed software to track individual route sales of the family business, but has branched out to help companies with similar needs.

Mark H. Derbyshire was named president of the Virginia Blue Ridge Chapter of Employee Assistance Professional Association. He lives in Roanoke.

Michael E. Falcone is vice president and consulting actuary for employee benefits with the consulting firm of Godwins, Booke and Dickenson. He is also part of the firm's national practice council on retirement planning and savings education. He lives in West Chester, Pa., with his wife, Sue, and their three children, Alyssa, Mark, and Julia.

John S. Hudson lives in Fairfax, Va., and works in MCI's Pentagon City office.

Mark A. Peterson was honored by the Suffolk County Bar Pro Bono Foundation for providing legal services to the county's indigent. He is a partner in the law firm of Waldvogel and Peterson in Smithtown, N.Y.

Dr. John F. Sacco is in private practice with Oncology Associates in Cincinnati. He is also a clinical instructor at the University of Cincinnati Medical Center.

79 (REUNION)

Robert L. Clement III lives in Charleston, S.C., with his wife, Carol, and their children, Chip and Coleman.

Jeffrey B. Harrison lives in Advance, N.C., with his wife, Peggy, and their children, Britt and Trent. He graduated from Wake Forest School of Law in 1989 and was elected Davie County commissioner in 1992. Harrison currently owns and operates three businesses in Davie and Forsyth counties.

John S. Hyslop III graduated from Virginia Tech with a Ph.D in physics in 1990. He is now living in Gaithersburg, Md., and working for the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission as a risk analyst who administers scientific programs at the National Laboratories.

C. Stephen Jones Jr. is vice president of human resources at Randolph Hospital in Asheboro, N.C.

Kevin T. McFadden owns the Rebkee Co., a real estate developer in Richmond. He and his wife, Ilene, have three children, Kevin, Maggie and Molly.

Dr. William R. Meyer is an assistant professor and the director of the in-vitro fertilization program in the OB-GYN department at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He has three sons, Ryan, Scott, and Thomas.

John H. Norberg is president and CEO of Standard Investment Chartered Inc., a southern California investment management and securities brokerage firm specializing in non-reporting public companies. He lives in Chino Hills.

Charles C. Smith III returned from Munich, where he worked for Radio Free Europe, and is now the news editor for the St. Joseph (Mo.) News-Press.

Gardner T. Umbarger III was recently promoted to the rank of major and is commander of Company C (Medical) 529th Forward Support Battalion, Virginia National Guard. He lives in Lynchburg with his wife, Lynne, and their daughter, Chloe, and teaches at the Laurel Regional Special Education Program.

79L (REUNION)

Daniel G. Beyer is a partner in the Detroit law firm of Kerr, Russell and Weber. He lives in Birmingham, Mich., with his wife, Elaine, and their two daughters and enjoys playing tennis in his free time.

Stetson W. (Tack) Eddy lives in Little Compton, R.I. He writes, "Tell McCandless, Cosgrove and Speidel to bring their tennis racquets to our 15th reunion in May."

Philip L. Hinerman is a partner in the Philadelphia law firm of Pepper, Hamilton & Scheetz, working in the environmental practice group.

Michael B. Hubbard
See '76.

80

Larry W. Fresh lives in Goshen, Va., with his wife, Bethany, and their daughter, Abby. He is the owner/broker of Fresh Estates & Country Properties Inc., a full-service real estate firm in Hot Springs, Va.

Maj. Gilbert H. Pearsall Jr. graduated from the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College last June. He and his family moved to Fort Drum, N.Y., and he was deployed to Somalia, returning to New York in March.

Dr. Michael M. Pollack is a general surgeon in Little Rock, Ark.

Scott A. Williams left McKinsey & Co. in Atlanta to become vice president of strategic planning at USF&G Corp. in Baltimore. Williams writes that he is looking forward to resuming competitive sailing in the Annapolis area.

81

W. Warren Crowds III of Washington, D.C., works in the office of the international tax counsel at the Treasury Department. He deals with federal income tax provisions with international aspects as well as income tax treaties with other countries.

Ira M. Quillen II is a news/sports photographer and editor with WDBJ-TV 7, the CBS affiliate in Roanoke. He is based at the station's Central Virginia bureau in Lynchburg, and has been with News 7 since 1991. Previously, he ran the New River Valley bureau in Blacksburg for WSLV-TV 10. Quillen lives in Lynchburg.

F. Whitacre Sanning moved to Collierville, Tenn., to become a training supervisor with New York Life Insurance Co. in Memphis.

Charles J. Van Horn is president of Olive and Van Horn, a distributor of machine tools and industrial supplies. He lives in New Orleans with his wife, Kathleen, and their two children, Katie and James.

81L

Richard J. Eisen is a partner in the St. Louis law firm of Eisen, Gillespie and Hilton. He and his wife, Marci, have three children, Jonathan, Brett, and Abby.

Daphne Saunders Thomas is an associate professor at James Madison University in Harrisonburg, Va. She is a member of the Commonwealth Transportation Board and the Board of Regents and also belongs to the Institute of Certified Professional Managers. She has one daughter, Rachel Michelle Saunders Thomas.

Lorena and Tonya: The W&L Connection

Lorena Bobbitt and Tonya Harding. The Knife and the Club. What would headline writers, talk show hosts, and Hollywood agents have done these past few months without the tabloid tawdriness of these two women? Now, imagine what the prosecutors went through. While assistant commonwealth's attorney Mary Grace O'Brien '83L was working to prosecute both Lorena and John Bobbitt in Prince William County, Va., Norman Frink '77L, deputy district attorney for Multnomah County, Ore., had his hands full as chief prosecutor in charge of the Tonya Harding case.

Prosecutors Frink (left) and O'Brien: Heard any good jokes lately?

When the police report came in about John Bobbitt, O'Brien's boss, commonwealth's attorney Paul Ebert, asked her if she wanted to try the case with him. "If she had stabbed him in the heart, nobody would have cared," O'Brien says. (Of course, Lorena aimed a good bit lower, and the word bobbitt entered the vocabulary as a verb.)

Once O'Brien and Lorena talked at length, "woman-to-woman," the charges against John were changed from marital rape to marital sexual assault. Those charges limited the prosecution to go only a few days into their marriage, and John was acquitted and free to spend his New Year's Eve with Howard Stern. "Any kind of felony case requires a lot of preparation and focus," says O'Brien, acknowledging that the prosecution faced an "uphill battle." (It wasn't until Lorena's trial for malicious wounding in January—she was found not guilty by reason of insanity—that other problems in the marriage became known.) "The media inquiries didn't distract from my focus on the case, but they detracted from my preparation time."

Just when it seemed that nothing short of Michael Jackson could rival the Bobbitts' marital saga for airtime, along came the assault on figure skater Nancy Kerrigan and the subsequent Tonya Harding investigation. Of the five different defendants to be tried by chief prosecutor Norman Frink, Harding has pled guilty to conspiracy to hinder prosecution, and husband Jeff Gillooly, to racketeering (the bodyguard, the wheel man, and the hit man are still awaiting trial).

The high-profile cases brought both attorneys to the same conclusion about media coverage—the media focus on what people are interested in—and their attention to details are not necessarily the details that are important to the prosecutors. "It's a revealing experience," says Frink, who fielded inquiries from across the United States and abroad. "Until you get caught up with one of these media frenzies, it's hard to understand what they are like."—By Evan Atkins

'82

Capt. David A. Core is chief of administrative law at the Yongsan Law Center and command judge advocate of the 34th Area Support Group, U.S. Army. He and his wife, Cynthia, live in Seoul, Korea, and recently visited Bill Baum '82 in Taipei, Taiwan.

Dr. W. Scott Dacus is now a partner in the Lexington (S.C.) Family Practice, a 12-physician group of family physicians.

James E. Dunn Jr. and his wife, Gwyn, live in Greensboro, N.C., with their four children. Dunn is the chairman of Coleman Envelope and Printing. He recently traveled to London with classmate Mike Bernot.

David E. Jensen lives in Reston, Va. He works for the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. in Arlington.

'82L

Thomas G. Baker Jr. was re-elected to his third term in the Virginia House of Delegates last November. He represents Pulaski County, the City of Radford and a portion of Giles County. Baker lives in Dublin, Va.

Dana C. Petersen was elected to the board of governors of the National Bar Association. She is now a full partner at the law firm of Whiteford, Taylor and Preston, and continues to practice in the areas of product liability and general tort litigation. She lives in Baltimore.

'83

James L. Baldwin Jr. was named partner of the Houston law firm of Hutcheson and Grundy. He has been with the firm's Dallas office since 1988. Baldwin concentrates his practice in commercial litigation in both state and federal courts, with an emphasis on financial and lending transactions.

Scott S. Bond was inducted into the President's Club in 1993 at Bulkley Dunton Paper Brokerage Co. in New York City. President's Club recognition goes to the top five brokers among the 400 in the company. Bond lives in Westfield, N.J., with his wife, Patty.

Lt. Cmdr. Thomas L. Egbert was recently promoted to his present rank in the U.S. Navy. He is still flying the FA-18 Hornet and reports that he flew missions over Somalia for Operation Continue Hope and over Iraq for Operation Southern Watch. He is stationed in Jacksonville, Fla.

Fred H. Rindge V was named deputy sports editor at The Post and Courier of Charleston, S.C.

William L. Roberts III is a staff writer at the Philadelphia Business Journal, covering industry and finance. He lives in downtown Philadelphia with his wife, Janice.

Henry F. Sewell Jr. was recently named partner in the Atlanta law firm of Hichs, Malorf & Campbell. He practices commercial litigation and bankruptcy law.

Capt. Michael S. Skardon will complete graduate work in National Security Affairs at the Naval post-graduate school in Monterey, Calif., in June. In July, he will begin service as the U.S. Defense Attache in Rabat, Morocco.

Reen D. Waterman Jr. was named 1993 Realtor of the Year for Queen Anne's County, Md. He also served as president of the 1992-93 Board of Realtors for the county. He lives in Annapolis.

Dr. H. Kenneth Willams Jr. is completing his chief resident year in general surgery at Allegheny General Hospital in Pittsburgh.

Dr. Thomas A. Wilson has completed his residency in neurosurgery at the Wake Forest University School of Medicine. He is now in private practice with Neurological Associates in Birmingham, Ala.

Darryl K. Woodson was recently named editor of The News-Gazette in Lexington, Va. He had been news editor since 1990. Woodson joined the weekly in 1983 as a reporter, but had been doing free lance photography for the paper through high school and his days at W&L.

Anthony J. Zaccagnini recently joined the law firm of Semmes, Bowen and Semmes, specializing in liability and worker's compensation defense. He lives in Falls Church, Va.

'83L

Leslie Goller Dillingham received the Mimi and Lee Adams Environmental Award in December for her efforts in fighting polluting industries and offering free legal counsel to environmentalists involved in a variety of causes. She lives in Jacksonville, Fla.

Eugene S. (Chip) Forrester Jr. was selected for partnership in the Memphis (Tenn.) law firm of Farris, Hancock, Gilman, Branam and Hellen. He also organized the Memphis Bar Association's Young Lawyers Division HIV/AIDS pro bono panel.

Linda A. Klein lives in Atlanta. In November, she and her partners merged their law practice with the firm of Gambrell and Stolz.

Patricia Walther Griffin was appointed chief magistrate for the Justice of the Peace Courts for the State of Delaware last October. She lives in Lewes Beach.

'84 (REUNION)

Robert G. Buchanan Jr. lives in Dallas. He became a shareholder in the law firm of Cowles and Thompson in January.

Geoffrey R.B. Carey is an international portfolio manager in the investment management group at J.P. Morgan in New York City.

Peter G. Collins and classmate Whit Kelly are planning to play golf at the Homestead before the reunion in May. They invite any others who wish to join them to get in touch with them.

Michael S. Craig lives in Winter Haven, Fla., with his wife, Evi, and their children, Spencer, 5, and Rees, 3. He practices land use and environmental law representing residential and industrial clients developing projects in central Florida.

Enrico A. (Rick) deAlessandrini is the non-dollar fixed-income product manager for Yamaichi Securities in New York City.

Andrew J. Dewing lives in Herndon, Va., with his wife, Mary, and their son, Hunter. He is a regional manager with Harris Corp.'s computer systems division. He is also president of the Alumni Fraternity Council and of the Chi Psi Alumni Corporation.

Ronald M. Gache is a commercial litigation attorney with Brad and Cassel in Boca Raton, Fla. He has been with the firm since 1987. He lives in Boca Raton with his wife of two years, Missy.

Justus S. (Jay) Hoyt is a sales representative with Aureus Ltd., a golf apparel manufacturer. He lives in Ashburn, Va., with his wife, Karen, and their daughters, Jordan and Lauren.

James N.L. Humphreys is a civil trial attorney with the Kingsport (Tenn.) firm of Hunter, Smith and Davis. He practices regularly in both Tennessee and Virginia, and concentrates primarily in insurance defense.

Malcolm C. Kendall left the Army in 1992 after eight years of service. He spent the next year as a marketing manager for a Hong Kong-based manufacturer. He is currently enrolled in business school at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Mark A. Lukes and his wife, Janet, live in Lancaster, Pa. They have two children, Megan and Matthew.

Angus M. McBryde III works in the capital markets group of First Union National Bank in Charlotte. He is also training for a marathon.

David C. Short is vice president of RBC Inc., a resort and residential real estate marketing and consulting firm based in Alexandria, Va. He and his wife, Betsy, live in Lake of the Ozarks, Mo.

Olin B. (Ben) St. Clair and his wife, Valerie, live in Baltimore, where he is a training and development specialist for PHH Corp.

Barthe A. Van Doorn and his wife, Kerry, live in Ashburn, Va., with their two sons, Kiernan and Kendrick. He is director of information technology products and services at Life Cycle Technology.

'84L (REUNION)

John L. Carpenter and his wife, Ronnie, live in Yarmouth, Maine, with their three children, Robbie, Scott, and Alison. He wishes that they could be at the reunion this May, but maybe they'll make it to the 15th in 1999.

Robin Jones Jackson recently joined the Miami law firm of Mershon, Sawyer, Johnston, Dunwoody and Cole.

J. Grant McGuire is an attorney in Huntington, W.Va. He lives in Huntington with his wife, Kheng and their son, Forrest.

Thomas B. Shepherd III lives in Ridgeland, Miss., with his wife, Mary Scott, and their two sons, Banks and Martin.

'85

G. Bryan Balazs lives in Livermore, Calif., with his wife and two sons. Balazs works at the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory in environmental sensor development.

Dr. Jeffrey D. Dixon and his wife, Siobhan, moved to Kansas City, Mo., in July, where he joined a group of emergency medicine physicians at St. Luke's Hospital.

Glen O. Jackson has been named vice president of Manning, Salvage & Lee, a New York-based public relations firm. He works out of the firm's Atlanta office. Jackson and his wife, Claire, have two children, Virginia and Jeff.

Landon H. Jones will be receiving his master's degree in English from James Madison University in May. He hopes to teach at the college level next year.

William A. Maner of New York City is a senior associate in investment banking at Morgan Stanley, specializing in the coverage of healthcare companies.

Clark H. Morledge is a computer network analyst with INET Inc., at the NASA/Langley Research Center in Hampton, Va.

Thomas M. Murphy is vice president and co-owner of George Scheer Associates, a firm representing independent publishers in sales and marketing in the southeast and southwest. He lives in Decatur, Ga.

Lt. Robert A. Schlegel recently completed the Basic Surface Warfare Officer's Course and received a Letter of Appreciation. The course emphasizes the duties of an underway officer of the deck, which includes shiphandling and maneuvering under simulated battle conditions.

John W. Zabriskie is spending three months this spring traveling through southeast Asia. He plans to meet up with classmates Paul Vail in Bangkok and Steve Keros in Indonesia. He lives in Sharon, Conn.

'85L

Jeffrey J. Giguere has been named assistant general counsel at the A.T. Cross Co. in Lincoln, R.I. The company is an international manufacturer of writing instruments (Cross pens) and a marketer of leather products. He lives in Cranston, R.I.

Seth C. Prager and his wife, Etty, will be moving to Jakarta, Indonesia, at the end of May, where he will be working with the law firm of Mochtar, Karuwin and Komar. For now, the couple lives in Washington, D.C.

'86

Lawrence S. Anker is a chemical engineer with International Paper's corporate process technology group. He and his wife, Wendy, are happy in their new home in Erie, Pa. Anker stays active in amateur wrestling as a referee.

Jack C. Benjamin Jr. received both his MBA and his J.D. from Tulane Law School. He is now living in New Orleans.

Richard A. Bennett was honorably discharged from the U.S. Army in September 1993 on the grounds of conscientious objection. He received the department of pharmacology's Lauren A. Woods Award for Excellence in research among doctoral students in October 1993. He was awarded a doctor of philosophy in November 1993 from the Medical College of Richmond. Bennett lives in Richmond.

James M. Berger lives in Boston where he is a marketing manager with Dunkin' Donuts Inc.

Jeffrey S. Britton was promoted to area manager for Pennsylvania with Brown-Forman Beverage Co.'s wine brands group. He is based in Downingtown. Britton joined the company since 1987 and most recently was metro New York wine market manager.

John P. Case III is an investment banker with Merrill Lynch in New York City.

Peter A. Hunt left his position with J. P. Morgan to become vice president, mergers and acquisitions, with Lehman Brothers in New York.

Lester S. Johnson lives in New York City. He recently completed his doctorate degree in molecular cell biology at the Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons. He is now working on his medical degree, and hopes to graduate in May 1995.

Dr. David D. Lewis lives in Durham, N.C., where he is the chief resident at Duke University Medical Center.

John D. McCaffery is a resident in otolaryngology at the University of Minnesota Hospital and Clinic. He has two years left in his residency and lives with his wife, Danielle, in Lauderdale, Minn.

Townes G. Pressler Jr. and his wife, Kathleen, recently moved back to Houston after spending two-and-a-half years in New York. He continues to work in the corporate finance group of Kidder Peabody.

Dr. Joseph G. Whelan III is chief resident of obstetrics and gynecology at the University of South Carolina School of Medicine and has been accepted to a three-year fellowship program in reproductive endocrinology and infertility surgery at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C. He lives in Columbia with his dog, Kelsie '86.

C. Reade Williams has joined the corporate and business/international group of Bryan Cave as an associate in the firm's Washington (D.C.) office. He lives in Arlington, Va.

'86L

Bruce L. Castor Jr. is the first assistant district attorney of Montgomery County, Pa. He supervises a D.A.'s office of 110 people and prosecutes major felonies and death penalty cases. Castor lives in Souderton with his wife, Elizabeth, and their children, Bruce and Alexandra.

'87

Dr. Michael S. Blackwood is finishing up his orthodontic residency at the University of Detroit-Mercy and expects to graduate in June. He lives in Grosse Point Park with his wife, Heidi '89.

Michael D.W. Cannon was named national accounts manager in the sales department with Datastream Systems Inc. He lives in Greenville, S.C.

Christopher R. Carter is teaching English at the Christchurch School in Christchurch, Va. He also coaches cross country, directs the winter play, and serves as a dormitory master.

David R. Cobb is pursuing a degree in the culinary arts at the Cooking and Hospitality Institute of Chicago.

William D. Deep Jr. is a chemical engineer with Imperial Chemical Industries in Richmond. He recently managed the successful commissioning of a new manufacturing line for graphic arts and photographic films.

Francis A. O'Reilly III is a Civil War historian in Fredericksburg, Va.

Dr. Andrew M. Reibach is in the final year of his family medicine residency. He lives in Pueblo, Colo., with his wife, Stacey and their son, Stephen.

John P. Rowe is an office manager and lending officer with Jefferson National Bank in Richmond.

William H. Surgner Jr., a third-year law student at W&L, has been included in the 1994 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. He lives in Lexington with his wife, Amanda, and daughter, Anne, 1.

'87L

David G. Hammond was recently named partner in the law firm of Spilman, Thomas and Battle in Charleston, W.Va.

James N.L. Humphreys See '84.

David E. Perry was elected a partner of the law firm of Glenn, Flippen, Feldmann and Darby in Roanoke. He has been with the firm since 1989.

'88

Charles C. Benedict Jr. is an analyst with the Coca-Cola Co. in Atlanta.

Erik S. Cooper is pursuing his MBA at Washington University in St. Louis and intends to major in finance. Cooper writes that he and his wife, Betsy, are thoroughly enjoying St. Louis and that several W&L alumni attend the school, including Martin Malloy '92.

Darrin Denny is a captain in the Marine Corps stationed in Virginia Beach.

Thomas J. Etergino has moved to Prague, Czech Republic, where he will live for 18 months working for Coopers & Lybrand. He moved to Prague from Moscow, where he spent six months working for the company.

G. Garrett Moseley is assistant vice president of the investment counseling group of Interstate/Johnson Lane, a regional investment firm headquartered in Charlotte. Moseley is also a fellow at the N.C. Institute of Political Leadership.

Thomas P. O'Brien III left West Virginia for Louisville, Ky., last fall, and is now associated with the law firm of Middleton and Reutinger in Louisville. He clerked for U.S. District Judge Frederick P. Stamp Jr. '56 in Wheeling, W.Va., for the past two years.

Robert J. Owen is halfway through his history master's program at George Mason University. He is currently writing the history of the U.S. light cruiser Marblehead, which was used during the Philippines/Java campaigns of World War II. He hopes to have his work published early next year.

Richard G. Parkhurst Jr. recently moved to Charlotte, where he is assistant vice president of corporate banking with NationsBank.

Tony L. Towler is a Realtor with Colonna Real Estate in Lexington.

David M. Vaughan lives in Hyogo, Japan. He left his job with Praxair Surface Technologies in the fall to concentrate on his studies of the Japanese language and hopes to enroll in the translation and interpretation program at the Monterey Institute of International Studies next fall.

W. Brandt Wood just moved to Dallas from New Orleans. He still works as vice president for the family marine company in New Orleans on a limited basis, but is now working with his brother in Dallas. He co-owns music clubs, a restaurant, and a record label there and will develop talent and manage clubs with his brother.

'88L

Donna Ambler Davis has recently become a board certified family law specialist. She continues to practice in the firm of Levine, Stewart & Davis in Chapel Hill, N.C.

M. Hollis Hutchinson is affiliated with the firm of Kip Petroff in Dallas. The firm practices medical malpractice, personal injury, and medical products liability work exclusively.

'89 (REUNION)

Dana S. Anstine will graduate from medical school at the University of Virginia in May and plans to start her residency in July.

James H. Barker Jr. is pursuing his MBA at Denver University and plans to graduate in June. He also works with disabled skiers in the Breckenridge (Colo.) Outdoor Education Center.

Emily C. Beville is still with Deloitte and Touche, London as part of an 18-month exchange with the New York office. She is currently involved in an audit project with the firm's Bucharest office, and is spending several months in Bucharest.

Heidi Read Blackwood is a copy editor with a corporate publisher in Detroit. She lives in Grosse Point Park with her husband, Michael '87.

Anton T. Blok moved back to Aruba after graduation and started a computer consulting business. His company has since expanded into management consulting and real estate project management.

J. Michelle Brockman was named representative of the year for RPR Pharmaceuticals for 1993. She lives in Lexington, Ky.

Matthew S. Bryant and his wife, Caroline, are currently enjoying being graduate students in Austin, Texas. The couple plans to move to Richmond in the fall when Bryant will begin his position as an associate with the law firm of McGuire, Woods, Battle & Boothe.

Monica M. Burke is a Lotus notes administrator and LAN engineer at Sony Music Entertainment in New York City. Perks of the job, she writes, include travel and free CDs: "I think I'm finally cool."

Carol A. Couch lives in New York City where she is a designer in the college division of McGraw-Hill Inc.

T. Gregory Dale graduated from law school at William and Mary last May and has taken a job in the law offices of Roger W. Mullins in Tazewell, Va.

Philip A. DuPont is a first lieutenant in the U.S. Army. He is commander of C Company, 3rd Battalion, 25th Aviation Regiment at Fort Drum, N.Y., and writes that he hopes to instruct history at West Point.

J. Alan Greeter has founded Greeter Construction in Nashville. The company will deal primarily in residential construction.

David S. Grove recently moved from Macon, Ga., to Herndon, Va. He is a commercial account officer with First Union National Bank in Washington, D.C., working on a specialized industry group for membership organizations.

Charles D. Hartley is pursuing his MBA at UCLA. Previously, he worked in advertising at Young and Rubicam for two years.

Marion M. (Moose) Herring is enrolled in the orthopedic surgery program at the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond.

Scott J. Herubin has had an apartment in Moscow for the past year-and-a-half. He travels throughout Europe and Russia developing new business for Turner/CNN.

Capt. Richard P. James Jr. received his medical degree from USUHS in Bethesda, Md., last May. He is now doing a transitional internship at Tripler Army Medical Center in Honolulu.

Laura Carty Jones is a marketing manager with Michelin's aircraft tire division in Charlotte.

Katherine A. Kelso spent last summer traveling and studying in Europe. She is now working at the Georgetown Law Center as student accounts coordinator and living in Arlington, Va.

Frederick W. (Fritz) Lake III See Linsly Hunt '91.

William R. Lasseigne III lives in Tuscaloosa, Ala., where he is a sales and marketing representative with General Mills. He recently received his MBA from Louisiana State University.

Dudley W. Lee is vice president of Stowall Engineering Co. in Memphis, Tenn., where he lives with his wife, Louise, and their daughter, Chandler.

G. Manoli Loupassi is working in Richmond as an assistant commonwealth's attorney, after having spent a year clerking for the Honorable James B. Wilkinson, Circuit Judge.

Edward D. (Ted) Ludwig received his master's of divinity from Louisville Presbyterian Seminary last May. He is continuing his studies there in pursuit of a degree in marriage and family therapy. He lives in Salvisa, Ky.

Laurel V. Mattson lives in Richmond, where she is a management recruiter with Circuit City Stores' corporate offices. She recently bought a house.

Dr. Edwin C. McGee Jr. graduated from Vanderbilt School of Medicine last May and is now a first-year general surgery resident at the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston.

Elizabeth S. Miles graduated from physical therapy school at the University of Louisville last summer. She has completed internships at Rudy Ellis Sportsmedicine in Louisville and Centennial Rehab Hospital in Nashville. Miles is currently working at Frazier Rehab in Louisville.

Anthony P. Mitchell is "happily unmarried" and works for Saleskit Software Corp., splitting his time between St. Louis and Chicago.

Thomas R. Moore hopes to complete his master's in real estate development at Johns Hopkins this spring. He works with his father, Richard A. Moore '57, at Gaylord Brooks Realty Co. Moore lives in Lutherville, Md.

Elizabeth J. Parkins is the communications liaison for Advance Auto Parts. Previously she served as director of public relations for the Virginia Skyline Girl Scout Council. She lives in Salem, Va.

Stuart H. Sheldon works for Lang and Associates in Atlanta, a marketing company for sports and cultural events. He is currently overseeing the Coca-Cola Olympics account and traveled to Lillehammer for the Winter Olympics in February.

Cathleen M. Tiernan is a second-year associate at Brown & Wood in New York. Her practice is concentrated mainly in the securities litigation area.

Michael D. Tuggle lives in Irving, Texas. He was recently promoted to senior writer at Tracy-Locke and is now working on the Budget Rent-A-Car, American Airlines, and Interstate Batteries accounts.

Alston Parker Watt and her husband, Philip, are moving to Zambia, Africa, in April to work with the Owens Wildlife Conservation Group. She will be working on community development and family planning in the villages surrounding a national park while her husband will be setting up a primary public care system. The couple currently lives in Baltimore.

'89L (REUNION)

Louise DiMatteo Megargee has joined the litigation section of the insurance defense firm of Siciliano, Ellis, Dyer & Boccarosse in Fairfax, Va. She lives in Arlington with her husband, Michael.

Glenn R. Neal is an assistant prosecuting attorney in Parkersburg, Wood County, W.Va. He lives in Ripley.

Robert W. Pontz lives in Millersville, Pa. He recently changed law firms and is now associated with Kegel, Chesters, Lapp & Miller in Lancaster.

Dr. A. Robin Winn formed the law firm of Winn & Jankell in Chesapeake, Va., with classmate Peter J. Jankell.

Playing Politics

Boulder (Colo.) entrepreneur Tim Phelan '88 credits Rush Limbaugh—"talent on loan from God," in case you've been hiding under a radio somewhere—with the high-concept inspiration that took him from training for triathlons to the board-game business. Last April, Phelan was sitting around with a fellow Republican listening to Limbaugh's radio show, and his friend got the idea "that there should be a Clinton Monopoly—where you lose your money [instead of winning]," he recalls.

Two days later, Phelan bought some poster board and began

ALBERT'S ENVIRONMENTALLY SAFE LUMBER

"Putting Owls First"

PRICE: $10,000
SERVICES: $2,000
EMPLOYEES: 1,100

Slick Willie's Sacrifice creators Matt Cevallos (left) and Tim Phelan '88, and a sample property: Making money off Clintonomics.

mapping off squares and marking down properties, such as "Nanny's by Zoe" and "Hillary's Health Care World." Then the game went on the back burner until he played it one night with roommate Matt Cevallos, a fellow Lawrenceville School alumnus and iron-man competitor. "He thought it was hilarious," Phelan recalls, and RIGHT in Boulder was born. For $2,500 each, he and Cevallos contracted a graphic designer, got all the components, and paid their legal fees. Within three months, the pair had put together 1,000 game boards by hand, and Slick Willie's Sacrifice was in stores in time for Christmas.

Using real money for playing pieces and pizza-box packaging, the game is strictly a low-budget novelty (even the price tag is political: $19.96). But when The Denver Post ran an article last December, he says, "we sold out of our first thousand that day." Then someone faxed the article to Limbaugh, Rush plugged the game on his Dec. 10 broadcast, and orders poured in from all but four or five states. In three short months, RIGHT in Boulder has sold some 2,500 games, creating a greater return on investment than even the Whitewater land deal.

Phelan quit his job as a waiter in January to market the game full time. He and Cevallos ordered 2,000 more games, and with a Portland (Ore.) agency, they've put together a direct-response ad with an 800 number to run on Limbaugh's TV show, which airs twice daily in Portland. If the test market is successful, they will take the concept to other cities.

No one can say that Phelan doesn't know his market. "We have a feeling there are between 500,000 and 10 million people among whom the anti-Clinton element is extreme," he declares. "Our mission is to go out and find them."

William E. (Toby) Allen and his wife, Catherine Harris Allen '92, live in Chapel Hill, N.C., where he expects to receive his Ph.D in chemistry from the University of North Carolina this December.

Laura C. Baldwin received her master's in physical therapy from Hahnemann University last May. She is now working as a staff physical therapist at JFK Johnson Rehabilitation Institute in Edison, N.J.

Travis V. Blain is vice president of sales with Mack Sails in Stuart, Fla. He lives in Palm Beach Gardens with his father, Dan Blain '62.

G. Wesley Boyd
See Linsly Hunt '91.

Grattan T. Brown is finishing a master's in literature at Memphis State University.

J. Wayne Burris Jr. is stationed at Fort Bragg, N.C.

Joanne E. Even is working for a business management firm in Richmond. She is working towards a master's in public administration at Virginia Commonwealth University.

Karl B. Hanson recently finished his second year of law school at the University of Florida in Gainesville. He expects to graduate in December.

Gena L. Hauser has completed her high school teacher certification and is almost through with the requirements for a M.Ed. in secondary-level English at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. She lives in Winston-Salem.

Nancy L. Hickam left her job as assistant director of admissions at W&L last summer to enter graduate school at the University of Georgia. She has an assistantship as a proposal writer for international grants in the international development department at UGA. She is also doing internships at the UGA Center for Counseling and Personal Evaluation and at 4th Street Elementary School in Athens.

Rachel R. Jackson lives in Houston, where she works with a venture capital and consulting firm focusing on Mexico.

William A. Norton Jr. received his master's in environmental engineering from the University of Alabama in December.

Paula J. Owsley has completed her master's in rural sociology at the University of Missouri. She recently left a position with the U.S. Soil Conservation Service to become a flood recovery coordinator for a regional planning commission in southwest Missouri. She lives in Springfield.

John E. Perkins IV received his master's in urban and regional planning from the University of Florida in 1992. He is now working in Tallahassee as a geographic information systems coordinator with the Leon County Property Appraiser's Office.

Jennifer E. Spreng is a second-year law student at St. Louis University. She is a member of the Federalist Society. Last summer, she worked for the Rutherford Institute in Charlottesville, Va., a non-profit legal group protecting religious freedom.

Nelson S. Teague will finish law school at the University of Richmond in December. He lives with Mark Monahan '91 in Richmond and will be clerking for Judge Lowe in the U.S. Magistrate Court next semester.

Delia F. (DeeDee) Truett received her M.S. in zoology from the University of Tennessee. She is now teaching biology at Young Harris College in Young Harris, Ga.

'90L

Kathleen E. McLeroy has been appointed chairwoman of the corporate banking and business law section of the Hillsborough County Bar Association. She is an attorney with the law firm of Carleton, Fields, Ward, Emmanuel, Smith and Cutler and lives in Tampa, Fla.

'91

Robert B. Boswell is in his third year at the University of Arkansas School for Medical Sciences in Little Rock.

Andrew D. Bunger is living in Weston, Conn., having recently returned from Frankfurt, Germany, where he spent more than two years working for Woolworth.

Douglas C. Denby is in his third year as an agent for Northwestern Mutual in Washington, D.C.

David L. Fenstermacher is in his second year of law school at the University of Georgia. He will be clerking for two Atlanta law firms this summer, Parker, Hudson, Rainer and Dobbs and Nelson, Mullins, Riley and Scarborough.

Stephen B. French is a second-year law student at the University of Florida in Gainesville. He lives with classmate Chris Commander.

Thomas E. Gottsegen completed his master's in journalism from the University of Southern California in December. He is now living in New Orleans and plans to begin law school in the fall.

Keiko Harada is a commercial loan officer with NationsBank in Lakeland, Fla.

Edward A. Hart is working in Houston. "Go Cowboys! Go Spurs! Go Generals!"

Alex C. Hitx lives in Atlanta where he is chief operating officer for banquets at the Georgian Terrace, Atlanta's only National Registrar property now available for rent.

Linsly M. Hunt lives in Austin where she is a student at the University of Texas Business School along with Wes Boyd '90 and Fritz Lake '89.

Christopher B. Lunny will graduate from law school at the University of Florida in May. He has a job as a litigation legal assistant with Katz, Kutter, Haigler, Alderman, Marks and Bryant in Tallahassee, starting this summer.

Duncan L. Miller lives in Memphis, Tenn., where he is an assistant branch manager with the National Bank of Commerce.

H. Todd Pearce has been working as an actuarial assistant for GEICO since July. He lives in Germantown, Md.

Mark E. Phippard was promoted to senior software developer at Softlanding Systems in Peterborough, N.H. He purchased his first home last December. In November, he visited classmate John Sbar in Tampa, Fla.

Ingrid M. Schroeder lives in Washington, D.C., where she is a legislative analyst in the office of management and budget.

Ian S. Shupack is a third-year medical student at Texas A&M College of Medicine. He lives in Temple, Texas.

Richard L. Weinstein lives in Baltimore with David Hunter '93. Weinstein reports that after teaching him some basic cooking skills, Hunter "has taken the art of culinary expertise to great heights."

Lovell M. West is in her second year of teaching English in Barcelona, Spain.

Elise M. Whitaker is in her third year of law school at the University of Georgia. She will be clerking for Federal District Court Judge Anthony Alaimo in Brunswick, Ga., after graduation.

Jeffrey W. Woodland spent two years teaching English in Barcelona and "loafing around" the Mediterranean. Having returned to the United States, he now works for the appropriations committee of the House of Representatives.

'91L

Thomas P. O'Brien III
See '88.

Clifford B. Stricklin lives in Dallas, where he is a special assistant U.S. attorney for the eastern district of Texas.

'92

Catherine Harris Allen
See William E. Allen '90.

Winthrop C. Allen lives in Wyoming and writes, "Jackson Hole is great!"

Denise G. Brainard has an internship with the Prosecuting Attorneys Association of Michigan. She will be moving from Clinton Township to the Upper Peninsula of Michigan next summer where she will work as an assistant prosecutor in Gogebic County.

Thomas M. (T.J.) Daly III is a commercial lending officer with NationsBank in Richmond. Daly reports that his apartment recently burned down!

Fred R. Elliott is a loan officer with SouthTrust Bank in Birmingham, Ala.

Matthew W. Felber is the staff assistant in the office of Congressman Martin R. Hoke in Cleveland. He lives in Akron, Ohio.

Jay C. Fertile is in his second year at the University of Virginia Medical School. He writes that he will begin rounds this spring and hopes to graduate in 1996.

John A. Flippen left his job at Procter and Gamble to work for the Upper Deck Co. in California. He is an associate brand manager on baseball cards with the company and says that "marketing trading cards is a lot more fun than deodorant!" Flippen lives in Cardiff by the Sea.

G. Eric Foust is a second-year law student at the University of South Carolina.

M. Hill Goodspeed continues to work in the cooperative education program at the National Museum of Naval Aviation in Pensacola, Fla., while he works on a master's degree in history at the University of West Florida.

Emily C. Greer lives in Yakima, Wash., and works for Nordstrom's department store.

Thomas S. Grow is working for the corporate legal counsel at Tektronix Inc. in New York City. He plans to start law school in the fall, somewhere in the southeast.

Courtney B. Hall is in her second year at Tulane Law School in New Orleans.

E. Whitney Hopkins is in the commercial officer development program at First National Bank of Maryland. She lives in Severna Park.

Douglas P. Johnson says he is enjoying himself in Tamaulipas, Mexico.

Jason S. Kelley is in law school at the College of William and Mary in Williamsburg, Va.

Clayton A. Kennington lives in Dallas and works for U.S. Congressman Sam Johnson (R-Texas).

Robert C. Little is in his second year at the American University Washington College of Law in Washington, D.C. He clerked at the law firm of Kornblum & Ferry in San Francisco last summer, where he supported the defense in a major civil litigation in Los Angeles Superior Court.

W. Darin Lockwood is living in Vero Beach, Fla., and working for a landscaping company. He also coaches soccer and lacrosse at St. Edward's High School. He plans to keep working there for a while before returning to school for an engineering degree.

Frank H. Moore is pursuing his master's degree in teaching at Virginia Commonwealth University and coaching basketball at Collegiate Middle School for his second year. He lives in Richmond.

David S. Phillips is in his first year of law school at the University of Virginia.

George C. Sakin has been in Florida for a year where he works for Ernest & Julio Gallo as a consultant to supermarkets in Fort Lauderdale.

Evelyn A. Schroeder is a paralegal with the law firm of Phelps Dunbar in Jackson, Miss. She lives in Ridgeland.

John G. Simonton worked on a farm in Covington, Tenn., during the fall. He is now living in Durango, Colo.

Thomas C. Snedeker works for the law firm of Keller and Heckman in Washington, D.C., and lives in Arlington, Va., with 1991 grads Bruce Taylor and Jonathan Symonds.

Elizabeth L. Talkington is a human resources specialist with B.F. Goodrich Aerospace and is on temporary assignment in the Burlington (Vt.) area.

Matthew E. Taylor works for Sotheby's in New York as the decorative arts registrar for Sotheby's North America.

Heather A. Turner spent six months after graduation living on a kibbutz in Israel. She is now living in Atlanta and is in her first year of graduate school in psychology at Georgia State University.

John E. Witherington Jr. is working towards a master's in building construction at Auburn University in Alabama.

'92L

Elizabeth L. Ewert lives in San Francisco where she is an associate with Gordon and Rees. Jay Miller '93L is also with the firm.

Jessica K. Martin is an associate practicing business and creditors rights with the Richmond law firm of McSweeney, Burtch and Crump.

Timothy P. Thurtle is an associate with the law firm of Brown & McCormick in Glen Burnie, Md. He lives in Millersville.

Clark H. Worthy is an associate with Woods, Rogers and Hazelgrove in Roanoke. Before joining the firm, Worthy served as a law clerk to the Honorable Emory H. Widenener Jr., U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit.

'93

Jeremy E. Carroll lives in Washington, D.C., where he is a research assistant for Public Opinion Strategies, a Republican polling and consulting firm.

Heather N. Cook lives in Richmond and works for Deloitte and Touche.

John E. Hedstrom is working as a paralegal in Washington, D.C. He lives in Arlington, Va.

Charles H.G. Honey lives in New York City and is a trader and equity investment analyst for a management firm there.

David B. Hunter See Richard Weinstein '91.

Tonya M. Yoder lives in Taiwan where she is trying to help both native and non-native speakers learn correct English.

'93L

Stacy M. Colvin is an associate with Woods, Rogers and Hazelgrove in Roanoke.

Nancy E. Hannah lives in Cary, N.C., and works as a research assistant for N.C. Supreme Court Justice John Webb.

James W. Miller Jr. is an associate with Gordon and Rees in San Francisco. Elizabeth Ewert '92L is also with the firm.

Sarah E. Powell is an associate with the Roanoke law firm of Glenn, Flippen, Feldman and Darby.

Laurie A. Winkler is an associate with the law offices of Joseph Miklasz in Glen Burnie, Md. She lives in Pasadena.

Marriages

Peter L. Heumann '67 to Linda Ciotti, on June 4, 1993. The couple lives in Timonium, Md., with Heumann's stepson, Nick, and three children, Sarah, Leah, and Jon.

Joseph B. Tompkins Jr. '71 to Nancy Powell Wilson, on Feb. 6, 1993, in Vinton, Va. The couple lives in Alexandria with their three sons, Graves and Forbes Tompkins and Tate Wilson.

Alan J. Prater '73, '80L to Rachel Lynn Scott, on Nov. 6, 1993. The couple lives in Shreveport, La., where Prater is assistant chief deputy for the Caddo Parish Sheriff's Office, in charge of the administrative division.

M. Calhoun Colvin Jr. '77 to Debbie Bradley, on June 27, 1993. The couple lives in Mt. Pleasant, S.C. They honeymooned in Australia for three weeks.

Dr. D. Marshall Jemison '78 to Hilda King, on Aug. 14, 1993. The couple lives in Lookout Mountain, Tenn.

D. Page Kelley III '78 to Lauren Swingle, on Sept. 11, 1993, in San Francisco. The couple lives in New York City.

Joseph F. Cox '79 to Evelyn da Costa, on Sept. 17, 1993. The couple lives in Towson, Md. The groom is founder and president of Benchmark Commercial Properties, a sales, leasing and management firm in Baltimore.

James D. Gray '79 to Francel C. Carrigan, on Nov. 12, 1993. The couple lives in Houston, where Gray is managing director for Trammell Crow Co., a full-service real estate firm based in Dallas.

David W. Williams '80 to Christine Frampton, on Sept. 25, 1993, in Philadelphia. The couple lives in Philadelphia where Williams is a vice president with Kidder, Peabody.

F. Andrew Boyd '82 to Ann Elizabeth Gorton, on Nov. 6, 1993, in Georgetown. Thomas J. Boyd '86 and T. Chase Nelson '82 were groomsmen. The couple lives in Winchester, Va. Boyd recently finished a government position as a project supervisor at a historic project in Brooklyn, N.Y., and is now a private practice architect in Virginia.

Barry C. Russell '82 to Nancy Wilson, on Nov. 23, 1993. The couple lives in Ellicott City, Md.

Cary C. Mauck '83 to Melissa Arnold Falls, on July 24, 1993. The couple lives in Richmond.

Thomas L.H. Cocke '84 to Elizabeth Mesmer, on Oct. 16, 1993, in Seawanee, Tenn. Brother William '82 was the best man, and Ben C. Hale '85 was a groomsman. The couple lives in Nashville, where Cocke is a senior copywriter for the Buntin Agency, an advertising company.

Duncan H. Stone '85 to Carla Elizabeth Gaines, on Oct. 10, 1993, in Redding, Conn. The couple lives in Atlanta, where Stone is a freelance copywriter.

Tyler S. Carr '87 to Christine M. Burke on Oct. 9, 1993. The couple lives in McLean, Va., where Carr is a regional vice president with Wood Logan Associates.

Robert A. DuChemin '87L to Regina Rene Beckman, on Dec. 4, 1993. Groomsmen included classmates Paul Crutchea and David Hirsberg. The couple lives in Orlando, Fla.

James P. Cotter '88 to Nikki Wagner, on July 30, 1993.

The wedding party included classmates Coalter Pollack, Jim Cockey, and Joe Zamorano. The couple lives in New Hyde Park, N.Y. Cotter is a teacher at Chaminade High School in Mineola.

Edward J. Willard '88
to M. Courtney Brown, on Nov. 27, 1993, in Hopewell, N.J. Members of the wedding party included classmates Chris Rooker and Jason Lisi. Willard is a credit analyst in the personal credit department of United Jersey Bank Central. The couple lives in Princeton.

Lenard Garrett '88L
to Tanya C. Lewis, on Nov. 27, 1993, in Columbia, S.C. Garrett is assistant director for government affairs with the New York City Transit Authority. The couple lives in New York City.

Jennifer Bray '89
to Mark Stratton, on Oct. 9, 1993. Classmates Kelly Putney and Jim Bledsoe were in the wedding party. The couple lives in Houston, where Bray is alumni chapter president.

M. Warren Butler '89
to Kathrine Williams, on Aug. 7, 1993. The couple lives in Mobile, Ala., where Butler is an associate with the law firm of Lyons, Pipes and Cook.

Marthe Christian '89
to George G. Grattan II, on Oct. 2, 1993. Bridesmaids included classmates Carol Couch, Kennon Savage, Katherine Nelligan Steuart, and Ellen Sigler. The couple lives in Richmond where the bride continues to work for the N.B. Handy Co.

David A. Hudson '89
to Laurie Jackson, on Nov. 27, 1993, in Erie, Pa. Classmate Joseph Kavanagh was in the wedding party. The couple lives in Fairview, Pa.

Frank M. Sands '89
to Jessica H. Kozikowski, on Aug. 14, 1993, in Albuquerque, N.M. The couple lives in Charlottesville, Va. Sands expects to graduate from business school at the University of Virginia in May.

Edgar S. Sydnor Jr. '89
to Michelle F. Burns, on Nov. 27, 1993. Members of the wedding party included E. Starke Sydnor '66, '73L, Jim Williams '88, David Burns '89, Mike Carroll '89, Hunter McFadden '89 and Sascha Burns '93. The couple lives in Charles Town, W.Va.

Christopher L. Willard '89 to Gail Elizabeth Gonya, on Aug. 14, 1993. Robert K. Tompkins '90, '94L, John Laney '91, and Chisolm Coleman '92 served as groomsmen. The couple lives in Raleigh, N.C., where Willard practices law.

J. Emmette Pilgreen IV '90 to Moira Ann Hanley, on Aug. 14, 1993, in Lee Chapel. The wedding party included Matthew Wise '91 and Armando Benincasa '92. The couple lives in Roanoke, where Pilgreen is an associate with the law firm of Lutins and Shapiro.

Matthew C. Sackett '90
to Mary Catherine Scarborough, on Nov. 13, 1993, in Houston. Members of the wedding party included classmates Karl Hanson, Taylor Houck, and Jim Harber. Brothers of the groom, Christopher '93 and Henry '88 were also in the wedding party. The couple lives in Charlottesville, Va., where Sackett is in his fourth year of medical school at the University of Virginia. He plans to start a residency in internal medicine this summer.

Courtney Adams '91
to Robert Christensen '91, on July 31, 1993, in Lexington, Va. The wedding party included Frank Suddell '91 and Dave Radulovic '90. The groom is a senior accountant with Coopers & Lybrand and the bride is a third-year law student. The couple lives in Richmond.

Robby J. Aliff '91
to Dara Porfeli, on Dec. 18, 1993, in Oak Hill, W.Va. Philip Spears '93, Jeffrey Zeigert '92, and Kevin Struthers '89 served as groomsmen. Singing at the ceremony under the direction of professor of music Gordon Spice were 1987 graduates Andrew Bowie and Christopher Deighan; Jim Williams '88; 1989 grads Christopher Callas, Michael Carroll, Jeffrey Schultz, and Gar Sydnor; 1991 grads Franklin Daniels, Bryan Patterson, and Bryant Spann; 1992 grads Andrew Keller and Roger Sullivan; and Alan Flickenger '94. The couple lives in Lexington, where Aliff is assistant director of admissions at W&L.

Kevin L. Carl '92
to Claire deVignier, on Dec. 19, 1993, in Richmond. Classmate Jim Pike served as a groomsman. Carl is a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army stationed in Germany.

Births

Dr. & Mrs. Milford F. Schwartz Jr. '61, a daughter, Emily Rebecca, on March 16, 1993. She joins a brother, Ethan. The family lives in Chicago.

Mr. & Mrs. J. Bruce Whelihan '64, a daughter, Sara Elizabeth, by adoption, in July 1993. The family lives in Washington, D.C.

Mr. & Mrs. Bruce A. Meyers '70, a son, Jonathan Joseph (J.J.), on May 5, 1993. He joins a sister, Elizabeth. The family lives in Mesa, Ariz.

Mr. & Mrs. W. Tennent Houston '72, a daughter, Elisabeth Tennent, on July 20, 1993. She joins brothers Tennent and Charlie and sisters Alice and Margaret. The family lives in Augusta, Ga., where Houston is president of Merry Land & Investment Co.

Mr. & Mrs. Mitt Younts '72, a daughter, Emily Delaittre, on April 19, 1993. The family lives in Arlington, Va.

Mr. & Mrs. Hatton C.V. Smith '73, a son, Hatton C.V. II, on Nov. 30, 1993. The family lives in Birmingham, Ala.

Mr. & Mrs. David M. Bradt Jr. '74L, a son, Jacob, on July 20, 1993. He joins a sister, Della. The family lives in Bethesda, Md.

Mr. & Mrs. W. Bradney Griffin '74L, a daughter, Kalen Elise, on Nov. 25, 1993. The family has recently moved to Lake Placid, N.Y., but Griffin continues to practice law in Vermont.

Mr. & Mrs. Gordon F. Saunders '74, a son, Kyle William, on Dec. 20, 1993. He joins a sister, Lyndsey Paige. The family lives in Lexington, Va.

Dr. & Mrs. Jeffrey A. Baum '76, a daughter, Olivia Grace, on June 11, 1993. The family lives in Pittsburgh.

Mr. & Mrs. Douglas R. Muir '76, twin daughters, Julia Hanson and Caroline LaForce, on Dec. 18, 1993. The family lives in Greensboro, N.C.

Mr. & Mrs. Christopher A. Johnson '77, a son, H. Carter, on July 29, 1993. The family lives in Greenwich, Conn.

Mr. & Mrs. John H. Follansbee III '78, a son, John H. IV, on Jan. 19, 1994. The family lives in Johnstown, Pa.

Mr. & Mrs. Karl N. Koon '78, a daughter, Kelly McKenzie, on Aug. 22, 1993. The family lives in Asheville, N.C.

Mr. & Mrs. Henry C. Roemer III '78, a daughter, Blair Caroline, on June 3, 1993. She joins a sister, Suzanna Caroline. The family lives in Winston-Salem, N.C., where Roemer is an attorney practicing corporate and business law with the firm of Petree Stockton.

Mr. & Mrs. Paul A. Dominick '79L, a daughter, Margaret Brett Elizabeth, on Sept. 26, 1993. She joins brothers Pate and Mark. The family lives in Charleston, S.C.

Mr. & Mrs. John B. Jacob Jr. '79, a daughter, Molly Margaret, on Nov. 22, 1993. The family lives in Alexandria, Va.

Mr. & Mrs. Shaun R. Levesque '79, a son, Eamon Hayes, on June 28, 1993. The family lives in Wrentham, Mass.

Mr. & Mrs. Jonathan W. Pine Jr. '79, a son, Jonathan W. III, on Aug. 27, 1993. The family lives in Baltimore. Pine is editor-in-chief, medical specialties, with Williams and Wilkins.

Mr. & Mrs. Sean R. Smith '79, '83L, twin sons, Daniel John and Patrick John, on Aug. 29, 1993. The family lives in Brooklyn, N.Y.

Mr. & Mrs. Gregory B. Dyer '80, a daughter, Mary Christine, on Oct. 29, 1993. She joins a brother, Kevin, and two sisters, Katie and Colleen. The family recently moved to a new home in Kensington, Md.

Mr. & Mrs. William F. Hill '80, a son, Charles David, on March 31, 1993. The family lives in Greenville, N.C.

Mr. & Mrs. Bishop B. Norris '81, a daughter, Mary Katherine, on May 30, 1993. The family lives in Collierville, Tenn. Norris is managing partner of the accounting firm of Vawter, Gramman, Norris & Co.

Mr. & Mrs. Alan P. Pryor '81, a daughter, Hutchinson Alexandra (Alix) Standifer, on Jan. 13, 1994. She joins a brother, A.J. The family lives in Lincoln University, Pa.

Mr. & Mrs. L. Thomas Raymond III '81, a son, Laurier Thomas IV, on Oct. 7, 1993. The family lives in Cumberland Foreside, Maine.

Mr. & Mrs. Frank W. Brower III '82, a son, Mason Grant, on Dec. 27, 1993. The family lives in Dallas.

Mr. & Mrs. William F.L. Brown '82, a son, Cotter Dixon, on Aug. 17, 1993. The family lives in Basking Ridge, N.J.

Dr. & Mrs. Rickie K. Monroe '82, a son, Joshua, on Nov. 3, 1993. The family lives in Perrysburg, Ohio. Monroe is a practicing anesthesiologist at Mercy Hospital in Toledo.

Mr. & Mrs. Ejay Clark '83, twin daughters, Erin Marie and Kassidy Ann, on Oct. 19, 1993. The family lives in Stamford, Conn. Clark completed his master's in education at the University of Bridgeport in December.

Mr. & Mrs. Gregory E. Johnson '83, a daughter, Lindsay Baxter, on Dec. 7, 1993. The family lives in Hillsborough, Calif.

Mrs. Cecily LaVigne Morris '83L, and her husband, Mark, a son, Kevin Patrick, on Dec. 6, 1993. He joins a brother, Michael, and two sisters, Emily and Leah. The family lives in Massena, N.Y.

Mr. & Mrs. James C. Hudson '84, a daughter, Taylor Elizabeth, on Sept. 29, 1993. She joins a brother, Andrew. The family lives in Charlotte.

Mr. & Mrs. Robert W. Massie IV '84, a son, Patrick Shields, on Jan. 6, 1993. Massie is a management consultant with Deloitte and Touche in Washington, D.C.

Mr. & Mrs. Craig H. McArn '84, a son, Christopher Hunter, on Dec. 12, 1993. The family lives in Bay Village, Ohio.

Mr. William D. Alden '84L & Ms. Susan P. Voorhees '84L, a daughter, Madeline Voorhees Alden, on Sept. 29, 1993. The family lives in Princeton, N.J.

Mr. & Mrs. Christopher H. Brooks '85, a son, Jory, on Dec. 8, 1993. He joins a sister, Emily. The family lives in Alpharetta, Ga.

Mr. & Mrs. John A. DiDuro '85, a daughter, Mariana DeVane, on July 30, 1993. She joins a brother, A.J. The family lives in Woodbridge, Va. DiDuro continues to work as a computer scientist for the Army out of the Pentagon.

Mr. & Mrs. George B. Kinkead '85, a son, John Blackburn, on June 29, 1993. The family lives in St. Paul, Minn.

Mr. & Mrs. John L. Dockery '85L, a son, Lawrence Clement, on Dec. 2, 1993. The family lives in Las Vegas, Nev.

Mr. & Mrs. Edward M. Graham '87L, a daughter, Emma Rigney, on July 21, 1993. The family lives in Chicago, where Graham is a litigation associate at the law firm of Peterson and Ross.

Mrs. Virginia Carruthers Smith '87L, and her husband, a daughter, Virginia Gilder, on Feb. 14, 1994. The family lives in Birmingham, Ala., where Smith is a board member of the Birmingham alumni chapter. She is currently not practicing law and is kept busy by her three children.

Mr. & Mrs. David B. Carson '88L, a daughter, Anna Paden, on Nov. 6, 1993. The family lives in Roanoke.

Mrs. Margaret Graf Lisner '91L and her husband, Samuel, a son, Daniel James, on July 10, 1993. The family lives in Geneseo, N.Y.

In Memoriam

Judge M.F. Hays '15, retired educator and insurance executive, died Nov. 22, 1993. After leaving W&L in 1914, Hays went on to earn his B.A. from Ogden College in Chicago. He then moved to Kentucky, where he worked as a teacher, principal and superintendent of high schools for 33 years. In 1948, he retired from his career in education and bought the Elizabethtown (Ky.) Gas Co., which he managed for three years. In 1951, Hays opened the J.M.F. Hays Insurance and Realty Co. in Glendale, Ky. He served as president of the company until his retirement.

Dr. Samuel L. Raines '21, retired urologist, died Dec. 17, 1993, in Memphis, Tenn. He was a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity, Omicron Delta Kappa, the University Glee Club, the football team, the baseball team, the White Friars, the Cotillion Club, the Sigma Society and the 13 Club at W&L. He also served the University as a class agent. In 1926, Raines received his medical degree from the University of Tennessee at Knoxville. In 1929, he joined the department of urology at the school as an instructor. He stayed with the department, working his way up to department chair, until 1966. He was chief of staff at Methodist Hospital in Memphis twice, in 1948-49 and again in 1964-69. He served in the Army Medical Corps during World War II under General Patton. He received an honorary Doctor of Science degree from Washington and Lee in 1964.

Douglass P. Wingo '24L, retired attorney, died June 20, 1993. He was a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity, the Phi Delta Phi legal fraternity, and played football at W&L. After leaving Lexington in 1923, Wingo was the assistant football coach at Birmingham Southern College for five years. He joined the Birmingham law firm of Bibb, Foster, Conwell and Strickland in 1924 and remained with the firm until his retirement in 1976. He served in the Marines during both World Wars, achieving the rank of colonel in World War II. Wingo served as city attorney for several Alabama municipalities during his legal career.

Edward O. Henderson '25, real estate manager, died Dec. 10, 1993. He was a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity at W&L. After graduation, Henderson moved to the Boston area and began a career in real estate. He worked there until his retirement in 1969, from his position as property manager with R.M. Bradley and Co. He spent his retirement years in Englewood, Fla.

Charles E. Van Horn '27, retired letter carrier and postal clerk, died Jan. 5, 1994, in Alexandria, Va. He was a member of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity at W&L. After leaving W&L in 1926, Van Horn played professional football in New York. Later, he was a professional golfer in Pittsburgh and also operated a bridge center. In 1942, Van Horn returned to the Washington (D.C.) area and began working as a letter carrier in Landover Hills. He served in the Navy during World War II, and then returned to postal work. He retired in the mid-1970s as a clerk in the D.C. post office.

Julian E. Glaspie '28, retired purchasing agent, died Nov. 6, 1993, in Mansfield, La. Glaspie worked for Nabor's Trailers prior to his retirement in 1975. He was a member of the Zoning Commission, Rotary Club, and the First United Methodist Church in Mansfield.

John S. (Jack) Hanckel '28, retired utility company executive, died Dec. 16, 1993, in Camp Hill, Pa. He was a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity at W&L. In 1930, Hanckel joined the Pennsylvania Power and Light Co. as a commercial representative. He was with the company for 44 years, holding a number of positions until his retirement in 1974 as vice president of the company's Harrisburg division.

George A. Sprinkel III '30, retired insurance executive, died Jan. 28, 1994. He was a member of the Kappa Sigma fraternity at W&L. After graduation, he went to work as an insurance agent in Richmond and in 1939, he joined Continental Insurance Cos. in Orlando, Fla. He moved to Miami in 1965 and managed the company's Miami office until his retirement in 1973. Sprinkel served in the Navy during World War II, in the Pacific theater.

William T. Stuchell Jr. '30, retired insurance executive, died Jan. 24, 1994. He left the University in 1929 and went on to receive his B.A. from Rutgers University in 1930. In 1933, he received his J.D.

from New York University. From 1933 to 1939, Stuchell was associated with several New York law firms, and in 1939, he joined the legal department of Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. He was with the company until he retired as assistant general counsel in 1973. He served in the Navy during World War II, and was awarded the Pacific Theater Ribbon and the Victory Ribbon for his military service.

Houston M. Minniece '31, retired insurance agent, died Nov. 19, 1993. He was a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity at W&L and served as a class agent as an alumnus. After graduation, Minniece returned to his hometown of Meridian, Miss., and went to work for F.W. Williams State Agency Insurance. He retired as president of the company in the mid-1970s and moved to Pass Christian, Miss., and later to Jackson, Miss. He served in the Navy during World War II, in the Pacific Theater.

Albert G. Peery '31, '32L, retired district judge of the 29th Circuit of Virginia, on Sept. 7, 1993, in Tazewell, Va. He was a member of the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity at W&L. After receiving his law degree, Peery went into private practice in his hometown of Tazewell. In 1935, he was appointed Trial Justice, County Judge and General District Judge in the Court of First Instance of Tazewell, positions he held until 1977. From 1943 to 1945, Peery served as an officer in the U.S. Naval Reserves at a base in the South Pacific.

Harold M. Weston '31, former attorney and expert in labor-relations management and government, died Jan. 1, 1994, in Hastings-on-Hudson, N.Y. He was a member of Zeta Beta Tau fraternity at W&L. In 1934, he received his J.D. from Harvard University. He was a partner in Forsyth, Decker, Hubbard and Broderick and later served as counsel to that firm and its successor, Decker, Hubbard and Weldon in New York City. During World War II, he served in the Army in North Africa and Europe. For many years, Weston represented the Yale Club, U.S. Tobacco, Bibbs and Cox, St. Barnabas Hospital and various other hospitals and industries. He had also been attorney at the New York Mortgage Commission. In 1960, Weston was appointed by President Eisenhower to serve on the emergency fact finding board charged with handling national railroad disputes. In recent years, he was called upon to arbitrate labor disputes involving the telephone and railroad industries. In 1991, he was still busy with cases involving CSX, Burlington Northern, New York Telephone, New Jersey Bell, New York University, and Shopcraft.

Erwin J. (Jerry) Ade '32, professional fund-raiser, died Oct. 26, 1993. He was a member of Pi Kappa Phi fraternity at W&L. During the 1940s, Ade worked for Myler Plastics in New York City. In 1952, he became the fund-raising director of the National Fund for Medical Education. He also served as administrative director for the Citizen's Commission for the Hoover Report, executive secretary of the National Doctor's Commission for Improved Medical Services, the first national campaign director for the American Heart Association and director of the commerce and industry division of the NYU/Bellevue Medical Center Campaign. During World War II, he was director of the Commerce and Industry Division for War Bond Drives, the American Red Cross and the USO. He opened the E.J. Ade Co. in New York City, a fund-raising and public relations firm in 1952, and later opened Pointmakers Inc. in 1968, a firm designed to professionally plan, organize, direct, and stage new product introductions. He retired to Palm Beach, Fla., in 1979.

Haven Walton '32, retired executive of Alcoa Steamship Co., died Nov. 17, 1993, in New Orleans. He was a member of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity at W&L. In 1940, he joined the Alcoa Steamship Co. and spent some time in Trinidad and Suriname with the company during the 1940s. He returned to the states in the late 1940s and worked in Missouri for a while, before moving to New Orleans. In 1967, Walton retired from Alcoa and joined the Jan C.V. Terwyk Co. He retired in 1975 as a vice president.

E. Marshall Nuckols Jr. '33, '35L, former rector of the Board of Trustees of Washington and Lee and retired senior vice president of the Campbell Soup Co., died March 10, 1994, in Weston, Vt. He was a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity, Phi Beta Kappa, Omicron Delta Kappa, and the Order of the Coif at W&L. A past president of the Alumni Association, Nuckols was a member of the University's Board of Trustees from 1969 to 1981, serving as rector from 1974 to 1981. After receiving his law degree in 1935, Nuckols worked as an associate with the law firm of Covington, Burling, Rubell, Acheson and Shorb in Washington, D.C. In 1942, he left the firm to join one of its clients, the Campbell Soup Co. He held a number of positions with the company, including secretary, general counsel, vice president, and finally senior vice president-administrative services. He retired in 1976 and moved from Newtown, Pa., to Weston, Vt. Nuckols was a past president of the Camden County (N.J.) United Fund and the National Cannery Association.

Clarence W. Campbell '35, retired teacher, died Aug. 7, 1990, in Hornell, N.Y. He belonged to Delta Tau Delta fraternity at W&L, but transferred to the University of Buffalo (N.Y.) in 1933, and received his B.A. in 1937. He was a World War II Army veteran and a former teacher at Canisteo (N.Y.) Central School. He also coached swimming and wrestling at the school.

LeRoy Hodges Jr. '35, tobacco industry executive, died Jan. 28, 1994, in Richmond. He was a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity and Omicron Delta Kappa at W&L. After graduation, Hodges moved to Danville, Va., and began working for Dibrell Brothers, dealers in leaf tobacco. He served in the Navy during World War II, and was stationed in the Caribbean and along the west coast of South America. After the war, he joined the Maury Leaf Tobacco Co. and worked his way up to vice president. In 1959, he moved to Alexandria, Va., to be a marketing specialist with the tobacco division of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's foreign agricultural services department, a job that took him around the world. In 1977, he retired and moved to Richmond.

N. Joe Rahall '35, communications executive, died April 1, 1993. He left W&L in 1932 and received his B.A. from Duke University in 1935. He eventually came to own seven radio stations and several television stations in five states. In 1979, he sold Rahall Communications Corp. and retired to Beckley, W.Va.

Richard V.T. Criss '36, funeral director, died Nov. 2, 1993, in Newark, Ohio. He was a member of Phi Kappa Psi fraternity at W&L. After graduation, he returned to Ohio to join his father and brother in Criss Brothers Funeral Directors, which was founded in 1894. He served in the Pacific Theater with the Army during World War II. Criss worked as a funeral director for more than 50 years. He was also the founder and chairman of the board of Assured Protection Inc.

John T. Massengale '36, died Nov. 11, 1993, in West Chester, Pa. He was a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity at W&L. Massengale received his Ph.D in chemistry from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1939. He worked for 45 years as a manager of research and development for the former FMC Corp. in Philadelphia and Marcus Hook, retiring in 1984. He served in the Marine Corps during World War II, taking part in landings in the South Pacific. In recent years, he coached Little League and Senior League baseball.

Richard T. Scully '36, died Dec. 24, 1993. He was a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity and the Glee Club at W&L. He attended law school in the evenings and received his law degree from the University of Connecticut in 1948. He worked as an attorney in West Hartford, Conn., for many years, serving as town prosecutor and vice chairman of the town Plan and Zoning Commission. He was also chairman of the Democratic Party in West Hartford. Eventually, Scully became chief judge of the Municipal Courts of Connecticut. He was also a founding benefactor of St. Patrick's Catholic Church in Lexington, Va.

William A. Landreth '37, Texas oilman, died in July 1993 in Fort Worth. During his one year at W&L, he was a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity. He transferred to the University of Texas and received his B.A. in 1939. That same year, he entered the oil business with Landreth and Co., where he worked until 1942, when he entered the Army. He served in Europe until 1945, and returned to the oil business in Fort Worth.

Kester W. Denman Jr. '38, retired attorney, died Aug. 8, 1993. He was a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity at W&L. In 1940, he received his LLB from Baylor University and went into practice with Mantooth and Denman in Lufkin, Texas, for the next two years. From 1942 until 1945, Denman served in the Navy. In 1945, he returned to his law practice in Lufkin. He later served as chairman of the board of Lufkin Telephone, a division of Conroe Telephone Co. He also worked as an attorney for Southwestern Bell in Houston before moving back to Lufkin to retire.

Lauren D. ("Wildman") Wild '38, graphic designer and instructor, died Dec. 16, 1993, in Charlotte. He was a member of Phi Kappa Psi fraternity, the Commerce Club and the swim team at W&L. He taught printing and graphic arts at Clemson University and Washentaw Community College in Ann Arbor, Mich. At the time of his death, he was teaching at Central Piedmont Community College in Charlotte. In 1982, he won the first Clemson Industry award for Graphic Arts. Wild's Paper Primer Book was also published that year. In 1989, he won the Best Faculty Award at Central Piedmont Community College. A past president of the Saline (Mich.) Kiwanis Club and elected member of the Saline School Board, Wild was general chairman of the town's centennial celebration in 1966.

William R. Abbott '40, retired salesman, died Nov. 14, 1993, in Woodway, Texas. He was a member of the football team at W&L. He left the University in 1938 and went to work for the International Harvester Co. He served in the Air Force during World War II. After the war, Abbott returned to International Harvester and later worked in sales for several other Texas businesses before moving to Chicago as a district sales supervisor with the Curtis Candy Co.

The Hon. John C. Snidow Jr. '40L, retired judge, died April 26, 1993. He was a member of Phi Alpha Delta legal fraternity at W&L. Snidow opened a law office in Christiansburg, Va., where he practiced until 1974 when he was elected Judge of the General District Court of the 27th Judicial District of Virginia. He retired from the bench in 1987 and moved to Blacksburg, Va.

John M. Read Jr. '41, accountant, died July 27, 1993, in East Cleveland, Ohio. Read was a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity at W&L and played lacrosse and basketball. He served in the Army after graduation until 1945. In 1946, Read moved to Atlanta to work as an accountant with the Braswell Auditing Co. Several years later, he returned to his home state of Ohio.

John W. Weathers Jr. '41, retired marketing executive, died Aug. 29, 1993, in Banner Elk, N.C. Weathers served in the Army Quartermaster Corps from 1942 to 1945. After the war, he worked in food marketing and distribution and owned and operated Weathers Marketing Co. in Charlotte.

Thomas L. Crittenden '42, died March 19, 1993, in Wilmington, N.C. He was a member of Kappa Alpha fraternity at W&L, but left the University in 1940. He went on to complete his B.S. at the University of North Carolina and graduated in 1948. He served in the Army from 1941 until 1946. He was a comptroller/cashier with First Citizen's Bank and Trust in Wilmington at the time of his death.

John W. Goode Jr. '43 died Feb. 5, 1994, in San Antonio, Texas. He was a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, Omicron Delta Kappa, the Sigma Society, the Cotillion Club, the White Friars, the "13" Club, and the football team at W&L. Goode left the University in 1942 and received his B.A. from the University of Texas-Austin in 1943. He also received his Bachelor of Laws from the school in 1948. He served in the Marines during World War II in the South Pacific and was awarded several commendations including the Silver Star, the Bronze Star, and a presidential unit citation. After two-and-a-half years in the Bexar County (Texas) district attorney's office, he entered private practice in 1951, establishing Hardy and Goode, which later became Foster, Lewis, Langely and Goode. In 1964, he established partnership with Robert Sawtelle, which grew into Sawtelle, Goode, Davidson and Trollo. In 1991, he was one of the founders of Goode, Casseb and Jones, and was chairman at the time of his death.

James G. LaPlante '43, retired insurance company president, died Feb. 11, 1994. He was a member of Phi Kappa Psi fraternity and the tennis team at W&L. He served in the Navy from 1943 to 1946. He received his MBA from Stanford University in 1948 and worked as a marketing economics analyst with Shell Oil Co. in San Francisco for a year. In 1949, he joined the Industrial Insurance Indemnity Co. in San Francisco, where he remained until his retirement as company president.

Edwin F. (Bud) Robb Jr. '43, retired life insurance agent, died Nov. 9, 1993, in Minneapolis. He was a member of Phi Kappa Psi fraternity, Omicron Delta Kappa and the wrestling team at W&L. He was a Navy navigator during World War II and served as mayor of Deephaven, Minn., from 1956 until 1960. Robb sold life insurance for the National Life Insurance Co. of Vermont and earned membership in the company's President's Club in 1964. He was on the Metropolitan Planning Commission for six years before joining the Hennepin County Board in 1966. He retired when his sixth term expired at the end of 1988. Robb was also instrumental in building the suburban Hennepin County libraries.

Arthur Thompson Jr. '43, retired insurance company executive, died Dec. 31, 1993, in Southold, N.Y. He was a member of Phi Kappa Alpha fraternity at W&L. Thompson served in the Army for two years during World War II and was stationed in the South Pacific. In 1946, he began working for the Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. in Manhattan. He retired in 1982 as a vice president and manager of the insurance company's New York City branch office.

Daniel H. Ball '46, businessman, died in December 1993, in Winnetka, Ill. He was a member of Delta Tau Delta fraternity at W&L and served in the Navy in the Pacific Theater during World War II. After the war, Ball went to work in the sales and advertising department of the Chicago Leather Belting Co. He later joined the Chicago-Allis Manufacturing Corp. He retired as executive vice president and chairman in 1988.

Franklin P. Pulley III '48L, former attorney, died Feb. 17, 1993. He left W&L in 1947 and received his law degree from the Virginia College of Commerce and Laws in Richmond in 1950. He practiced law in Roanoke, primarily dealing in bankruptcy cases.

Earl L. Hargrove Jr. '52L, accountant, died April 9, 1993. He was a member of the Law Review and Phi Alpha Delta legal fraternity at W&L. He served in the Army during the Korean War. He worked as a certified public accountant with Leach, Calkins and Scott in Richmond from 1954 to 1959. In 1959, Hargrove started as a senior tax accountant with Robertshaw-Fulton Controls Co. in Richmond. He served the company in a number of positions, and retired as assistant treasurer and director of taxes.

John G. Cargill Jr. '54 died Jan. 5, 1994. He was a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity at W&L. After leaving W&L in 1953, Cargill lived in northern Virginia. He worked as a sales agent for Louis A. Tilmant and Co., Belgian steel manufacturers, before becoming a sales manager with the Recony Sales and Engineering Corp. He eventually moved to Moneta, Va., and worked as a certified land surveyor. Cargill later served as president of the Virginia Wood Heating Co. in Moneta.

Robert M. Davenport '54 died Jan. 30, 1994, in Jacksonville, Fla. He was a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity at W&L. He was an executive with the Krystal Co. for a number of years. The company was founded by his family and owned the Krystal restaurant chain. He subsequently developed Stonedge, a condominium development atop Lookout Mountain in Tennessee, before moving back into the restaurant business in 1982 by establishing Central Park, a chain that features double drive-through units and is based in Chattanooga.

Cecil J. Edmonds '54 died May 29, 1993, in Virginia Beach. He lived in Roanoke. He was a member of Delta Upsilon fraternity at W&L. He was a former columnist and editor for The Roanoke Times and publisher of The Roanoke Star. In 1960, he was a founding partner in the advertising firm of Brand, Edmonds and Wreden. He later served as vice president and general manager of the firm and was president of its successor, Brand and Edmonds Associates.

Frank P. Rexford '56 died in June 1993. He was a member of Pi Kappa Phi fraternity at W&L. He left the University in 1955 and completed his B.S. at Johns Hopkins University in 1962. He worked as an accounting clerk for Bethlehem Steel in Pennsylvania from 1955 until 1968. He later worked as an auditor for Defense Contract Auditing Agency in Baltimore.

John L. Smith Jr. '69, former attorney, died Nov. 20, 1993. He was a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity at W&L. He received his J.D. from the University of Virginia in 1972 and his master of law in taxation from Georgetown University in 1977. He served as a lieutenant in the Navy Judge Advocate Generals Corps until 1980, when he joined the law firm of Outland, Gray, O'Keefe and Hubbard in Norfolk, Va. He was a partner in the firm at the time of his death.

M. Garland Rigney '70L died Nov. 5, 1993, in Fairfax, Va. He was editor of the Law Review while at W&L. Rigney was retired from the Army Judge Advocate Generals Corps and lived in Fairfax.

Charles C. Holbrook Jr. '72 died Feb. 7, 1994, in Hermosilla, Mexico. He served in the Army from 1973 to 1975, and received his MBA from the College of William and Mary in 1977. He then joined IBM in Richmond as a marketing representative. Holbrook later moved to Ponte Vedra, Fla., and worked for Club Operations and Property Management in Tallahassee. At the time of his death, he was general manager of Club Los Logas in Hermosilla, Mexico.

Henry R. Garden III '75L, Norfolk (Va.) attorney, died Dec. 21, 1993. He was a member of the Legal Aid and Research Association, the Mock Trial Committee, the Student Bar Association and Phi Delta Phi legal fraternity at W&L. For two years after graduation, Garden was a law clerk for the Honorable Walter E. Hoffman '31, Judge of the Eastern Division of the U.S. District Court. He went on to practice law in Norfolk, Va.

Alan A. Sant'Angelo '80L, former attorney, died Oct. 16, 1993. He was a member of the Law Review at W&L. He was a former deputy attorney general with the Division of Criminal Justice in Trenton, N.J. He later went into private practice and was a partner in the firm of Sant'Angelo and Trope in Somerville at the time of his death.

William Jackson (Jack) Litz III '95L, a second-year law student at W&L, died Feb. 15, 1994, in Staunton, Va. He was a member of St. John's United Methodist Church in Buena Vista, where he taught Sunday school and sang in the choir. He was an Eagle Scout and an Eastman Scholar and graduated summa cum laude in chemical engineering from Auburn University.

Faculty

George Stephen Whitney, professor of organic chemistry at Washington and Lee, died Jan. 11, 1994, in Lexington. He was 60. A native of Wheatland, Wyo., Whitney grew up in Colorado and received his B.A. from the University of Colorado in 1955 and his Ph.D. from Northwestern University in 1962. Before coming to W&L in 1962, Whitney taught for one year at Wabash College as an assistant professor of chemistry. He became a full professor of chemistry at W&L in 1973. In 1964-65, Whitney was a fellow at the University of Basle, Switzerland with the Swiss-American Foundation for Scientific Exchange. In 1970-71, as the recipient of a Sloan-Washington and Lee Fellowship Grant, he did research at the University of Bristol, England, and presented a paper, "Free Radical Additions," before the school of chemistry while there. At W&L, he was a co-director of the National Science Foundation Undergraduate Science Education Program. Last May, Whitney was awarded the 12th annual William Webb Pusey III Award for outstanding service and dedication to Washington and Lee.

1 9 9 4

C L A S S R E U N I O N S

May 12, 13, 14

HONORING THE UNDERGRADUATE AND LAW CLASSES

1944 1949 1954 1959 1964
1969 1974 1979 1984 1989

THURSDAY EVENING, MAY 12
REUNION KEYNOTE ADDRESS
SPEAKER: Dr. Sidney M.B. Coulling III '46,
Professor of English Emeritus
RECEPTION at the Alumni House

"Prelude to Atlanta: The 1996 Olympics and W&L"
COCKTAILS WITH THE FACULTY
ALUMNI CONCERT Southern Comfort and Sazeracs
BUFFET DINNER featuring the Johnny McClenon Big Band
REUNION DANCE featuring Spectrum

FRIDAY, MAY 13
REUNION SEMINARS
"Anguish of Blood: Ethnic Conflicts Across Eastern Europe"
"Preparing for the 21st Century: Three Critical Decisions"
"W&L Today: An Undergraduate and Law Student Panel Discussion"
"Scientific Frontiers at Washington and Lee"

SATURDAY, MAY 14
ANNUAL JOINT MEETING of the Undergraduate and Law Alumni Associations in Lee Chapel
CLASS MEETINGS
PICNIC LUNCHEON
CLASS BANQUETS AND PARTIES
RECEPTION at the Student Center

W A S H I N G T O N A N D L E E

Armchairs and Rockers

BOSTON ROCKER
Black lacquer
or
Dark pine $250

ARMCHAIR
Black lacquer with cherry arms
or
Dark pine $250

The Boston Rocker requires some assembly.
Prices include freight charges.

The chairs are made of birch and rock maple, hand-rubbed in black lacquer or dark pine stain. The five-color crest of the University is painted on the back of each chair or rocker. They are attractive and sturdy pieces of furniture and are welcome gifts for all occasions—Christmas, birthdays, graduation, anniversaries, or weddings. All profit from sales of the chair goes to the scholarship fund in memory of John Graham '14.

To order: Include your name, address, your telephone number, and a telephone number, if known, for the delivery location. Indicate chair or rocker and color. Make check payable to W&L Alumni Office. Please allow 6-8 weeks for delivery.

MAIL YOUR ORDER TO:

WASHINGTON AND LEE ALUMNI INC.
Lexington, Virginia 24450

The 1994 Washington and Lee Open at Kingsmill Resort in Williamsburg ❖ July 29-31

Imagine a world-class resort and conference facility located within an easy drive of historical sites, amusement parks, and acres and acres of shopping opportunities.

Imagine two classic golf courses—one designed by Arnold Palmer, the other by Pete Dye—hard against the James River in Colonial Williamsburg.

Imagine a legion of loyal Washington and Lee alumni stretching the limits of the Honor System as they regale each other with tales of birdies and pars (no bogeys, of course) on those two classic courses.

You have just imagined the 1994 Washington and Lee Open at Kingsmill Resort.

This year's event will be played July 29-31 at Kingsmill in Williamsburg. The tournament will offer golfers the opportunity to test their skill on two world-class courses—the River Course, home of the PGA's Anheuser-Busch Golf Classic, designed by Pete Dye, and the Plantation Course, designed by Arnold Palmer. There is also the Bray Links Par 3 to test your short game. All three courses are designed around a natural landscape of lakes, ponds, trees, and more than 350 years of history overlooking the James River. In addition to the distinctive courses, Kingsmill boasts its touring pro Curtis Strange, the 1988 and 1989 U.S. Open champion.

The event begins on Friday evening with cocktails, a banquet, and review of the tournament. After breakfast on your own, tee times on Saturday start at 8:30 a.m. and go until 11 a.m. Saturday evening's festivities include a cocktail party and dinner. Following breakfast on your own, tee times on Sunday begin at 8:30 a.m., with an awards ceremony scheduled after the last group finishes. Awards will be given for low gross and low net (for men and women), and closest to the pin and longest drive on each day.

The cost for this year's event includes dinner on both nights, accommodations for two nights, all golf charges and handling fees, trophies, and giveaways. The costs are:

- $560 for single golfer in single room
- $435 for single golfer sharing a room
- $560 for a couple with one golfer
- $750 for a couple, both golfers

A special mailing will be sent out in April to all Washington and Lee golfers who have expressed an interest in the W&L Open. For more information about the Open or to be included on the mailing list, contact the W&L Alumni Office at (703) 463-8464, or fax us at (703) 463-8473.

Deadline for entries is June 10, 1994. We look forward to seeing you at the 1994 Washington and Lee Open.

The Washington and Lee University

A L U M N I M A G A Z I N E

Lexington, Virginia 24450

Non-Profit Org.
U.S. Postage
P A I D
Permit # 161
Lynchburg, VA